One of the latest reports that we have is the alleged discovery of a Russian dentist, which will earn for him the everlasting gratitude of the human family, provided somebody hasn't lied, which is possible. This fellow professes to have discovered a means of planting artificial teeth in such a way that they will take permanent hold of the jaw bone and become as firmly fixed as natural ones. Dentists now frequently take a tooth out of its socket and replace it successfully; but this man does nothing of the kind. It doesn't matter with him how long the vacancy has lasted, or whether the original tooth was taken out by a dentist or a mule's foot, all that is necessary is that there shall be an opening for him and he'll engage to put in a tooth with as much ease, certainty and simplicity as one would transplant a cabbage. He uses teeth made of gutta percha, metal, porcelain or other material, and by some peculiarity in the form of the tooth the jawbone will take hold of it and fasten it for all time to come.

This will be a boon to a large majority of people in this world whose natural teeth have gone back on them. If there's a tooth missing the dentist will dig a hole and plant a new one, and if a person outgrows his teeth, or if the fashion in teeth changes, he can have all of them taken out and new ones of the latest style and fit put in. There'll be no more aching molars to dislocate a man's piety and disturb his neighbors. No more will his set of false teeth lose the combination when he tries to crack a nut, or slip from their moorings and dam up his epiglottis while he sleeps. No more will a man scout around with his under jaw in a sling, praying for death or a dentist, nor will he walk the floor at night with his head in both hands while his wife hides under the cover to keep from being scorched by the streams of sizzling profanity that light up the atmosphere.

But how will this invention strike the dental fraternity? If the plan is a success there will be no more gouging and drilling, boring and burrowing in a person's mouth, for if a tooth can be easily and safely replaced there will be no need for patching up the old ones, and there are few people in the world who would undergo the tortures of having one of their old teeth dismembered and re-filled if a new one could be put in with little pain or delay. And best of all, such a state as toothless old age will be known no more forever.

Success to the discovery!

Persons who are troubled with indigestion will be interested in the experience of Wm. H. Penn, chief clerk in the railway mail service at Des Moines Iowa, who writes: "It gives me pleasure to testify to the merits of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For two years I have suffered from indigestion, and am subject to frequent severe attacks of pain in the stomach and bowels. One or two doses of this remedy never fails to give perfect relief. Price 25 and 50 cents; sold by J. E. Seale & Co. Druggists.

At one of our large north country churches recently a fashionably dressed lady happened to go into one of the private pews.

The vergor, who is known to be a very stern old chap, immediately hustled up to her and said:

"I'm afraid, miss, you'll hae to cum out o' that. This is a paid pew."

"Sir," said the young lady, turning sharply around, "do you know who I am? I'm one of the Pifes."

"I dinna care," said the old man.

"If you are the big drum, you'll hae to cum out."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a cough remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop. St. James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. B. F. Merrill, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Mrs. Remington, 222 E. 25th St., Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of a cough, because it is in her family. Free Trials Bottles at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

"I have here a neat and pretty little letter opener," began the agent.
"So have I at home," said the business man sadly. "I'm married."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Tetter, Salt-Rheum and Eczema.

The intense itching and smarting, incident to these diseases, is instantly allayed by applying Chamberlain's Eye and Skin Ointment. Many very bad cases have been permanently cured by it. It is equally efficient for itching piles, and a favorite remedy for sore nipples, chapped hands, chilblains, frost bites and chronic sore eyes. 25 cts. per box.

Dr. Cady's Condition Powders are just what a horse needs when in bad condition. Tonic, blood purifier and vermifuge. They are not food but medicine and the best in use to put a horse in prime condition. Price 25 cents per package.

LESS THAN ONE FARE

To San Francisco and Return—What the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Has to Say of the Trip.

To San Francisco and return at much less than one fare.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad company has this to say:
On account of the International Convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held in San Francisco, Cal., July 7th to 12th, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company will sell tickets from Birmingham to San Francisco at the very low rate of $25.85.

Arrangements have been perfected whereby the above amount is paid for going passage, and the passenger is allowed to select the same or a different route returning at the same rate.

Upon payment of a small additional amount returning passengers can visit the North Pacific slope on the way home by way of Portland, Ore., and the famous Yellowstone National Park. Unexcelled transportation arrangements have been made in the way of special through Pullman Tourist and Buffet Sleepers, bringing the cost of living in transit down to a comparatively nominal figure. The Louisville and Nashville and its connections have been named by the Alabama State Y. P. S. C. E. as absolutely the official route.

Florida, Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina and other southern states have also named the above great popular highway as the official and most liberal and interesting trans-continental route. Just notice a few of the attractions that are put for the first time on record within the reach of almost every one: St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Pueblo, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City, Gardfield Beach, Ogden, Sacramento, San Francisco, Portland, Yellowstone Park, Los Angeles, El Paso, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Dallas, New Orleans and lots of other big cities of our country, with their surrounding attractions. It is a great big bill of fare at popular prices. Grandest scenery in the world, best railroad service, congenial people, and low rates make the trip one of a lifetime. Don't make any mistake selecting your route. Get your sleeping accommodations booked early and save confusion.

Remember the dates tickets will be on sale, viz: June 28th to July 2nd, good to return until August 15, 1897. From Montgomery, Selma, Mobile, Florence, Huntsville and other points rates are based correspondingly low as from Birmingham.

Newspaper space is too limited to do justice to a description of a trip of this kind.

See the nearest Louisville and Nashville ticket agent and have him tell what he knows of the attractions offered. They are all ready and willing to help you select a delightful route.

The undersigned will be glad to give full particulars and to furnish the populace at large and Endeavorers in particular descriptive matter, etc. The Sunset Coast is waiting to give everyone a hearty welcome, and the Louisville and Nashville railroad has made preparations to carry them in a manner befitting the occasion.

"My daughter, when recovering from an attack of fever, was a great sufferer from pain in the back and hips," writes Louise Grover, of Sardis, Ky. "After using quite a number of remedies without any benefit she tried one bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and it has given entire relief." Chamberlain's Pain Balm is also a certain cure for rheumatism. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co. Druggists.

"How in the world, Mrs. Wisely, do you manage to have all of your three daughters in so early when they spend the evening out?"
"I've made a rule that the last one home has to get breakfast next morning."—Detroit Free Press.

Mothers whose children are troubled with bad colds, croup or whooping cough will do well to read what Dr. R. E. Robey, of Olney, Mo., says on this subject. He writes: "For years we have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and always keep it in the house. It is regarded in our family as specific for all kinds of colds and coughs. Mrs. Green spent the first of the week with her daughter, Mrs. Rowe, at Malory's.

Mrs. Dr. Shackelford and family left Monday for Talladega to spend several days.

Rev. Bruce Harris, of Rome, Ga., was in the city Monday and Tuesday visiting friends.

H. Fox passed through the city yesterday en route to join the campers above Wilsonville.

J. D. Mason and daughter, Miss Essie, spent last Thursday night with relatives in Shelby.

Messrs. D. E. McLendon and Walter Moss, of Calera, visited friends (?) in the city Sunday night.

T. J. Weaver repairs watches, clocks and jewelry at short notice. Call and see him when in town.

George Mason arrived home last Friday, having finished his second year at Auburn college.

Miss Georgie Leeper, after a several day's visit to friends and relatives here, left for Calera Monday.

A man never knows how many friends he has until he comes home from a successful fishing trip.

You are cordially invited to th Hall Drug Co's store to buy your drugs and medicines cheap for cash.

When a man fails in other ways he can attract attention by shaving off his whiskers. How about it John?

Don't forget to have your photographs made at T. J. Weaver's gallery before the summer sickness begins.

J. W. O'Hara left last Friday afternoon for Blossburg, Jefferson county, where he will conduct a series of meetings.

Dr. John Williams and Rev. T. M. Wilson spent Monday and Tuesday with Rev. George Mason, near Talladega springs.

J. P. Spencer was called by telegram to Talladega Springs Monday afternoon to attend the bedside of his wife who is quite sick.

Miss Nalda Christian, of Shelby, spent Wednesday and Thursday of last week here the guest of her friend, Miss Anna Milner.

W. B. Greek left Tuesday morning for Talladega to attend the meeting of the educational association which convened there that day.

The northern part of the county was visited by a heavy rain and hail storm Saturday, but we learn did little damage to the crops.

The Calera and Anniston base ball teams are to contest for the championship on the larsers grounds on June 29th. We hope Calera will win.

Miss Lucy Smith and her cousin, Mrs. Chatterton, returned last Saturday from Wilsonville where they have been visiting the family of J. W. Bolin.

Miss Gertrude Howe, who has been with Mrs. C. E. Parker for some weeks, returned to her home in Elmore Tuesday; accompanied by Miss Lizzie Sinnott, who will be her guest for some time.

A game of ball between the colored teams of Wilsonville and Columbiana was played here Saturday and resulted in favor of Columbiana. The interesting feature of the game was a one-legged man playing first base.

W. A. Bennett, of the Kingdom neighborhood, is leading this section in early cotton. We have before us now a bloom from his field that is fully developed, and he informs us that he has had them since the 17th of this month.

In persuation to an invitation from T. J. Law, proprietor of Shelby Springs, and his charming daughter, Miss Lizzie, several couples from here participated in an elegant entertainment at that most pleasant resort last Wednesday night.

I positively will not sell any goods where bills past due remain unpaid.

J. H. HAMMOND.

To the confederate veterans of beat one only: You are hereby requested to meet me at Columbiana with your guns for the purpose of drilling, July 10th, that we be the better prepared for the reunion on the 16th.

J. W. JOHNSTON.

Mrs. Chatterton, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss Lucy Smith, for the past few weeks, left yesterday for home in Massachusetts. This was her first visit south but she left singing her praises and trusting she would be able to return at some near future date.

Just as we go to press we learn, through a telegram to the family of I. D. Mason, that Rev. George Mason is critically ill at his home near Talladega Springs and not expected to live through the day. This will be a great shock to his many friends and admirers, for truly he is greatly admired.

Last Wednesday night most of the young people of our town and a goodly number of the older ones took advantage of an excursion run from Calera to Talladega Springs and went to the latter place on a moonlight picnic. They all report a most excellent time and trust to be able to repeat it at some near future date.

Joe Spencer arrived home from Montgomery Friday, having completed the commercial course in the Massey Business College at that place. He contemplates going to Birmingham next week and finishing up in stenography and typewriting. Joe made a splendid record in college, of which all his friends are justly proud.

Messrs. W. B. Browne, J. T. Leeper, W. F. Thetford, J. R. Beavers and C. C. DuBoise left last Thursday morning for the mouth of Yellow Leaf creek; there to pitch their tents and bask in blissful, undisturbed happiness for several days, enjoying the pleasures of fishing—and other things. We only regret we could not be with them but wish them a most pleasant sojourn and trust snakes will bescaree.

I have a lot of ladies genuine Dongola Button shoes, in opera, medium opera and common sense toes, size 4 1-2, that I will sell for the next few days at $1.00 per pair. This is less than cost of manufacturing.

J. M. Spencer.

A Mother in Israel has Fallen.

After an illness of about five months, Mrs. Jane Parker, the mother of our much esteemed townsman, W. G. Parker, died at her home near Columbiana on the 19th day of June, 1897, at the age of eighty-five years and six months. She was married to Mr. J. C. Parker in 1831. She united with the Kingston Baptist church, Autaugauna county, Ala., about 1837 and her life has been one of a devoted christian since that time.

She leaves three sons and two daughters to mourn their loss, which is her eternal gain. "Thy sorrow not, as those who have no hope. Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

Nelson Switch Items.

Local news scarce.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Z. Hill visited their daughter, Mrs. Lyon, Saturday night.

J. T. Sammons, of Columbiana, spent Saturday night with Lee Hill.

Say Prof. who peeled those peaches for you while out dear hunting?

R. Z. Hill and family attended the funeral of Mrs. Parker at Columbiana Sunday.

Crops are looking better since the rain.

F. M. Hallmark is erecting a nice dwelling on his farm here.

Henry Armstrong, of Columbiana, spent Sunday with homefolks here.

R. Z. Hill has the finest water-melons we have seen.

Say, Mr. Chronicle, what do you think of a fellow that will walk three miles to get his girl to mind flies while he sleeps.

Howo.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Miss Cora Smith arrived Friday from a two weeks visit to Maplesville.

Misses Mattie Camp and Anna Hood, of Woodlawn, are the guests of Miss Juddie Kilpatrick this week.

Miss Katie Bradley has returned from a protracted visit among Selma and Marion relatives.

Mrs. Stewart, of Wedowee, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Parish.

J. W. Bolin and daughter, Miss Mary, left Sunday to visit Mrs. Tyler Wilby, of Atlanta.

Prof. Kilpatrick delivered an oration before the Pelham High School last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Jackson returned from Tallapoosa, Ga., where Mrs. Jackson and children have been very sick for the past month.

B. Williamson has resigned as express agent, and A. G. Weldon has been appointed by the express auditor to succeed him.

W. R. Smith and J. C. Jackson visited Columbiana Monday afternoon.

Our Literary Dramatic Club intends to present "Cousin Chrissy's visit from the country" on the Harpersville stage at an early date.

Rev. E. A. Burns, the Baptist Evangelist and former pastor of this church, will conduct the public installation of officers of the Masonic Lodge at the academy next Friday night; he will also preach to us the following Sunday morning and night. Everybody invited to attend the Masonic exercises.

Please allow us, in behalf of Miss Mary Burgess, to correct the typographical error appearing in the Four Mile locals last week, where J. C. Jackson of this place was given as one of the attendants in the Wilson-Jackson wedding. It should have been G. D. Jackson instead of J. C.

The following prominent mode de la mode of the Shelby County Bar came up Thursday and pitched their tent at Rhode's Spring, to enjoy a week's luxuries of the fishermans life. Hon's Browne, Leeper, Thetford and Beavers, with ex-editor and Dr. J. J. DuBoise. These legal men argue that it is lawful to catch fish with silver or "steal" hooks. What's your verdict Judge Mc?

Thursday morning ondepot agent engaged a negro, Norris Ferguson, to sweep out his office. As soon as the agent made his exit the negro was attracted to the till drawer and found it to contain two five dollar bills. He only took one of the bills which he deposited with Ed Lightsey, a colored blacksmith. Ed felt the "personal" responsibility resting so heavily upon him that he sought the advice of his pastor who advised and urged him to return the money to the agent. Ed did not heed the good brother's advice, but proceeded to smuggle the theft through another negro. Norris was arrested and arraigned before ex-Squire Gwin and while he was being rigidly questioned he confessed to the stealing and produced the "collateral," turning states evidence on Lightsey and making his escape to Selma. Lightsey was carried to Columbiana Saturday afternoon to take his meals at Hotel De Norris(?)

A surprise party was arranged Monday evening in honor of Misses Camp and Hood. The several couples met at Mrs. Dehslers and marched in a body to Mr. and Mrs. Sanders where a most pleasant sojourn was in session from nine to eleven o'clock.

May—Sunday afternoon the young and tender spirit of little May, the infant babe of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. McKinnon, took its flight and was wafted by the gentle zephyrs of God's love into the eternal ports of Heaven. While the little one's sickness was of short duration, it was endured with a child's patience and the sustaining power of God's love. This numbers two bright links that have been broken from this family chain within the past six months. How sad 'tis to part with those whom we love: on the other hand, 'tis a consoling fact to know that distance does not separate God's love from his people. In linking on to God we will, as it were, weld those links together with the inseparable ties that are to bind us together through eternity. There was a peculiar freak in the death of these infants, viz: There was but twelve days difference in their ages. Prof. Kilpatrick conducted the funeral services Motday afternoon in a pathetic and impressive manner, after which she was laid beside her eleven months' old brother. We extend condolence to the bereaved family and relatives in their sore and heart rending afflictions. PAT.

Harpersville Echoes.

Miss Kate Bradley returned home from Selma last week where she has been visiting her brother for some time.

Mr. J. H. Martin, of St. Clair County, spent several days of last week with Harpersville relatives. He is in very feeble health and thought that a few day's change would be a benefit to him, which we hope was.

There was a very large crowd of the school patrons met at the academy Saturday evening and it was unanimously decided to have a first class school here another year. A board of trustees was elected and also a committee of four was appointed to correspond with teachers and make their report at the next meeting, which will be on Saturday evening before the third Sunday in July. Harpersville generally has one of the best schools in the county and our people seem determined now to have a better one next year than ever. So note it, be.

Mrs. Prairie Seale, of Muley's creek, is spending this week with Harpersville relatives.

R. M. Borumi has a bouncing new girl at his house.

Died, at her home in Easonville last Thursday night, Mrs. Emma Davis, wife of John B. Davis and daughter of Mrs. Thompson, of this place. She leaves a husband and several children, besides mother, sisters and brothers and a host of friends and relatives to mourn her departure. She was buried at Macedonia Friday, Rev. Mr. Roberts conducting the burial services. To the bereaved ones we extend our sympathy.

Mr. Hubbard, of Sylacauga, is stationed at this place making bed springs.

Rev B. F. Giles filled his appointment here Saturday and Sunday last preaching fine sermons on both occasions.

Rev. Mr. Clotfelter, the new Presbyterian minister, preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening at half past 3 o'clock. He left a very favorable impression on our people as a preacher, christian and gentleman.

Some parts of our beat were visited by good rains last week while other portions are still dry and the farmers are very gloomy over the crop prospect. JAKE.

Sterrett Stirrings.

Some sickness in our community.

Miss Belle Falkner, who has been quite sick with slow fever for sometime, we are glad to state is improving.

Miss Cora Hartsheld has been right sick the past few days, but is reported to be getting better.

John H. Falkner, of Leeds, was visiting relatives here last week.

Miss Ludie Payton, who has been visiting relatives at Cresswell for sometime, returned home last week.

John W. Goodwin and wife, of Bessemer, are visiting the family of T. B. Falkner, and attending the bed-side of this sister, Miss Belle Falkner.

J. J. Falkner and family made a short visit to his brother Henry J. Falkner, of Pleasant Valley last week. Henry J. Falkner, wife and sister, Miss Annie, came home with them, and returned home last Sunday.

It is rumored and expected that the Cresswell base ball team will play the Sterrett team here next Saturday. Look out for some good playing if those two teams cross bats.

Crops are generally well worked, clean and growing; but needing rain. We had a light rain last week but nothing like a season.

Henry Gill and Paul Falkner went in the direction of Pleasant Valley last Saturday and returned Sunday evening. It is supposed they were deer hunting.

If this does not find the wast basket I may come again. DIXIE.

From Lewis and Four Mile.

A few of the young people of Four Mile enjoyed a very nice singing at Mr. Hadaways Saturday night.

Leonard B. Riddle and John W. Powell transacted business in Childersburg Friday.

"Hobo" you were a little mistaken, I can't respond to "Both-of-We." Doubtless you meant "We-Two," as it was long, long ago. But as it isn't that way now you can't expect much news from poor little "One-of-We."

It was G. D. Jackson, of Wilsonville, that served as a waiter at the marriage of Miss Myrtle Jackson and not J. C. as offered in my last.

W. N. Minor, who has been absent in Montgomery for several month past, is again seen on the streets of Four Mile.

We do not realize how much profanity exists in this vast universe. Would that the men and boys (for not only men but boys use such) could be made to see the sin and danger of it. Boys how many of you would take the name of your dear mother in vain? I dare say not one of you would do that yet some of you almost unthoughtfully take the name of your dear Lord and Saviour, who suffered and died that we might live. You may not think of it now, but subsequently you will when you are lying in the cold and icy arms of death; when your soul goes out to meet its judge and receive compensation: you will then be reminded of every oath that has escaped your lips.

A series of meetings will begin at Four Mile church next Friday and continue till Sunday night, conducted by Rev. Mr. Kidd, of Vincent, the pastor. Let us forgive him a large and attentive congregation on each occasion.

W. S. McEwen, of Wilsonville, was the honored guest of Miss Eva Farr, of Four Mile, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Taylor, of near Wilsonville, spent Sunday with the latters father's family, Mr. Riddle, Sunday.

E. S. Kytie, of Jackson's Mill, attended services at Blue Springs Sunday. Guess you will get another member soon Uncle Mike, as he has been there more than once.

ONE-OF-WE.

The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physician's prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgess, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a Minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church for 50 years or more and have never found anything so beneficial, or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." A PART OF THE SHOW.

But the Young Fellow Couldn't See It Without a Diagram.

The curtain had been rung down on the last act of that exciting melodrama, "The Power of Beer," and the audience was leaving the theater. On the faces of the more thoughtful was an expression of sadness somewhat akin to the look which with a man regards the bright coin pasted on the underside of the tobacco dealer's cigar-case. And one man out of the throng pushed his way to the box-office window.

"See here!" said he, excitedly; "I want my money back!"

"Hm," said the ticket-seller, carelessly. "It's an outrage!" said the man.

"Yes."

"It's a swindle!" continued the man.

"Indeed?"

"You advertise a real robbery!"

"We do."

"I failed to see it!"

"You did?"

"And I want my money back!"

"Now, see here!" said the ticket-seller, leaning out of the window; "I've had about enough, and you get no money back, see? That's where the robbery comes in, and if you haven't mind enough to grasp it, I can't see that there's any kick due from you whatever!"—Boston Budget.

Good as New.

Jack Dashing—Why, there is not a new face here to-night.

Penelope—Oh, yes, there is, Miss Made-up face has just been reannounced.—Up-to-Date.

"Yes," said Mr. Snickensack, "I do not like my name at all. They say that either the legislature or the district court will change it for me. Which would you apply to if you were in my predicament?"

"Well," said she, thoughtfully, "a minister would do for me."

IN THE TWILIGHT.

My hands are growing weary, While from my setting sun, The gold is slowly fading, And so much work undone.

Now every passing moment Some task unfinished brings To hands grown weary doing So many useless things.

My feet are also weary: The ways they walk are hard, The thorns have held and hurt them, The stones have left them scarred.

Here, in the gathering twilight, They falter now and fall, Poor feet that stray so far from The straight and narrow trail.

Away off in a canyon I hear a lost sheep cry, And on the perfect pathway See happy souls go by.

But I! My soul is weary As wearily I plod, And all because I've wandered So far away from God.

AN ORPHAN GIRL. BY AMY RANDOLPH.

MR. FOLLIOTT had just finished his dinner.

Mr. Folliott was a very rich man, and his cook had once been a pupil of the great Soyer, so that the meal, although unostentatious in every respect, was of the best and choicest. The asparagus soup, a delicate young baked shad, roast ham with champagne sauce, a salad, coffee, sweets—all these things Mr. Folliott enjoyed because, in their way, they were perfect. And he was just cutting out a few monster strawberries from among their green leaves when a footstep sounded on the veranda.

He looked quickly up. A tall child of 13 stood there, her face flushed, her hair disheveled, and her thick boots powdered with the fine dust of the roads.

"I am so hungry," burst involuntarily from her lips. "Can't I have one of those cakes?"

Mr. Folliott frowned and shook his head.

"If you are a beggar," he said, "you had better go around to the back door. Mrs. Hanford will give you something, I dare say."

The child blushed deeply, and drew herself up with something of unconscious dignity.

"I'm not a beggar," she said. "Can't a girl be hungry without being a beggar? I have come here to look for Paul Folliott."

"That's my name," said the old gentleman, a little suspiciously.

"Then," said she, composedly, "I have come here to be your little girl. I am Gracie Bellaire. My papa was Col. Bruce Bellaire, and when he died he said that you would take care of me. Here are his letters. And, now, please, let them give me something to eat."

And this is the way in which Gracie Bellaire came to the house of her father's distant kinsman, Paul Folliott.

She was a pretty child when the dust was washed out of her dimples and the shining brown curls were brushed into something like shape. She had Bruce Bellaire's large, dreamy eyes and exquisite Greek profile, and Mr. Folliott, even while he experienced a thrill of consternation at this new charge, felt his heart warm toward her.

"My dear," said he, "you are a nice little girl, but what can I do with you?"

"I could stay here and play, couldn't I?" said Gracie, innocently.

"But there is something else in the world for little girls to do besides playing," said Mr. Folliott—and so he took counsel with Mrs. Hanford, his housekeeper.

"Dear heart, sir," said that kindly personage, "it seems to me plain enough. Why don't you send her to Mrs. John Folliott? Don't you remember last summer, when she was here and you helped her out with the debts that troubled her so badly, she declared she would do anything in the world to show her gratitude? And she's got daughters of her own, hasn't she? Who is there in the world that could bring Miss Gracie up better than she?"

"Mrs. Hanford, you are a genius!" said Mr. Folliott. "Why on earth didn't I think of that myself?"

Mrs. John Folliott came to the Grange at once—a portly, smiling matron.

"The darling!" she cried, enthusiastically, embracing Gracie, who looked rather awed at the sight of so much splendor. "I shall love her as dearly as if she were my own! Poor, dear Cousin Bruce! How well I remember him! You sweet one, you are the very picture of your papa!"

So Mrs. John Folliott, greatly rejoicing, returned to the brown stone house in New York, whose rent was unpaid, and to the daughters whose expensive dresses were yet written up on the wrong side of Mlle. Surliot's books.

"It's positively providential," said Mrs. Folliott. "A thousand dollars a year clearly added to our income!"

"But there is that great, awkward child to add," said Madalena Folliott, a handsome brunette, who had just made her debut in society.

"Oh, that does not signify," said the serene matron. "Her cost will be absolutely nothing."

And so, in the course of a few weeks, Gracie Bellaire found herself settling down to the position of lady's maid to the three Misses Folliott. She sewed the buttons on Madalena's boots, who ran out on rainy days, when the very chambermaid objected on account of the weather, to match shades of worsted and flosselle for Alicette, the second daughter; she washed Florence's poodle for her, and wept many a tear of bitter mortification the while. And by degrees her shoes grew worn and rusty, her healthy young growth outstripped the limits of the coarse serge gowns, her bonnet and mantle became so shabby that she could not go out except under cover of the friendly dusk. Once, driven by desperation, she wore Florence's white chapeau and soft seal jacket. But she never repeated the experiment, for Mrs. Folliott met her on the stairs and flashed the light of her great, black eyes upon her in a manner that was truly appalling.

"If ever you presume to do such a thing again," said she, in a low voice of concentrated wrath, "you shall be shut up on bread and water for a month!"

"But I have nothing to wear," pleaded Gracie.

"Your clothes are good enough," said Mrs. Folliott, sharply. "There is nothing so sinful as vanity!"

"But when I go to school—" began Gracie.

"You are not going to school," said Mrs. Folliott. "It is your business to stay here and help Jane with the china and silver, and make yourself useful. You are not a young lady, like Miss Alicette and Miss Florence—you are only a working-girl."

Child though she was, Gracie Bellaire comprehended the injustice of all this. Kind old Mr. Folliott hadn't meant this when he gave her over into Mrs. John Folliott's charge. He must have forgotten to send the money, Gracie thought, or she never would have been treated thus.

"It's a shame!" said honest Bridget, the cook. "The child ought to have exercise, at least."

"Sure, if she was the cat they couldn't take less notice of her," said Norah, the waitress.

"And just look at the clothes of her," said Fannie, the smart chambermaid.

"She's kept me awake with her cough for two nights," said Bridget, "and all the paragon I give her don't loose it up a bit."

For Mrs. Folliott, under an extra pressure of company, had ordered Grace to sleep with Bridget for a night or two, and when the company was gone nothing had been said about her resuming her little room again.

"The girls need it to keep their summer dresses in," said Mrs. Folliott. "And Grace is just as well off with Bridget."

"They wouldn't care if she coughed herself out of the world entirely," said Norah.

"Worse luck to 'em," said Fannie. "But nobody ever yet ground down the orphan and the fatherless without there was a judgment on 'em for it!"

Mr. Folliott all this time was beginning to be a little uneasy. His elegant city relative wrote at stated intervals, but her communications were eminently unsatisfactory.

"I should like to see the child," he said within himself. "And last night I dreamed that Bruce Bellaire came to me, just as he used to look, and asked me what I had done with his one ever-lamb. I don't believe in supernatural warnings. I never had any faith in signs and omens. But I believe I will go down to New York and see if Gracie is well."

And so, late one snowy December night, there came a tremendous peal at the door bell of Mrs. John Folliott's mansion. That lady was absent to a fashionable reception with her three daughters. Norah and Fannie had gone to visit a friend in a neighboring kitchen, and Bridget, half asleep, stumbled to the front door and opened it.

"Miss Gracie, is it?" she stammered. "Sure, if yez'll step in the parlay I'll send her up to you."

"Up!" repeated the keen old gentleman: "where is she?"

"In the kitchen, sir," confessed Bridget.

"I will go where she is," said Mr. Folliott. "Take me to her at once."

Poor little Gracie sat before the kitchen fire, the meekest and palest of Cinderellas, in an unconsciously drooping attitude. Her dress was worn and faded, her hair brushed back in a plain plait, her cheek transparently pale, and there was an expression in her eyes, as they looked into the red embers, that made Mr. Folliott's heart ache.

"I've not come any too soon," he thought, and then he said aloud: "Gracie! Little Gracie!"

With a sudden cry she sprang to her feet and ran sobbing into his arms.

"Oh, take me away!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I am so miserable here!"

The old man looked at her, with tears in his eyes.

"I have made a mistake, Gracie," said he. "No man can do his duty by proxy. I should have kept you myself. Never mind, little one, henceforward you shall be all my own."

He turned to Bridget.

"Pack her clothes," said he, "and lose no time."

Bridget stared. "Are you going to take her away, sir?" said she.

Mr. Folliott nodded.

"And it's glad of it I am," said the honest girl, "for though it's weariful lonesome I shall be without her, it's no place for a gentleman's daughter, is this old black-beetle-haunted kitchen. No more it ain't!"

And when Mrs. Folliott and her daughters returned, tired and cross, at two o'clock in the morning, there was no patient Gracie to do the duties of a lady's maid to them. And a note from their rich relative on the hall table explained the phenomenon.

Mrs. Folliott grew pale as she read the curt words in which Cousin Paul expressed his meaning.

"We shall never have a cent from him again as long as we live," said she.

But Gracie, secure in his parental love, was happy, and when she looked back over those New York days they seemed like nothing but a troubled dream.

From which she had awakened, thank Heaven!—N. Y. Ledger.

Cedar Wood. The Philadelphia Record says that the scarcity of cedar wood for cigar boxes and other purposes has caused dealers to look to foreign countries to supply the demand. The steamship Borderer left Philadelphia a few days ago for the Colombian coast to load a full cargo of cedar logs for the Philadelphia and Boston markets. The logs are cut high up on the mountain sides and are drifted down the streams to the coast.

Sketches from Life Among the "Great Unwashed."

Two Soap Stories and Two American Boys—John Andrew Milligan and the Able-bodied Tramps.—Other News.

Two soap stories—both of them tangled up with the records of two American boys—have come to pass on the soil of this great country. The which no doubts you have heard one of them, like I have, from the cradle up to the present period of a so-called time.

Through many a many a weary year I have heard people tell about the boy which was sent to town after some soap, and for fears he couldn't recollect what he went after, he said "soap, soap, soap," with every step he took. But now presumably as he was going up a steep hill—which the same was monstrous wet and muddy—he slipped up and fell down and forgot what his mother had started him to town for. He hunkered down by the road and tried his level blamdest to remember what he was going after, and then he put in and wept a few stanzas. But he couldn't make the mill grind with the water which had passed. About that time a traveler rid by, and as he came up the hill his horse was slipping and slidin fore and aft.

"Good mornin, Bud," says the traveler.

"Mornin," says the boy.

"This blamed old hill is as slick as soap, ain't it?" says the traveler.

"Soap! soap! soap!" says the boy as he headed fresh for town and went off in a trot to fetch the necessities.

One Soap Story. But there is one more soap story which I never have heard except when I told it with my own mouth, and told it on my own individually self. On general principles, to speak the unwashed truth, I would rather not tell it now. But old people tell me that anything which won't kill will fatten, and for the common good of the risen generation here she goes:

One upon a time I was traveling on a railroad train through the broad and bloomin state of Mississippi. That was way back there in my gay and gorgeous galling days, and like the average American youngster will do, I had let a blame fool notion take up with me to the general extent that I was good lookin—a right tolerable handsome and magnolious cuss, you understand. Of course I can now see wherein I was foolin my rusty self in those regards. In short, friends and fellow citizens,

"I once was lost but now I'm found, Was blind but now I see."

Now there was a man in the cars selling fancy cake soap. Every onest in awhile he would come through preaching forth the extra fine qualities of that soap, and sellin a cake to every man which had two bits to spare. It was the goneybest most marvelous soap in the wholest united world, and the human race had never saw anything like it, to let him sing the song. It was not only sweet-scented, but it was far-reachin and got fetichin. If you wanted to shave your whiskers off one good lather would last for six weeks to come. And a tired man could put a cake of that soap under his pillow when he went to bed at night and wake up the next mornin with a clean shave and a fresh shampoo. And so on and so forth.

Now, in my day and generation I have seen a whole passle of people, first and last. But white people, I did think in my soul that soap man was way yonder the most ugliest livin mortal man I had ever laid eyes upon. In the main time I had listened to his song service and his sermon on soap till I was plum weak and weary anyhow, and then, with the vain hopes of changin the tune, I put my mouth in.

"Will that famous fine soap make ugly people pretty?" says I.

"To be certainly of course it will," says the soap man.

"Well, why in thunder don't you use a small smidgen of it on your own manly countenance?" says I.

The crowd laughed a little around the edges.

"Why don't I?" says the soap seller.

"Young man, I have been using that soap three times a day, 365 days in the year, for about thirty years, and whilst nobody would ever think it, durned if I want as ugly as you are at the start. Try a cake. Only 25 cents, five nickels, or a quarter of a dollar."

Then the committee retired and the crowd screamed a general horse laugh.

John Andrew and the Tramps. For some years past John Andrew Milligan has been livin over there close to Gravel Cut, only a little ways from the railroad station. So after supper one night last week John Andrew come over to our house and was tellin me about the ups and downs and trials and tribulation which he has had with tramps.

"If you love your country, Rufe, don't never get caught foolin' around with tramps," says John Andrew, whilst there was something in his appearances which bring to my mind what the Scripture says in regard to the scorched youth and the fireworks.

"There are jest two things in this green and wicked old world which a tramp will stay with and stick to. One is the main line of a railroad, and the other is his secret Bible oath never to bruse the fair bosom of the earth with nary darn lick of honest work. Along about this time last year I thought that maybe I had found one lone exception to that general rule. It did look to me like every day the good Lord sent, with its sunshine and its blessings, the devil would send along a few tramps to try my patience and pester the life outen me. All they wanted was somethin to eat, and we had fed 'em and fed 'em till by gracious the children would get hungry between meals and weep for cold victuals.

"So bright and early one mornin late spring, when a tramp turned up in the back yard, with dewdrops in his whiskers and tangles in his hair, and wanted a little handul of somethin or other to smooth the wrinkles out of his breadbasket, or words to that extent, I felt like I could say most anything except in my Sunday school lesson. If I had any work to do he would be glad to turn off some odd jobs for me. To hear him tellin it, he was one of them wilkin workers out of a job with nothin to do and so scandalous hungry till he didn't know where he would sleep that night."

"From the way he talked and the way he looked I thought the pore, unhappy devil must be in cold, dead earnest. In the fullness of my weak and tender heart I told him I would give him somethin to eat and somethin to do, providin he would take the whole contract. The next thing I knowed I was traded with on the spot. He went on around to the kitchen and worried down the grub. Then he spat upon his hands and made out like he was jest naturally itchin and achin to put in a few licks of good honest work."

"Now I raly didn't have anything in particular for him to do, Rufe. I was jam up with my crop and had then been fumlun and foolin around for several days smoothin down the edges and knockin off the high places. But I put on my thinkin cap and rummaged around for some honest work to give that tramp. I had three acres planted in corn over on a red hillside, and it had come up mighty bad missin. It was my plans and intentions to replant that cut with goobers, and at odd times—of nights and at noon—me and the children had done already shelled out the goobers to do the work with. I went and got half a peck of them nice shelled goobers and give them to the tramp. Then I went over in the field with him, showed him what to do and how to do it, and left him there with the job in his hands. At dinner time he come in tired and hungry like a man which had been hard at work. He climbed up around three plates of spring greens, with meat and bread accordin, for dinner. Late along in the shank of the evenin he turned up onest more at the house and lowed that was done the job. Nothin would do but I must go over there in the field with him and see that he had done as commanded. I could see where he had pecked through the corn with a hoe and left the proper signs in every missin place. So in pursuance of the contract which we had made I paid him 35 cents in good sound free silver and he went on his way rejoicin."

"Well, in the due fullness of time I went over in the field one day to see how my goober crop was comin on, and doblame it, they never had come at all. And they never did come, Rufe, any to speak of. All and in all I think I found seven goober vines in the whole three-acre field. The darn tramp never did plant 'em, Rufe—that is to say, he never did plant 'em in the native soil of that corn field. Doddurn him, he planted 'em in his bread basket or toted 'em off in his pockets, one or the other, and maybe partly both. Anyhow, he only went through the motion in regards to the work, whilst he cooked me done as a cracklin for two square meals, half a peck of nice shelled goobers and 35 cents to boot, in passin."

He Has Wounded Em Now. "But let me tell you, Rufe, I'll be everlastinly gummint on 'em if I haven't put the final fixments on 'em this year. The tramps haven't lost anything around our house here lately, and there ain't a blame thing on my place now which a tramp needs in his business. They do come pillagin and pirootia around onest in awhile, but daddame 'em, they don't tarry and remain over with us t'is summer any to speak of."

"How did I manage, and what have I done? Along in the fall of last year I didn't do a blame thing but take all the field hands out and split 14 cords of oak and hickory wood. Then I had the wood all stacked up in one long, high pile out there by the well in the back yard. I didn't put the wood there to cut it up and make fires with it durin of the winter time, you understand. I put it there for the tramps. We had the blazin good fires all right, but I give out general orders that nobody mustn't cut narry blessed stick of wood outen that big pile. It didn't belong to me any more. It was stacked up there for the tramps."

"And, now, Rufe, you would laugh and laugh till you could just naturally fall down and wallow in it if you could see the tremendous movin influence which that big pile of hard, seasoned oak and hickory wood can bring to bear upon a pair of able-bodied tramps. When they come up to the front gate and want a bite of somethin to eat, all I have got to do is to tell 'em all right and send 'em around to the kitchen. The minnit they pass around the corner of the house and catch sight of that 14-cord pile of wood, with two good axes layin around convenient, durned if they don't fall over one another cleanin up and gettin away from there. It is worse than a dost of high life or spirits of turpentine."

"Some two or three weeks ago a pair of the boys passed along the railroad, and one left the main line and come by our house to draw their rations. As usual, I sent him on around to the kitchen, but he never got that far. Blamed if it didn't look like he would faint at the very sight of our wood pile. Then it would seem like he took curvatura of the spine, and the latest fying machine is nothin, Rufe, to the movement which he took unto himself as soon as he recovered sufficiently to resume business. In his big hurry to abscutulate he didn't take time to open the front gate, and he snagged a duplex concure in the seat of his breeches as he went over the picket fence and made a dark streak down the big road."

"Tell the news, Rufe—tell it to every body—and let long-sufferin humanity understand henceforward that for weanin tramps there is nothin like a few cords of wood stacked up close to the kitchen. It is a dead shot—kill or cure."

Some Settlement News. They had a Elder Newberry up before a church meetin over at Bark Log on Saturday before the last fourth Sunday. Some of the members charged that the elder had been drunk, against the peace and dignity of the church and state. It was brought out in the trial that the elder had raley looked upon the early ruin of the corn when it was white. But the elder showed by his proofs that he was not guilty of a noisy public drunk, such as might make the church hide her face in the sack cloth of shame. From all the facts brought out on the elder's side it would seem like he had been seriously and superbly and comfortably drunk, but, as Aunt Nancy Newton is wont to say, it was all at home and in a family way. And on them general grounds the elder win the fight and holds his place in the amen corner over at Bark Log.

THE HEROES OF

HAT true American to-day Feels not the blood Leap in his veins
As stirring scenes of 76 Are brought to mind, though peace now reigns Where o'er a hundred years ago
The Briton came in fierce array,
And strove this land of ours to hold
'Neath England's hard, relentless sway.

But surely 'twas not thus to be;
A higher Power ruled over all;
And out of war's grim, wrinkled front
We merged, despite its gloomy pall,
As gallant freemen fought for right,
And Wisdom's all-seeing eye
Beheld a future for our land
For which the patriot dared to die.

Their precious blood was freely given,
Upon their country's altar shed;
And now we glory in the deeds
Of our departed, honored dead.
To Washington, the great and true,
And all his brave, victorious host,
We homage pay with glad acclaim,
And in their memory make our boast.

Thus on this day of all the year
Columbia's brightest stars may shine
To tell of Independence' day,
While low we bow at Freedom's shrine,
And as the rolling years go by,
And added glory crowns our land,
Still brighter may their memory grow
Who first led Freedom's holy band.

HIS FIRST BALLOON TRIP.

HAT was your first experience in skyscraping?" I said to my companion, as we settled down in our seats in the railway car, on our way back to W—.

"Let me hear about that first trip, for I've a notion that there is a good story attached to it."

My seatmate was "Prof." Raymond, the aeronaut. He had made a Fourth of July ascension that afternoon from W—, and I had gone up with him in my capacity as reporter on the W— Daily Tribune.

We had landed uneventfully in a turnip field, about 30 miles away, and had packed up the balloon and its "fixings" just in season to catch the evening train for the city.

"Well," said Mr. Raymond, "there was a story attached to that first balloon ride of mine, thirty-odd years ago; but I don't tell it very often, for the reason that, even after all these years, it brings back some of the sensations that I experienced at that time—experiences that you will soon see were not particularly agreeable while I was undergoing them."

"My father and mother both died before I was 12 years old, so that I was thrown entirely upon my own resources. Even at that early age I began to 'hire out' for various kinds of service in my native town in New Hampshire, where I worked in this way until I was 15 years of age."

"I had been working in a sawmill the year that I was 15, and my time expired the third day of July, and, though I expected to hire out again at the same place, it pleased my fancy to take a well-earned holiday on the Fourth, when I could feel myself entirely my own master. It would be time enough, I thought, to hire out again when the holiday was over."

"There was to be a celebration in a neighboring town, with a balloon ascension, races and all the other attractions that are usual on such occasions, with a 'grand display of fireworks in the evening.'"

"The balloon ascension had special attractions for me, as I had never seen anything of the kind, and I was up early on the morning of the Fourth, and, setting out for town before six o'clock, resolved to take in the whole affair, from the early parade of Antiques and Horribles to the last rocket that should be fired in the evening."

took some time to fill it from the mouth of an oven-like affair that set above a trench, in which a big fire was snapping and roaring, fed by pitch wood and oil soaked barrel staves.

"The drag-rope was lying coiled upon the ground, and the balloon was held down by stout ropes carried out on all sides.

"As the huge affair got larger and larger and began to tug vigorously on the ropes, we boys who were looking on got more and more excited, and when they began to get the basket ready to fasten under the balloon, we had crowded up pretty close to the great swaying air ship.

"Now, boys, keep back," said the aeronaut, as he came into the circle to make everything ready; 'keep back, or some of you will get hurt, with this basket thrashing about here,' for by this time the basket had been fastened on and the balloon was filled out nearly full.

"The balloonist threw into the basket several bundles of circulars which he was going to throw out, handful by handful, as he rose through the air, the proprietors of various stores in the town having taken this then original method of distributing their circulars and dodgers.

"Everything was now ready. The hot air had been shut off, the mouth of the balloon had been closed, and the balloonist had arranged his circulars ready to throw out, a dozen or so at a time, as he went up.

"Let go the ropes!" he shouted.

"And the great sphere shot up into the air, with white paper fluttering out from it on all sides.

"I could never tell exactly how it happened," continued my seatmate, "but I suppose it was a mixture of boyish curiosity and a sudden pressure from behind, as the crowd surged forward; but I know that I suddenly stumbled forward and fell upon the coil of drag rope that was being rapidly taken up."

"In falling, my foot in some way became entangled in a rope, so that a loop in it caught me by one ankle, and quick as a flash I was going up into the air at the rate of a mile a minute, hanging head downward, while a great cry of horror was sent after me by the people below.

"You may be sure that no more surprised boy ever left terra-firma than I was, when I saw the earth suddenly dropping away from me, as it seemed."

"Fortunately, I did not 'lose my head,' though the position was certainly favorable for such a result. Instinctively I grasped the rope that was hanging down beside me and hung on for dear life.

"The aeronaut above me apparently knew nothing of what was going on below his car, for the dry-goods and house-furnishing circulars continued to flutter down past me in undiminished quantities.

"He had doubtless heard a great cry from the crowd, but interpreted it probably as occasioned by the sight of a balloon ascension, which was then more of a novelty in that region than it would be to-day."

"After a minute I was able to get my foot out of the loop in which it had caught, and so to let myself down into an upright position. The balloon was rising steadily, and there was no more jerking and apparent motion to the rope than there would have been had it been suspended from a high beam in a barn, and this alone made it possible for me to cling to it."

"I now found that I could twist one leg around the rope, and by resting one foot on the rope where it crossed the other foot, I could very nearly remove the weight from my hands, which was a great relief. I knew then that I had a chance to get out of the fix I was in, for I could now alternately rest my hands and my feet."

"Reassured by this, I looked up at the balloon above me, and conceived the idea of climbing up to it, for, like most country boys, I was expert at climbing."

"The rope had caught me before half of it had been taken up from the ground, so that the distance up to the car was much less than it might have been. I found no very great difficulty in gradually climbing up to a position under the car, stopping very often to rest."

"It has always seemed strange to me that the man above didn't discover meanwhile that he had a boy 'hanging on behind,' but it can perhaps be explained by the fact that he was an old hand at the business, and, as sailing through the air was no novelty to him, he didn't spend any time looking at the scene below."

"He sat there in the middle of the car, calmly twirling out circulars and smoking his pipe, while I climbed up toward him so cautiously that I presume I didn't jerk the rope a bit. I wonder that I hadn't shouted to him at the very first, but it didn't enter my head for me to do anything but hang on and climb.

"When I had slowly climbed up well under the car, without thinking what the effect would be I shouted 'Halloa!' and the next instant was almost jerked off the rope, for the balloonist gave a jump that very nearly upset the car, and when I caught sight of his face, after he had turned around two or three times, trying in a dazed sort of way to find out where the voice came from, it was as white as a sheet. He looked cautiously over the edge of the basket."

"How in the name of—," he began, but suddenly cut it short. 'Hold on a minute longer!' he shouted.

"And in a twinkling he had made a noose in the end of a piece of rope that was lying in the car, and had passed it down, noose end first, through the wicker-work bottom of the basket."

"Put one foot into the loop," he called out, 'and I will tie the other end of the rope here, to support your weight. That will take the strain off your hands till I can get you into the car.'

"It was a great relief to have the strain of my weight taken off my hands and feet. With one foot in the loop I could hang on very comfortably. But then a serious question arose. How was I to get into the basket? An attempt to climb up over the side might upset that frail affair."

"Wait a minute," called out the aeronaut. 'I'll cut out two of the ribs of the basket, right here in the bottom, and then, by springing the next one on each side back a little, I guess you can crawl up through,' and this was done a moment later."

"I can tell you I was glad when I found myself sitting in the bottom of the basket resting."

"How long has it been since we left the ground?" I asked.

"The aeronaut looked at his watch. 'Just five minutes,' he said.

"A good deal can happen in five minutes."

"That," continued my companion, "was the way I came to be an aeronaut."

"The affair created a great sensation, and I was talked about far and wide. The owner of the hot-air balloon was shrewd enough to see that there was money to be made out of so much free advertising, and he made me a handsome offer to make the ascensions with him, and I promptly accepted the offer. I was greatly interested in my new work, and gradually began to add some 'attractions,' such as performing on the trapeze bar as the ascension was made, and then parachute leaps from the balloon, high in air. But I never attempted any such 'attraction' as was exhibited when I went up hanging by one foot to the drag-rope."—Webb Donnell, in Golden Days.

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

(Special Session.)
In the senate, on the 21st, the last two schedules of the dutiable list, including paper and manufactured sundries, were completed, with the exception of the paragraphs on hats, gloves, coal and some lesser articles, which went over.....In the house the only business of public interest was the passage of a bill appropriating $100,000 for the repair of Dry Dock No. 3 at New York. The house adjourned until the 24th.

In the senate, on the 22d, the wool schedule was taken up, and, after a somewhat acrimonious debate, paragraph 335 was stricken out, at the request of Mr. Allison, and the following amendments were agreed to: On first-class, 10 cents per pound was substituted for house rate of 11 cents; and senate committee rate 8 cents per pound; on second-class wool, for house rate of 12 cents and senate committee rate of 9 cents, 11 cents per pound was substituted.....The house was in session.

In the senate, on the 23d, the day was devoted largely to a discussion of the effects of the tariff rates upon the price of wool, and the speeches were on technical lines in the main. The paragraphs of the wool schedule relating to raw wool were completed, and the features relating to manufactured wools were taken up.....The house was not in session.

In the senate, on the 24th, less than five pages of the tariff bill, covering duties on manufactured wools, were disposed of, many amendments proposing to reduce rates being offered, only to be rejected by decisive majorities.....In the house, soon after the reading of the journal, Mr. Foss, on behalf of the Illinois delegation, announced the death of Representative Cooke, of Illinois. The customary resolution of condolence was committed to attend the funeral appointed, and as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased the house adjourned until the 26th.

In the senate, on the 25th, the silk and tobacco schedules of the tariff bill were completed, leaving only the items passed on the first to be considered on the second reading, the free list having already been gone over. Toward the close of the session, the senate led to a strong contest against the proposed duties on silk fabrics, and the paragraph was passed by the slender majority of two.....The house was not in session.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Business Men of the Highest Standing Rejoicing Confidence—Signs of Improvement Multiply—Removal of Uncertainty by Adjournment of Congress Will Bring Long-Dormant Buying Forces Into Activity—Brightening Crop Prospects.

New York, June 26.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

There is no step backward in business, although the season of midsummer quiet is near. Improvement continues, gradual and prudently cautious as before, although in many branches evident where no signs of it appeared a few weeks ago. Business men of the highest standing in all parts of the country having gradually perceived that the tide has begun to rise, are regulating their contracts and investments and their plans of the future with a confidence quite unknown to them a short time ago.

Great changes before the adjournment of congress are hardly to be expected, but removal of uncertainty is with reason expected to bring into operation buying forces which have been restricted for months.

The main factor at this time is the steadily brightening prospect for crops. Harvesting of wheat has already begun in some winter wheat states, with surprising by good results in the central region and California, so that 800,000 tons is now called the minimum from the latter state, and the statisticians of repute calculate on 60,000,000 bushels of winter wheat beyond the government estimate. Spring wheat is doing remarkably well, with a practically unknown increase of acreage. The price advanced one-half cent during a week, a decrease of 1,300,000 bushels in western receipts and Atlantic exports of only 1,445,947 bushels, four included, against 1,713,361 last year, but it is just the season when figures have no value except for proving how erroneous were estimates of the crop of 1896.

Cotton was lifted an eighth without reason, and has fallen back as much, because everything points to a larger crop than has been commonly expected.

Iron and steel products average a small fraction lower in published quotations, but only because private concessions, which are now refused, were by various authorities complacently concealed two weeks ago. Pig iron is firmer, with a better demand at the east and at Chicago, but the impatience of valley furnaces to resume work keeps bessemer and gray forge at last week's quotations at Pittsburgh. The best of the news is material increase in orders for plates, in part for building; in bars for agricultural implement works, in structural shapes for buildings and bridges, and in galvanized sheets.

There is an encouraging increase in the demand for all textile goods, even for cotton, which have for so long been slow, and, though it is but moderate, there is nothing of a speculative character in the transaction, and prices are firmly held.

Re-orders for woollens have been rather better than were expected from clothiers and fairly good for dress goods. Operations in spring goods are still deferred.

While mills are somewhat better employed and are buying to some extent, most of the purchases of woollens for speculation, nearly three-quarters being at Boston alone and the aggregate was 8,733,800 pounds at that market, 5,610,300 of foreign wool. In the west wool is still held at relatively higher prices.

Failures for the week have been 221 in the United States, against 217 last year, and 24 in Canada, against 24 last year.

APPEALED TO THE PRESIDENT
For Government Aid in Preventing a Riot in Key West.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Friday afternoon the governor of Florida telegraphed President McKinley that a riot was threatened at Key West and asked him that in view of the distance of Key West from the mainland and the difficulty in getting state troops to the scene of trouble in time to be of any avail, to instruct the commander of the federal troops there to act.

The president replied to the governor citing the law in the case and asking for particulars.

Secretary Alger also telegraphed to the commandant of the post at Key West asking for telegraphic advice giving the exact situation. The action to be taken will depend upon the response to these inquiries.

The trouble has arisen from an attempt to lynch a negro, accused of assault upon a white woman. The negro was given a preliminary hearing before a justice, and during the proceedings a man named Pendleton arose in court and asked if there were not white men enough present to lynch the prisoner. Intense excitement ensued, but the authorities succeeded in landing their prisoner in jail.

Knots of men gathered in the streets and open threats of lynching were freely made.

Later in the afternoon, while Pendleton was passing down the street he was attacked by a mob of negroes, but was rescued unharmed. This intensified the feeling, which ran high on both sides, and fears of a race riot caused the local militia company to assemble at their armory. While they were not commanded into service they voluntarily slept in the armory for the night.

DEATH OF NAT. CRAMPTON,
One of the Earliest Pioneers of the State of Illinois.

NAPIERVILLE, Ill., June 26.—Nathaniel Crampton, one of the earliest pioneers of Illinois, died here yesterday morning, after a prolonged illness. Mr. Crampton was born in Guilford, Conn., in March, 1814. He came to Illinois with his father in 1830, locating at Naperville, where he resided until his death.

Mr. Crampton although never an office-seeker, has held numerous local political positions.

HOUSE COMMITTEES.

Speaker Reed Will Name Them the Day the Session Closes—There'll be No Waiting in December. The Chairman of the More Important Already Decided Upon, and are Now Given to the Public.

New York, June 26.—A special to the Journal and Advertiser from Washington says:

Speaker Reed will name his committees the day the present session closes. This will give each chairman time to get his bills in shape for filing, and having everything in shape for the regular session of congress when it meets. There will be no waiting until after the holidays for the house to organize. The list as it stands makes little change in chairmanships of the last house. The chairmen of the more important committees are:

Accounts—B. B. O'Dell, New York.
Agriculture—J. W. Wadsworth, New York.
Appropriations—J. G. Cannon, Illinois.
Banking and Currency—J. H. Walker, Massachusetts.
Claims—C. N. Brum, Pennsylvania.
Coinage, Weights and Measures—C. W. Stone, Pennsylvania.
District of Columbia—J. J. W. Babcock, Wisconsin.

Education—G. A. Row, Pennsylvania.
Elections—No. 1, L. W. Royce, Indiana.
Elections—No. 2, G. W. Prince, Illinois.
Election of President, Vice-President and Representatives—W. G. Arnold, Pennsylvania.
Enrolled Bills—Alval L. Hager, Iowa.
Foreign Affairs—R. R. Hitt, Illinois.
Immigration and Naturalization—R. Bartholdt, Missouri.

Indian Affairs—J. S. Sherman, New York.
Internal and Foreign Commerce—Wm. P. Hepburn, Iowa.

THE CHRONICLE

H. C. DUROSE, EDITOR.
C. C. DUROSE, PROPRIETOR.

COLUMBIANA, JUNE 24, 1897.

TO TAKE THE TARIFF OUT OF POLITICS.

From the Mobile Register.

Mr. Fowler, of New Jersey, has introduced a bill in congress to take the tariff out of politics. The bill is entitled, "A bill to establish a tariff commission for the purpose of investigating federal taxation, recommending changes therein, and adjusting any inequalities in the existing law." Mr. Fowler says of his proposed legislation: "Every one now realizes, I think, that the American people of all sections, or all classes, are tired and heartily sick of tariff tinkering and the consequent disturbance, if not actual destruction of all lines of business. What they need and most earnestly desire is an opportunity to engage in business with assurance that there will be no such radical changes as will destroy, or even cripple any department of trade or commerce. Any tariff measure that will produce sufficient revenue to support the government under present conditions will, with the natural increase of population and the greater consumption incident to prosperity, bring us in a few years a hundred millions more revenue than will be required to meet expenses. It should not be taken from the people. It would naturally lead to national extravagance.

How, then, shall we adjust our revenues to our actual needs? Shall it be by overhauling the whole subject again—every schedule down to the very last item? Certainly business prudence would require that our taxes be lowered gradually and removed from such articles as an intelligent and skilled commission would recommend. The changes should be so made as to result in an evolution, and not in a revolution.

The taxes should be abated from year to year and taken from one schedule at a time. Hence the president, who is responsible for the proper administration of the government, with the recommendation of the tariff commission, ought to have the power to suspend any portion of the taxes, and the country not be compelled to wait until the executive, the house of representatives, and the senate were in political conjunction, which might not happen for several years. They were not in conjunction from 1875 until 1889.

That the president may suspend taxes if that power were given him by congress was decided by the supreme court in Field vs. Clark, volume 143, United States reports, page 649, when the constitutionality of the reciprocity clause of the tariff act of 1890 was challenged.

The duty of the commission to investigate all federal taxation and domestic and foreign conditions, and annually recommend changes calling for legislation, will make it a most valuable adjunct to a wise administration of our national affairs.

Its establishment cannot do any harm; while it may prove the greatest possible blessing to the American people in securing stability to our varied business interests, and continued and equal prosperity to all sections of our common country."

All this is perfectly true. The services of such a commission would be invaluable to the business interests of the country. Mr. Fowler, who is a republican, can perhaps tell us whether his party is likely ever to agree to the establishment of a commission with such powers. The objection will come from the leading politicians of that party. The "fat frying" would be at an end for good, once such a commission got to work. The managers of the "Grand Old Party" would be fully aware of the fact. Are they ready to take a patriotic view of the situation, Mr. Fowler? When that question is answered, and answered in the affirmative, it will be possible to look forward to the tariff millennium prepared for us under the proposed bill.

The call for a constitutional convention is again being sounded by the press, the educators and the thoughtful people of the state. It is a foregone conclusion, acknowledged by all, except political trimmers, that we cannot much longer enjoy good government in Alabama under the present regime. Our present constitution is ill adapted to existing conditions, and, in statescraft, that means a great deal for the welfare of the people. It has been adduced with reason that our judicial and bond system need revision, our public school system should be elevated and the terms of some officers lengthened. This is good, and very good; but while we do this would it not be well to advise the standard of citizenship. These questions and others equally vital, are imperative, if Alabama is to go forward and not backward. With her wealth of natural resources, in her present stage of development there can be no compromise, she must move one way or the other, which way, must be left for the people to determine. There is little need of letting a few counties dominate the state in what they deem is their own interest. True the legislature does not meet until next year, but it is not too soon to begin agitating this important matter, which involves the progress and good government of Alabama.—Mountain Home.

The Alabama Chautauqua now in session at Talladega is progressing finely, large and enthusiastic crowds greeting the speakers on each occasion. We trust it will prove a grand success.

ALABAMA DAY SET.

From the Alabama Enquirer.

Alabama Day has been set for September 29. Commissioner H. G. McCall received a telegram from Gov. Johnson this morning, which sets that day as Alabama Day, and the Executive Committee now only has to confirm it.

Alabama's beautiful building at the head of Capitol Avenue, is about complete, and will be opened next week. The building is inviting. In front is the motto of the state—"Here we rest." And there Alabama will rest during the Centennial. The wainscoting is of beautiful curly pine, and to see this is enough to repay anyone for a visit to the building.

The ladies room is in charge of Mr. Phelan Wynn, of Montgomery. The room will be nicely decorated, and will be a model place for ladies to rest. The material used in the building was contributed by different firms in Alabama.

The South to be Supreme.

From the New York Financier.

There are the strongest reasons in the world for making the assertion that the South will at no distant day wrest the supremacy from long-established northern centers as an iron and steel producing section. Those who recall the early days of Birmingham will remember that northern iron manufacturers were wont to make light of the claims that the new aspirant for this branch of trade was able to manufacture iron cheaper than the North could produce it, but this delusion has been dispelled long since. Today southern iron is a potent factor in the markets of the world, and its increased consumption has been brought about not alone from the fact that it can be sold more cheaply, but because intrinsically it is better suited to the diversified uses to which it has been put.

A company of young ladies and gentlemen engaged in a delightful serenade Monday night, which elicited much praise from those so fortunate as to have heard them.

Mr. Isaac Horner, proprietor of the Burton House, Burton, W. V., and one of the most widely known men in the state was cured of rheumatism after three years of suffering. He says: "I have not sufficient command of language to convey any idea of what I suffered, my physicians told me that nothing could be done for me and my friends were fully convinced that nothing but death would relieve me of my suffering. In June, 1894, Mr. Evans, then salesman for the Wheeling Drug Co., recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm. At this time my foot and limb were swollen to more than double their normal size and it seemed to me my leg would burst, but soon after I began using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease, the pain to leave, and now I consider that I am entirely cured. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

A. H. Patter, with E. C. Atkins & Co., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I have never before given a testimonial in my life. But I will say that for three years we have never been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy in the house, and my wife would as soon think of being without flour as a bottle of this Remedy in the summer season. We have used it with all three of our children and it has never failed to cure—not simply stop pain, but cure absolutely. It is all right, and anyone who tries it will find it so." For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

"I hope," said the elderly gentleman who patronizes the arts, "that you will not allow yourself to be content with slight results." "No, indeed," replied the promising prima donna.

"Strive to be farther along today than you were yesterday."

"That's exactly what I have been doing. This morning I struck the management for $25 a week more salary."—Washington Star.

"There's no use in talking," says W. H. Broadwell, druggist, La Cygne, Kas., "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy does the work. After taking medicines of my own preparation and those of others, I took a dose of Chamberlain's and it helped me; a second dose cured me. Candidly and conscientiously I can recommend it as the best thing on the market." The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

"The fine will be $3 and costs," announced the police magistrate.

"I'm willing to make it $10 and costs, squire," said the scorchier, "if you'll have it entered in the printed record that I was going 20 miles an hour and my machine was a Greased Lightning, geared to 84."—Chicago Tribune.

FRIENDS.

Who are our friends? This is a question often presented to my mind.

When prosperity with her innumerable blessings of wealth and honors is ours, when our pathway is free from rugged stones and the horizon of our sky shines with incandescent brightness and our lives are clear and bright with no shadow to mar the beauty—'tis when this lot is ours that smiles greet us, words of cheer and congratulations are showered upon us, friends are numerous, and we need want for nothing. But let misfortune overtake us; wealth with her gilded wings takes flight, and in our humiliation, the cares become so heavy we sink beneath the burdens. I repeat the question who are our friends? When a pure innocent soul with no thought of evil, with a heart filled with Christian love is suddenly brought beneath a cloud of suspicion, where are the friends? Who is it that is so fully consecrated, so longing to do right, that can put on the "armor of God" and as a soldier of Christ take stand by this burdened heart and help to sustain through the darkness until the clouds are lifted or the shadow proven. Show me such a character and I'll show you a friend and a Christian.

Because a man has one serious fault, is that why, when circumstances are against him, he should be accused of lacking in honor and every trait that go to make up a perfect man? Isn't he entitled to, at least, a chance, Oh! woman keep your tongue from evil; be as God would have you, loving, kind and charitable; and man created in His own image, to be protectors of the weak, be careful, or else you may blast innocence by your cruel insinuations.

Until we get that religion that will make us hold on to each other, assist in hours of darkness and prove ourselves consecrated to do right, regardless of the world, we can never hope to gain souls for Christ. When our hearts are pure we can not so readily see so much evil; if the evil comes then prove it. Good name, in man or woman is the immediate jewel of their souls. Who steals my purse steals trash. But he that filches me of my good name robs me of that which no thief can ever take. Who steals my name robs me of my good name, and makes me poor indeed. S.

An Oklahoma farmer wrote to a friend in the east trying to give him some idea of the soil out there. He said they had to mow the grass off the sod floor to find the baby. One family near him had twin babies with only one cradle, and the kid who had to sleep on the floor grew twice as fast as the other. Where the soil is richest a man dare not stand on one foot any length of time lest one leg becomes longer than the other and bother him in walking.—Edmund Republican.

Cure for Headache.

As a remedy for all forms of headache Electric Bitter has proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure and the most dreaded habitual sick headache yields to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitter cures by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only fifty cents at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

LESS THAN ONE FARE

To San Francisco and Return—What the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Has to Say of the Trip.

To San Francisco and return at much less than one fare.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad company has this to say:

On account of the International Convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held in San Francisco, Cal., July 7th to 12th, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company will sell tickets from Birmingham to San Francisco at the very low rate of $25.85.

Arrangements have been perfected whereby the above amount is paid for going passage, and the passenger is allowed to select the same or a different route returning at the same rate.

Upon payment of a small additional amount returning passengers can visit the North Pacific slope on the way home by way of Portland, Ore., and the famous Yellowstone National Park. Unexcelled transportation arrangements have been made in the way of special through Pullman Tourist and Buffet Sleepers, bringing the cost of living in transit down to a comparatively nominal figure. The Louisville and Nashville and its connections have been named by the Alabama State Y. P. S. C. E. as absolutely the official route.

Florida, Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina and other southern states have also named the above great popular highway as the official and most liberal and interesting trans-continental route. Just notice a few of the attractions that are put for the first time on record within the reach of almost every one: St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Pueblo, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City, Gardfield Beach, Ogden, Sacramento, San Francisco, Portland, Yellowstone Park, Los Angeles, El Paso, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Dallas, New Orleans and lots of other big cities of our country, with their surrounding attractions. It is a great big bill of fare at popular prices. Grandest scenery in the world, best railroad service, congenial people, and low rates make the trip one of a lifetime. Don't make any mistakes selecting your route. Get your sleeping accommodations booked early and save confusion.

Remember the dates tickets will be on sale, viz: June 28th to July 2nd, good to return until August 13, 1897. From Montgomery, Selma, Mobile, Florence, Huntsville and other points rates are based correspondingly low as from Birmingham.

Newspaper space is too limited to do justice to a description of a trip of this kind.

See the nearest Louisville and Nashville ticket agent and have him tell what he knows of the attractions offered. They are all ready and willing to help you select a delightful route.

The undersigned will be glad to give full particulars and to furnish the populace at large and Endeavorers in particular descriptive matter, etc. The Sunset Coast is waiting to give everyone a hearty welcome, and the Louisville and Nashville railroad has made preparations to carry them in a manner befitting the occasion.

C. E. LIBRARY.

Good books have always been "the power of God unto salvation," toward those who read them. The influence going out from one good book often turns many precious souls from the way of ruin into the "paths of peace."

Never before were good books more abundant, or to be had at less cost. Why should we not have in Columbiana good and religious books for all who may desire them? We can have them with your help. How? The good literature committee have decided to have a C. E. Library from which all who wish them may obtain books free from the venom of hell's deceit. In each of the three churches you will find a box for voluntary contribution. Whether you are an endeavor or not, help in this work which may mean the salvation of your brother's, sisters, friends and companions. This committee is willing to do the work, the glory shall be God's, the profit and benefit may be yours, over the good literature committee.

I positively will not sell any goods where bills past due remain unpaid.

J. H. HAMMOND.

Dr. G. W. Shackelford, dentist, will practice at Shelby, Monday, July 5th for three days. Those wanting any dental work will find it to their interest to call on him at the DuBoise House. He extracts teeth without pain.

The Sunday school county convention advertised to be held at Ebenezer church on July 17th has been postponed indefinitely on account of the confederate soldier's reunion at this place at the same time. We hope to give the date agreed on for the S. S. convention in our next weeks issue.

WATERWORTH-CROMWELL.

Married, on Sunday last at 12:15 p. m., at the residence of the bride's father, John T. Cromwell, in this city by Rev. B. F. Giles, pastor of the Baptist church, Mr. T. H. Watersworth, of Burnsville, Ala., and Miss Clem Cromwell, of this place.

The wedding was a quiet one, only a few intimate friends of the family being invited. A scribe connected with The Chronicle staff was present and he can unhesitatingly testify to the unalloyed pleasure and real enjoyment of all present. Rev. B. F. Giles united the couple in a most impressive and beautiful ceremony, and after hearty congratulations (we say hearty for they were genuinely so) the happy couple (put special emphasis please on the word "happy") and all the guests were invited to sit down to a sumptuous dinner, a dinner prepared by dainty hands, seasoned with happiness and partaken of with a keen relish which spoke volumes for its preparation. The scribe will not forget this feature of the program for many days to come.

Immediately after dinner the bride and groom were driven to the depot where they took the south-bound Southern for Burnsville their future home.

The bride is one of our most charming young ladies, a handsome brunette, of sweet disposition, loved and admired by all. The groom is a substantial farmer, of the variety known as hustlers and has a bright and promising future. The Chronicle most heartily congratulates both of them and indulges the hope that they may always be as happy as on their wedding day.

The Small Pox.

To the public.

I would earnestly advise all heads of families to have their children vaccinated at once, and if they have not been recently vaccinated or are in doubt about their own cicatrix to revaccinate. Do not postpone it, it is an imperative duty you owe, not only to your families, but to the community at large. Do not give credence to the rumor that it is not small pox. I can positively assure you that it is. While the cases are as thoroughly guaranteed as is possible, still we cannot account for the actions of indiscreet, ignorant and irresponsible people. Better be on the safe side and vaccinate.

Case No 1—Jim, a negro, had a well developed case of confluent variola when I first saw him, he is now comparatively well. Dan, a negro boy, son of Bob Prentice, whose family had been exposed, has a case of discrete variola, is convalescing. It will probably go through that family, but they are so completely isolated that it is not likely to spread. As I feared some ignorant person might doubt the correctness of my diagnosis and evil consequences might ensue. I requested Dr. C. C. Oliver (the only medical gentleman I knew in this neighborhood who had experience with this loathsome disease) to see case no. 1 with me. He kindly consented, and unhesitatingly verified my diagnosis. I append his certificate below. I am supplied with genuine bovine virus, and anyone desiring vaccination can have it done by application to my partner, Dr. J. J. DuBoise. Those who are not able to pay can have it done gratis.

Respectfully, W. S. DuBoise, M. D.

This is to certify that I saw the case treated by Dr. W. S. DuBoise for confluent variola and to the best of my medical knowledge can attest the correctness of his diagnosis, and furthermore can say that he has used every effort within his power to isolate and thereby stamp out the disease and prevent its spread.

Respectfully, C. C. OLIVER, M. D.

We the young men of Columbiana, realizing that a strong mind requires a strong constitution and that outdoor exercise is the most beneficial method to that effect, have decided to play ball every afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

Now, kind friends, no doubt in the opinion of many there is a feeling of prejudice against such sport, owing to its national notoriety, but we assure you that nothing but the best of order and refinement shall belong to and be connected with our team. We will line up as follows: G. E. Mason, catcher; J. P. Roberts, pitcher; J. E. Seale, 1st base; Scot Taylor, 2d base; W. M. Calohan, 3rd base; C. E. Greek, s. s. Walter Adams, left field; H. C. DuBoise, center field; Ed Spencer, right field. "Boys"

I have a lot of ladies genuine Dongola Button shoes, in opera, medium opera and common sense toes, size 4 1-2, that I will sell for the next few days at $1.00 per pair. This is less than cost of manufacturing.

J. M. Spencer.

One of the most enjoyable fetes of the season was given Monday night by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Milner, in honor of Algeron Milner. Those present to enjoy the sumptuous repast, and pleasant evening were Miss Essie Mason, Algeron Milner, Miss Kate Huxett, James Seale, Miss Emma Wilson, John Milner, Miss Anna Milner and George Mason.

Subscribe for The Chronicle only $1 a year.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Mrs. Ballinger and two children, of Birmingham, are visiting Miss Susie Self and mother.

A. P. Bradley, trackman in the Selma yards, spent a short while with his parents this week.

J. H. Wilder and lady, of Vincent, were the guests of R. G. Weldon Sunday and Monday.

Eugene Williams and Prof. C. H. Florey, of the "United States of America," were pleasant visitors in town Sunday.

W. J. Tinney ran up to Anniston Sunday and returned home the following afternoon.

G. N. Merideth, agent and operator at Oxford, spent Monday with J. F. Pope and family.

V. R. Smith went to Plantersville Monday, where he expects to secure a position with the new railroad contractors.

Dr. G. W. Shackelford, of Columbiana, came up Monday to fill his professional engagement as dentist.

Raz McLeod, an old, respectable and well-to-do democratic negro residing two miles from town, was the happy recipient of a new top buggy last week from his son.

Misses Georgia and Pernie Pope are on a visit in Talladega and Talladega Springs for two weeks.

Quite a crowd assembled at the Methodist church Friday night to hear Rev. E. A. Burns address and install the officers of the masonic lodge. It would convey a very faint idea for us to touch upon a few indefinite points in this address, but suffice us to say that there wasn't an objectionable or disagreeable feature connected therewith. His definition of masonry, its scope and duty was just simply splendid.

Prof. Kilpatrick and family bade their numerous friends good-bye last Friday and boarded the train, via Anniston, for their new home in Danville. We congratulate the professor on being selected by his denomination to occupy such a high seat in the North Alabama school. May success and harmony be yours through all the fleeting scenes of this life.

Charles Avery came up from Shelby Tuesday morning on his wheel.

The missionary lecture discussed by Rev. Burns Sunday morning at the Baptist church was drank in by a large and intelligent congregation. The foundation of his remarks was based on the 2nd Psalm. The lecture was made clear and interesting by an immense missionary map of the world, showing the five prevailing religions, their various natures and central stations of all evangelical missionary societies. The Evangelical, Roman Catholic, Greek Catholic, Mohammedan and Heathen religions were well defined. He also spoke of prominent missionaries who went from this country, and this state, into foreign fields. His evening text was taken from 2nd Timothy, 1:12. In this sermon he painted some fine pictures and drew striking figures to demonstrate and verify the trust and confidence we should repose in God. Rev. Burns is too well known to this people to need any eulogy from us. "By their works ye shall know them." PAT.

Items from Creswell.

Mrs. S. V. Coleman, of Irondale, accompanied by her sister, Miss Bula Washburn, of Randolph, came down Monday on a few days visit to J. H. Coleman's family.

The ball team from this place went up and played Sterrett's team last Saturday, resulting in a victory for this team by a score of 24 to 15. Some of the boys want to know if Sterrett can play mumble peg.

Mrs. Sarah Meacham and little grand-daughter, Christie, of Sycamore, are on a visit to the former's sister, Mrs. U. C. A. Bates and family, of this place.

Rev. McGinnis filed his appointment at the Baptist church last Sunday, preaching a good sermon to a fair audience.

Mrs. W. S. Billrey and Mrs. G. W. Billrey were down from Vincent last week spending a few days with relatives and friends here.

E. G. Birchfield was down from East Lake last Saturday visiting Rev. John Borley's family.

There will be a picnic and basket dinner at this place next Saturday, the 3rd of July. Everybody is cordially invited to bring a full basket. The program is to have one or two speeches, then the Four Mile ball team and this will cross bats in a ball game. There are also preparations being made to play another team. Arrangements are being made for services at the Baptist church on Sunday.

We are sorry several of G. W. Green's family are right sick, but hope to see them up again soon. We also learn Mrs. A. J. German has been sick for some days, but is improving.

Red Cobill, colored, died a few days ago after a short illness. He was a negro that attended to his own business, and was well thought of by all who knew him.

Parts of this section have had no rain yet, it now being about seven weeks since a season, while other parts within a mile had a rain on Monday evening last that made the ground too wet to work. But this was the first rain in any part of this section of any note within about seven weeks.

CHOCATAW.

The only safe way to guess a woman's age is to put it ten years less than your lowest guess.

Sterrett stirrings.

'Tis awful hot, dry weather. Crops suffering for rain, though looking well considering so long a drought.

Rev. J. W. Lawley filled his appointment as pastor of the church at this place last Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Sallie Donaldson, of Eastboga, returned to this place on last Saturday, and resumed her school Monday, which has been vacated for some time.

We learn that J. R. Dyke will get his new sawmill started to cutting lumber this week. We hope for him success in these tight times.

Quite a number of the young people of Leeds was over last Sunday to attend divine service, also to take part in Prof. W. A. Weldon's all-day singing, which was very much enjoyed. Mr. O'Harr assisted Mr. Weldon in the singing.

Quite a number of the citizens of Vandiver were in attendance at preaching and singing here last Sunday. Among them was Prof. J. P. Kinnett, A. C. Wilder and Miss—Also Sam H. and R. S. Collins and several others.

W. J. Falkner, of Pleasant Valley, was visiting his daughter, Mrs. Belle Goodwin last Sunday, returning home Monday.

Mrs. G. W. Billrey and Mrs. Harris, of Vincent, visited the family of W. H. Falkner last Saturday and Sunday.

T. J. Black, who moved to Mississippi last November, landed back at Sterrett with his family last week satisfied that Alabama is hard to beat for health and good water.

Mrs. Ada Goodwin, who has been attending her sick sister, Miss Belle Falkner, returned to her home in Bessemer last Sunday.

Miss Belle Falkner, who has been quite sick for sometime with slow-fever, seems to be improving very nicely for the last two or three days.

The base ball game played here last Saturday between the Cresswell and Sterrett boys, we understand was not played to a finish on account of some trivial disturbance among some outsiders, but so far as the game was played, the Cresswell boys was in the lead.

Well, our little town had a surprise in the way of a runaway marriage. Alex Stewart and Miss Hattie Payton, of this place, left on Monday night, 21st inst., and went to Leeds, in Jefferson county and were married on Tuesday morning by Rev. Johnson, of Leeds. They returned home Tuesday seeming to be happy. We wish them a happy and pleasant union through life. DIXIE.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Cajilloute, Druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and we were all told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

No 471. THE STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY. In Chancery at Columbiana, Alabama. Sixth District, Northeastern Chancery Division, June 30, 1897.

E. T. Peter, Complainant, vs Alabama Iron & Steel Co. et al, defendant.

To Thos. M. Fancher, Henry Burke or Henry Burke's survivor, F. C. McKeever, Marie L. E. Verchott as executrix of Joseph Verchott, P. E. Williams et al, or to their collectors of record, take notice, that the undersigned, register of our said court of chancery, will execute a decree of Reference in this cause rendered at the last Spring term, 1897, of said court, at his office in Columbiana, Ala., on Monday, the 2nd day of August, 1897 at which time and place you will attend if you choose so to do.

Witness, this 20th day of June 1897.

A Card.

To the Tax-Payers of Shelby County:

As will be seen by reference to my published notice elsewhere in this paper the tax-assessor's book and lists of assessments for 1897 are on file in my office open to the inspection of the tax-payers of the county. I write this card to urge upon every tax-payer to come before the 2nd Monday in July, and examine said book and assessment lists for the purpose of ascertaining for yourself whether or not your assessments are correct. This opportunity under the law is offered every year but very few avail themselves of it. Consequently errors creep into the assessments which cause many tax-payers great annoyance as well as expense. The law has been heretofore that any money paid out on taxes erroneously might be refunded through the Commissioners court, the Probate Judge and the Auditor, but my construction of the present law is, that there is no provision for refunding taxes erroneously paid, which renders it very important that no mistakes should occur. Come and bring your deeds or a correct description of your property, and assure yourself that the tax records are correct. D. R. McMillan, Judge of Probate.

Some Interesting Facts Regarding the Output of Crescent Bicycles.

This article is intended to convey a conception of the enormous amount of raw material consumed during a season in supplying the demand for one of the most popular bicycles made. The Western Wheel Works, Chicago, makers of the Crescent wheel, have the largest, and without doubt the most complete, bicycle factory in the world, and can turn out, in the most perfect manner, 725 finished Crescents in twelve hours, or a complete "up to date" bicycle per minute. They used during 1896 350 miles of tubing, or enough to nearly reach from Chicago to St. Paul if placed in a straight line. The spokes were made in their own factory, and required 720 miles of wire, or enough to reach from Chicago to Lincoln, Neb.; 50 miles of brass rod was required for spoke nipples. If the spokes, spoke nipples and tubing were placed in a straight line they would reach from Chicago to the Rocky Mountains at Denver. The cranks, if placed end to end, would cover a distance of 22 miles. They used 35 miles of steel for crank axles, and 32 miles of steel for pedal axles, and 19 miles of steel for seat posts. If the rims that were used in the manufacture of Crescents in '96 were placed one upon the other they would make a pile 19,300 feet high, 6,000 feet higher than Pike's Peak and about the height of Mount Elias in Alaska, whose summit has never yet been reached by man. It required 32,081 square feet of sheet steel to make the Crescent hollow tooth sprockets, and 21,876 square feet for the steel stampings of the head and seat post clamps, or in all enough flat steel to cover an area of 13 acres. There were used 10 miles of cork girths, 104 miles of finished hubs, and 28 miles of steel wire for pin frames together before brazing. The finished chains, with 13,300 links, would reach 70 miles, and the different pieces of which they are composed would reach 2274 miles, or in all 3074 miles, the distance from Chicago to Cincinnati. The wheels of 1896 Crescents required 13,997,300 steel balls, which, if placed in a straight line, side by side, would reach a distance of 451 miles. To lace the chain and dress guards on the ladies' Crescents manufactured in 1896 required 434,150 yards of cord, or 2403 miles, enough to allow a small boy to stand on the top of the Auditorium tower in Chicago and by his kite wire make a line to Des Moines, Iowa, could see it. To supply Crescents sold in 1896 required 1,066,742 bolts, and 1,488,075 nuts, having an aggregate weight of 29 tons. The total weight of the complete bicycles was 2,382,842 pounds, or 1,191 tons. To crate these bicycles required 1,233,740 square feet of lumber made up in pieces 72,718,068 separate and distinct pieces entered into the construction of '96 Crescents, and if all were placed in a straight line, end to end, they would reach from New York to some distance in the Pacific ocean west of San Francisco—Crescent Bulletin, July 1, 1897.

His After-Dinner Speech.

Around the table were gathered many men. The dinner was almost over, and now in the interval of service general conversation had ceased, and they were all looking at him and waiting for him to speak. He was a handsome man, clean shaven, and commanding looking, in irreproachable evening dress. He stood, his left arm hanging at his side, his right hand resting lightly upon the table. Every eye was upon him as he began to speak. And this is what he said:

OLD MACK AND ME.

The Sage of Rocky Creek and His Varmint Dog.

A Furious Fight in the Old Spring Branch—Do Cats Have Nine Lives—An Alabama Lie.

When I was only what you mought call a shirt waist boy I used to have a famous fine dog—which I called his name Mack. He was about one-third hound and one-third cur, and then so far as I know, and as Tony Stringer were always wont to say, the other third was "jest dog."

old dog Mack he was a great and furious hunter. He was good for possum and coon and other wild varmints, and particular rough on cats.

One Saturday evening along in the fall of the year me and Mack put out, we did, and went off down the old spring branch for a rabbit hunt. We didn't go so very far before I heard the dog squall and then go off on a red-hot trail. I followed the music as fast as I could and I was right clost in behind the chase when Mack put his meat up a tree. But it want a rabbit, it want a possum and it want no coon. It was a cat—a big ring-streaked and striped scoundrel beast—but only a plain house cat. And that want all. It was the old lady Stoudenmire's pet cat, and she was live in then just over the creek a mile and a half, or maybe a little better, from our house.

Through a Cold Sweat.

With the wild and wayward nature of a boy, nothin would do then but I must claim that tree and make the cat jump out and let my dog Mack put the final fixments of death upon him. Nobody couldn't see us, and nobody wouldn't never know it. There was only just us two—Mack and me—and Mack couldn't tell no stories out of school if he wanted to.

By this time me and my dog together had caught and killed most everything that ranged the woods except a ring-streaked and striped house cat. In the main time the old people had told me more than onest that a cat had nine lives, which of course I only believed my pro rata share of that.

So consequently I cut me a desperate and warlike hickory stick and up that tree I went. I bullrugged and crowded the cat till presently she bunched her feet and made a dark streak through the native air. When she hit the ground old Mack he was right there with her. The committee on credentials had made their report and the convention was now ready for business. I hurriedly backed down out of the tree so as to get in on the ground floor and witness the proceedings.

Well, old Mack and the cat they had it—up and down and over and under—whilst the blood spurted and the few flew like dust and dead leaves in a whirlwind. For a little while it was hard to tell for certain who would and who wouldn't—who could and who couldn't. Sometimes it seems to me as if the cat would take the chips, and sometimes it would look like old Mack held four aces, with flushes barred.

As time wore off and the fight went on fast and furious I got monstrous sick and tired of the job. I was raley sorry then that me and Mack had ever opened the pot, but bein as we had got into the game I felt like we must win out, or die. Onest in awhile, from all the general signs and appearances of the case, I would think old Mack had killed the cat. But, dadblame her, she wouldn't stay dead. She would catch her breath and come again, and every time she riz a squallin and fightin to beat six bits. I thought in my soul it must be true about a cat havin nine lives, and maybe more than that.

Boy like and fool like I wept and prayed in fear and tremblin—which I do reckon I prayed the most out-prayerin prayer that a white boy ever went up to the throne of grace—prayer the good Lord to help old Mack and let him whip that fight and kill the cat, if he thought that would be fair, or at any rates not to help the cat any to speak of. But I still had my doubts as to who would take the gate money, and so finally at last I thought about my warlike stick—which I took that and waded into the fight. By-and-by me and Mack went out ahead and put the cold and everlastin fixments on the cat.

In the general scrap and scrimmage old Mack had lost one eye, whilst he got a swallow fork in his right ear and an under bit in his left—which the same I had to explain when I returned back home. But to a boy of my general shape and talents explanations come as natural and easy as fallin off of a wet leg. All I had to do was to make a tremendous big mammy coon out of old Misses Stoudenmire's house cat, and onest more all was lovely at the conclusion of the streams.

A Night of Terrors.

That night was my regular time to go over the creek and see Aunt Liza Raiborn. As usual when bedtime come she took me out in the little shed room which she kept for us boys and tucked me away for the night. But to save my life I couldn't sleep narry blessed lik for thinkin about old Misses Stoudenmire's ring-streaked and striped cat, which me and Mack had left for dead down in the spring branch. I knowed tremendous well that me and the dog together had whipped the fight and killed the cat, but I didn't know for certain that the would stay dead and remain there. I had some monstrous serious and chilly doubts in regards to that. Every time I shet my eyes I could hear a cat scream, and see the blood spurt and the fur fly.

Before midnight I do reckon I had went through with everything in the way of mortal pain and sufferin, from a cold sweat to a buck agar, and from a nightmare to a dead faint. And then I felt like I couldn't stand it no longer. Under the painful circumference of the awful surroundings, I couldn't think of anything better for me to do than to take a rale bad case of the earache. I had traveled the road before and I knowed good and well that nothin would touch Aunt Liza's heart so quick and deep as the moans and groans of a sufferin boy. She will strike a light,

THE G. O. P. HAS TROUBLE.

Much Anxiety as to the Tariff Outcome.

The republican party has a congress on its hands these days, and the fact causes a great deal of anxiety. It is widely acknowledged that the present ripping up and tearing up of the tariff has thrown the business interests of the country into the state that is described as "that tired feeling," and congress shows the utmost indifference to those interests by prolonging the agony. The house promptly passed a tariff bill nearly three months ago, but the senate committee on finance spent about six weeks overhauling it and straightening out the kinks in its author's syntax and orthography. After three weeks more, the bill was brought up for discussion in the senate, and it is not expected to pass that body under four weeks, at the earliest, and it may take twice or thrice that length of time to put it through. Then there will be a conference of committees of the houses on the bill, and there is no telling how long it will take to reach an agreement. "In the meantime," sadly thinks the republican party, "the country's tongue is hanging out for want of the refreshing elixir of a new tariff, and my reputation as a maker of blessings is in a fair way to be ruined."

This is rather tough on a party which, only four years ago, was getting a lot of fun out of democratic attempts to do a decent tariff job in a short time. It is challenging some sympathy, too, for it is observed that the American Protective Tariff league has communicated with every republican newspaper in the country, asking for a general urging of the senators to get a goat on. Of course, this will not do the least good, because the senators can always be depended on to move in the direction and at the rate of speed that are suggested by their interests, enough of them, at any rate, to render any interference on the part of the public useless. Particularly is this the case when there is on foot a scheme of robbery like that which is now receiving consideration in the senate. The plunder must be divided as evenly as possible, or those who do not come in for a fair share of the swag may be depended on to make trouble. The republican protectionists are now facing the danger that is proverbially contingent upon an adequate supply of rope. Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

Only a Freak of Nature.

"Just between us gals, as it were, Rufe, there are but blame few things in this world which I know for certain. But if I have to tell it on my own triflin self, I do know a most hellations plenty about two or three things—men and horses amongst the rest. Now I would love for some of these durn literary fellers that have went off to school and picked up a little smatterin of everything, to tell me why it is that a man like Andy Lucas can stick to the cold facts all along the line till it comes to horses, and then couldn't tell the truth with a dead rest.

"The hands and the stock bein tremendous busy layin by corn, I had out me a fast three-year-old walkin stick and lit out and went over to spend the day with my old friend and fellow servant, Bunk Weatherford. And when he branched off on the freaks of human nature I told him he would have to come at me with somethin a little more easier.

"You must recollect, Rufe, that I was swappin horses often and on, more or less, before Andy Lucas was ever borned and brung forth into this world. Horse tradin ain't my reglar business, you understand, and I don't make no sulfurin big brags about what I can do in those regards. But it gives me a comin appetite to spit when I see a man like Andy, which makes it his business to trade, and trade for the stuff he can squeeze out of it, tryin to turn sand in my eyes and do the swappin for both of us. I may have all the marks and appearances of a native-born idiot, and I may have my lucid intervals, as the doctors call em, but I'll be dadburned if I have ever yet sav the day when I was fool enough to let Andy Lucas swap my horse for his, without my knowledge or consent, and me not even lookin on when he made the trade.

An Alabama Lie.

"Onest upon a time—seven years ago this summer—Andy made his first pass at me for a horse trade, and I didn't do a blessed thing but stand there with my finger in my mouth and let him swap the very socks off of me, as it were. He was ridin of a big high-headed sorrel horse, and I had a good plug of a mule, both of which had shed their baby teeth many years before. I didn't have but precious little to say about the mule from the simple fact that she hadn't been lookin to me for her corn and fodder but a few days and I didn't know much to tell.

"There's the mule, Andy, and if we trade you must take her like the hair stands," says I.

"But from the way Andy talked a stranger couldn't tell but what he had raised the sorrel from a colt. Naturally I had to put a little salt on his ramblin remarks, but he looked me so full and straight in the face till I thought he mought be mere accident tell me the truth somewhere along the line. But in less than three days it come to pass that Andy hadn't told me a blame thing about the horse which was so. I didn't ask him no questions and he didn't have to tell me no lies. He had done it from the force of habit or a freak of nature and I can't say which.

"Amongst other things Andy told me—and loved he would kiss the Bible on it—that the big sorrel was the bulleest plow horse that ever been peeped through a collar, and that he had been pullin a 22-inch Alabama sweep for three weeks hand runnin—which in the fullness of time that turned out to be the 22-inch Alabama lie.

"That was along in the last days of June and I was in a scandalous big push to scrape through my corn for the last time. Well, the big sorrel was now foragin in my lot, and I loved he mought as well be lookin through a set of plow gear for me. So consequently I hooked him up and swung him in the next mornin. He helt out till about noon and then turned up with a roarin bad case of the thumps. From that he went slap to pieces and was dead on his legs for two weeks.

"What did I do? What could I do, but stand still and take my medicine like a man? But from then on I didn't do a confidential thing to the big sorrel but feed him on green stuff and pile up soft fat on his bones. In the main time I was settin for Andy and every time he would ask me about the big sorrel I responded back that the big sorrel want gone nowhere.

"Along in the first cool days of September I went to town one Saturday. The big sorrel was lookin' to be in fine fix, and the minut Andy clapped eyes on him I could see that my time had come to win out even. I let on like I didn't have my tradin stock with me that day, but Andy wanted the big sorrel. He followed me around town and then followed me half way home. At last he got my horse and I got a tollerable good plug mule and six dollars—'twas all he had—but. Andy then lit out to make a three-days' trip over in the hill country, and when he returned back home the big sorrel was thin in flesh and dead on his legs onest more. In the next place Andy had to sell him to a poor travelin preacher for $20 on a credit, and in less than a month he was as dead as they ever make 'em.

"Anyhow, Rufe, I am even now. In fact, I ruther think I am ahead of the game. And I do hope and trust by this time Andy Lucas has got forgiveness for that 22-inch Alabama lie."

RUFUS SANDERS.

A man may not own a pocketbook, and yet have lots of money.

A FRETWORK OF FRAUD.

Republican Senators Playing Into the Hands of Trusts.

The senate republican caucus has decided to "stand together" for the whole tariff bill. This means that each republican senator will give his vote for any inquiry or injustice that the bill may contain in return for votes for his own pet inquiry and injustice. Each is to vote blindly for the whole bill. Judgment is to have nothing whatever to do with the matter. Conviction is to play no part. Conscience is to keep quiet in order that each private inquiry may be effectively accomplished.

Right or wrong, wise or unwise, helpful or destructive of prosperity, this bill is to be passed in the interest of the trusts that have dictated its terms.

Chief among these is the sugar trust, and it is to be benefited in a degree even greater than that promised. For a new sugar schedule has been arranged to give still more money to the Have-meyers. On all refined sugars the trust is to be protected by a duty of 1.95 cents per pound instead of the 1.875 prescribed in the original bill. At the same time the line of demarcation between refined and unrefined sugars is greatly reduced, so as to increase this protection.

The sugar trust has already imported enough raw sugar to last it for six months or more. It will have the Louisiana product to keep it running for two months longer. In other words, for eight months or more to come it will pay no additional penny of revenue to the government, while it will levy upon the people for its own benefit a tax of nearly two cents a pound upon all the sugar consumed in the country.

Is not this an outrage? Is it not an infamy? Is it not an abuse of legislative power? Is this the way to bring about prosperity? Are the people to be made happy by being compelled to pay needless millions to this greedy conspiracy of capitalists?

Is the whole tariff bill a fraudulent conspiracy of "interests" to levy what tax they please upon the people?—N. Y. World.

COMPROMISE ON SUGAR.

Protectionists Show a Preference for Sweetening.

While the republican senators stood out to the end against the demand for a lower tariff on lumber, agreeing to the extreme rates despite the protests of manufacturers and consumers, they have been compelled to yield a little bit in the case of the sugar schedule, in order to insure party harmony.

At the republican caucus a differential rate on refined sugar of one cent and 95-100ths of a cent per pound was agreed upon, the new rate being a compromise between the Dingley and Aldrich schedules. The change from the ad valorem to a specific duty is considered a concession to popular demand as it renders the meaning of the schedule more intelligible and the trust's evasion of the duty more difficult.

While the law-makers have been obliged to defer to public sentiment in this instance—and the fact is an encouraging one—they might have gone still further in undoing the work of the Aldrich committee without trespassing too far upon the special rights which the sugar trust appears to enjoy at the senate end of the capitol. The schedule fixed by the senate subcommittee was so favorable to the trust that it could stand the trimming done by the caucus in response to popular clamor for reform and still be a better schedule for the sugar kings than the house measure was.

That the enormous earnings of the trust have not been too seriously imperiled by the action of the caucus was evident from the jump which sugar trust stock took in Wall street when the compromise was reported. Toned down as it has been—it may have been marked up, like a tricky tradesman's selling prices, for that purpose—the sugar schedule will still vie with the wool and lumber features of the new tariff for the distinction of being the most objectionable and oppressive feature of the bill.—Detroit Free Press.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

The republicans now admit that the new tariff bill will not remedy the deficit. Then, in the name of old boss politics, what do they propose to do about it?—Atlanta Constitution.

President McKinley seeks to soothe the embarrassed people with injunctions of patience. But he ought to know that patience is not an easy virtue for men who are out of work and starving to acquire.—Illinois State Register.

There is no such thing as a moderate protectionist except when the protection relates to the goods or property of some other man. He is always in favor, if he is a protectionist, of the very highest rates for what he wants protected.—Peoria (Ill.) Herald.

It is of small consequence whether or not any democrats vote for the robber tariff. As it is destined to wreck the republican party, there is a possibility that some democrats may think it advisable to have the highest tariff that can be obtained.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The speaker will hardly go down to posterity as a great American statesman. He has originated nothing; there is no great question germane to the home or foreign policy of the country which he can be said to have mastered. His ignorance of economic subjects is so profound that he regards Dingley's statistical crudities as the quintessence of wisdom.—N. Y. Times.

Isn't it about time for the republicans to stop trying to fool the people with their shallow and false pretense of friendship for bimetalism? The leaders do not want it and would not accept it under any conditions. What they want is gold monometallism, and they are straining every nerve to accomplish that end. The bimetallic commission is simply a jolly junket—intended to "jolly" the credulous public.—Chicago Dispatch.

Senator Thurston said in the senate that prosperity was returning to Nebraska, but when asked by Senator Gray if the Wilson bill was not still in force, he said that it was, but that it was the prospect of the passage of the Dingley bill that was making good times. It will be remembered that the panic came while the McKinley bill was in force, but the republicans said that it was the prospect of a democratic tariff that brought on the hard time. The republicans are great on making claims.—Indianapolis News.

LOST APPETITE.

Could Not Eat the Most Tempting Dishes.

Many Days Without Any Food at All—Can Eat Four Square Meals a Day Now—The Cause of the Change.

From the Leader, Cleveland, Ohio.

For the restoration of an appetite which has been impaired or lost through sickness, no remedy can compare in effectiveness with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. This statement is substantiated by the experience and declarations of men and women with whom these pills have become a household medicine. Among the many who can offer testimony to this particular property of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is George Marshall, Jr., who lives at No. 19 Norwich street, Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Marshall is a news agent on the Toledo, Michigan Southern Railroad, and his territory extends from Cleveland to Toledo. Like thousands of others who owe their health and vigor to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Mr. Marshall hesitates to sing their praises. In his case it was necessary to use only a few boxes of the pills to restore him to the full possession of bodily health. He had been suffering from indigestion, less through a long and serious illness, but in a surprisingly brief period, through the agency of this wonderful medicine, they were capable of again restoring their functions in a regular and perfectly satisfactory manner. In narrating his experience with them Mr. Marshall said:

"After three months' treatment with inflammatory rheumatism, my entire system was affected. To relieve the suffering it was necessary to paint me with iodine. After three months' treatment with iodine, but the attack had sapped my strength and left me extremely weak and feeble. I could scarcely lift an arm or a leg. My weakness permeated my entire system, and applied as well to my stomach and digestive apparatus as to my limbs. I soon discovered that I had lost my appetite almost as completely as though I never had one. I had no desire whatever to partake of any nourishment, and the natural result was that my convalescence was extremely slow, and my parents feared that I was going to suffer from a relapse or fall prey to some chronic ailment on account of my debilitated condition.

"Many a day I would not take any nourishment, and whenever I did the quantity was so insignificant that it materially hastened my improvement. Tempting dishes were prepared for me, but I could not touch them. I began to become more or less alarmed as to my future, and one day my mother suggested the purchase of some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for me. They had been recommended to her by a neighbor who regarded me as nothing short of miraculous, and I dwelt enthusiastically on their excellent qualities that mother was persuaded to try them. There is not much more to tell now, for I don't look like a man who cannot eat three or four square meals a day, do I?"

"Three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills fixed me up sound as a dollar, and they will do the same for anyone else, I am sure. It was no longer a matter of days, but of hours, that I could feel myself improving. My strength began to return and so did my appetite, and I was on the road again in a short time. I have since my experience with them given it for the benefit of others who may have lost their appetites through sickness."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain in concentrated form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as irregular menstruation and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. They are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

HER LIFELIKE STATUE.

Signaled Her Departure from the World of Artists.

Before her marriage she had been a famous sculptress. She had carved several portraits of well-known men, and everyone predicted for her a still more brilliant future, when she suddenly set all predictions at naught by marrying a well-to-do man, disapproved of her keeping up her professional work. She was very quiet under this restriction, but was supposed to rebel inwardly. Therefore when at a dinner party one evening, she asked her old friend, Gen. Bashlar, to come and see her on the following evening and inspect her last piece of work, which she thought the best and most lifelike she had ever executed, he supposed he was to use his influence to prevail upon the husband to permit her to resume her place among the working fraternity of artists.

"I am sure you will like it, general," she said, with a winning smile. "It fairly lives and breathes. I confess I am in love with it myself."

On the appointed evening the general, with some misgivings over the delicacy of the task intrusted to him, presented himself. Instead of myriads of women, as he had expected, he found only his hostess, to his surprise, offered to bring her last bit to him.

"Oh, it's a statuette, is it?" he asked. "Well, yes, you might call it so," she answered, as she went out of the room. In a few minutes she returned, bearing in her arms—a baby!—Chicago Times-Herald.

She Missed Him.

A poor woman who kept a shop in a northern village, and who was troubled with a husband who could scarcely be considered a credit to the family, one day found herself a widow through the sudden demise of her spouse. A lady, who frequently made small purchases at the shop, called to see her and to offer her sympathy, though knowing that the man's death must in a certain sense come as a relief, as the wife had often suffered from his violence. She was not, however, quite prepared for the stoical way in which the wife took her bereavement.

"I am sure, Mrs. G—, you must miss your husband."

"Well, mum, it do seem queer to go into the shop and find something in the till!"—Tit-Bits.

A Wonderful Rifle.

Hunting big game is not as hard work as it used to be in the days of the long, heavy, big bored rifles. With a light modern rifle, such as the Model '94 Winchester, more game can be killed and at much longer distances than with any one of the old time guns. The Model '95 Winchester is one of the highest powered rifles made. It will shoot a 30-caliber U. S. Army bullet through over 50 inches of dry pine boards, and drive a bullet at the rate of 2,000 feet a second through the air. Hunters all over the country say that this is the best hunting rifle ever made. Send to the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., for a large illustrated catalogue free.

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

(Special Session.)

In the senate on the 5th, good progress, in some respects, was made upon the tariff bill, the amendment placing a stamp tax being agreed to with little opposition, while the Spooner amendment, proposing a tariff investigation, was withdrawn after a protracted struggle. In the house no business was transacted, and adjournment was had until the 7th.

In the senate, on the 6th, without any preliminary business, consideration of the tariff bill was resumed. Several speeches were delivered, and at the close of the session, Mr. Allison made a request for an agreement for a final vote on the 7th, which was assented to. The house was not in session.

In the senate, on the 7th, a final vote was reached on the tariff bill and it was passed—84 to 38. In the house Mr. McMillin (Tenn.) sought to pass the Cuban belligerency resolution under suspension of the rules, but the speaker ignored him and recognized Mr. Dingley to move an adjournment until the 8th, which was carried.

In the senate, on the 8th, the deficiency appropriation bill occupied the entire day. Among its provisions is one accepting the invitation of France to participate in the Paris exposition of 1900. A resolution requesting the president to demand of Spain the release of Ona Melton, one of the Competitor prisoners, was referred. In the house the usual resolution providing for a public conference, and Messrs. Dingley, Payne, Dailzell, Hopkins, Grosvenor, republicans, and Bailey, McMillin and Wheelock, democrats, were appointed conferees.

In the senate, on the 9th, after the reading of the journal, Senator Bate, of Tennessee, announced the death of his colleague, Senator Harris, in a short and eulogistic speech, and offered the usual resolution providing for a public funeral, which was adopted, and as a further mark of respect to the memory of deceased the senate adjourned. The house was not in session.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

REV. DR. HENRY HARMAN, professor emeritus of Dickinson college, and one of the foremost educators in the Methodist Episcopal church, died, on the 2d, at his home in Baltimore, Md., at the age of 75 years.

The illumination and fireworks display on the river at Springfield, Mass., on the night of the 5th, was marred by the drowning of the two men who were handling the fireworks, W. Malone, of Brooklyn, and John T. Nolan, of New York. Malone fell into the river, and when Nolan attempted to rescue him the drowning man seized him and both sank.

DETROIT HILL, the six-year-old son of Chauncey Hill, a San Francisco architect, was carried up, at Oakland, Cal., on the 5th, clinging to a guy rope of a balloon from which an aeronaut was to descend by a parachute. When 1,000 feet high the little fellow's hold gave way and his body, falling to the earth, was crushed out of shape.

THOMAS MORGAN and his wife met a horrible death at Youngstown, O., on the 5th. They were driving near a cliff when the horse backed the buggy over the bank, and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan fell 60 feet and both were killed.

The senate, on the 5th, confirmed the nomination of R. Weldenan, of California, to be consul at Hong Kong, China.

On the 6th a disturbance was created in Monterey, Cal., over the display of a Portuguese flag beside the American ensign instead of below it over Ortin's grocery store. Patriotic citizens took down the Portuguese flag, but finding it again flying removed it and burned it. Ortin complained to the Portuguese consul.

The new town of Lincoln, N. J., celebrated Independence day by electing a municipal government in which women share equally with men.

G. V. N. LOHRUP, ex-minister to Russia, who was badly prostrated by the heat in Detroit, Mich., on the 5th, was reported much better on the 6th. The list of persons who died in that city from sunstroke and heat prostration, on the 6th, reached 13.

SENATOR HARRIS, of Tennessee, who is ill in Washington, was, on the 6th, considered to be in a serious condition.

In speaking of the great miners' strike, on the 6th, Secretary of State Sherman said that such disturbances were always serious, and threatened to become injurious to business interests.

JOHN HENRY BARKER, colored, was electrocuted at Sing Sing, N. Y., on the 6th, for wife murder committed on August 30, 1895, just outside the town of White Plains.

A TERRIFIC thunderstorm which passed over the Lake St. John district, in Canada, on the 6th, caused some loss of life and considerable damage to property.

The tariff bill passed the senate, on the 7th, by a vote of 38 to 23.

BEILAM STORER, the new United States minister to Belgium, arrived at Brussels on the 7th.

DURING three days, ended on the 7th, 40 inquests were held in Cincinnati over the remains of victims of the intense heat.

The statement of the condition of the treasury, issued on the 7th, showed: Available cash balance, $234,858,800; gold reserve, $141,987,568.

On the 7th Russia sent a circular note to the powers suggesting that steps be taken to expedite the conclusion of peace between Greece and Turkey.

THE Japan Herald, commenting on the Hawaiian situation, naively gives away the intentions of Japan, which are of a by-no-means peaceful character towards either Hawaii or the United States.

HON. GEORGE V. N. LOHRUP, ex-minister to Russia, who had partially recovered from an attack of heat prostration, began sinking, on the 7th, at his home in Detroit, Michigan, and it was feared he might not again rally.

JOHN REYNOLDS, for 30 years publisher of the Old Fellow-Talisman, and one of the best-known old fellows in the United States, died at his home in Indianapolis, Ind., on the 7th. Mr. Reynolds was 70 years of age.

It appears that the sultan has convinced himself that the powers will not resort to coercion, and has decided to test the alleged concert of Europe to the utmost in the negotiations for peace with Greece.

THE First Methodist church of Chicago, which was founded in 1835, and owns property worth $1,000,000, has only 24 regular attendants, the others having withdrawn on account of a factional fight. The church is also without a pastor.

MARTIN THORN, who was arrested by the New York police in connection with the murder of William Guiden, suppe, has confessed the horrible details of the crime, which implicates Mrs. Naek as an accomplice.

The miners' officials did not overreach the mark when they estimated that the national strike of miners would make 250,000 members of the craft idle. The number out is rapidly approaching that figure.

SENATOR DAVIS, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, has called a meeting of the committee for the purpose of considering the Hawaiian annexation treaty, which will probably be reported ere the extra session closes.

FOURTEEN people are now known to have been killed in the recent tornado and cloudbursts in Minnesota. The storm was general, and it is impossible to estimate the amount of property damage with any degree of certainty.

The severe hot weather and southern wind culminated in a small tornado near Albert, Kas., on the 8th, which did much damage. It overturned many small buildings, blew down trees and did some damage to shocked grain. Mrs. Frank Koerber was killed.

RAYMOND C. DESCHNER, a young blacksmith of St. Louis, set a device to prevent thieves looting his shop, forgot all about it and caught a bullet in the breast when he went to open his shop on the morning the 8th. His condition is critical.

ROBERT EDWIN BONNER, of the New York Ledger, was reported, on the 8th, to be seriously ill at Avern-by-the-Sea, near Far Rockaway, N. Y., where he owns a cottage.

PHILIP SCHREIBER, a molder, died in the St. Louis city hospital, on the 9th, from tetanus, caused by wearing tight shoes. A sore formed on his right instep, which developed into an abscess, producing lockjaw, from which he died.

An electric car on the Ogden avenue line in Chicago crashed into the hose-car of Engine Company 31, on the night of the 8th, causing a smashup in which four firemen and seven passengers were injured.

The socialists are continuing their agitation among the striking miners in Bilbao, Spain, and the situation is grave. Reinforcements of troops and police have arrived.

The French chamber of deputies, on the 9th, by a vote of 425 to 110, adopted the Cadenas bill, empowering the government to raise the duties on wheat, wine, cattle and meat at 24 hours' notice, subject to the subsequent approval of parliament.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

On the 9th the miners had all the advantage in the great coal strike. In Cleveland, Ohio, the scarcity of coal is already felt, and the railroads are confiscating all coal on their lines.

While a gang of workmen were making excavations along the lines of the street railway at Lexington, Ky., on the 9th, one of them struck what looked to be a piece of pipe, but proved to be a sixty-four pound dynamite cartridge. A fearful explosion followed, and five of the six negroes in the gang were blown to atoms.

PADUCAH, Ky., was struck by a tornado on the 9th. Many buildings were damaged and one man was killed.

The steamship St. Paul took out 635,000 ounces of silver to Europe on the 6th.

A crazy man jumped into the river near Fulton, Ky., on the 5th, and was drowned.

THE MINERS' STRIKE.

Extraordinary Efforts of the Labor Leaders.

To Induce the Miners to Quit Work—An Implied Threat of Violent Means to be Used, and an Acknowledgment of Failure if Not Unanimous.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 10.—The lines are tightening in all sections of the Pittsburgh mining district with the exception of a few spots.

The diggers in the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal Company mines are still working, but President Dolan and Secretary Warner are preparing for a more of a sensational point. It was looked for Friday, but will be made some time to-day or to-morrow, the time not yet being agreed upon. President Dolan was out at Wickhaven yesterday, strengthening his cause there and will visit several of the river mines before he returns.

Telegrams and letters of an encouraging nature from the different parts of the district are pouring into the miners' officials. One of these, written by a miner on the Wheeling division of the Baltimore & Ohio, complains that the operators are taking unfair means to whip their men. The writer alleges that they are influencing the boarding house keepers to testify against the miners.

The single men for the small amounts they owe and are also threatening the men having families with landlord's warrants and ejection if they don't return to work.

Preacher Green and the miner who was chairman of the meeting at the Forty-foot cut, Snowden, Friday, was again in the field last night and presided at a meeting of the Gastonville diggers at that place.

Several fiery speeches were made, resulting eventually in an unanimous vote favoring the strike. In a letter to Secretary Warner, Green stated that the whistle for the men to go to work at Gastonville blew Friday morning as usual, but not a miner from his home entered the pit. Only a few were in Thursday.

Another miner wrote Secretary Warner Friday from June mine, saying that only seven men were at work yesterday as he had made a special investigation in order to get the facts in the case. From the same source it was learned that everything was quiet and idle on Miller's Run. The Jumbo was reported to be working, and it is pretty certain that nearly one-third of the Panhandle miners of Hanna & Co. are at work to-day. The miners' officials had no definite information from them, but claimed the pit was practically deserted.

From an operator it was learned that the mines of the Washington Coal and Coke Co., in Sticks Hollow, are working full, and yesterday loaded 100 cars of coal, which went to Cleveland, where there is said to be a scarcity. This mine is on the line of the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Youngbushen railroad, and has not hitherto been considered in the Pittsburgh district. The best information puts the present state of the strike in this district as about complete, with the exception of the pits of the New York and Cleveland Co., four or five small mines and several others in the fourth pool.

It seems that the officials are having more trouble in getting the miners of the upper river section out than in any other portion of the territory. It is so, too, with that of the Desanitt mine, the vital point of the district. Strong efforts will be made next week by President Dolan to get all the river diggers into the movement. By his efforts Thursday the miners at Whittsett and West Newton went out.

Some of the reports from the Monongahela River district indicate that many of the miners of that section are weakening, and that some have already returned to work, with prospects of more following their example before long.

The Chamouni mines of the Time Coal Co., the mines of the Charles Jute company, the Samuel O'Neill mines at Fayette and the Jones mines at Monongahela were at work yesterday. This condition of affairs is causing much excitement in the valley. A special from Fayette City says:

"Crowds of idle miners are gathering, and unless the miners of the places in operation lay down their tools at once it is said a march of miners, beginning at Fayette City with a brass band leading, will be made and every man persuaded to quit work.

The miners when spoken to were in deadly earnest, and will not rest until every digger comes out and joins in the general strike.

The serious condition in the valley has been made known to the miners' officials, and President Dolan will probably arrange a mass meeting at Lucyville or Monongahela.

A miner from the valley who was at headquarters Friday said it was necessary to draw out all of the miners in that section if success was desired.

"At some of the places now working," he said, "the mine owners have commenced to load coal for rail shipment. If this is permitted to continue the men need not expect a victory, since it will only be a question of time until all of the river men return to the pits. I understand a committee has been appointed to lay the serious state of affairs before the miners' officials."

Situation at Cleveland Becoming Desperate.

CLEVELAND, O., July 10.—The situation in this city over the coal strike is becoming desperate. The Cleveland railroads are growing bolder in confiscating coal, and those who depend upon a regular supply are becoming anxious.

The schooner B. W. Parker of Detroit, has been delayed in Cleveland since Sunday, owing to the action of the Erie railway. The boat was loading coal at the Cleveland Ship-Building Co.'s works. An Erie engine backed on the high trestle which leads to the car-dumping machine and carried away 30 cars of coal.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

The Probable Failure of the Great Strike Farced, and its Evil Effects on Business Discounted. Tin Plate Works Again Busy, and a General Settlement of Iron and Steel Wages Expected—Favorable Crop Reports.

New York, July 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade issued to-day says:

The strike of the bituminous coal miners has taken 75,000 men or more from work and threatens to restrict supplies of fuel in some quarters, though the West Virginia and some other mines which declined to take part seem to be able to meet the eastern demand for some months. At the west the strike is by no means untied sustained and the impression prevails that it will not last long.

The tin-plate works have settled the wage question and are again busy, and show a production of 4,500,000 boxes yearly, with a capacity of 8,250,000 boxes.

The bar mills have more trouble, but a general settlement of iron and steel wages is expected without much delay.

New orders are small since the annual vacation began, but yet are large enough, the season considered, to afford some encouragement. Tin is stronger at $1.10, without concessions, and copper, with a large export demand, at 11½ cents for lake, while in lead sales of 1,000 tons or more leave the price about 3.7 cents.

The cotton mills have a steady and increasing demand, the quotations of middling uplands have been advanced a sixteenth, aided by speculative strength on reports of damage to the crop, especially in Texas and Arkansas.

The woolen mills are getting decidedly more orders for fall wools and beginning hopefully on spring goods, but are cautious in contracts for future delivery. Some have made large purchases of wool, but by far the greater part of the sales, which amounted to 14,120,500 pounds at the three chief markets for the week, have been of a speculative character. Western prices are held much above those of seaboard markets, Montana scored being sold, according to reports, at the equivalent of 42 cents at the east against 38 at Boston and 40 at Philadelphia. There is a better demand for domestic wool in expectation of higher prices.

While the most cautious estimates of wheat yield have been advanced, that of the Orange Judd Farmer to 575,000,000, prices have been lifted nearly 3½ cents here. Although Atlantic exports, flour included, were for the week 1,503,953 bushels, against 1,418,356 last year, western receipts were small, only 1,394,633 bushels, against 2,973,409 bushels last year, and the disposition of farmers to hold for higher figures is strengthened by many foreign reports. It seems to be the fact that crops in other countries are less promising than usual, and the demand for American wheat is supplemented, even at this season, by exports of 2,635,502 bushels of corn, against 550,610 bushels for the same week last year. Each week raises the estimate of the wheat yield, however, and if the weather continues favorable, the crop may prove a most important factor in the future of national and international business. The prospect as to corn is growing more cheerful with each week and an immense crop is now anticipated.

Failures for the week have been 206 in the United States, against 215 last year, and 30 in Canada, against 39 last year.

THE DISABLED SPREE.

The Passengers Made the Best of Their Enforced Delay.

QUEENSTOWN, July 9.—The North German Lloyd steamer Spree, Capt. Meier, which sailed from New York on June 26 for Bremen via Cherbourg, and which should have arrived there on July 4, reached here yesterday in tow of the British steamer Maine, from Philadelphia for London. All the Spree's passengers and crew are well.

The delay was caused by the cracking of her crank shaft on July 2, while 550 miles off the coast of Ireland. The sea was calm at the time of the accident, and the Spree drifted until 8:30 p. m., July 5, when the Maine hove in sight and steamed close to the North German Lloyd vessel. The captain of the Spree sent one of his boats to the Maine and arrangements were made to tow the disabled steamer to this port. There was no excitement and the passengers enjoyed themselves as best they could under the circumstances.

THE GULDENSUPPE MURDER.

The Indicted Arraigned—Peaches to Secure His Own Safety.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Martin Thorn and Mrs. Augusta Naek, indicted for the murder of Wm. Guldensuppe were yesterday arraigned in the court of general sessions. At the request of counsel pleading was postponed till Monday. Thorn had no lawyer, and counsel was assigned him by the court. The Herald says that John Gotha betrayed Thorn through no motive of public duty, but because he feared for his own life. It is alleged that in arranging with Gotha for the meeting on Tuesday night, Thorn had a plan to lure his quarrelsome friend to Morris Park which is little frequented at night and there kill him in such a way to carry the impression of suicide.

DEATH OF CONSUL BAKER.

United States Consul at Buenos Ayres, Argentina.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—United States Minister Buchanan has cabled the state department under date of Buenos Ayres, July 8, that United States Consul Willis E. Baker, who had been ill for some time, died at Rosario Thursday. Mrs. Baker has left the details of the funeral to her son, who is attached to the consulate at Buenos Ayres. Mr. Baker was appointed consul in 1880. He was injured in a wreck on the Argentine railway.

HAVING A GOOD TIME.

The Christian Endeavor Pigeons Enjoy Their Visit to San Francisco. The Weather Simply Perfect. Secretary Baer Says No Convention Has Ever Had Such a Meeting Place, and All the Arrangements Are of the Best.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—The second day of the Christian Endeavor convention opened bright and pleasant. In fact the weather has been perfect every day since the visitors began to arrive. The visiting easterners are congratulating themselves upon escaping through the torrid wave now sweeping through the central and eastern states. It is noticeable that many who came to town wearing their thinnest summer clothing have taken on more substantial protection against the cool breezes from the Pacific. But they are having a glorious time, and the pleasant weather is especially pleasing to those who have endured the extreme heat all the way across the continent.

As early as daylight little parties of a dozen or two score could be seen going towards the parks, Cliff House and Ocean Beach in search of pleasure, while hundreds of others attended early morning prayer services at the different churches.

Long before the hour for calling the meetings to order in Mechanics' and Woodward's pavilions, crowds filled every available space in the big buildings. The delegates were even more enthusiastic than on the first day of the convention, nearly all having had sufficient time to recover from the fatigue of a long journey, and more or less discomfort of a railway trip. The thousands of lady delegates, in striking toilettes, and wearing badges and ribbons of bright colors, looked fresh and happy, and when the song service was announced at the opening of the meetings, they responded with a will that showed their whole spirit was in the undertaking.

Secretary Baer is elated at the success of the meeting, and says no convention has ever had such a meeting place. There are vast auditoriums, but never under one roof, a city in itself. Never has there been a better-arranged place for registration, rest and conversation. Fine California fruits and flowers have been artistically arranged in numerous booths in the pavilion, and each delegate is invited to sample the fruit and carry away a pamphlet reciting the resources of each county in the golden state.

The total number of registrations at headquarters is announced as nearly 20,000, of whom about 7,000 are from California.

Every possible precaution has been taken by the police and fire departments to prevent any accident or stampede during the sittings of the convention. Thirty police officers have been stationed in and around Mechanics' pavilion, to guard against overcrowding and possible panics. When the capacity of the hall has been reached the police close the doors, and the rest are turned away, directing them to the overflow meetings at Woodward's pavilion and Old Fellows' hall. Sixteen firemen are constantly on patrol duty in the big building, watching the electric light wires and guarding against fire in any portion where it would be dangerous to the lives of the audience.

All the young folks accompanying their parents were taken on an excursion Friday to the different points of interest in the city and along the shores of the bay.

Arrangements have been made by the Chinese converts to show special attention to visiting Endeavorers. Rev. Kue Guan, head of the Congregational Chinese mission, promises free guides to all Endeavorers who wish to go through Chinatown. All the Chinese missions of different denominations will hold receptions during the week, all visiting Endeavorers will be welcomed and served with refreshments in Chinese style.

SHORT AND SKIPPED.

Treasurer of the Houston & Texas Central Freight Department at Austin, Tex., Missing.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 10.—Will Todner, who has been employed as treasurer for the local freight department of the Houston & Texas Central railroad for the past 11 years, has turned up missing, and with his departure came the intelligence that his account was short some $1,000. The visit of the road's auditor in his regular rounds frightened Todner to the extent that he skipped, taking several hundred dollars in cash out of the office safe which, in addition to his shortage on due bills, makes the total defalcation about $1,000.

DEATH BEFORE STARVATION.

Suicide of a Captain in the First Royal Dragoons.

LONDON, July 10.—Capt. Francis Yorkie McMahon, of the First royal dragoons, the brother and heir

P. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

SALUTATORY.

In assuming the editorial and business control of THE CHRONICLE, it is with the determination of keeping it up to the high standard it has already attained, and of making such improvements as opportunity permits. We feel that an absence of five years from the business and of three years from the State has lost us none of our interest in the institutions of the community, nor none of our inclination to be aligned with those interests, while on the other hand a comparison of these with the general conditions of the country will enable us to labor with a better appreciation of the common needs of the people whom we propose to serve.

It is needless to say that THE CHRONICLE will continue to be an exponent of Democratic principles, and that there will be no uncertainty at any time of its position upon any question that affects the interests of its readers; but the editor's opinion will always be given with a due regard for the right of free thought and in no spirit of intolerance except for those people who have elevated themselves above and beyond the pale of Democracy. We shall at all times support the platform of our party, believing that the majority of its members are always right; we shall support its nominations, believing that only in union can there be the strength that wins success.

Believing firmly in the party's present position as to finance, and having an abiding faith in the great benefits to be derived from the maintenance of the double standard, we shall contribute our aid to the cause of silver as presented by the Democratic party, without any regard for the personal advancement of any of the men who may happen to lead in the fight. Believing in the honest difference of opinion, we shall respect the position of all those who take the opposite view so long as they do not allow those views to lead them beyond the party lines. Showing consideration to honest individual differences, none is due to the arrogance that assumes infallibility, and THE CHRONICLE will strike hard and unfeelingly at the open enemies of the Democratic party.

If a newspaper is essentially an exponent of political doctrine, it is equally an index of the progress and prosperity of its community. What the index discloses depends upon the patronage of the people among whom it exists. Locally we shall try to aid the material advancement of our town and county, and to present the advantages of the community in such a manner as will attract the attention of those seeking homes and fields for investment. To do this we shall need the cooperation of all our citizens, and we reasonably expect it. We hope soon to have every industry and business in the town represented in our advertising columns every issue, making an unanswerable exposition of the enterprise of our citizens.

We shall endeavor to give the local news, to which our columns will be devoted to the exclusion of everything else. They will be open at all times to the reasonable discussion of local issues, and such discussion is invited as the best means of keeping up a lively interest in home affairs.

With no attempt to compete with the great dailies and the big weeklies, we ask the patronage of our people to enable us to give them what no county is able to do without—a clean, clear, and effective local paper.

Begging indulgence for possible mistakes, but with no apologies for honest convictions, we hope for friendships that will last, for common successes that will make us all permanent citizens of a great State, a growing county, a pleasant little city.

F. W. GIST.

VALEDICTORY.

With this issue of THE CHRONICLE I make my bow to the public and retire from its editorial management. The proprietor having leased the plant to Mr. F. W. Gist, late of Washington, D. C., formerly of Calera, a gentleman well known in newspaper circles for his marked ability as a writer, and for his energy and enterprise in conducting a paper along the higher walks of journalism. Mr. Gist is also a practical job printer and can turn out work in that line that will compare favorably with any that can be done in the State. Wishing him success and thanking the patrons of THE CHRONICLE for their kindness during our short career, I remain respectfully,

H. C. DUBOSE.

ALL indications point to the development of the manufacture of steel in the South. Added to its other industries this will place the South right in the van of progress.

We are to have a four-cornered gubernatorial race next year. Political parties are getting as numerous in Alabama as in New York. The difference will be that the result is already known.

THE ADVERTISER opposes Senator Morgan's Pacific railroad scheme, doubtless just because Morgan favors it. We are inclined to accept as sound the views of a man of brains when we know he is honest and has made a study of his subject.

VOLUME 30, No. 2 of Our Dumb Animals is before us. This publication has done much good in its time.

J. ASA ROUNTREE has severed his connection with the State-Herald. It is not announced who is to succeed him.

THE difference between the junk and solid senators from Alabama is the fact that the former has been in close touch and sympathy with the people for the past twenty years, while the latter has practically weaned himself from all practical intercourse with them during all that time. He must credit period in the political history of the State—Montgomery Advertiser.

And the latter is in much closer touch with the people of Alabama and the entire country than the Advertiser is. To say nothing against the ability and fidelity of the former, the latter has so endeared himself to our people that none of the Advertiser's baying will shake his image from their hearts. Very probably, however, the "people" does not mean the same thing with the Advertiser as with Morgan and Pettus either.

SENATOR STEWART, the silver Republican, who still professes allegiance to the true Republican idea of protection, says of the tariff bill passed by the Senate last week, "It is the worst bill ever passed." Many of the rates are prohibitive, and the title of the bill discloses its real purpose. "A bill to increase the revenue and to encourage the industries of the United States," is the way it reads, and the latter clause shows the real intended result. As the bill stands at present, this is about all it will accomplish. In doing this prices will be enhanced to the consumer, with no increased wages to compensate the raise.

SILVER bullion has dropped to 26 cents, an ounce—the lowest figure it ever reached. What wondrous things Pops and 10 to 1 Democrats are who think they are able by a fiat to transmute that 46 cents into 100 cents in gold.—Evans Mirror.

The price of silver bullion did not vary 3 cents in a hundred years under the double standard, but since 1890 it has dropped to its present price. When the Government gave $1 an ounce for it other purchasers had to pay as much or more. It is not magic, but common reason that answers the question.

THE BUTAW MIRROR gives the information that Attorney-General Pitts receives a salary from a railroad corporation. If this is true Mr. Pitts should resign his position. Some officers might attend to private business without ever coming in conflict with the State's interests, but there are few such, and the Attorney-General is not one of them. Conditions like this are not to be lightly passed over. We hope the Mirror is misinformed.

THE ADVERTISER speaks of Bryan's vote for Weaver in 1892. If the Advertiser knows anything it knows that vote was cast, as many other Democratic votes were cast at the time, by the advice of the Democratic executive committee, to save the State from Republican rule. By whose advice did the Advertiser bolt the national ticket last year and support a candidate who has belonged to every party known to history, and who never supported anything purely Democratic?

It is being given out that the Alabama delegates to the last Republican convention cost $27,000, this price having been paid for their votes by the McKinley managers. The men who furnished the money for this and other such deals have a mortgage on the administration for its repayment in legislation that will not the lenders a right good interest on their investment. The tariff act is the first installment.

The editor feels very much out of practice, and hopes allowance will be made for any shortcomings in this and subsequent issues. There is a wide difference between a country newspaper and the Government Printing Office, but each place has its responsibilities and is equally hard to fill creditably; experience and application is equally necessary to success in both. After a few weeks we will feel at home again and will have no more excuses to offer.

The proposition to eliminate national issues from the State campaign next year is a very reasonable one. Many measures of an important local nature could form the basis of the campaign, and as there is no Senator to elect the legislature might very properly be elected with a view to settling some of these local matters.

Our neighboring town, Calera, is very much disappointed on account of not securing the Fourth district agricultural school. We suggest to our neighbor, as well as to some other towns, that she spend her efforts in establishing and maintaining a good school for the education of her own children.

If Mark Hanna can buy votes for himself as easily as he bought them for McKinley he will be elected Senator. For a new hand at the business Mark is a hummer in politics, but in the Senate he occupies a very small space.

SENATOR HARRIS, of Tennessee, died on Thursday last at Washington after a long and useful life. His was a career of honest labor for his party and people, and he will be missed in the Senate, where he held in high esteem by both friend and political foe.

Two hundred thousand miners striking for higher wages is the cloud that overshadows the dawn of prosperity; the cry of 200,000 laborers asking for a living for their families is not a very beautiful carol for such a morn.

NINETEEN railroads were placed in the hands of receivers during the first half of the present year, and twenty-four have been sold under foreclosure. And this is the dawn of prosperity.

At a recent Tammany meeting Cleveland's name was hissed and Bryan's cheered. Tammany has learned the art of going with the crowd, and it is intensely Democratic.

The Iowa Gold Democrats declared that "wealth is the product of intelligent labor." It is the province of the Government to secure to labor a just proportion of its product. This the Gold Democrats do not provide for.

The defense by Professor Greek of the boys of Columbiana, published in another column, is, we feel sure, well merited, and we are glad to have them so ably defended by a gentleman who knows them so well.

FOR ALABAMA'S ADVANCEMENT.

The Birmingham State-Herald prints the following interesting piece of news concerning a gentleman well known in industrial circles:

The Alabama Coal, Iron, Land and Colonization Company, Limited, of London, England, is an organization of much interest to our residents. The company is composed of English capitalists who are represented in this city by Maj. F. V. Anderson, a gentleman who has associated himself with foreign capitalists who desire investments. He has induced many thousands of dollars of foreign capital to come to this district, and is identified with every public movement for its advancement and upbuilding.

The company is organized and incorporated under the laws of England, with a capital stock of $125,000, or nearly $630,000, with the power to increase it. They maintain offices in London and elsewhere and also in this city. Its main purpose is to exploit Alabama's exceptional production of pig iron and its successful export. In a recent pamphlet issued by the company it states: "The disruption of the Northern steel rail pool is followed by the export of Bessemer rails and billets, which is a new feature. Notwithstanding the unrivaled preeminence of Great Britain," it says, "the United States, no longer content with the export of a course of fair and reasonable competition."

Such is the company represented by Maj. Anderson. Like himself, it is fair and open, enthusiastic and perfectly trustworthy.

The Columbiana School Boys.

EDITOR CHRONICLE:—If you will give space in your valuable columns, I wish to correct an error that seems to prevail in neighboring villages concerning the boys of the Columbiana Graded School.

It is to the effect that the boys are rough, unmanly, and belated.

I wish to make an emphatic denial of all charges of this kind, of coarseness, and general character of the boys belonging to the Columbiana school district will average above that of those in other towns in a general way. The girls, ditto. But as the boys are attacked, I wish to make my defense particularly in favor of the boys. The school has no critics against boys who came into the school from other towns and localities in the last two years, we find these differences. The boys in the Columbiana school are far in advance of those coming from other places, as a general thing. The boys who have been in the school have learned to discipline themselves and did not require the constant vigilance of the teacher to keep them in a state of subjugation. The charges made against our boys is a sad comment against the mothers, ministers, and Sabbath school teachers, as well as against the teachers of the public schools. We feel that we owe it to our boys to give the charges most emphatic denial. To the boys only? Do we not owe it to their mothers, the ministers, the Sabbath school teachers and superintendents as well? If the teachers ever have any credit, give them a share.

With an enrollment of nearly 250 pupils in the school last year, and not a single skirmish among the boys, for a space of eight months, does that reflect anything bad to the credit of the boys of Columbiana and vicinity?

The Columbiana school has a mainly set of boys who are as honorable as any found anywhere.

The girls prove by their conduct that they have as good mothers as any in the State and are not the boys' brothers? The boys and girls of the Columbiana school district and vicinity are just taking with complete impunity made at their behavior by unscrupulous people.

W. B. GREEK.

SENATOR PETTUS.

[From the Washington Post.]

If any one word could describe Senator Pettus of Alabama, it would be "wisdom."

Mr. Pettus has only been in the Senate since the 4th of last March, but it is safe to say that not a day has passed without a speech or a remark of some kind from him. Some Senators—like Wetmore, for instance—are content to sit quietly in the Senate chamber for months at a time. Not so with Pettus. He has an observation for every hour of the day. The chains of Senatorial tradition do not bind him. He is a free lance, unshackled and untrammelled.

In appearance Senator Pettus is striking. He is a man of large frame, with head of unusual size. Upon his prominent nose rests an old-fashioned pair of heavy gold spectacles, with thick crystals. His chin whiskers are especially distinctive and when he speaks they wiggle and wobble like the whiskers of a windmill. His oratory is of a distinctly of the clerical order. He orates in the style of the old circuit preacher, uttering each sentence with dogmatic force. His voice rises and descends and the words fall on the earth with great impressiveness.

As he stands at his desk, clad in a conventional black Prince Albert, his large eyes peering over his gold spectacles, his long thin whiskers waving to and fro and his voice rising and falling with oracular utterance, he constitutes one of the most picturesque features of the Senate.

TWENTY-SEVEN THOUSAND

Was the Sum Paid by Hanna for Alabama.

[Special from a Staff Correspondent to the New York World.]

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The disgraceful pitiful combination effected by Mark Hanna in the South has by no means been confined to Louisiana. His agent, Cousin William McKinley Osborne, pursued his operations in the line of buying up delegates elsewhere. He secured delegates to the St. Louis convention from Alabama by his questionable means as he used in employing Win. B. Deans, and Cohen in New Orleans in the winter of 1895.

Alabama Republicans were in a majority favorable to the selection of Speaker Reed. Hanna knew this, and he set to work to prevent Reed delegates from being chosen. He visited his sister residence at Thomasville, Ga., and passed a short time there. It was not entirely for his health, however.

Some of the Southern Republican statesmen who wanted a job were soon on the scene. Hanna had really gone South on a still hunt for the Presidential nomination of Major McKinley.

Four Alabama Republicans made a pilgrimage to the Hanna residence. They were William Youngblood, of Birmingham; William Vaughan, of Birmingham; Dr. J. W. Hughes, of Birmingham; and the money required to turn the McKinley agent for the State, and William Vaughan was his selection for chairman of the State committee.

Hughes did the "fine work" in the Birmingham district, while Youngblood performed similar service in Montgomery and vicinity.

On his first visit to Alabama Cousin Osborne masqueraded as a "Boston shoe drummer." He furnished to Youngblood the money required to turn the McKinley agent for the State, and William Vaughan was his selection for chairman of the State committee.

To employ the phraseology used by Youngblood and his ilk, it was necessary to "buy up the niggers." Unfortunately, the "buying up niggers" constitutes the frame work of Southern Republican politics.

Osborne furnished to Youngblood different sums of money to secure state convention delegates who would select McKinley delegates to St. Louis. A letter which was sent to New Orleans in expectation of the arrival there of Osborne fell into the hands of a certain individual. He did not hesitate to "steal" the envelope to read the contents, to copy what he read, and then to seal the letter again.

The boodle plot to capture Alabama from Reed was thus circumstantially laid bare. Altogether Mark Hanna sent to Alabama through Cousin Osborne about $27,000. It is understood that a considerable portion of this boodle fund was "pocketed," "hogged," to employ the picturesque local expression—by some of those to whom it was handed. The smaller fry among the "niggers" who were to be "bought up" received trifling sums.

CROP CONDITIONS.

The Corn Crop is not in the best Condition.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The July returns to the statistician of the Department of Agriculture indicate the following average conditions: Corn, 82.4 winter wheat, 81.2 spring wheat, 94.2; combined spring and winter wheat, 84.9; oats, 87.5; winter rye, 95.0; spring rye, 90.0; barley, 85.5; tobacco, 75.1; potatoes, 83.0.

The report on the acreage of corn, which is preliminary, shows a decrease of 1.2 per cent, as compared with that of last year. This reports a decrease of about 1,000,000 acres. Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Texas and one or two less important corn producing states show an increased acreage, but this is more than offset by the shrinkage in Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee and other States. The average condition of corn is only 82.4; or 9.5 points lower than in July of last year. The principal State averages are as follows: Ohio 75, Michigan 80, Indiana 83, Illinois 82, Iowa 75, Missouri 92, Kansas 90, Nebraska 82, Texas 101, Tennessee 90, Kentucky 87.

The condition of winter wheat, 81.2 is 2.7 points higher than last month and 1.6 points higher than in July of last year; that of spring wheat, 94.2, is 1.6 points higher than last month, but 2.1 points lower than in July of last year. The average condition of spring and winter wheat combined is 94.9, 1.5 points higher than that of the corresponding period last year. The percentage of the wheat crop of 1896 rated as on hand on July 1, 1897, is 5.6 per cent.

The average of the cat crop, 87.5, compares very unfavorably with that of July, 1896, but is only a small fraction of 1 per cent less than the average July for ten years.

The average condition of rye, 95.1, is 1.5 points higher than in July of last year; but that of spring rye, 90.0, is 8.6 points lower than it was at that time.

The condition of barley is improving having advanced 1.1 points during the month, and is now slightly better than last month.

Tobacco acreage shows a falling off of over 20 per cent as compared with last year and the condition, 78.8, is less by 13 points than that of July last.

There is a decrease in the acreage of Irish potatoes of 8.4, as compared with that of last year. The shrinkage is general, Nebraska being the only State with any considerable acreage devoted to this crop that shows an increase. In point of condition, also, the crop at this time compares unfavorably with that of last year. It is 75.0, as compared with 87.8 and 89.0 respectively.

The wool report indicates 5.8 pounds as the average weight per fleece, as compared with 5.7 last year and 5.6 in 1895.

COTTON AVERAGES.

The July returns for cotton to the Department of Agriculture indicate an average condition of 86.0 as compared with 83.5 in June, an increase of 2.5 points. The average condition for July, 1896, was 81.5. The averages of the States are as follows: Virginia 87, North Carolina 90, South Carolina 86, Georgia 85, Florida 84, Alabama 85, Louisiana 86, Texas 88, Arkansas 88, Tennessee 80, Missouri 85, Oklahoma 82, Mississippi 81 and the Indian Territory 93.

Non-Residents Notice.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY. In Chancery at Columbiana, Sixth District, Northernmost Chancery division.

T. C. McKeever, complainant, vs. Alabama Iron and Steel Co., et al., defendants.

In this case it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of J. M. Reynolds, that the defendants, to-wit:

Justin S. Morrill, who resides in the state of Vermont, whose place of residence is not better known; Samuel Thomas, who resides in the state of Pennsylvania, but place of residence is not better known; Charles Plumb, who resides in the city of Emporia, in the state of Kansas; M. B. Pomeroy, who resides in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia; Central Trust Company, a corporation under the laws of the state of New Jersey and its principal place of business is in the city of New York, N. Y., and that all of said parties are non-residents of the state of Alabama; and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the defendants are over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in The Chronicle, a newspaper published in Columbiana, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring the said Justin S. Morrill, Samuel Thomas, Charles S. Plumb, M. B. Pomeroy, and Central Trust Company to plead answer or deny to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 23rd day of August, A. D. 1897, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against them.

Done at office in Columbiana this 8th day of July, A. D. 1897.

J. R. White, Register.

Messrs. John Spencer and H. C. DuBose visited Talladega Springs Monday night.

Mrs. F. W. Gist is "at home" at the residence known as the John Leeper homestead.

A. H. Weaver is quite sick this week, but we hope soon to chronicle his recovery.

Arthur Armstrong left Sunday for a visit to his friend, Reedy Walls, at Shelby Springs.

T. J. Weaver repairs watches, clocks and jewelry at short notice. Call and see him when in town.

Mr. Burr Nabors, of Montevallo, has been in attendance upon commissioners' court this week.

Mrs. C. C. DuBose has been quite ill the past week, but we are glad to state that she is improving.

The smallpox scare is entirely over. No new cases have developed, and no danger for the future is felt.

Misses Patty Mason and Lula Wilson, are spending the week with Miss Nann Horton, near Good Hope.

Mrs. Henry Milner and Miss Essie Mason spent Saturday at Good Hope, taking in the quarterly meeting.

Mr. W. R. Milner visited Birmingham Tuesday, and was impressed with the dullness that pervades that place.

Mr. E. T. Peter, of Maylene, formerly of the Alabama Iron and Steel Company, was in the city Friday last.

Don't forget to have your photographs made at T. J. Weaver's gallery before the summer sickness begins.

Mrs. Pond, of Shelby Springs, was in the city this week. We are sorry to learn that Mr. Pond is in very bad health.

The Chronicle job office has an assortment of legal blanks, mortgages, deeds, crop liens, waive notes, etc., on hand for sale at reasonable prices.

One of our young men is going to get married soon. As the cards have not left the printer's hands we are not at liberty to make any announcement.

The county commissioners have been in session this week revising the tax books and hearing protests of taxpayers against increase in valuation.

Ex-Governor Cobb, of Helena, accompanied by his son, Richard, was in town Sunday and Monday last. Richard is just out after a serious accident.

A game of ball between Columbiana and Calera, at the latter place last Friday, resulted in a score of 14 to 11 in favor of Calera. The game will be repeated here this week.

We are in receipt of the Annual Report of the Orphans' Home of the Synod of Alabama for the year ending September 30, 1896, which shows a splendid management for the year.

Miss Katie Huette, one of our most esteemed and popular young ladies, left last Saturday for Maylene, near which place she has a position of teaching music. Her address will be Helena, Ala.

Mr. Walter Moss, a promising young business man, and Miss Osie Pilgreen, a lovely and accomplished young lady, both of Calera, Ala., were united in marriage on last Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, while sitting in their buggy, having driven up from Calera to Shelby Springs, where Maj. W. D. Huggins tied the knot. We extend congratulations.

The vehicle containing a party of visitors from this place to the ball game at Calera on last Friday was upset before leaving that place, resulting in considerable damage to the occupants. Mrs. Calahan, wife of the railroad agent, had an arm broken and sustained some slight bruises. The other members of the party were badly shaken up, but no serious injuries resulted beyond that mentioned.

We Want Agents.

THE CHRONICLE desires an agent at every post-office in the county—one who will send the local news and increase the subscription list. To anyone who will act in this capacity we offer 10 per cent for collections and 25 per cent for new subscribers. We shall be glad to hear from those who have the time and inclination to do this work, which, with the proper effort, ought to be reasonably profitable. Write for the present list at your office, from which to make collections, see that all your neighbors have an opportunity of subscribing. Send us the news, and we will all be benefited by a small effort.

Mr. Isaac Horner, proprietor of the Burton House, Burton, W. V., and one of the most widely known men in the state was cured of rheumatism after three years of suffering. He says: "I have not sufficient command of language to convey any idea of what I suffered, my physicians told me that nothing could be done for me and my friends were fully convinced that nothing but death would relieve me of my suffering. In June, 1894, Mr. Evans, then salesman for the Wheeling Drug Co., recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm. At this time my foot and limb were swollen to more than double their normal size and it seemed to me my leg would burst, but soon after I began using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease, the pain to leave, and now I consider that I am entirely cured." For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Send us Your Job Work. The former management has established a splendid reputation for doing excellent printing. We shall do the same high-grade work, at the same low prices, and hope to retain the same liberal patronage. Mail orders will receive prompt attention, and we shall make a special effort to please. If we do not call on you personally, remember that we are ready and anxious to do your work.

Hundreds of thousands have been induced to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy by reading what it has done for others, and having tested its merits for themselves are today its warmest friends. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

We are in receipt of the First Annual report of the Girls' Industrial School of Alabama. It is handsomely illustrated, and contains much information concerning the locality and various departments of the school. It shows that the school had 24 local pupils and 202 boarders last session. President Reynolds is to be congratulated upon the splendid showing already made. With his corps of able teachers he has bright prospects for the coming season.

A. H. Patter, with E. C. Atkins & Co., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I have never before given a testimonial in my life. But I will say that for three years we have never been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy in the house, and my wife would as soon think of being without flour as a bottle of this Remedy in the summer season. We have used it with all three of our children and it has never failed to cure—not simply stop pain, but cure absolutely. It is all right, and anyone who tries it will find it so." For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Montevallo Murmurs.

The citizens of Montevallo are waking up to the importance of having a first-class mill school. To this end a meeting was held last week at which a committee was given instructions to investigate and report on the conditions and requirements. The discussion indicated a disposition on the part of the community to make a complete success of the proposed school.

Contractors are daily arriving and conferring with Captain Reynolds in relation to the work to be done on the Industrial School property.

Machinery for the sawmill and woodworking establishment has been placed, the yard has been stocked with logs, and the plant will soon be at work. Mr. McKibbin proposes to erect a gin in connection with the mill and have it ready for this season's crop.

The catalogue of the Girls' Industrial School, the issuance of which has been unduly delayed by the printers, is just out and will be widely distributed. President Reynolds, who has taken great pains in the publication, has shown fine taste in illustrating some of the picturesque spots around "Picturesque Montevallo." The text is well written and arranged and from every standpoint shows up a school of irresistible attractions.

The Magnolia Hotel is now in course of construction and nearly completed. It will be a beauty. S. A. Latham is owner and manager.

The St. George Hotel building, a brick structure, is making rapid progress toward completion. This hotel when completed and furnished will be the handsomest and best-equipped hotel in Central Alabama. Mr. George Kroell is the owner. Mr. A. A. Wall, of Oakman, a hotel keeper of State-wide fame, has leased it for the next two years. M. C. Banks & Bro., have the contract for the brick-work, and Allen & Williams, all of this place, have the woodwork.

Messrs. H. C. and W. B. Reynolds have let the contract for the erection of a bank building, which will be erected on Main street. The building is to be of brick with plate glass and iron front, and will be an ornament to the town. A strong company has been organized to run it, with Mr. Burgess Little at its head.

Mr. W. J. Rhodes has secured the contract for the enlargement of the chapel for the Industrial School.

Hon. John McQueen, a leading lawyer of Birmingham, and one of the trustees for the Industrial School, is in our town on a visit to President Reynolds. Everybody in Montevallo is always glad to have Mr. McQueen come to our town. He is a warm friend of the school, and has never left any means untied that looks to its improvement.

Steam was raised yesterday, and the sawmill part of the Montevallo Sash, Door and Blind Factory was put into successful operation.

Mrs. Harriet McConaughy has just moved into her new residence corner Vine and Valley streets.

P. W. Rogan has secured a beautiful lot on Depot street, and will soon commence the erection of a 10-room house on the lot.

Charles Acker, of this place, is on a visit to his brother, James Acker, in Salt Lake City.

There has been a great deal of complaint on the part of parties who own pine timber near this place, and we fear that trouble will grow out of it. Some of the owners of the timber have erected a 10-rail wire fence around their land, and posted same, which may end the trouble. From what can be learned it all grew out of the fact that Messrs. W. B. Reynolds and W. S. Cary, not being able to secure a supply of Catawba worms, and bound to go a-fishing, went out in the pine timber near here and skinned all the trees that they could find, in search of "flat-heads" or "sawyers." Taking the bark off kills the trees, hence the trouble. It is said by the people along the road to the Burn up Ford, in Cahaba River, that Reynolds and Cary have kept the road so hot all this summer going out on fishing trips that they have deadened almost all of the timber, and set the woods afire at several points, especially so on the downhill part of the road.

If you should happen to have any influence with the "Fool Killer" will you do us the favor to tell him that he is badly needed down in this part of the vineyard. The matter that is the most urgent is to kill off that part of our population who spend their money in buying Texas ponies. He might relieve the families of the unfortunate by killing the ponies also.

Messrs. H. C. & W. B. Reynolds will soon commence the building of a large brick storehouse on the site of their present store. It will have two store-rooms below, 30 by 125 feet, with rooms for bed rooms and offices upstairs.

Mr. J. L. Peters, of your city, is on a visit here.

Contractors, drummers, people coming to make arrangements to place their daughters in the Industrial School next session, lumber, brick, sand, log, and lime wagons, loaded to the guards, carpenters, bricklayers, and laborers fill our streets to overflowing every day; houses are going up all around us, and the cry is for more and more, and not a house to be had.

Messrs. W. B. Reynolds, C. W. Cary, and E. S. Lyman will make large additions to their residences to accommodate school-girl boarders.

A large party of ladies and gentlemen left for Thomas Millpond on Six Milecreek to-day. As it is well known that this is a bad place for snakes, we take it for granted that they are well prepared to resist all attacks in that line. Snake medicine has gone up in the last few days on account of this expedition.

Mr. Thomas J. Perry, of Birmingham, visited homefolks last Sunday. Lester (Scrap) North was in the city a few days since. Scrap is a Montevallo boy with Birmingham attachments.

We have so many visitors that it is impossible to give all their names, as they come in droves.

SPECIAL.

"There's no use in talking," says W. H. Broadwell, druggist, La Cynge, Kas., "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy does the work. After taking medicines of my own preparation and those of others, I took a dose of Chamberlain's and it helped me; a second dose cured me. Candidly and conscientiously I can recommend it as the best thing on the market." The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Harpersville Echoes.

Crops are fine. The health of our community is very good.

The weather is very warm. The honey crop never was better.

Walter Davis, of Lincoln, visited relatives here last Saturday.

J. C. Davis, of Atlanta, was in the city last Saturday. The school board will meet next Saturday evening to elect a teacher. All the patrons are invited to attend. Several applicants will be before the honorable body.

Nearly everybody had rain last week and those that did not are still wanting it.

The case against J. N. Warren for the murder of Henry Armstrong was dismissed last Friday for want of prosecution.

On last Saturday night between 11 and 12 o'clock the cry of fire was heard, when it was discovered that T. J. Martin's ginhouse and mill were on fire. It was under such headway that it was impossible to save anything or do anything except to stand and see a large ginhouse, mill house, two large gins, press, mill, cotton-seed mill, crusher and huller, some corn, a lot of meal, besides all of the belting and many other things, all burnt to ashes. How the fire originated is not known, and I don't suppose ever will be. Mr. Warlick, the miller, had done a big day's grinding, and at dark, in the presence of Messrs. Martin and Warren, drew all of the fire out and put water on it. Some seem to think that there was some fire left somewhere, while others think that it was the work of an incendiary. The loss was about $2,000, with no insurance, the insurance having run out about two months ago. This is the second house that Mr. Martin has had burned at this same place, and such losses are very heavy. Whether he intends to rebuild or not I have not been informed, but I suppose that he will, as we can not do without a mill and gin at Harpersville.

School patrons of Harpersville, let me urge upon you all to come out Saturday evening at 4 o'clock. The trustees will meet at that hour and would be glad to have you all with them. Other towns of smaller importance are doing their utmost to establish good schools and Harpersville should not be behind. We have always had good schools, and with a united effort we can have a better one next year than ever.

There are some repairs to be done to the academy, and let us go to work, repair our house, employ a good teacher, stand by him, pay him, do our duty, see that he does his, and we will have a school that not only Harpersville will be proud of but Shelby county and the whole State.

This is regular fall weather. Everything has settled down to everyday business since the smallpox scare has subsided.

The S. P. L. League meets Friday; all invited.

Hardy Nelson came up from Columbiana Friday with a good load of wheat.

Martin Fowler, of Harpersville, was in town Sunday.

Misses Rosa and Nancy Wallace were welcome visitors Sunday.

Miss Katie Bradley and her aunt, Mrs. Whitman, of Marion, spent Sunday in town.

Wilsonville will send a good delegation to the soldiers' reunion next Thursday and Friday.

H. L. Sanders and family returned Saturday from a visit to Calera relatives.

From now hence we expect to confine ourselves strictly to news, realizing the virtue in the old maxim, "Brevity is the soul of wit."

Rev. J. M. McCord, of Blocton, filled his Saturday and Sunday appointments, announcing that Dr. Teague would fill his appointment two weeks hence.

Misses Georgia and Pernie Pope returned Tuesday from a delightful visit to Fayetteville. They were accompanied by J. J. Pope and family.

Rev. S. J. Parish will deliver a temperance lecture at the Methodist church Sunday night.

Oscar McGowen is visiting relatives in Talladega this week.

Will McEwen is attending the Four Mile summer school.

Miss Mary Bolin is at home from a two weeks visit to her sister, Mrs. Frank Wilby, of Atlanta.

The post-office is to be moved into new and more convenient quarters soon.

Mr. Editor, you had no cause to apologize for the last week's issue of THE CHRONICLE, save its delay.

Will Farr and family took the train here Sunday for their home in Bessemer.

Mayor Weldon and his staunch adherents met last Wednesday and elected the following teachers for the free school: Professor Sox, of Hackneyville, as principal and Miss Bessie Cockrell, of Bessemer, as first assistant. The remaining faculty is to be elected later. Many applied but few were chosen.

W. J. Parker's infant babe died Saturday night, and was buried here Sunday afternoon.

PAR.

Sterrett Stirrings.

G. H. Green, of Woodlawn, paid R. J. Byer's family a flying visit Sunday.

Refreshing rains have fallen here during the past week, doing much good to the growing crops.

Several of our young people attended divine services at Ebenezer church Sunday.

J. W. Jarrett spent three or four days of last week at Woodlawn, visiting his brother, J. C. Jarrett, who is very sick with typhoid fever.

Sterrett and Cresswell boys will cross bats Saturday on the latter's grounds. Wonder who it will be that can "play mumblepeg" after this game?

Miss Flora and Master Avery Goodwin, of Oxmoor, are attending our progressing school.

Miss Emma Gambrell, of Kelly's Creek, is visiting the family of R. M. Hollis.

M. U. Falkner and G. T. Gill will ship a car of stoneware to Troy this week.

C. H. Bradshaw and J. M. Hartsfield are peddling a car of stoneware in the country surrounding Dadeville.

Mrs. G. M. Billbre, of Vincent, J. H. Falkner, of Sylacauga, and J. S. Falkner, of Columbiana, visited their mother, who is in a bad state of health, last week.

A series of meetings is to begin here on the fourth Sunday. We hope the pastor will have such assistance from visiting ministers and the church as to cause us to have a glorious revival.

DIXIE.

Calera Cuffings.

Judge Campbell has returned from a visit of several days to Montgomery.

Mr. Oscar Pilgreen is with Jasper Holcomb as salesman.

Quite a number of old veterans anticipate attending the reunion at your city on Thursday and Friday.

Gardens and truck patches are looking fine since the late rains.

Calera's new school boom is now making rapid strides for a first-class free school in this city.

Mr. F. Onderdonk was called away from his position here as clerk in the express office, on Monday last, to a temporary run on the south end of the L. & N.

Mrs. Onderdonk is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Beanland, at Talladega Springs.

Our new mayor is enforcing the laws of the city without fear or partiality. Mayor Pratt is truly the right man in the right place.

Commissioner Powers, of Pelham, spent a few hours in the city Monday.

Professor Slaton, of Jemison, was a visitor to the city this week. He is an educator of ability and has been doing excellent work in the educational line in the State for several years.

Died at his home in this place, on Monday morning last at 11 o'clock, after an illness of about ten days, Mr. James Lindsay, aged about 44 years. The deceased had been in delicate health for several years past, but his condition had not been such as to cause any apprehension. He was attacked a little more than a week ago with something like slow fever, but after a few days the fever was arrested but left him in a weak and prostrated condition, from which he never rallied. He was a quiet, peaceable, law-abiding citizen, a good neighbor, a fond husband, and an indulgent father. He leaves a widow and several small children to mourn his loss.

Attention: Military Company!

A meeting is hereby called for Saturday evening at 8:30 in court-house of the new military company, for the purpose of taking steps to perfect its organization. Forty-one good men have already signed and others are solicited. COMMITTEE.

Vandiver Locals.

We have had fine rains, and crops are looking fine.

J. L. Vandiver, Esq., was right sick a few days of last week. We are glad to see him out again.

Mr. Baler Isbell has been down for some time with fever and chills. We hope that he will soon recover.

Messrs. G. S. Brasher and A. Y. Brasher has each purchased a nice top buggy. Guess somebody will ride high.

Mr. Paul Rich, who has been out in Mississippi for some time working on the new railroad, is on a visit to his family here now. Will return Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Lela Kendrick returned Saturday from a week's visit to friends at Irondale, Ala.

A. C. Wilder went to Vincent Sunday.

Mr. John McMinis, sr., is having lumber hauled to put up a new dwelling house here. That is what we all need, good houses to live in.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

The National Republican League convention opened at Detroit, Mich., on the 13th. Not many of the noted party leaders were present. President Woodmansee delivered an address and Webster Davis, of the interior department, made a speech.

MAXIMO GOMEZ has changed radically his plan of campaign in Cuba. A letter from him was received in Washington on the 14th. He tells that it is his purpose to force a crisis as speedily as possible, and intimates that he regards some quick, hard blows in the vicinity of Havana as vital to the cause.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY has issued an order suspending the operation of ex-President Cleveland's order consolidating the pension agencies of the country and reducing their number from 18 to nine.

GENERAL MASTER WORKMAN SOVEREIGN, of the Knights of Labor, will organize 1,000 new assemblies in Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. The membership will be limited to wage earners who are advocates of free silver. The purpose is to organize industrial classes for effective work in future campaigns. It was stated that instructions had been sent to Adm. Beardslee to lift the American flag over the Hawaiian islands at the first moment that Japan takes any action which clearly indicates her intention of attempting to secure possession.

A RECENT dispatch from Paris said that the governments of Spain and Japan have arranged an offensive alliance against the United States. The terms of understanding, which is for the mutual protection of Cuba and Hawaii, provided that, in the event of an active aggressive movement on the part of the United States tending toward interference in Cuban affairs or persistence in the annexation of the Hawaiian islands, both Spain and Japan shall declare war simultaneously against the United States.

A LONDON dispatch on the 13th stated that the United States commissioners had been successful and that an international conference will be summoned, probably to meet in the United States, and Great Britain would participate. All the delegates will be uninstructed in regard to the ratio, although France favors 15 to 1.

The Transmississippi congress was called to order at Salt Lake City on the 15th. W. J. Bryan, the president, was greeted with enthusiasm when he took the chair.

It was stated on reliable authority that the powers had fixed the indemnity to be paid to Turkey by Greece at $4,000,000, and had accepted a compromise giving Turkey a more liberal line of frontier.

It was said that the nomination of Terrence V. Powderly, formerly grand master workman of the Knights of Labor, for commissioner-general of immigration, would soon be sent in to the senate.

It was stated positively that Representative McMillin will be appointed to succeed Mr. Harris in the United States senate. This, it was said, had been definitely determined upon among the leaders in Tennessee and there was a general acceptance of the situation.

A STRONG disposition on the part of many subordinate leaders in the insurgent army to end the war by the acceptance of autonomy was reported at Washington from Cuba. Gen. Gomez, personally, clings to the hope of independence, but he is almost alone.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Empire state express on the New York Central broke the world's record on the 16th by making the distance between Syracuse and Buffalo, 148.8 miles, in 137 minutes.

A NEGRO named Terrell was taken from the court room at Montgomery, Ala., and lynched by a mob for assaulting a woman and then fatally burning her and her babe.

WITHIN the next 30 days Guthrie, Oklahoma City and El Reno, Ok., will be connected by long distance telephone lines. The lines will be extended within the near future to connect with the Kansas system, centering in Wichita.

THERE were 247 business failures throughout the United States reported by Bradstreet's commercial agency for the week ended the 16th, against 255 for the corresponding week last year.

JIM JEFFRIES, of California, and Gus Ruhlin, of Ohio, fought a 20-round bout at San Francisco on the 16th. Both men are remarkable for their size and muscular development. Jeffries is a man about 23 years old, 6½ feet in height and is in fine condition at 212 pounds. Ruhlin, the Ohio giant, tops the Californian just one inch and weighs in condition 200 pounds. The pace was terrific for men of their size and weight from the start. The referee declared the fight a draw.

Mrs. EMMA SYMONDS, the wife of an engine fitter at London, Eng., cut the throats of her four children and then her own. Mrs. Symonds had been drinking heavily since the jubilee.

NEAR West Point, Tenn., a few days ago Miss Rose Williams was found brutally murdered in the woods near her home. Anthony Williams, who assaulted her, was captured near Pruitt, and on the night of the 15th he expired his crime in the streets of West Point in the presence of 500 people. He was riddled with bullets and his body burned to ashes. Before a shot was fired the negro was knocked down and stamped to death.

POSTMASTER GORDON, of Chicago, has authority from Washington to create a new rank among letter-carriers—that of sergeant. A three months' trial of the system will be given in Chicago, and if it proves successful it will probably be inaugurated in other cities and become a permanent part of the carrier system.

The seventh international convention of the Baptist Young People's union of America began at Chattanooga, Tenn., on the 15th with about 4,000 delegates present, 900 being from foreign countries.

THE MINERS' STRIKE.

May Take a Month to Adopt True Uniformity Plan.

Arbitration Commission of the Five States Effects a Permanent Organization—Situation Reviewed by President Rathford.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 17.—True uniformity may eventually win in the Pittsburgh mining district through the efforts of the peace commissioners, but it will take time. It is expected that it will require several weeks, perhaps a month, to secure the signatures of the operators to the proposition, and Gen. Little has advised that no time limit be put on the movement, as at the former attempt.

The position of the miners' officials in this new phase of the strike movement is queer. M. D. Rathford, the national president will have nothing to do with it. President Dolan and Secretary Warner have cut loose from their national executive in the movement and propose to give it their hearty support.

Permanent Board Formed.

The arbitration commissioners of the five states, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania, have formed a permanent board, with the object of urging the uniformity plan with all operators. Gen. Little, of Ohio, was made president, and B. Frank Schmidt, of Indiana, secretary.

Coal took another tumble in price Friday. It sold for $1.25 at the mine, a drop of 25 cents from the day previous. A tour among the operators demonstrated that there was plenty of coal on hand.

Situation Reviewed.

Columbus, O., July 16.—President Rathford and Secretary Peace have issued an official bulletin, No. 1, to the miners, it being a review of the situation. The bulletin says:

"Our fight for living wages now covers in whole or in part eight states of the union. It is a general suspension, and no local settlements will be authorized or recognized. The central field, which the eighth day of our suspension brings with it greater assurance of ultimate victory than any previous day. Our forces are increasing every hour, our determination is unflinching and our actions are law-abiding in every particular. The states and number of miners involved are as follows: 'Western Pennsylvania'—July 20,000 miners have joined us for living wages, which makes suspension almost unanimous every mine in the district. Work will continue in the central field, but steps will be taken in a few days looking to a suspension, which it is believed will be successful."

"Ohio.—Twenty-eight thousand miners have joined their tools in their demand for living wages, making the suspension general in the central field, but steps will be taken in a few days looking to a suspension, which it is believed will be successful."

"Indiana.—Advices report every mine and every miner in this state suspended. Eight thousand have joined the march for living wages."

"Illinois.—Reports from this state are to the effect that suspension is practically general and that miners are determined to continue the march until living wages are secured."

"West Virginia.—About 3,000 miners have joined the movement. Reports from various sections of the state confirm the belief that miners will suspend. Eight organizers have left this city for West Virginia. Supply of coal from that field will be cut off in a very few days."

"Kentucky and Tennessee.—About 4,000 miners have suspended; others may be expected to follow."

"Kansas.—Miners are all at work, but will hold a convention on Saturday. It is expected that they will also suspend."

"Alabama.—Reports indicate that 3,000 miners will have suspended. Convention to-day. Nothing further learned of their action."

"The supply of coal is fast becoming exhausted at the various distributing points. Railroads are confiscating shipments, cities are almost without supply; in fact, a coal famine is near at hand."

De Armit's Plan.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 15.—The cheering announcement is made that W. P. De Armit, president of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, whose 1,200 men have been constantly at work, and without whose assistance the success of the movement would have been jeopardized, has agreed to join with the other operators in a plan for the settlement of the strike on a true uniformity basis.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 15.—The prospect for a settlement of the great miners' strike is brighter than at any time since the struggle began, and both sides are almost ready to count on a resumption of work in the near future.

Wednesday afternoon the joint arbitration committee called upon Mr. De Armit and submitted their plan, to which he agreed. Then the commission went to the miners' officials, and the proposition also met their approval.

Under the terms of the agreement Mr. De Armit agrees to sign a contract which will bring about a condition of true uniformity in the Pittsburgh district, according to the plan formulated, but which failed, 18 months ago. The contract provides that there shall be no company stores, honest weight, fair screens and the removal of other evils long complained of by the miners. He will sign such a contract provided 95 per cent. of the operators in the Pittsburgh district become parties to it.

Springfield, Ill., July 15.—The miners of Hillsboro, Montgomery county, 150 in number, went out Wednesday, not for sympathy, but for higher wages.

Cincinnati, July 14.—A Times-Star special from Bellaire, O., says: The miners in Schick's mines on the Baltimore & Ohio road were on Tuesday persuaded to stop mining, and with the closing of these mines all the mines in eastern Ohio will be closed.

Pilgrims to Toronto.

Chicago, July 15.—Trains from Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois brought nearly 5,000 Epworth league delegates to the city Wednesday, who departed later in the evening for Toronto, Canada, the seat of the Epworth league convention, the sessions of which began Thursday.

THE WASHINGTON BUDGET.

Doings in the Legislative Branch of the Government.

Washington, July 15.—The conferees on the tariff bill found themselves Wednesday apparently farther apart than they were at the beginning of the conference. From all that can be learned there has been a general recession from the partial agreement made on the more important articles until sugar, wool, hides, etc., can be definitely fixed. Sugar is still the principal contention. Both sides looked weary and troubled. The outlook for a final agreement was said to be at a great distance.

The senate has passed the deficiency appropriation bill with amendments restricting the cost of armor plate to $300 per ton and directing the secretary of the navy to investigate as to the establishment of a government armor factory and to report to the next session of congress.

The house nonconcurred in the senate amendments to the deficiency appropriation bill and a conference committee was appointed.

The senate committee on foreign relations has agreed to report a resolution for the ratification of the Hawaiian annexation treaty without amendment.

The senate has confirmed Louis Lange, Jr., of Illinois, to be consul at Bremen, Germany.

Washington, July 16.—The joint resolution accepting the invitation of France to participate in the Paris exhibition of 1900 has been passed by the senate.

Washington, July 17.—The only report obtainable from the conference on the tariff bill Friday was to the effect that the representatives of the two houses are still at odds on the sugar schedule, and that while there are still many matters of minor importance undetermined, the sugar question is the only obstacle in the way of speedy settlement.

The house on Friday agreed to the partial conference report on the general deficiency bill and then concurred in the senate amendment fixing the limit of cost of armor plate for the three battleships, now building, at $300 per ton.

BROKE ITS BANKS.

Big Reservoir in the Fishkill Mountains Bursts.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 15.—The two large reservoirs in the Fishkill mountains which supplied water to the towns of Matteawan and Fishkill burst their walls at two o'clock Wednesday morning, and the water that was released swept through the Dutchess valley, causing ruin and death. Five bodies have been taken from the wreckage, left in the wake of the flood, and there are known to be two, and probably three more, lying somewhere beneath the piled debris, which is all that remains of three houses that were swept away by the torrent.

TWO CITIES UNITED.

The Big Bridge Between Superior and Duluth Is Opened.

West Superior, Wis., July 14.—The Superior-Duluth drawbridge, which is the only structure for general use between the two cities, has been formally opened for traffic with appropriate ceremonies. Representatives from both cities and from St. Paul joined to make the exercises complete. Addresses were made by Mayor Trueson, of Duluth; Mayor Starkweather, of Superior, and ex-Gov. W. R. Merriam, of St. Paul.

HONORS FATHER MARQUETTE.

His Namesake City Unveils a Statue in His Memory.

Marquette, Mich., July 16.—Father Marquette's namesake city held a great celebration at the unveiling of the bronze monument of the explorer and priest whose name it bears. A feature of the grand parade was a band of 30 Indians on horseback, dressed in feathers and war paint. The band was augmented by as many more men and boys painted to represent Indians. The exercises were held on a platform built at the foot of the statue.

Into the Water.

Eagle Lake, Ind., July 13.—An accident that cast a gloom over Winona pleasure seekers for many days occurred here at 6:30 Monday evening. A sailboat carrying five young people capsized in the middle of Eagle lake in a high wind. The drowned are Bertha, aged 15, daughter of Edward F. Yarnell, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Georgia, aged 15, youngest daughter of Prof. John M. Coulter, of Chicago university.

Reports on Ship Canal.

Washington, July 14.—Maj. Symons has made a report to the chief of engineers of the army on the preliminary examination into the subject of a ship canal from the great lakes to the navigable waters of the Hudson river, and it has been submitted to the secretary of war. The report, which is said to be full of interesting information, will not be made public until it is submitted to congress.

Banks Consolidate.

Peoria, Ill., July 14.—The consolidation of the Bank of Commerce, a state institution with a capital of $200,000, with the Merchants' national bank was announced Tuesday morning. This reduces the number of banks in Peoria from 13 to 12.

Dr. Angell Sails.

Washington, July 17.—Dr. Angell, United States minister to Turkey, sailed from New York Saturday without coming to Washington. He probably will meet Mr. Terrell, the retiring minister to Turkey, in Paris for consultation.

Spaulding Again Acquitted.

Chicago, July 17.—For the second time within two months a jury in the criminal court Friday afternoon found Charles W. Spaulding, ex-treasurer of the University of Illinois, not guilty of embezzling endowment funds of the institution.

BAPTISTS MEET.

Young People's Convention Opened at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 16.—The seventh international convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America began in this city Thursday morning, with about 4,000 delegates and some of the most prominent Baptist leaders in the country present.

The convention was opened with a short song service, led by Dr. L. J. Henson, of Fort Wayne, Ind., formerly secretary of the board of managers. At the close of the song service Dr. Henson read the Forty-sixth Psalm and delivered a fervent invocation, after which President Chapman arose to deliver the opening address.

As President Chapman walked to the front of the platform he was greeted by a great volume of applause.

The afternoon session was presided over by F. L. Fowke, of Ossawa, Ont., vice president of the B. Y. P. U. A. After a 15-minute praise service the reports of officers were read and a number of addresses were delivered. At the evening session President Chapman delivered his annual address, which covered the work of the past year in a very complete manner.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 17.—The principal business transacted at the meeting of the Baptist Young People Friday morning was the election of officers. The head officers remain the same, while the remaining ones are changed to a certain extent. The officers elected are:

President—John H. Chapman, Chicago. Vice president—Rev. Curtis Lee Laws, Baltimore; Rev. George B. Vosburg, Denver, Cal.; Rev. J. H. MacDonald, Amherst, N. H.

Recording secretary—Rev. H. W. Reed, La Crosse, Wis. Treasurer—Frank Moody, Milwaukee, Wis.

LOOKS BRIGHT.

Dun Says Every Feature of Business Outlook Is Encouraging.

New York, July 17.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say: "Excepting the great coal miners' strike, which may terminate at any time, there is scarcely a feature of the business outlook which is not encouraging. The season considered. Crop prospects have been improved by needed rain in some regions and foreign advances continue to promise a large demand in woolens, while the movement of freight, mainly iron ore, through the Sault Ste. Marie canal is the largest in its history. With money markets untroubled, there is nothing in sight to hinder rapid improvement when uncertainty about legislation has been removed."

"The advance in wheat to 8½ cents was not due to the government estimate, which was followed by a decline, but to foreign advances and considerable buying for export. Demand is already felt from Australia, Brazil and even Argentina, while the promise for European crops is not considered bright. The disposition of farmers to keep back wheat for higher prices may affect the outward movement."

LOOKS LIKE A BLUFF.

Startling Bit of News Telegraphed from Paris.

London, July 16.—A dispatch from Paris to a news agency here says that inquiry at an American embassy there has elicited a confirmation of the rumor that the governments of Spain and Japan have arranged an offensive alliance against the United States. The understanding is for the mutual protection of Cuba and Hawaii.

Washington, July 16.—Little credence is placed in official circles here in the statement that the Spanish and the Japanese governments have entered into an offensive alliance against the United States for the mutual protection of Cuba and Hawaii. Indeed, so far as could be learned no intimation of such an agreement has reached the state department.

More Fighting in Cuba.

Havana, July 14.—According to official reports, Col. Almendral has had an engagement in the Pozo mountains, province of Mantanzas, with an insurgent band, compelling them to retire, leaving 15 of their number dead upon the field. The Spanish lost four killed and nine wounded. On the same authority it is stated that the Baleares battalion, in the province of Pinar del Rio, have killed 11 insurgents.

Scale Agreed Upon.

Milwaukee, July 15.—The announcement is made that the Illinois Steel company has presented a special scale for the operation of the new plate mill at Bay View, and it has been agreed upon by the men. The new mill will therefore start up Thursday night or Friday morning. This will give employment to about 100 men. There are now about 75 men at work at the blast furnaces, leaving nearly 800 men still out of work.

Death of a Composer.

Chicago, July 14.—H. M. Higgins, composer and first music publisher of Chicago, died at San Diego, Cal., Tuesday. Mr. Higgins was the publisher of the song, "Sweet By and By." "Lorena" and many of the early popular songs were brought out by him and he was also the composer of many songs. He was 77 years old.

Struck by Lightning.

Toledo, O., July 15.—A special from Bradner, O., says: Lightning struck a 35,000-barrel oil tank here Wednesday afternoon, igniting the fluid, which burned furiously for several hours. While the oil was burning at the top of the tank about 4,000 barrels were saved.

Gov. Drake Hurt.

Des Moines, Ia., July 15.—Gov. Drake slipped and fell on the sidewalk while walking to the capitol and reopened an old army wound that has given him trouble for several years. He is confined to his room, but does not anticipate any serious trouble from the injury.

Out of Jail.

London, July 16.—Lady Selina Scott, mother-in-law of Lord Russell, who in January last was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment for criminally libelling him, has been released from Malloway jail.

EXTORTION AND ROBBERY.

The Policy That Underlies the Dingley Bill.

The Dingley bill is not a revenue but a protective measure. The policy underlying it is the robbery and extortion of one class of people, or one section of the country, for the benefit of another. The protection policy is one which has built up an army of sappers and miners whose only purpose is to loot the country and build up huge fortunes at the expense of the people. It is destructive of public honor and of personal patriotism, and leads to discontent with government and distrust between individuals.

A measure conceived as the Dingley bill has been could not fail to receive the condemnation of the democratic senators. It will not do for republicans to say that democrats are only seeking to enmesh the administration. They are fully aware of the necessity of revenue raising, and argue that the needs of the government should be liberally met, but here the agreement ends, for while the republicans want to build up individuals and sections at the expense of the others, the democrats met it with: "All we have for the government's actual needs, but not one cent for robbery!"

In the formation of a bill to raise such a large revenue as is required, there will be those on hand who will seek to make the benefits either personal or sectional. In the taxation of imports thus is built up a margin in favor of local dealers in such articles. It is in handling this feature that the difficulty of tariff making comes in, and it is right here that the democratic principle of even justice stands for the people, while the republican principle of protection stands for treasury looters and the trusts and monopolies which have fattened upon the nation.

It is the duty of democrats, everywhere and at all times, to fight favoritism, and to see that government is administered for all alike—making due recognition of all sections, and removing mere personalism from consideration. The principle of protection itself is an abomination, and should not be permitted to become a fixture in the platform of any party. It should be utterly condemned and driven out of discussion, so that all parties would be committed to raising from the people only that amount which is necessary to meet the expenditures of the government, economically administered.

The democratic party has all along upheld the policy of just taxation and economical government—a policy which has been warmly upheld by the constitution, and adherence to which calls for as stubborn a resistance to the McKinleyism of 1890.

The Dingley bill is built on protection, and not on revenue lines; and, for that reason, it should meet, when on its passage, the earnest opposition of the democratic senators, who are right in endeavoring to amend it in order to reduce its objectionable features to a minimum; but who, when it becomes apparent that it is impossible to pass a revenue rather than a protection measure, should vote to kill the whole bill.

The democratic senators have taken the right course in their treatment of the tariff bill, and in permitting it to come to a vote without unnecessary delay. The bill will be passed by republican votes over the protest of the democratic senators, and the republicans will be responsible for the consequences. In the meantime the democrats may be enabled to insert a few redeeming features in the bill, but nobody expects that they will be enabled to revise it to a degree which will make it anything else than a protection monopoly, constructed without regard to revenue, and as such deserving the condemnation of all democrats.—Atlanta Chronicle.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

The foreign policy of the administration is not one that he who runs may read.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

President McKinley may find it necessary to negotiate an annexation treaty with Ohio after the next election.—St. Louis Republic.

If the present feeling of disgust among republicans continues—and there is no prospect of its stoppage—Boss Hanna will have to invest the next campaign funds in mules and chains to drag republican voters to the polls.—St. Louis Republic.

Mr. Bryan said at Cleveland that measured by fulfillment, the gold advocates have never made a prophecy that has ever come true. These prophecies, we may say, were only made to deceive and get votes. Mammon never did deal in truth. The father of lies leads in all such cases.—Illinois State Register.

The utter failure of the republican party to fulfill the promises of revived prosperity which its spokesmen made so glibly during the campaign has bred a discontent among the voters of Iowa who supported McKinley which may not improbably result in overturning the majority of 65,000 given by the state to the republican presidential ticket in 1896.—N. Y. Journal.

If the republican party be really enamored of the policy of reciprocity forced upon it in 1890 by Secretary Blaine there is now an excellent opportunity to put it into practice. The Japanese fairly insist upon trading with us upon terms of reciprocal advantage, and all the other countries of this continent hold out both hands to us in prayerful entreaty.—Philadelphia Record.

When ardent protectionists send memorials to congress praying for the removal of the "inequalities of the present protective system" we may well believe that the protective system is being undermined. If the system of no protection were just there would be no occasion to correct its inequalities. But if it were possible to correct all the inequalities of the present system, it would be a dollar in tribute to protection would get it back again, and he might as well have kept it in the first place and saved the bother and expense of transferring it from his own pocket and getting it back there again. So it is evident that absolute justice is impossible.—Cleveland Observer.

MCKINLEY PROSPERITY.

More Burdens and Less Wages for the People.

We are told as an evidence of the prosperity which it is claimed has come upon the country that there is money and to spare in the vaults of the national exchequer. Such money as is there is taken from the pockets of the people, who need it far more than the government needs it, but there is a certain class of people who assume that the government is a rich benefactor totally apart from the people, and they fancy that because in their eagerness to prevent the harsher burdens of taxation proposed by the Dingley bill citizens of the United States have hastened to withdraw imported goods from warehouses and to fill their stores with such as they need, and thereby accumulated duties in the treasury, the fact is evidence of prosperity. There are persons who look to the gold reserve as a sort of fetish and to a large treasury balance as not only temporal but also eternal salvation.

What prosperity is there in the very significant fact that many good banks in Chicago passed their dividend in July and that others reduced the amount so paid? The management by these bankers is prudent, but it is not a manifestation of prosperity. Prosperity does not show itself in that way. Prosperity does not shorten sail.

Nor is prosperity seen in the fact that a great number of coal miners throughout the United States have concluded to walk out rather than be subjected to the further reductions and hardships by mine owners who enjoy a protective tariff on bituminous coal. There is no prosperity in the fact that 150,000 workmen have quit, while unnumbered thousands have no opportunity for work.

One may speculate if he choose upon the time when prosperity will present itself, but whose asserts that it is here now is stupid. When prosperity comes the people who need it greatly will know that it is here. There need come no ghost from the grave of the treasury department to tell us that prosperity has arrived. Prosperity is not a thing that can be made by governments any more than by individuals, though both may unmake it by foolish intervention, by rapine, by idleness, by living on the fruits of other people's toil as governments do and do properly when they confine themselves strictly to the discharge of an ascertained function of government, and improperly, disastrously, when they assume that government is some great almoner which, by exacting tribute from the people for the benefit of a protected class, may make prosperity. They make prosperity for the protected class, but what of the infinite number of the unprotected?

Republican leaders are very anxious to impress upon the people that prosperity has arrived. The people will believe it when they see it. They have had the same old assurance from these same old party leaders so often and so untruthful that they are through with them. Prosperity by the election of McKinley; prosperity by the inauguration of McKinley; prosperity by the appointment of Reid as envoy to the queen; prosperity as the result of McKinley's visit to the exposition at Nashville; prosperity because the secretary of the treasury is certain that it is here; lo! here is prosperity and there prosperity, but the only visible evidence of prosperity consists in passing dividends and in locking out labor.—Chicago Chronicle.

FAVORS THE RICH.

The Tariff Which Republicans Would Force Upon the People.

The principle of the proposed new robber tariff law—if it is proper to dignify a fraudulent assault upon the pockets of the poor for the benefit of trusts and other monopolies with the assumption that there is any principle in it—is to impose according to the specific instead of the ad valorem system. That is the duties, instead of being fixed at a certain per cent. of the value of the dutiable goods, are to be fixed at so much per pound, or yard, or gallon, etc. This is upon the plea that frauds upon the custom may be more easily guarded against under the system of specific than under that of ad valorem duties. The plea is doubtless true in a measure, but does not justify or offset the evil of the cruel wrongs imposed upon the plain people by the specific system; and besides it is not made good faith. The real reason for preferring specific duties is the advantage they offer for putting the greater burdens of federal taxation upon poor consumers and letting the rich off easy. For illustration: The cheaper grades of woollens which are bought by the poor and those in moderate circumstances would pay a lower tariff tax per yard under the ad valorem system than the dearer grades which are bought by the rich; but under the specific system both grades would be taxed at the same rate per yard. Specific duties are in harmony with the whole tariff system of discrimination in favor of the rich, and it is entirely proper that this system should characterize the new tariff measure.—Illinois State Register.

THE SOLE GUIDE TO THIS LEGISLATION.

The sole guide to this legislation is the highest tribute possible to trusts and protected interests, against the welfare and rights of the people. Adequate revenue is totally disregarded and equality of burden absolutely ignored. The much vaunted policy of aid to infant industries has been abandoned and protection is no longer clothed in decent apparel; it is tribute purely.—Manchester (N. H.) Union.

The conference committee agreed on the tariff bill, the House agreed to the report, and the Senate is considering it. There is talk of delay in the latter body, but doubtless the bill will become a law before the week is over.

LITTLE JOE WHEELER makes a speech on armor plate and inserts five or six pages of tables on the tariff bill. He is like the preacher who writes his sermon and then gives a subject to fit the occasion. You have to read his speeches to find out what he is talking about.

MR. BARRETT, of Atlanta, will run the State-Herald in the future. It is to be hoped he will receive support enough to give a good paper. If Alabama had one good daily newspaper she could keep in view of the procession, at least. However, it takes good support to make a good paper.

From 1803 to 1873 the ratio of silver to gold on the London market varied only from 15.191, the lowest, in 1801, to 16.251, the highest, in 1813, a history of three-fourths of a century showing the natural ratio under equal conditions, and the parity maintained by free coinage in France. Free coinage in the United States would re-establish this ratio and maintain this parity. History does not deal in theories, but in indisputable facts.

COTTON LIES, which were placed on the free list by the Senate, were restored to the dutiable list by the conference committee. The conference committee also restored raw cotton to the free list. There is to be no protection for the farmer. The Republican party has never been known to do anything in the interest of the farmer, and yet some of our farmers voted for McKinley and a Republican Congressman. This the return they get for it.

THE PRESS is now calling Senator Gorman, of Maryland, a "sound money silverite." The Senator does not know exactly where he is "at" on the money question, neither does the country.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Senator Gorman, like every other good Democrat, when his party had spoken on the first convenient occasion fell into line, and like every good Democrat, he will be found there all the time. The country always knows where to find Senator Gorman, in the front rank of the party that has no prefixes nor affixes.

THE POPULISTS are trying to back down on the silver question. This is due to the fact that since the Democratic party has declared itself for silver many of the rank and file of the Populists will return to the party of the people, and the Populist leaders will soon have no followers. All the principles of the Populists were borrowed from one of the two old parties, with a few socialistic attachments, and have been worked for personal advancement by the leaders. Their followers will not be hoodwinked much longer, and they will have to stand alone or desert their so-called principles or go to the Republicans.

BUT WILL THE CHRONICLE be kind enough to inform us what Senator Morgan's "railroad scheme" is?—Advertiser.

Judging from the amount the Advertiser has to say on this subject, we should think it knew at least what Mr. Morgan's proposition is. However, if it will get a copy of the hearings before the Senate committee it will learn that Senator Morgan's sole intention is to defeat the scheme of Huntington & Co. to realize an immense profit out of their deal with the Government. The proposition of Mr. Cleveland, like all of his official acts, was very much in the interest of the railroad magnates, and if the Advertiser could communicate with some of the Western people directly interested in this road it would learn that Senator Morgan, while not the only man of brains in the country, is regarded by them as the particular council of the people in this important matter. In its blind support of Mr. Cleveland the Advertiser has placed itself in a very ridiculous position, and in its eternal nagging at Senator Morgan it is both ridiculous and ungrateful.

We repeat that there seems to us no objection to laying aside the financial question next year and running the campaign on State issues. There is no danger that the silver cause will lag, and there is much necessity for a constitutional convention. For one we are not afraid that the gold bugs will capture the State, nor is it a sign of weakness on our part, but a firm desire to see the issues favorable to the State's best interests prevail. In the Congressional campaigns the silver fight can and will be successfully waged, and every district will send a silver Representative to Congress; but let us have a legislature that will give us a new constitution to meet the necessities of changed conditions. We want better educational facilities, better election laws, many things better than the present, and we want the so-called "gold-bugs" to help us get them. Then if they feel like bolting off again in the Congressional campaigns, they will be but sealing their own removal from the party. The principle of free silver coinage is too strong for any of its friends to be afraid to lay it aside for local issues for a time. This is a matter of candid judgment, and is not advanced in any spirit of conciliation for those who have deserted the party, but only because we regard a State campaign at this time peculiarly adapted to these questions of local importance, which have no bearing upon national affairs.

WELL, LET'S SEE.

Replying to an editorial in THE CHRONICLE relative to Ex-Congressman Aldrich, the People's Advocate says:

Well, let's see. He showed up the ballot thieves in Dallas. That, of itself, is enough to recommend him to all honest men in the district. He introduced a bill to increase the circulating medium. He introduced a bill for a government building at Talladega. He secured the passage of a bill appropriating $25,000 acres of land to the Industrial School at Montevallo. In short, he has done more for the people of his district during his short term than the Democrats have done for twenty years.

"He showed up the ballot thieves of Dallas." And the testimony shows up some rather bad things on Mr. Aldrich, chief among which is the fraud perpetrated by his managers at Montevallo, and his dismissal from employment of men who voted against him.

He introduced a couple of bills. There are about ten thousand bills introduced in the House every session that even the authors never look after again.

"He secured the passage of a bill donating 25,000 acres of land to the Girls' Industrial School." This is news, indeed; news that the trustees will be pleased to hear. The fact is no such thing has been done. All that has been done in this matter was done by Democrats. The bill was introduced by Mr. Robbins, a favorable report made by Mr. Underwood, and there it stopped. The appropriation was passed through the Senate by the efforts of Senator Morgan, went over to the House, and the only effort Mr. Aldrich ever made was to call it up on a day when he knew a pension bill had the right of way, and a Republican promptly objected. Mr. Aldrich never intended nor tried to do anything until after he lost all his influence with Speaker Reed on account of having betrayed him at the Calera convention.

This assertion that he has secured the passage of this bill is on a par with the news he had sent out that he had secured a public building for Talladega when he had not even secured a favorable report therefor. If the Advocate believes in honest politics it will correct this statement, which is entirely erroneous.

We have kept ourselves thoroughly informed as to Mr. Aldrich's course, and are prepared to assert that he has done absolutely nothing of a public nature, except to secure an American register for a coal barge at Mobile. He deserted Reed and promised to support Morton in order to secure his seat in the last Congress, a fact which may rise up before him in this contest. He preached free silver to Populists and gold to Republicans, and he stands to-day despised by Reed, unrecognized by the administration, and with no standing among the Populists except in his own district, where he bought his nomination and the votes which he claims elected him.

Fortunately there is a record kept of all public men's actions, and while he was showing up the ballot thieves of Dallas they were collecting a little information. Our brother of the Advocate will find that we are not "so much in the dark" as he might suppose.

REUNION.

There are many beautiful thoughts that cluster around the word "reunion." Whether it be of families, of friends, or of schoolmates, there are memories that thrill, regrets that bring tears, hopes that buoy. In a soldier's reunion there are the recollections of deeds that make the heart swell with pride, memories of pathetic scenes that dim the eyes after the lapse of years, hopes of future meetings that lighten the burdens of the dreary life, vacant places in the ranks that recall the whiz of a bullet and the fall of a noble comrade. And then to the onlooker there are the empty sleeve, the wooden leg, the faltering step, the bent form that bear evidence of the weary march and the din of battle that made war a reality. It is fitting that the old veterans should meet and renew, under the "stars and stripes," the friendships they formed under the "stars and bars." They can think, too, with satisfaction that after all it was not a lost cause for which they buried their comrades and spent the better part of their manhood. The home rule for which they fought is theirs after many years, and many of those who faced them on the field have joined their hands in the perpetuity of the principles over which they shed each other's blood. The ballot is working out more surely the problems which the sword failed to solve, and the future will wipe away all the blood stains with the little slips of paper that control the destiny of the nation. Let the memories be kept fresh at each succeeding reunion and the heritage left to the heirs with pride.

MCKINLEY'S prosperity producer, the Dingley tariff, is now virtually a law, and still the employers refuse to give the advance of wages they promised in the event of his election. Maybe the workman will learn sometime that he is selling his birthright for less than a mess of pottage when he votes for the Republican party.

SENATOR McENERY, of Louisiana, is one of those so-called Democrats who think that their local interests compel them to vote for a Republican tariff. We are sorry for the people he is misrepresenting.

A big cotton mill in Salem, Mass., has shut down and 2,000 employees are out of work. The dawn of prosperity is a rather cloudy one.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

It will be the purpose of this column to interest its lady readers, and we shall endeavor to discuss to the best of our ability any subject, either political, religious, or domestic, and we solicit correspondence from the ladies, either young or old, in the way of local news items or anything deemed of interest to discuss.

We are at a loss to know just what subjects to discuss that will best please and interest the readers in our quiet surroundings. We hardly think you wish to hear much said on politics and the late tariff bill, and everyone knows the prevailing styles in dress and has been busy for weeks cutting down large sleeves and donning old bell skirts, and we have all worn our fingers out trying to get the exact nich and knot in our gentlemen's cravats. So what shall it be—of the protracted meetings that will soon be in progress in our various vicinities, or of the latest and best opera singers? I dare say it will be most pleasing to touch on all, and whatever it may be we trust you may enter into the discussion with us and send in your communications.

Since our return to Alabama, a few weeks ago, we have been asked by several how we like the bicycle and what we think of bloomers. It is our opinion, based on personal observation and the authority of some of the best medical men in the United States, that bicycling, for ladies as well as for gentlemen, is a most healthful and invigorating exercise. In some instances it adds to, in others it reduces, the flesh, but rarely ever damages or proves detrimental to the health. As to the costume for bicycling, nothing looks worse or more absurd than a long skirt dangling around the feet, impeding progress, and imperiling the safety of the rider. The high gaiters, short skirt, with the bloomer, is decidedly the safest and most modest thing to be worn with the bicycle.

There is nothing of so much importance to the mothers of our country as the training of our small children. The Mothers' Congress, which assembled in its first national convention last winter in Washington, is one of the greatest institutions of this period. This congress is composed of the ablest and most influential women of our country, and its object is purely for the discussion of plans for the advancement, betterment, and improvement of motherhood, childhood, and the training of children until they reach maturity. The meetings of the congress were attended by four to eight thousand people, and greater demonstrations of appreciation were never shown any gathering or convention in the history of the country.

For the training of small children nothing can be conceived of more benefit than the system of kindergarten schools. It is our hope to get enough children together in Columbiana to justify using procuring a good kindergarten teacher, which will in no way interfere with the public school here, as it is only children from 3 to 6 years of age who are required to attend the kindergarten. Parents who would like to join us in this effort will please call and discuss it with us.

We notice in Brann's Iconoclast a severe criticism of Dr. Talma's habitual visions of heaven. There is much of sound logic in Brann's argument, but we think he might be charitable enough to allow the grand old preacher to use figurative expressions without having to encounter such strong criticisms. We attended Dr. Talma's church the past year, and admire him very much; so much that we can not relish such criticisms on his beautiful visions of heaven. That they are pictures from his inexhaustible store of imagination we willingly admit is altogether probable; but, granting this, are not his pictures of heaven calculated to persuade many people to strive to reach so magnificent an abode? We haven't much faith in the dogma and torments of hell being portrayed to our intelligent people as a means of persuading them from a life of sin. We admit the use of policy in the "ministerial trade." It takes various sorts of arguments and policies and pictures and visions of heaven to persuade a sinful world to change even a little bit. We are sure that heaven is preferable to earth or the place below, and any reasonable argument, though it be illustrative or parabolic, is certainly admissible in the ministerial fraternity.

ABOUT a half dozen rapists were lynched in the South the past week, most of them in Alabama. Fortunately trees, ropes, and willing hands are plentiful, and they can be dispatched as fast as they develop.

Non-Residents Notice.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY. In Chancery at Columbiana, Sixth District, Northeastern Chancery division.

T. C. McKeever, complainant, vs. Alabama Iron and Steel Co., et al., defendants.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of J. M. Reynolds, that the defendants, to-wit: Justin S. Morrill, who resides in the state of Vermont, whose place of residence is not better known; Samuel Thomas, who resides in the state of Pennsylvania, but place of residence is not better known; Carrie S. Plumb, who resides in the city of Emporia, in the state of Kansas; M. S. Pomeroy, who resides in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia; Central Trust Company, a corporation under the laws of the state of New Jersey and its principal place of business in the city of New York, N. Y., and that all of said parties are non-residents of the state of Alabama, and further, that in the belief of said affidavit, the Defendants are over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in The Chronicle, a newspaper published in Columbiana, Alabama, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring the said Justin S. Morrill, Samuel Thomas, Carrie S. Plumb, M. S. Pomeroy, and Central Trust Company to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 24th day of August, A. D. 1897, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against them.

Done at office in Columbiana this 8th day of July, A. D. 1897.

LOCAL VIVISCOPE.

Miss Nellie Parker has been quite ill this week.

E. S. Lyman, of Montevallo, was in town Thursday last.

A heavy rain Sunday night caught the church goers.

Rev. Mr. Clark, of Shelby, was in town Monday.

Colonel Pond, of Shelby Springs, is spending the week in town.

Editor Graham, of Calera, was in the city on Monday last.

Harry Roberts, of Easonville, is visiting relatives in our city.

Mr. E. D. Hall, of the Hall Drug Co., is quite sick this week.

W. S. Cary, of Montevallo, spent Thursday and Friday in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, of Avondale, are visiting relatives at the Central.

W. R. Self, of Hattiesburg, Miss., is on a visit to relatives in this county.

Miss Katie Wilson, of near Calera, was a guest of friends in our city Friday.

Miss Mary Reeves, of Cave Springs, Ga., is a guest of Mrs. James Dykes this week.

Miss Naldo Christian, of Shelby, was the guest of Miss Anna Milner last week.

Mrs. N. Long, of Calera, spent Saturday and Sunday with the family of I. D. Mason.

Mrs. A. E. Jackson and Miss Jane Nabors, of Anniston, are visiting relatives in the city.

Miss Ruby Looney, of Fayetteville, was a guest of Mrs. Johnston Saturday and Sunday.

W. J. Seale and wife, of Childersburg, were among the visitors to the reunion last week.

I. D. Mason left Monday to spend a few days with his father, who is quite sick at Talladega Springs.

Mrs. Sallie Pike returned to her home in Calera Tuesday, after a week's visit to her sister, Mrs. George Vasser.

Miss Agnes Averytt, one of Shelby's most interesting young ladies, was a guest of friends in our city last week.

One or two arrests were made during the reunion for drunkenness, but altogether it was a very orderly crowd.

Rev. Mr. Abernathy, of Montevallo, is assisting in the revival meetings at the Methodist church here this week.

The Methodists are engaged in their revival meeting this week. It is hoped that great good will be accomplished.

Mrs. Ella Bailey, of Calera, is in town attending the bedside of her father, A. H. Weaver, who is quite sick.

Miss Ola Gordon, a charming young lady of Gainesville, was a guest of her cousin, Mrs. Henry Milner, Saturday and Sunday.

The small boys of Shelby played a ball game with Columbiana small boys Friday, resulting in a score of 21 to 8 in favor of the former.

Mrs. John P. Spencer, who is spending the season at Talladega Springs, was at home for a few days this week. Her health is much improved.

An obstreperous negro woman, named Emma Cleveland, was fined $2.50 and costs in the mayor's court Saturday. She is working it out.

The Calera base ball team came up last Thursday, and an interesting game was played with our club. The score was 18 to 6 in favor of Columbiana.

We heard of a few old soldiers who, having faced the enemy's guns, could not face a rumor of smallpox. They missed a good thing on account of a little scare.

At the meeting of the military company Saturday night a committee was appointed to correspond with the adjutant-general as to whether there are any vacancies at present. The requisite number of names have been secured, and if there is an opening we will soon have a good company here.

THE SOLDIERS' REUNION.

Two Days spent Pleasantly by Survivors of the Late War.

Thursday and Friday of last week a reunion of old veterans was held at this place, and though the pre-arranged programme was not entirely carried out, the proceedings were pleasant and interesting to both participant and visitor.

At 1 p. m. Thursday about 100 old veterans met in the court-house and organized a county camp by the election of W. T. Smith as colonel; J. W. Pitts, lieutenant colonel; J. W. Johnston, adjutant; and C. C. Martin, sergeant-major.

After transacting the necessary business the veterans formed in line and marched to the field, near Morgan's mill, under command of Adjutant Johnston, and spent an hour in drilling, after which they returned to the court-house and were dismissed for the day.

At 10 a. m. Friday an immense crowd had reached town, numbering between 2,000 and 2,500.

The veterans were assembled in front of the court-house, where Adjutant Johnston formed them in line, and turned the battalion over to Colonel Smith. They were then marched by fours to the grounds, where the proceedings of the day began.

After prayer by Chaplain O'Hara an address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Longshore, which was replied to by Colonel Smith.

Several speakers had been invited, but did not arrive. Hence the day had to be passed in other ways. There were handshakings by members of the various companies present, and where there was one survivor of a company he was made to feel that he was the particular comrade of all the rest. At 1 o'clock a basket dinner was partaken of and enjoyed by all.

At 2 p. m. Adjutant Johnston drilled a large squad, which, though somewhat awkward for want of practice, was thoroughly enjoyable.

On account of the intense heat the sham battle was postponed.

On the 9th day of September another meeting will be held at this place for the purpose of completing the organization and having a sham battle.

Many pleasant incidents occurred to make the occasion a pleasant one, and it is but the beginning of a series of meetings that will attract large and happy crowds.

An Illegal Arrest.

On Friday last Walter Vasser, having been appointed special deputy marshal for the day, arrested Charlie Avery, a young man of Shelby, presumably for the offense of riding a bicycle, and collected from him 75 cents as fine. The arrest was entirely illegal and uncalled for, as the following statement from Mayor Longshore will show:

I desire to state to the public that the arrest of Charlie Avery on the 16th instant was unauthorized and did not receive the approbation of the city council, but they emphatically condemn the same. The young man had committed no offense and should not have been arrested, and the special deputy marshal had no authority to collect any money from Mr. Avery. I make this statement in order to let the public know the facts.
A. P. LONGSHORE, Mayor.

Whether the action of the deputy was from ignorance or a desire to defraud the young man out of the money collected does not appear. The city government very much regrets the occurrence.

To Subscribers.

The terms of subscription to THE CHRONICLE will remain, as in the past, strictly in advance. If there is an X opposite the address on your paper it indicates that your subscription has expired, and you will confer a favor by remitting at once or by paying our agent at your office. Two marks will indicate that you are due two years. Should it not be convenient to pay at once please notify us, that we may continue your name on your list until such time, not too far in the future, as you may desire to pay.

Maj. J. W. Pitts assumed charge of the post-office at this place last week. The people have been well served by Mr. Henry Milner, the retiring postmaster, but with the change of administration he had to give way to a new appointee. Mr. J. S. Falkner will remain with the new postmaster as his assistant, and will aid in giving us good service.

"There's no use in talking," says W. H. Broadwell, druggist, La. Cyngre, Kas., "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy does the work. After taking medicines of my own preparation and those of others, I took a dose of Chamberlain's and it helped me; a second dose cured me. Candidly and conscientiously I can recommend it as the best thing on the market." The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

THE CHRONICLE is very proud of its array of local correspondence, but there are still other places in the county that are not represented. We would like to have the news from Shelby, Helena, Siluria, Longview, Pelham, Aldrich, and in fact from all points in the county. There may be nothing startling at your place, but there is always something to relate, and we want to relate it. Read our offer in another column and let us hear from you.

Hundreds of thousands have been induced to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy by reading what it has done for others, and having tested its merits for themselves are today its warmest friends. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

THE CALERA TRAIN ROBBERY.

Tried and Convicted for a prior Crime.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., July 17.—Train robber Gus Hite, alias Hyatt, was indicted by the special jury at 11 o'clock, tried, convicted and sentenced before 1 o'clock. He got the limit in this State for his crime—fifteen years in the penitentiary.

This man, it will be remembered, was captured in Kansas City on July 5, and was brought last Monday to Clarksville to stand trial for the Louisville & Nashville passenger train robbery committed at this place on June 22.

Hite, alias Hyatt, also confessed to the Calera train robbery. This was committed several months previous to the Clarksville robbery, at Calera, Shelby County, Ala. An "Ellen N." passenger train was held up at that point by two men about 10 o'clock at night and the express car was looted. The booty was several hundred dollars and valuable papers, most of which, it will be remembered, Hite buried near Clarksville, where he took the officers the other day, disclosing the whereabouts of the booty.

Although hard pressed to give away the man who helped him in the Calera train robbery, the prisoner refused information, telling the officers that he would hang for his crime before he would do so. Hesticks to that resolve.

Calera Cullings.

Mr. Ben Holcombe, of Shelbyville, Tenn., a former citizen of this place, is visiting old friends here.

Miss Etie Green, after an absence of several weeks visiting in Montgomery and Elmore counties, returned home Sunday.

Mr. W. H. Duran and wife, of Aniston, are visiting relatives in the city.

Mrs. Lindsay, widow of the late James Lindsay, was quite feeble for a week, but is now better.

Two more good rains Sunday and Monday nights. Everything in gardens and fields is growing.

Capt. Fred Hardy has been sick up at his line kiln, but was able to be with homefolks Sunday.

The colored population of the city had a moonlight picnic at St. Mark church Saturday night. Some half dozen of them got into a row, for which Mayor Pratt assessed fines and costs to the amount of $18.00, all of which was paid over to the marshal and turned into the city treasury.

Captain Graham was a visitor to your city on Monday.

Several teachers have visited Calera this week as applicants for the school, which will open next October.

Preaching at the Methodist and Cumberland Presbyterian churches last Sunday and Sunday night.

Everybody from Calera who attended the reunion at Columbiana report the time pleasantly spent.

We Want Agents.

THE CHRONICLE desires an agent at every post-office in the county—one who will send the local news and increase the subscription list. To anyone who will act in this capacity we offer 10 per cent for collections and 25 per cent for new subscribers. We shall be glad to hear from those who have the time and inclination to do this work, which, with the proper effort, ought to be reasonably profitable. Write for the present list at your office, from which to make collections; see that all your neighbors have an opportunity of subscribing. Send us the news, and we will all be benefited by a small effort.

Mr. Isaac Horner, proprietor of the Burton House, Burton, W. V., and one of the most widely known men in the state was cured of rheumatism after three years of suffering. He says: "I have not sufficient command of language to convey any idea of what I suffered, my physicians told me that nothing could be done for me and my friends were fully convinced that nothing but death would relieve me of my suffering. In June, 1894, Mr. Evans, then salesman for the Wheeling Drug Co., recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm. At this time my foot and limb were swollen to more than double their normal size and it seemed to me my leg would burst, but soon after I began using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease, the pain to leave, and now I consider that I am entirely cured. Sterrett Stirrings.

We are having fine rains now. Crops growing and doing well. Had good rain last Sunday night.

Quite a number of our young people attended divine service at Vandiver Sunday.

W. H. Falkner made a visit to relatives at Vincent last Sunday.

Mr. Butler and wife, of Jemison, who have been visiting the family of R. E. Cosper, returned home one day last week.

We are sorry to have to chronicle the very serious illness of J. C. Jarrett, formerly of this place, but now of Woodlawn. We extend our sympathies to relatives here and at Woodlawn.

Miss Davie Hollis is quite low with typhoid pneumonia fever. We hope for her recovery.

Master Bunyan Falkner is very sick with slow fever. This is the fourth case T. B. Falkner has had in his family this summer. We extend our sympathy in his sore afflictions.

S. M. Goodwin, who moved to south-west Georgia last year, returned to this place with his family a few days ago, with the intention of settling down to farming. We welcome you among us, Mr. Goodwin, and commend you in making the wise choice of farming for your future occupation.

Your correspondent is informed that Prof. A. R. Thompson, teacher of penmanship in Blountsville College, will teach a class in penmanship at this place, commencing August 2. We have seen some of Professor Thompson's work and bespeak a rare treat for those who take lessons under him.

We are glad to state that Mrs. W. H. Falkner has recovered sufficiently enough from an attack of heart trouble and demented condition as to leave last Saturday to spend a few days with her daughter, Mrs. G. M. Bilbrey, at Vincent. She was accompanied by her niece, Miss Flora Goodwin, of Oxmoor.

The Sterrett and Cresswell base ball teams crossed bats on the latter's grounds, last Saturday. As before the game was not finished, but reports say that Sterrett was one score ahead when the game terminated. Now you see whether Sterrett can play nublepeg.

We hear that the Sterrett and Cobb teams will have a game here next Saturday. Boys, Dixie thinks you can play a game without fussing about it. If you can't get along without quarrels over a little amusement, you had better do something else.

From Lewis and Fournille.

A very good rain Sunday night, and crops are looking beautiful.

Rev. Mr. Neal, of Wilsonville, preached a very interesting sermon to a small congregation in Lewis Sunday evening at the residence of Mr. J. R. Ray.

Willie E. Finley, of near Columbiana, was in these parts Sunday.

Several of our citizens attended the reunion at Columbiana Friday.

Mrs. L. W. Burgess and family, of Sylacauga, after an extensive visit to relatives on Fournille, returned home Sunday.

Willie Miner visited friends in Vincent Sunday.

W. E. Finley and Miss Alma Jackson, J. W. Spearman and Miss Nannie Crumpton, L. B. Riddle and Miss Mary Finley, all of Fournille, attended the singing at Liberty Sunday and report a very good singing and a delightful occasion.

Miss Mary Finley, of near Columbiana, is attending the Fournille summer school, as we are pleased to note.

Prof. S. S. Crumpton has a very good school at Fournille. This is as good a school as the country affords and we are aware that it is being found out abroad, as we are informed there are several boarders. Professor Crumpton is a splendid teacher, and will ever be held in grateful remembrance by the good people of Fournille and surrounding country.

We regret to note that J. L. Riddle and wife are both quite sick at this writing, but it is hoped they will soon recover.

J. W. Powell, of Fournille, attended divine service at Union Sunday.

W. S. McEwen, of near Wilsonville, is in attendance at the Fournille summer school.

John E. Jackson, of Fournille, is spending a few days in Sylacauga.

Mrs. Newman, of Fournille, breathed her last Friday the 16th instant. Her remains were brought to Fournille cemetery Saturday and laid to rest. The bereaved have our sympathies.

Miss Mattie Ray, of Lewis, after spending a few weeks with her sister, M. S. Shaw, of Yellow Leaf, has returned home.

Protracted meeting will begin at Fournille next Saturday and perhaps continue a week, conducted by Rev. R. A. Kidd, of Vincent.

Prof. W. J. Horsley, of Fournille, is conducting a literary school at Union. Good luck to you Joe.

Several of our boys are attending the protracted series of meeting at Chapel this week.

Harpersville Echoes.

To the new editor here is our hand, and to the retiring one ditto.

Miss Hannah Caldwell is visiting relatives at Alpine.

G. W. Wallis and Henry Cosper, of Cresswell, two staunch Democrats and clever gentlemen were in town Saturday evening.

The third quarterly meeting of the Harpersville circuit will be held here Saturday and Sunday next, at which time the meeting will be protracted.

W. G. Parker, of Columbiana, was in the city a few moments Saturday evening.

G. W. Thompson visited Birmingham last week.

Mrs. Ann Elliott, who has been spending the past six months here with relatives, returned to her home in Jack County, Tex., last week.

M. W. Borum is contemplating building a gin and mill here to take the place of Mr. Martin's which was burned. May success crown his efforts.

W. A. Gorman, of this place, has been elected principal of the Childersburg High School. Will graduated at the Howard, and is quite popular among our people and is in every respect competent of teaching a first class school, and we congratulate our neighboring town on its selection.

Miss Fannie Lee Davis and her two little brothers, Lonnie and Law, children of our esteemed friend, Clark Davis, of Atlanta, Ga., are visiting their aunt, Mrs. Simmonds, in town.

Miss Ola Parker commenced a three months school 2 miles west of here Monday.

There was quite a number of our people attended the reunion Friday.

The stock law company met in town Saturday evening, and about the same business gone through with as generally does on such occasions.

The Baptists will protract their meeting here, commencing on Saturday before the third Sunday in August. The pastor will be assisted by Rev. Mr. Tidwell, pastor of the Second Baptist church at Birmingham.

We had a pleasant call one day last week from our friend "Pat," that wide awake correspondent at Wilsonville. Come again, Pat, bring your "crocheting" and stay longer.

Dentist W. R. Johnson, of Cropwell, was in the city a few hours one day last week.

It is very gratifying, indeed, to see the interest that our people are taking in a school. A very large crowd was at the meeting Saturday evening, but it was decided best by the trustees to postpone the election of a teacher until next Saturday evening, at which time all interested are cordially invited to attend.

Prof. C. H. Florey and wife are visiting the latter's parents at Wornack Hill, Ala.

Miss Lizzie Green, of Columbiana, attended preaching at the Baptist church Sunday.

Mrs. Adair, of Alpine, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. B. P. Moore.

A FAST COLT.

He Had Earned the Right to Be Called Cyclone.

Several men gathered about a horse near the western market the other morning, commenting upon the prominence of the beast's ribs and general lean and lankiness. "The animal belonged to a farmer living near Ypsilanti, and it was said, never permitted grass to grow under its feet on the road. The farmer was not pleased with the marks and the strong inferences that the poor thing had never realized the sensation of corn and oats."

"What do you call your horse?" was asked in one breath.

"Cyclone, and don't he look it?" replied the man from the rural district.
"Cyclone! What a name. He certainly looks as if one had struck him."
"That's what happened to him, my friend. It was just like this. You remember the awful breeze we had out to Ypsilanti about three years ago. This fellow was sucking colt at the time and was in the barn with two horses. The cyclone, regular old hummer, came along and thrashed the barn off its legs and dropped it right on to 100 yards away. After the twister had raised all the hob, fences and sheds it could we went out to look things up. The two horses were alone dead, and the colt, who you believe it was, was nowhere to be found."

"Next day I turned over the hen coop, which lay in the field half a mile away. Light in the coop and laying on the door which faced down was the colt. He commenced kicking when he heard us and we took him out in a hurry. He wasn't scared a bit, I tell you, and was cool as a cucumber. The neighbors say they saw the coop go in through the air and the colt after it. The little fellow caught the coop and got inside of it to save himself, that's what he did. That's the plain truth, and if you don't believe it ask the colt. Good day, strangers."—Detroit Free Press.

OUR AUNT NANCY.

The Plain Old Female Lady with a Mouth.

Tells the News from Down on Panther Creek—She Found a Man Under the Bed.

"Them stories which you have told in regards to the weather prayer meeting over there in the hill country, Rufus, put me in mind of the furious hard times old man Simps Corley had along that time," says Aunt Nancy Newton to me that night after supper. "You have said people before now, I reckon, that seem like they had plenty of religion, but never could make it count up for anything. Or at any rates, if you never did I have noticed plenty of that sort, first and last."

He Used His Religion.

"One night when they had a big distracted meeting going on down there at old Pilgrim's Rest there was a mighty reveling in the church and a gracious outpouring for all. Some 15 or 20 come out from the lost and ruin world and got over on the right side. And old man Simps Corley was in amongst the rest."

"Now, up to that time, as everybody knows, if you have burnt the woods and sifted the ashes in the hopes of finding a more reckless and wicked man than Simps Corley—well, Rufus, the thing itself simply couldn't be did. But henceforward after that the old man was way yonder different, and I do raley think he was tryin his levellest to walk upright and faithful in the ten commandments to the best of his ability."

"It was along in the next fallowin spring and summer when a tremendous long and hot dry drought swept over the country. All the rain signs failed and failed—the crops looked like they would naturally take fire and burn up—and from general appearances it seems as if the country was on the highway to the pluperfect ruination."

"At that time old man Simps was livin over there on the Ridge, farmin it on that thin red land, and the dry drought was bearin down particular hard on him. Up to then, from what he told me with his own mouth, the old man never had used his religion any to speak of—that is to say, Rufus, he was keepin it as something that would do to die by, but he never had made it count for anything in this life so far as he could recollect. And now, in that terrible bad case of pushyness, he loved he mought as well to see if he couldn't put it to some good use. So, consequently, he put in and went to prayin for rain, and he kept it up for two days and nights hand-runnin, off and on. Then jest before dark the second night a storm riz and passed over the ridge. But it fetched more wind than water—only a light sprinklin of rain and a whole passle of wind. Bless gracious, it blowed down the old man's ginhouse and blowed two miles of his fences down. It blowed his corn down to a dead level with the earth, and all but took the roof off the dwellin house over his head."

"Next mornin old man Simps come by our house after Andrew Jim to go and help him put up the fences and save the scatterin remains of his crop. He up and told us all about the prayer meetins he had held and the storm which riz the night before."

"Reckon there must of been a mistake somewhere along the line, Aunt Nancy," says he, lookin powerful bad puzzled and pestered about it. "Dad-blam the luck, I want prayin for rain—I was prayin for water."

She Found Him at Last.

"You recollect the Callinses, don't you, Rufus?" Aunt Nancy went on as she scratched a match on the seat of her chair and lit her pipe for the third time. "And of course at any rate you recollect Miss Mittie Callins. The old maid of the generation. Now, while Miss Mittie never has mated off and got married, through many long and weary years she has been lookin for a man. Every night the good Lord sent since she come grown she has looked under the bed for a man. Well it does raley look to me like if I was huntin for a man I wouldn't have much hopes of findin one under the bed. But it would seem as if Miss Mittie was borned to live in hopes if she died an old maid. As regular as the nights rolled around she would say her prayers and then look under the bed for a man. And one night about three weeks ago bless the heavens if she didn't find him—found him under the bed, too. From the news I ruther think Miss Mittie was sorry she found what she was lookin for—so suddint and surprisn-like. She screamed and fainted and fell over in it. By the time the old lady and the boys got to her room the man was gone. He is gone till yet—no body knows where."

"That is all I know, Rufus. And that is about all Miss Mittie knows. She don't know whether he was a young man or an old man—ugly or fine lookin, or only middlin. She didn't even know for certain whether he was white or black. But she knows that where she was lookin for a man and she found one, and found him under the bed."

"Henceforward since then Miss Mittie has quit lookin for men, but she makes the boys go to her room every night and strike a light and see if they can find a man under the bed before she will risk herself inside the door."

"Now, as to me, Rufus, I don't make out like I would break and run from a man person. And I don't try to make people think I wouldn't love to find me a man—providin I could find the right sort, and find him at the right time in the right place. But I'll be blessed if I have ever yet thought about lookin under the bed for one."

Willin to Return Visits.

"Some people have set your old friend and fellow servant Tom Dick Simpkins down as one of the men which had took their seats way back by the door that day, when they was passin around the brains to the human family. But that ain't right, Rufus. Tom Dick ain't as smart as the man which writ the first books, I know. Yet still, if I had to take your old army musket and start out to kill the native born fools and idiots in this country, Tom Dick Simpkins mought live a right smart whet before it come his time to die."

"Along indurin of the spring one of Tom Dick's little boys had a long sick spell. They fed the little thing on sulphur and molasses, and snake-root tea, and wormy fudge and the like till they saw that wouldn't fetch him through. Then they sent for old Dr. Crowder. For about three weeks the doctor was there at least onest a day and sometimes every night tendin on the child. Finally at last the little boy took a turn and got better. When the doctor quit the case he made out his bill and handed it to Tom Dick. He charged so much for the medicines and so much for the visits he had made. The medicines didn't run up only three dollars, but the sundry and numerous visits stacked up somethin over $20. Tom Dick looked at the paper and handed the doctor three dollars."

"That's all right, doctor," says he, "I will pay you spot cash for your medicines, and if I live I will return your visits."

"Lispin Labe's" Philosophy.

"The very next time you git up wrong end foremost in the mornin, and start out for a gret fret and swivet, Rufus, I want you to recollect what Labe Walser—Lispin Labe, as all the boys are wont to call him—told his store keeper one day last spring, and let the other man lose the sleep."

"To start with Labe aint no great big shakes as a farmer nohow. He works hard, but he trades so reckless and heavy. In that way he has been droppin behind considerable and runnin his store account up considerable from time to time and from year to year. One day late in the spring he went to Bob Willis, his store keeper, and put in his claims for another turn of fertilize. Mind you now, Rufus, he had already got five turns and laid in a whole lot of groceries, and Bob was ruther nervous for fear he would waste in so deep till he never could touch bottom no more."

"Looks to me like you mought pull through on what you have already got, Labe," says Bob. "If I was you I wouldn't waste too deep in debt. Aint you skeered it will pile up so as to give you too much worrimt? Seems to me like if I owed as much as you do, and had no more to show out with, it would break into my rest and make me lose sleep."

"Now, Mither Willith, don't you pester your mind about that. You never will hear tell of Labe Walser lothin any sheep in regards to his store account. No, this, no, this! You are the man to let all the theep, Mither Willith. Yeth, this, yeth, this. It aint my time of year for lothin theep. No, this, no, this! And I must have another turn of fertilize. Yeth, this, yeth, this."

And now Aunt Nancy Newton—may the tribe increase—has returned back home to the old Panther Creek settlement. Raley and truly I do wish that dear, delightful old soul—thanky bag, pipe and all—could live forever and a few days over. And at any rates, when her time comes, I hope she may be in Heaven two weeks before the old Devil ever finds out that she is dead.

RUFUS SANDERS.

SHE SUCCEEDED.

By the Kindness of the Queen a Seat Was Reserved.

An old lady in rural England surprised her friends by announcing at table one night that she would go to London in June to see the jubilee procession. Some of her relatives warned her of the burdens of age and failing health, but she would not listen to their objections.

"I know," she said, "that I am 83, but I was in Westminster Abbey when the queen was crowned, and I shall go up to London to see the jubilee parade."

The objectors shifted their ground. They mentioned the high prices which windows and platform seats were already commanding, and suggested that she was hardly rich enough to hire any place along the six-mile route.

"I shall arrange that little detail," she replied, confidently. "I shall write to the queen about it. She will know my name, for it is one of the oldest in England. She will insist upon having a seat provided for me."

The old lady's enthusiasm amused her friends, but she was wiser than they were. She wrote a respectful letter to the queen, relating her good fortune in having been a witness of the coronation service, and also of the first jubilee festivities ten years ago, and adding that although she was 83 and very feeble, she was bent upon going to London and seeing the second jubilee show.

The letter was sent to Windsor palace, and was answered by the queen herself with little delay. She was touched by the old lady's anxiety to witness the parade, and moreover recognized the name as one which had come down from the era of the Norman conquest. The reply was cordial and gracious, and was in the queen's own hand. She thanked her correspondent for the loyal interest displayed, and announced that she had given orders that a window in Buckingham palace should be reserved for her on the day of the jubilee parade. She hoped that one of the oldest and most respected of her subjects would live to occupy a seat in the window.

When this gracious letter was received the old lady was triumphant, and all her friends were called upon to rejoice with her.

"I knew," she told them, "that the queen had a kind heart, and also a good memory for a historic name like mine."

The queen has a womanly instinct in such matters. She knew how much pleasure she could confer upon a worthy lady of ancient lineage by exceptional kindness and honor. If thoughtful and considerate deeds like this she has endeared herself to her subjects—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

DELUSION OF THE BICYCLE.

Disappointing Riders Who Look Well When Seen from the Wheel.

"I have found that the experience was the same with both the men and the women," said a regular bicyclist, "and during two years of observation I have never known the rule to fail. The slim, tailor-made woman, who looks tidy and pretty from behind, and is as a matter of fact neither young nor pretty when her full face is seen, is already an old theme for comic papers and jokers. But it took the bicycle to put a new phase on the theme. Nine times out of ten the woman who sits erect, wears a well-fitting suit, and displays a particularly slim and graceful figure is certain to be—well, old when you ride past her and look around to get a good view of her face. She is likely to be thin, with a wrinkled face, having as much freshness and youth about it as a dried apple. It's unfortunate that such should be the case, but it is so, and in the majority of cases the pretty, fresh-looking girl will not ride half as well as her older rival, who can keep a spickless on the wheel that nobody can excel. The latter will dress better, hold herself better, and so long as she is viewed only by the men riding behind her she will be far more impressive than any of the younger and better looking women on wheels. It is of course disappointing when the opportunity for seeing the full face comes. But the spectacle is pleasant enough for awhile."

"Something of the same kind is true of the men. I have known slim fellows, with finely-developed calves, to turn out sallow-faced, dyspeptic-looking men with eyeglasses and a discontented expression. Kidding behind them they looked like young athletes, and the contrast with their real looks was something awful. Not only physically but also as far as their dress goes, such men look better, when seen from the rear, than nine out of any ten men seen on the boulevard, and they ride along so slowly and delicately that they are never ruffled and never wear their collars. They are like the disappointing women, the spickest-looking riders on the road. But they are never able to stand the front view."—Chicago Tribune.

USES FOR CHERRY PITS.

Italians Gather Them to Make Medicine and Newboys to Gamble.

Since cherries have become cheap enough to be handled by the push-cart peddlers a number of Italians have been picking up the pits thrown away on the streets by cherry-eaters. A diminutive Italian girl is the most persistent worker of the kind seen hereabouts. She appears at the entrance to the Brooklyn bridge soon after noon, and few cherry pits round there escape getting into the wooden box she carries under her arm. A bridge policeman stopped the girl a few days ago and asked her what she was going to do with the cherry pits.

"Make medicine," she replied.

"What kind of medicine?" asked the copper.

"No speak English," said the girl, as she went on gathering the pits.

"That's always the way with them Eytalians," said the policeman to a bystander. "If you ask them a question they'll give you a knock-out blow by telling you they can't talk the language."

Park row is a fertile hunting ground for the pit gatherers, and the quantity of pits that can be gathered in a few hours is surprising. With a box or a bag in which to carry the pits the pickers work along the streets where the cherry push-carts are stationed. They scour the gutters and roadways, and seem to be oblivious to everything but what they are seeking. Cable cars and trucks have no terrors for them.

Besides the use made of the pits as a medicine, the newboys gather them to play with. They play a sort of marble game with the pits, but it is not a popular game, because cherry pits are easy to obtain. Two men alternate in the game. Each player furnishes a pit, and the players alternately take the two pits in one hand, shake them, and drop them on the ground. Then the player lays the index finger of one hand on the ground between the pits and with one of his other fingers drives one pit toward the other. If he hits it he wins. If he misses the other player wins. The stakes are the pits used in playing.—N. Y. Sun.

The Porto Ricans.

The Porto Ricans, or, as they call themselves, Puerto Ricanos, who contribute money to the Cuban cause, have to do it with the secrecy of the grave. To be caught at such treasonable work would mean utter ruin. If the Cubans have one reason to detest Spain, the Porto Ricans have 20; and they hate her with a hatred too bitter for utterance. They are ground down, robbed, insulted, imprisoned, dragged about with thumb cords, by their hated masters; and nothing but their utter helplessness has prevented their joining in the Cuban revolution. The condition of the natives of that island is almost beyond description, and they are ripe for any ferocious retaliation in their power. The Cuban hatred of Spain is a gentle June zephyr compared with the tremendous cyclone of hatred that the Porto Rican has for the mother country. And no American who spends a month on that beautiful but persecuted island will need to ask why. There are some Porto Ricans of great wealth, and a large number in moderate circumstances, notwithstanding the grinding taxation and other official robberies; and they have taken, in many instances, dangerous risks to forward money to the Cuban authorities. As long as the Porto Ricans have a dollar left, the Cubans can safely count upon at least half of it.—William Drysdale, in N. Y. Independent.

Did the Job Himself.

It is related of the late Duc d'Aumale that lack of decision is illustrated by the following incident: When about to enter a room at a reception in 1873 he was asked by the usher what name should be announced. "Gen. le Duc d'Aumale," he answered; and then, suddenly changing his mind, he said: "No; announce his royal highness, Duc d'Aumale." But, not feeling satisfied with this, he said: "Say merely Duc d'Aumale." Finally he said: "Say nothing," and walked in unannounced.—N. Y. Times.

AN APPEAL FOR FREEDOM.

The Cuban League of New York Asks for Financial Aid.

The Cuban league of New York, whose president is Ethan Allen, and whose presidents such men of national reputation and honor as Chauncey M. Depew, Roswell P. Flower, etc., has issued the following appeal asking for financial aid in its patriotic efforts in behalf of struggling Cuba:

"To the People of the United States: A brave and generous people will aid the oppressed. Cuba is under a brutal tyranny. Inspired by our history she freely bleeds for independence, and appeals to us for help. We must hear, and hearing, promptly act. An irrepressible conflict between republicanism and monarchy was inaugurated by Washington and his compatriots, and as trustees of the great political inheritance from them we must be in that conflict whether we will or not, whenever any intelligent people fires the opening gun for freedom. By an unparallelled career of courage and sacrifice the Cubans have proved their right to self-government. Our people, to keep untarnished the heroic crown of our fathers, which our government at Washington for three years has failed to do, must extend material support to the embattled heroes on Cuban soil. The passive policy of this administration, in emulation of the last, still repressed the nobler impulses of our people, while foul murder continued. To give now is more than to fight. He who supplies the weapon is brother in achievement to him who wields it."

"A plan for small subscriptions at local points, deposited there with banks or business firms, reaches all. Let those who will serve send addresses of themselves and bank to the Red, White and Blue League, New York."

"ETHAN ALLEN.
President of the Cuban League."

DOCTORS AND PATIENTS.

Odd Doers of Physicians of the Old School in England.

A physician with a large practice sees strange sights—some humorous, some pitiful, and some irritating. Sir Benjamin W. Richardson, commenting on the fact that these singular sights tend to produce in the doctor's mind the feeling "All things are alike to all," says he once surprised a bishop by saying that the writer of Ecclesiastes must have been a doctor.

Once a woman who kept a full store brought her husband to Dr. Richardson in a little cart with his body covered with small coal, under the idea that by this means she was keeping him warm. Another woman, to whom he prescribed an ether mixture, therefore volatile, first made it warm, in order that it might be agreeable to take.

He was called in the early days of his London practice to visit a servant in a large house, and overheard the mistress ask the housekeeper: "What sort of a man is he, and how did he come? Did he drive?"

"I think you'll like him, ma'am," replied the housekeeper; "but, poor man! he is only a walking doctor yet."

People made a distinction between the walking and the driving doctor in former days. A physician with a large paying practice used to ride in a chariot which cost 300 guineas. Now people do not care if a doctor comes in a landau, or a brougham, or a cab, provided he comes quickly.

The old physician was known by everybody as a doctor. He wore a long, broad-tailed coat, knee breeches, Hessian boots, a frilled shirt with ruffles at the wrists, and a large white scarf of the finest lawn. He carried a cane with a perforated box at the top, which held camphor or some other smelling substance. When he was called to a consultation, he expected to find a table spread with wine glasses, a decanter of brandy and a bottle of wine.—Youth's Companion.

Popularity and a Slap.

One of the incidents that conduced to give the queen temporary popularity in Ireland was this: She and the prince, with the prince of Wales and Prince Alfred, were driven in their roomy carriage to Mr. Dargan's exhibition. The streets and windows were thronged. There were only bright faces, and the air was filled with cheers. She bowed very affably; the prince held his hat a little before his forehead, and hardly bowed. The prince of Wales took off a cap with a white band and held it rather gracefully, as if to show that he should have bowed were the queen not present. Prince Alfred looked a little sulky and kept his cap on his head. The queen did not appear to see him, but she did. She whipped the cap off his head with one hand, and with the other gave him such a slap in the face. It was done in an instant, and without any change of countenance. Thundering cheers marked the approval of the multitude.—Contemporary Review.

How They Came to London.

The following conversation took place between two gentlemen in a crowded London club room. They had been talking about the condition of things when they first came to London. Mr. Rayson said:

"When I first came to London, I had only a ragged coat, with a knife and a few marbles in my pocket."

"You were better off than I, then, for I had neither a coat nor a waistcoat, nor a knife, nor even marbles."

"Nonsense!" was the reply. "How could that be?"

"Well, I will tell you. When I came here I was a baby in long clothes."

The roar of laughter that arose could have been heard miles away.—Tit-Bits.

Hints to Hunters.

To get good results in any kind of shooting, uniform, reliable ammunition is absolutely necessary. Experience has taught the most successful hunters that it pays to always use ammunition made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Conn., as it is unequalled for accuracy, reliability, uniformity and strong shooting qualities. Winchester ammunition can be bought everywhere as it is in great demand all over the world. Like Winchester guns, it is the standard of excellence, and it is more than inferior makes and it is a thousand times better. Send for a large illustrated catalogue free.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

(Special Session.)

In the senate on the 19th, an open session was devoted principally to a discussion of Mr. Harris' resolution relating to the Union Pacific railroad. Mr. Morgan (Ala.) concluded his remarks in favor of the resolution, and Mr. Stewart spoke in opposition to it. Mr. Thurston (Neb.) was speaking in opposition when, at five o'clock, the senate went into executive session and shortly thereafter adjourned. In the house the final conference report on the general deficiency appropriation bill was adopted, after which Mr. Dingley offered the report of the conference committee on the tariff bill, which, after much time spent in discussion, was adopted by a vote of 185 to 118.

In the senate, on the 20th, the conference report on the tariff bill was submitted, but little progress was made with it beyond the formal reading of about two-thirds of the report. The senate passed a joint resolution authorizing and requesting the president to take all necessary steps for the release of the Competitor prisoners from prison at Havana. The house was not in session.

In the senate, on the 21st, the formal reading of the tariff conference report was concluded. The debate was spirited in the main. The reciprocity amendment and the abandonment of the stamp tax on bonds and stocks developed much criticism. In the house a joint resolution was passed requesting the president to make such investigation as will elicit all the facts in reference to the restrictions put upon the sale of American tobacco in foreign countries under what is known as the "Regie," or government contracts, and to enter into negotiations with the governments of those countries with a view of obtaining a modification of these restrictions.

In the senate, on the 22d, consideration of the tariff conference report was continued. Messrs. Chilton, of Texas, and Jones, of Arkansas, made formal speeches against the approval of the report. Thomas B. Turley, of Tennessee, was sworn in as the successor of the late senator Harris. In the house a bill was passed to amend the president to suspend, in part or in whole, the discriminating duties imposed on the vessels of foreign countries which impose similar duties on our vessels.

In the senate, on the 24th, after an exciting and dramatic debate, an unanimous agreement was reached to take the final vote on the conference report on the tariff bill on the 24th at 3 p. m. In the house recess was taken until five, and after a brief eight o'clock adjournment action by the senate on the tariff conference report; but as the senate adjourned without action, when the house met at eight o'clock that body adjourned until the 25th at noon. No important business was transacted.

PANIC AT PADUCAH.

Burning of the Casino Summer Theater Building.

Fifty Persons Painfully Burned and a Hundred Nearly Trampled to Death—Three or Four Children Reported Missing.

PADUCAH, Ky., July 24.—The Casino summer theater building at Ramonia park was burned Friday night at ten o'clock. A performance was being given, and there were about 600 people present when the fire broke out, caused by fireworks display on the stage. The audience was panic-stricken. Over 200 persons were injured by being burned, and many were trampled almost to death. Several of the actors were painfully burned.

The building was covered with tar paper, and was in a mass of flames in a minute. At midnight it was reported that three or four children had perished in the flames.

Women and children emerged from the burning building with their clothing ablaze. All the doctors in the city were required to look after the injured. Col. Reuben Rowland and his wife were seriously injured in the stampede.

VERITABLE FIRE TRAP.

The Casino theater building was a mammoth frame structure, and the roof being of tar-board paper, the flames devoured it in a few minutes. The burned building was located about three miles from the city and was a great resort for women and children on hot summer evenings. The audience last night numbered 600 persons, and was composed principally of women and children. The Bourne theatrical company was producing "In the Streets of New York."

In the third act, when the street scene was being produced by the use of excelsior wadded about wires, a lamp exploded, and instantly the flames spread to the roof of the building. The curtain was at this juncture raised, and when the audience saw the mass of flames a panic followed, and men, women and children ran over each other. About fifty persons were painfully burned, and at least 100 others injured by being trampled upon.

There were many women and children rescued from the burning building by brave men, who themselves were burned in the undertaking. At the front and side entrances men, women and children were piled upon each other several feet in depth. Those who were not injured fled in every direction to their homes, not taking street cars, which were in waiting to bring the patrons of the show back to the city. The doctors were kept busy for several hours looking after the needs of the injured.

MANY INJURED.

The report that three persons had perished in the flames could not be verified at a late hour. Many had their limbs strained and broken in the stampede which followed the breaking out of the conflagration. Manager Bourne, of the theatrical company, and his wife were seriously burned in making their escape. Two new pianos and costly wardrobes of several of the actors were burned with the building.

The list of those most seriously burned, as near as could be ascertained, is as follows: Manager Bourne and wife, Col. R. Rowland and wife, Miss Cora Clark, Mrs. Brantley, C. C. Rose and wife, A. C. Einstein, Fred Hummel, two children, Miss Grigsby, Fred Schroeder, Harry Kellor, John Byng and George C. Wallace's three children.

Mrs. Lehr was burned, as was also her children, whom she rescued from the building as the roof was collapsing. Mrs. Gregory and her daughter, of Yazoo, Miss., were painfully burned. Harry Gilbert, Hall Waters and Miss Bleich sustained painful injuries by being trampled upon.

There were scores of others injured in this manner, but it is impossible to secure their names as yet.

IS IT STILL BINDING?

An Interpellation Affecting the Hawaiian Question.

LONDON, July 24.—Mr. James Francis Hogan, anti-Farmellite member for Middle Tipperary, has given notice that on Monday next he will ask Hon. George N. Curzon, under secretary for the foreign office, whether the provision of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty to the effect that neither Great Britain nor the United States shall annex Hawaii is still recognized by both powers as of binding force.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

The End of Uncertainty Regarding the Tariff Gives Stronger Confidence to All—A New Element of Encouragement Is Found in the Increased Receipts of Gold from the New Fields in Alaska.

NEW YORK, July 24.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The end of uncertainty regarding duties on imports gives stronger confidence alike to those who have opposed and those who have favored the change. The great strength in stocks, particularly in those of the granger list, reflects assurance of heavy crops. The remarkable rise in wheat, notwithstanding that assurance, is based on heavy buying for export and belief that foreign demand will be large. To these must be added another element of confidence scarcely observed a week ago. The heavy increase in the receipts of gold, whether from one side of the Alaska border or the other, swell deposits at the mints and in the banks of this country, and if the yield from the new regions answers current expectations it may have an influence akin to that of gold discoveries in California.

The one retarding force, the strike of coal miners, has caused the closing of a few manufacturing works for want of fuel, but negotiations for settlement are still pushed with hope.

The wheat market is the sensation of the month. Since July 2 the price had risen 12 cents by Wednesday, when a reaction of four cents was not surprising, but the close was five-eighths cents higher for the week. It is notable that this rise came in the face of highly encouraging crop news, which is not disputed and had for support nothing but foreign conditions and demand. Actual buying for export has at times been heavy, and loading of cargoes here and in California for countries which usually contribute to European supplies greatly strengthens the impression produced by continental reports. That there is speculative handling behind the great advance is evident, and the buying for export has not resulted in Atlantic exports quite as large as last July to date, 4,632,449 bushels, flour included, against 4,901,740 last year. Western receipts, 5,232,237 bushels in July, against 10,275,237 last year, indicate concerted delay in shipments, which, however, rarely withstands the influence of a substantial rise. Corn exports are still heavy, 6,038,293 bushels in July, against 2,421,999 last year, which, perhaps, reflects more certainly than the wheat movement the actual conditions abroad.

Both because of the season and because of the pending action on the tariff, industrial operations are waiting and yet with an improvement which under such circumstances is significant. The half-yearly production of pig iron exceeded the last half of 1896 by 765,585 tons, but outside the great steel companies there is little activity at this time, though they are increasing their output. The Illinois Coal Co. has sold basic steel for export to Germany; a New York sale of hoops for export to Manchester is announced, and additional orders for Pennsylvania iron bars to England. Bessemer pig is a shade lower, with other quotations unchanged, but the demand for plates, sheets, pipe and structural work is growing.

Minor metals are in better demand. Tin at $13.95 and lead at $8.15, and copper is sustained at 11 1/8 for lake exports, though the June production was 10,633 tons, and that of the half year 108,651 tons. There is a general advance in boots and shoes averaging about 1 1/2 per cent. with a larger demand as dealers lose hope of lower prices, but leather is unchanged, and hides at Chicago average 2 per cent. lower.

The textile industries have lost no ground, as the curtailment of production in cotton for a time is really a gain.

The demand for woollens increases as to low and medium grades, with reported large sales at advanced prices of 5 to 10 per cent. over last spring. Speculative sales of wool continue large and prices are very strong; especially at the west.

Failures for the week have been 227 in the United States against 281 last year, and 28 in Canada against 29 last year.

A THIRD BRIDGE

To be Erected Over the Mississippi River at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 24.—Within the next 30 days a commission of government engineers will arrive in the city to locate the third bridge over the Mississippi river between St. Louis and East St. Louis. This commission was provided for in the charter granting the company the right to build the bridge under the three-quarter mile limit. Everything has been arranged for their coming, and as soon as they get through with their work the company will proceed with the construction of the bridge.

It will be the duty of the commission to take testimony, make estimates and measurements, and finally fix the location of the bridge. Under the existing law it will be impossible for the new company to select a site within three-quarters of a mile of either of the old bridges.

It is thought that the site will be near the foot of either Mullanphy or Florida streets, but until the commission makes its report it will be impossible for the company to proceed.

BRITISH NAVAL MOVEMENTS

Regarded as a Justification of the American Protest.

CHICAGO, July 24.—A special to the Chronicle from Washington says: The officials of the navy department regard the movement of English vessels to Behring sea as indicating simply that England has realized the justice of Secretary Sherman's complaint in his note to Lord Salisbury that the British government has not heretofore maintained an adequate or efficient patrol of the Behring sea seal fisheries.

THE WAR FOR WAGES.

The Efforts Put Forth in Favor of Arbitration Have Resulted in a Signed Call for a Meeting of Operators to Be Held on Tuesday Next. Situation in the Disturbed Districts Presents No Material Change.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 24.—The situation in the district has not materially changed. The efforts of the arbitration commission have been so far successful that a call for a meeting of operators on Tuesday next has been issued. It is signed by W. P. DeArmitt for the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal Co.; J. B. Zerbe for the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal Co.; E. R. Young for M. A. Hanna & Co.; George W. Schlendeburg for the E. I. Robbins Co., and other leading operators of the district. These names signed to a notice of a meeting were a sufficient guarantee to the attendance of the meeting.

W. P. Rend will also be asked to sanction the signing of his name to the call. He is now in Chicago.

The Canonsburg region has produced no sensational features to-day. The striking miners are still encamped near the Allison and Boone mines to persuade workers from going to work, but as the hearing in the injunction case was postponed from this afternoon until Monday, there is little danger of any conflict at present because the mine owners have announced that their mines would remain closed down until after the hearing.

So far as the injunction is concerned the strikers claim it will have no effect, as it restrains them from what they have no intention of doing. They say that they will molest no one; that they are content to wage a battle of peace and order, and that as they have public sentiment on their side they are bound to win. Should the injunction be made perpetual the operators, it is surmised, will make an attempt to resume work. If they do there will be trouble, as long as there are any strikers in the vicinity of the mine.

There are vague rumors of a march on the mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal Co. There is no doubt among those who are in a position to know that such a move is contemplated, but just at what time is kept a profound secret.

While all this is going on, the Turtle Creek, Sandy Creek and Plum Creek mines are working steadily and without interference. The employees claim that they will pay no attention to the strikers and want to be left alone. On the other hand the miners' officials claim that their organizations who have been at work in secret have laid the foundation for a general laying down of tools when the proper time arrives. Much depends on the situation in West Virginia. If that section comes out the New York and Cleveland mines will naturally be the pivotal point.

No Trouble Yet Experienced at McGovern.

CANONSBURG, Pa., July 24.—No trouble has yet occurred at McGovern. No effort was made by the strikers to prevent operations at the mines. About 300 of the strikers returned to Miller's Run and Bower Hill yesterday morning to secure food and reinforcements. A heavy rain fell Thursday night and very much dampened the order of the strikers as they were camped in an open field. Orders were given by the leaders yesterday morning to the effect that all entrances to the mines are to be closely guarded, and any miners caught going to work would be halted and entreated to join the strikers. If they refuse force will be used. Should this plan fail more stern efforts will be made to compel the miners to join their ranks. A brass band and drum corps enlivened the scenes about the camp yesterday morning and a march was made to the mine through the principal streets and return.

About forty deputies are on guard at Cook's mines. The strikers are quiet and orderly, however, and do not make any threats of violence, yet they are determined. No firearms were noticed about the camp.

To Sue for Forfeit Money.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 24.—Besides what they term a battle for bread, the officials of the United Mine Workers have arranged to make a battle in the courts for money. It will be for money in the hands of certain operators in the Pittsburgh district, kept from the wages of the men who went on strike. In accordance with instructions received from National President Ratcliff and the members of the national executive board, the local district officials have placed the matter in the hands of their attorneys and suits are to be brought for more than $12,000, the amount strikers have forfeited.

The suits will be brought on the validity of ironclad contracts which the men signed. In these contracts it was agreed that, as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the employee, the employer should retain ten per cent. of the employee's wages. When the men struck this money was declared forfeited and withheld from them by the operators.

Not Hauling Much West Virginia Coal.

CLEVELAND, O., July 24.—General Manager W. R. Woodford of the Cleveland, Loraine & Wheeling road admits that his road is not hauling much West Virginia coal. He says his company has on hand coal enough to last 60 days.

Thomas E. Young, manager for M. A. Hanna & Co., received a telegram to the effect that the operators at the Reynoldsville and Watson mines in the West Virginia fields had joined the strikers.

STILL CONFISCATING COAL.

For some reason West Virginia coal is not arriving in Cleveland in any considerable quantity. It would appear that the railroads, their denials notwithstanding, are confiscating it at the price at the mine on cars. Reliable dealers declare there is a market in Cleveland for every pound of coal coming forward.

LIKE A CLOUD-BURST.

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

The Talladega News-Reporter reported the catch of an 18-pound trout in that county, and Congressman Plowman won a hat from a Mississippi Congressman on the correctness of his paper's statement. Thus did one fish give to the mountain streams the palm and demonstrated the truthfulness of Alabama newspapers.

The people of the country are to pay pretty steep price for their prosperity when it comes, judging by the bill presented by the Republican Congress in the shape of the new tariff.—Mobile Register.

And yet the Register contributed its might to the election of Mr. McKinley, by its half-hearted support of the Democratic ticket. This class of papers ought not to complain.

Mr. Reed waited until just before the hour of final adjournment to announce his committee. He has ruled the extra session with a rod of iron, just as he rules all the time. No motion can be made, no remarks offered without first securing his permission, and the whole country is thus at the mercy of his whims. He is a partisan, intolerant and unyielding in his hatred of Southern institutions and Southern people. He has no sympathy for the people, and with him in the chair no good for them will ever come out of the House.

It seems that Major Screws, of the Advertiser, at the recent meeting of the Palmer committee in New York, said that if the Democrats could be persuaded to confine the campaign to State issues in Alabama the gold Democrats would get control of the party. If this is the object of the Advertiser and its followers in suggesting the laying aside of the financial question, it may as well be warned that it will not work. Upon a question of honest benefit to the people of the State we believe this idea will prevail, but if it is to be used as a trick to capture the party machinery, we serve notice for one that no concessions will be made. We are willing to work in unity with the Advertiser for the State's local interests, but if the cloven foot is to be shown we will fall right back upon what may be termed our free-silver hobby. If the Advertiser wants to benefit the people of Alabama, let it do its work honestly and fairly, but no schemes for defeating the will of the people by sharp practice will be tolerated. Too much of this has been done already, and it will not succeed again.

The tariff bill has finally become a law, and the extra session has adjourned. The House committee spent some four months, before and after the extra session, in framing the bill, and the Senate put in some two months or more in its consideration. It was framed, considered, and passed with a view to encouraging certain industries of the United States, and for that purpose it will doubtless be a success, so far as the larger manufacturing concerns are concerned; as a revenue producer it is bound to be a failure, many of the rates being entirely prohibitive. No proposition to restrict monopolies or to prevent trusts was considered by the majority, nor did they agree to any proposition for the protection of the agricultural classes. It was a case of the manufacturers furnishing the money to carry the election and then receiving all the advantages from the legislation. It remains to be seen whether any laborer's wages are increased on account of it. There is no contention that the prices of any product of the field will be enhanced, but is almost certain that the consumer will feel the effect of the high rates on many of their necessities. It is thoroughly a Republican measure, going further than many of that party's followers believe is right or politic. The country awaits its effects.

The Mobile Register gives it out as a certainty that the Democrats believe in the gold standard will not again vote for the nominee of the party upon a silver platform. Then they are not entitled to a place in the councils of the party. Neither side of the financial question presents any fundamental principle of the Democratic party except inasmuch as it bears relation to the great theory of a people's government as opposed to a centralized power. Both ideas are policies, on which Democrats may honestly differ, but when the party has planted itself squarely upon one or the other all Democrats will support it. While we believe that the free coinage of silver comes nearer to the Democratic idea in providing a currency in the interest of the masses as against a contraction in favor of the classes, we recognize in each but a measure of policy for the improvement of present conditions; but if a majority of the party is not right the party is all wrong, and Democrats can do naught but submit to a majority opinion honestly expressed. Further than this, no man who does not intend to abide the action of his party convention has a right to participate in its deliberations. The Register threatens that this discontented element will remain out of the primaries. In this they are right if they do not intend to abide those primaries. It is a plain proposition: We believe it good policy in this State to admit any white man to the primaries who professes to be a Democrat and who will signify his intention to abide the party's action. We consider it in bad taste, to say the least, for any Democratic paper to threaten disaster to any policy it does not happen to believe in.

NOT A QUESTION OF OWNERSHIP.

The Advertiser charges that Senator Morgan, because he favors a resolution presented by a Populist in relation to the Union Pacific railroad, favors the government ownership of railroads; and because THE CHRONICLE has presumed to defend Mr. Morgan against the Advertiser's attacks it intimates that we favor also this Populist scheme of government ownership. We disclaim for ourselves and for Senator Morgan any leaning toward government ownership as a general proposition, and suggest that it is very unfair in our contemporary to thus place us in a false position. The adoption of Senator Morgan's proposition might probably result in a temporary ownership of this road, but this is by no means, as we understand it, the object of the Harris resolution.

We have no desire to enter into a discussion of the merits of this question, for a clear understanding of which it would be necessary to present an array of facts and figures too lengthy for any newspaper to print. These are before us, and suffice it to say, show to us a clear intention on the part of Senator Morgan to save to the Government a vast sum of money; to prevent the gift to the committee of another vast sum; to defeat a plan of reorganization and settlement which would place it in the power of the new company to squeeze out the unfortunate small stockholders who are not able to advance more money for preferred stock, and to do all this in the manner clearly intended by the original act. In fact, that act provided for a joint control by the Government and by providing for Government directors, and that the intention has never been enforced is because these directors have been utterly ignored by the private directors.

This question does not present a theory of government ownership, but the condition of an emergency where-with is presented the necessity of doing the less objectionable of two evil things for the saving of a great deal of money. We believe Mr. Morgan's proposition to be the better and more honorable method of settlement. We assure the Advertiser that we have no desire to beg its question for an explanation of this plan, but as it only seems to have space for general assertions and charges, we have less space in which to discuss a matter covering years of time and piles of documents to the satisfaction of our readers, none of whom, except as citizens generally, it interests. We are only desirous of protesting against its assailing the democracy, the integrity and ability of a man whose services to his country and his party place above the suspicion of any except the prejudiced or the ignorant.

The stamp of the Government makes both the paper and the silver pass for their face value. But not so with the gold. Mash a coin, melt it, pound it to dust, and still it will be taken by its weight anywhere in the world for the same value its face calls for.—Advertiser.

And why? Because, all nations recognizing it as the standard of value, or rather all of them being ready to make it into money, the bullion value to the trade is enhanced to a standard value. The free coinage of silver made it worth $1.29 per ounce, and under the same force the coinage now would restore the commercial value which its disuse as money has destroyed. Not that the value could be regulated by law, but that unlimited coinage would bring about an unlimited demand that would force it to par if not above. Just as disuse has made the value of the silver in a dollar worth less than 50 cents, its use would restore it to its old value, from which the variation was slight. No one speaks seriously of intrinsic value, for there is no such thing; and as the history of ages shows the available quantity of the two metals to be about 16 to 1, unlimited coinage at that ratio would preserve the parity. There should be no paper money except that based on the actual supply of silver and gold, and then none of it would be fiat money. Theory of a 50-cent dollar is a delusion, and the term "sound money" only creates an ignorant prejudice. The purpose of free coinage is not to force an increased value, which would be an attendant result; but the real purpose is to increase the circulating medium beyond the power of contraction.

The Girls' School.

The following interesting letter from Senator Morgan to Captain Reynolds, will interest everyone who are in love and sympathy with the girls of Alabama, and who desire to see their condition improved:

UNITED STATES SENATE,
Washington, July 18, 1897.

DEAR MR. REYNOLDS:

It is a real pleasure to examine the catalogue of the Girls' Industrial School of Alabama, and to see the remarkable success that has attended your conduct of that excellent work. Two necessary elements met to enable the State to accomplish this work and to establish this greatly needed institution. They were the demands for such a school, and the right man to organize it. The success of the effort seems assured, and I wish to express my deep gratification that it has fallen to you to establish this excellent school on a permanent foundation. In the list of pupils I find many names that are well known to me, and I am proud and happy that these young ladies are to have the advantages of so excellent and rational a plan of sound education. I am confident that this institution is, through your efforts, a permanent feature of our social and educational system. It is a good work in which I wish you great success. Sincerely yours,
JOHN T. MORGAN.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

KINDERGARTENS IN MISSIONS.

We are pleased to note that a junior missionary course is in press for immediate publication, the kindergarten plan of giving the young people a better understanding of the great work of missions. The Southwestern Presbyterian says:

What is the use of taking a child around the world when you can stand still and let all the world come around to him? Do you want him to see a wild Indian? They then will ship you one, and will send you a cow boy along with it, too. Squaws and papooses will be sent by them on application. They have also arranged to furnish the little folks with cannibals, idols, heathen—anything and everything that the juniors want, provided enough juniors ask for them.

A series of twelve native villages is being prepared. These will be printed in many beautiful colors, from sketches specially engraved on stone. There will first be printed on the cardboard a complete Indian village; wigwags, squaws, papooses, warriors, ponies, cow boys, and a lot of other things, with some United States soldiers in a fort. Also a missionary and an Indian school. These will be sent with a printed description to the superintendent of the junior society who will take a big pair of shears and slice up the cards.

Edward Bok, of the Ladies' Home Journal, has a senseless preamble on "the dangerous side of woman's progress." We have known a long time, Mr. Bok, that you would dearly like to confine us to the cook pot, the washtub, and other household drudgery, but your narrow ideas of woman's sphere carries very little weight, and regardless of your fears and your inclinations to the old barbarian system of woman's bondage, woman is progressing. The higher minded and men of nobler sentiment than your own are opening to our women the avenues of nearly every industry, as well as most of the professions, and are leaving you to creak and groan in your foolish misery. The American women are independent, self-reliant, intelligent, and progressive; nor is she less loyal, less industrious, or less respected; nor is the American mother less affectionate or less interested in her children; nor is the marriage institution haggard from a lack of candidates. "The dangerous side of woman's progress" may do for you to preach in the backwoods of Africa, but not to American women.

Reading, as a means of education and a storing up of knowledge, should be studied and practiced by every woman in the land. In this day woman is looked upon from a higher plane of intelligence, and unless we read and keep pace with the current topics of the day how are we to converse intelligently? Do you ask what we shall read? We answer everything that is clean and pure literature; not much novels, to be sure—excessive novel reading injures one's taste for better reading, though the works of some authors are very wholesome. By all means let us read and not basting with our time for reading, and we will be better satisfied with ourselves and our community will think better of us.

The following notes on styles and fashions were contributed to this column by Miss N. B. Greene, of Washington, D. C.:

White leghorn hats, trimmed in white plumes, are the society girl's afternoon wear.

Sailors are trimmed in duffy silks and wings for driving.

For evenings the hair is worn very high and pompadoured around the face.

A stylish Southern girl wore to a recent concert at the White House lot a lovely creation of pink silk over a blue green tulle. The skirt was plain, with some three rows of dainty green ribbon, making a pretty foot trimming.

Duck skirts are only admissible for hacking, picnics, and excursions.

We acknowledge receipt of a copy of Lady Cook's Essays on Social Topics. It is handsomely bound, and is an able exponent of England's social laws. It is a work highly commendable to all classes of civilization, and one that we appreciate in the highest sense. Its perusal gives the mind food for thought, broad, comprehensive, elevating thought. Her closing chapter on virtue says: "Women must, therefore, be their own defenders; and what I recommend is to blunt the weapons of calumny by a complete indifference to what the world says one way or the other, where the strength can be summoned for such a course. Let your motto be, 'My mind to me a kingdom is'; satisfy your own ideal of right, propriety, and purity, and defy Mrs. Grundy to do her worst."

During the past week we visited the booming little city of Montevallo, and noticed many marked improvements there. Several of our friends suggested that we should have located at Montevallo with a newspaper. However we failed to note any particular inclination to support a newspaper. Among the enterprising men we met Capt. R. F. McKibbin and Mr. Woolley, who are pushing their respective industries, and we judge them to be valuable accessions to the town. We return thanks to Mrs. S. A. McCutley and Mrs. S. H. Gist for baskets of choice vegetables presented on the trip.

A GREAT MAGAZINE OFFER!

The regular subscription price of "DEMORST'S MAGAZINE" is $3.00. We will send all three to you for one year for $2.00 or six months for $1.00.

"DEMORST'S MAGAZINE" is by far the best family magazine published; there is none of our monthlies in which the beautiful and the useful, pleasure and profit, fashion, literature are so fully presented as in Demorest's. There is, in fact, no publication pretending to a similar scope and purpose which can compare with it. Every number contains a free pattern coupon.

"JUDGE'S LIBRARY" is a monthly magazine of fun, filled with illustrations in caricature and replete with wit and humor. Its contributors are the best of American wits and illustrators.

"FUNNY PICTURES" is another humorous monthly; there is a laugh in every line of it. All three of these magazines are handsomely gotten up. You should not miss this chance to secure them.

OUR...

JOB DEPARTMENT.

WHY?

1st. Because we do the finest of work.

2nd. We don't rob our customers in prices.

3rd. We give full weight and honest cost.

4th. No city office can turn out prettier work.

5th. We keep a large stock of stationery and can and do please everybody.

6th. We--well we could give a hundred reasons for our large and steadily increasing patronage, but life is too short. Drop us an order by mail, or come in to see us. The fact that we hold every customer we get is sufficient proof that our work and prices are right.

Mr. W. R. Craig, of Shelby, announces in this issue that he is prepared to do all kinds of bicycle and sewing machine repairing. He is a machinist, and will give the boys good work on their wheels. It will doubtless be much cheaper to patronize him than to send off to the city shops

The University of Alabama advertises in another column. The advantages of being educated in one's own State university can not be overestimated. Equal strength acquired abroad or in an institution of less prestige, would be far less valuable in a practical sense. University alumni are and are to be leading men in all walks of life. Parents with sons to educate should make a note of this

A. H. Patter, with E. C. Atkins & Co., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I have never before given a testimonial in my life. But I will say that for three years we have never been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house, and my wife would as soon think of being without flour as a bottle of this Remedy in the summer season. We have used it with all three of our children and it has never failed to cure—not simply stop pain, but cure absolutely. It is all right, and anyone who tries it will find it so." For sale by J. E. DEATH OF A. H. WEAVER.

A Good Man and a Valuable Citizen passes away

Sunday evening last Mr. A. H. Weaver, one of the oldest citizens of Columbiana, died after an illness of several weeks. He had been very sick for some days, and the end was not unexpected.

He was born on Yellow Leaf creek, in this county, at what is known as the Hubbard place on July 2, 1836, and was married to Miss Phoebe Roper April 21, 1859.

He was in the war for a while, but was detailed to work in the foundry that was operated here by the Confederate government.

About thirty years ago he moved to Columbiana, and has resided here ever since. Joining the Methodist church soon after his arrival here, he has lived a consistent member of that church.

He was a blacksmith by trade, and was one of the most faithful, honest workman that ever lived. He was counted one of the most honest of men and always paid his debts.

He built the Central Hotel some four or five years ago, and was engaged in its management until his death.

July is a sad month to his family, his oldest daughter, two grandchildren and himself having died in that month.

Mr. Weaver's death is regretted by all our citizens, nearly all of whom followed his remains to the grave. His family have their deepest sympathy.

We are requested to return the thanks of the family to those friends who rendered them such kind assistance in his last illness.

THE CHRONICLE adds its sympathy for the bereaved ones.

We Want Agents.

THE CHRONICLE desires an agent at every post-office in the county—one who will send the local news and increase the subscription list. To anyone who will act in this capacity we offer 10 per cent for collections and 25 per cent for new subscribers. We shall be glad to hear from those who have the time and inclination to do this work, which, with the proper effort, ought to be reasonably profitable. Write for the present list at your office, from which to make collections, see that all your neighbors have an opportunity of subscribing. Send us the news, and we will all be benefited by a small effort.

Found in the Poor House.

News reached us last week of the arrest of two men in Tuscaloosa County on a charge of murdering the wife and mother. The family name was Anderson, and the men were father and son. The affidavit was made by a child. The father accounted for the absence of his wife by the statement that she was in the poor house of this county.

Sheriff Vest was communicated with by the sheriff of Tuscaloosa for information concerning the woman, and upon investigation he found her here in the poor house. Her statement agrees with that made by the prisoner to the Sheriff of Tuscaloosa, except that her given name is not the same. In all respects the facts agree, and she is without doubt the same woman.

She was left at the house of Mr. Parker, of Pelham, a few weeks ago, by the husband, and he not returning she was sent to the poor house here. She was in a very deplorable condition at the time, being half starved and in rags. She is the fourth wife of Anderson, who is a worthless and shiftless character.

Mr. Isaac Horner, proprietor of the Burton House, Barton, V., and one of the most widely known men in the state was cured of rheumatism after three years of suffering. He says: "I have not sufficient command of language to convey any idea of what I suffered, my physicians told me that nothing could be done for me and my friends were fully convinced that nothing but death would relieve me of my suffering. In June, 1894, Mr. Evans, then salesman for the Wheeling Drug Co., recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm. At this time my foot and limb were swollen to more than double their normal size and it seemed to me my leg would burst, but soon after I began using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease, the pain to leave, and now I consider that I am entirely cured." To Subscribers.

The terms of subscription to THE CHRONICLE will remain, as in the past, strictly in advance. If there is an X opposite the address on your paper it indicates that your subscription has expired, and you will confer a favor by remitting at once or by paying our agent at your office. Two marks will indicate that you are due two years. Should it not be convenient to pay at once please notify us, that we may continue your name on your list until such time, not too far in the future, as you may desire to pay.

"There's no use in talking," says W. H. Broadwell, druggist, La Crosse, Wis., "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy does the work. After taking medicines of my own preparation and those of others, I took a dose of Chamberlain's and it helped me; a second dose cured me. Candidly and conscientiously I can recommend it as the best thing on the market." 25 Cents and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Hundreds of thousands have been induced to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy by reading what it has done for others, and having tested its merits for themselves are today its warmest friends. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

THAT ILLEGAL ARREST.

An Unfortunate Affair, but Seemingly beyond Remedy.

We are in receipt of the following communication from Shelby in regard to the affair of last week:

In your issue of July 22 under the head of "An Illegal Arrest" you said that the marshal arrested Charlie Avery "presumably for riding a bicycle." That is an error. Charlie was walking and pushing his wheel, going from the ball ground towards town, when the marshal put his hand on his shoulder and said he would have to arrest him for trespass as the path on which he was walking belonged to Morgan's mill and was posted. They started towards town and met a crowd of young men who tried to get out what the matter was, but the marshal forced them to move on under threat of arrest. When this crowd was out of hearing, the marshal told Charlie that it would cost him $5 if he was taken to court but that he (the marshal) would let him off for 75 cents, which was paid. This was a plain case of highway robbery by an official of the city of Columbiana, and is so considered by Shelby people.

In an interview with Mayor Longshore, he expressed to a representative of THE CHRONICLE the deepest regret for the occurrence, and stated that he had offered to making all the amends possible under the law. The young man who made the arrest has left the country, and it will require now, as it did at the time, an affidavit and warrant for his apprehension. This the boy's father expressed an unwillingness to make or to have the boy appear in court as a witness. Without this the city could neither prosecute nor convict under its charter.

We are informed that the father of the offender has offered to refund the money wrongfully collected, and the city is ready at any time to prosecute upon the proper complaint.

There was no excuse for the offense, and the entire city is very sorry of the occurrence.

Sterrett Stirrings.

Still sickness in our community. Master Bunyan Falkner, who has been sick for sometime, has greatly improved. Also Miss Dovie Hollis is thought to be some better, though very low yet.

J. C. Jarrett, of Woodlawn, a brother of our townsman J. H. and J. W. Jarrett, is very low with typhoid fever.

Mrs. W. H. Falkner, who returned last Friday from a very pleasant visit to her daughter, Mrs. G. M. Billeby, at Vincent, is in very bad health and has been under her care for several months returned to Warrior last Monday, where he will spend a while with his father's family, returning in the fall.

Montevallo Murmurs.

Mr. Latham, proprietor of the Magnolia Hotel, has sandpapered the street in front, and hung a great big latch string outside; so come along.

Mr. M. C. Banks and bride returned from their bridal trip to Cleveland, Nashville, Chattanooga, and other points. The demand for bricklayers was so great that Messrs. Banks & Bros. had to send to Tennessee for more.

The new dormitory building, which is nearing completion, is one of the best buildings in the State, being comfortable, beautiful, and of the greatest possible strength. Mr. Clardy, the contractor, says that it is the strongest building he ever erected. It will have ample water supply, and be heated by steam; no danger of fire.

Banks Bros. have erected a line kitchen to supply local demand.

W. F. Aldrich was in the city on legal business last Saturday; as he left town snailing, we suppose that he came out on top.

Mr. Howard Griggs, of Talladega, came to Montevallo on a sad mission last Monday. On Sunday at Childersburg, a son, about 6 months of age, and brought its remains to this place for interment. The remains were met at the depot by a large number of the friends of the family, from which place it was taken to the cemetery, and there interred. Rev. M. T. Reynolds performed the last sad rites.

Drs. Cunningham and Wilson, of Birmingham, and J. H. Gunn, of Calera, were in the city Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Cary are rusticated at the mines of Montevallo Lump Coal Co., near Dogwood.

Ground was broken to-day for two wings to the Industrial School. Each will be two stories high, with four class rooms in each, built of brick. Banks Bros. of this place has the contract. Home talent, is as you see, "strictly in it."

Within the next two weeks a laundry, ice factory, and water works plant will be constructed for, and will be in operation as soon as money and men can do the work.

Mrs. Minnie Gist, your honor's sister half, was in the city on a visit to Mrs. McCauley latter part of last week.

If there is anyone sick in our town or vicinity we have not heard of it. Everyone, it is said, has been vaccinated.

Houses are in demand; we venture to say that twenty-five dwelling houses could be rented in this place, within ten days. Never in the history of the town has houses been in such demand, and it is surprising that some one does not build houses for that purpose.

There is employed by the several contractors in this place, as follows: M. C. Banks & Bro., 37 men and 3 teams; Clardy & Son, 8 men; Allen & Williams, 6 men; O. W. Pulse, 8 men; W. J. Rhodes, 7 men; Montevallo Sash Door and Blind Factory, 12 men and 2 teams; hewing and 4 teams; hewing and 3 teams; Prentice & Shortridge, 2 men. Besides this there are about 10 men employed by private parties in making improvements.

SPECIAL.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Mrs. William Given returned Monday from a week's visit to south Alabama.

Jim White and two children, of White Plains, were with J. L. Ray and family part of last week.

Misses Myrtle Pope, of Fayetteville, and Ethel Kidd, of Vincent, are guests of their cousin, Miss Pernie Pope.

Major Beatty and Captain Walthall and wife were in town Saturday and Sunday.

Misses Rosa Wallace and Nattie Lee Walthall were among the brief Sunday visitors.

The literary festival Thursday night is calculated to please all who attend. School politics are not yet settled, some disqualifications having been charged against the principal elect.

J. P. Pope is erecting an immense warehouse on the McDonald site. The building is to be in front of the railroad, and occupy a space of 40 by 100 feet.

The Chapel meeting was a success in every particular, being appreciated by large crowds of the town people at the evening services. The pastor was supported by his brother, who lives near Guntersville. Rev. Mr. Jefferson, a contracted Baptist minister, also assisted. These three ministers preached good sound doctrine, and as a result 17 were brought into the church and others were revived.

Dr. Teague filled Rev. McCord's appointment Sunday morning. He is a broad-minded, deep-thinking man, and entirely worthy of the title long ago conferred upon him.

Invitations for the DuRose-Poyn nuptials, Tuesday evening, August 3, have been circulated. The wedding is to be a quiet affair, to take place at the bride's home, with relatives and a few invited guests.

The play, "Cousin Chrissy's visit from the Country," has been reproduced. It is now replete with bright new incidents and a well-qualified cast of our best home talent. Monday night the first rehearsal was begun with renewed interest and determination to make it surpass the previous school engagement. They intend giving it about three weeks hence under the auspices of the Literary-Dramatic Society. The cast now numbers 19 male and female artists. Popular prices, 5 cents up, will prevail.

PAT.

Center Institute Items.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jackson and little daughter, Beula, visited friends and relatives at Cobb last Wednesday.

The protracted meeting will commence next Sunday. I hope it will prosper.

Rufus Adams, of Weldon, visited his father's family, W. F. Adams, of this place, last Wednesday night.

Mr. Robert Moody and wife, of Albertville, visited friends and relatives in this vicinity last week.

Willie Crane, who has been staying with his uncle, John Crane, for several months returned to Warrior last Monday, where he will spend a while with his father's family, returning in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackberry and little son, Bertie, spent last Friday night with their son, Charlie Blackberry, of Weldon.

Miss Luna Jackson is visiting her sister, Mrs. Rufus Lester, of Columbiana.

J. H. Jackson and W. A. Wilder attended the convention at Camp Bland last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Adams visited her father's family at Calville last Monday.

Miss Carrie Holcombe left last Sunday evening for the valley, where she will stay a while with her friends and relatives.

MISSIE TINS.

Harpersville Echoes.

Hot, hotter, hottest. Farmers are about through work. Crops of all kinds are very promising.

Died, on last Saturday, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green.

G. W. Stone and Sam Harman, of Easonville, two clever gentlemen, attended the quarterly meeting here Saturday and Sunday last.

When we make mistakes we always like to correct them. Professor Ingram was not an applicant for the Harpersville school as we stated last week, and Mrs. Adair was from Anniston and not Alpine.

Our townsman, B. F. Moore, having become tired of city life moved out into the country last week to the Finch farm.

The Methodist are protracting their meeting this week. Rev. Mr. Hosmer is assisting the pastor, and is doing some splendid preaching.

Miss Bulah Davis, of Easonville, is visiting relatives in our community. Professor Struck and wife are visiting relatives at Verbena, Chilton County.

The base ball fever has struck our town with a double force.

Egg fruit is getting to be almost as scarce here as money, and there is not any money.

Work on the new gin house will commence in a few days. Billeby Bros. have the contract, and it will be built near the old yard.

Rev. H. M. Milledale, of Columbiana, came up Monday evening to assist in the Methodist meeting.

A. M. Jones, formerly of this place, but now of Childersburg, was hand-shaking among his many friends here Sunday.

W. B. Browne, J. R. Beavers and J. W. Pitts, of Columbiana, attended court here last Saturday.

B. F. Glover, of Kelly's Creek, one of the best men in Shelby County attended the quarterly meeting here Saturday last.

N. Warren and A. J. Warlick made a business trip to Columbiana.

Mr. Perryman, of Fayetteville, is visiting relatives in our community. The school board met Saturday evening and elected Prof. A. G. Spinks, of Shoultz, Ala. Professor Spinks is a graduate of that grand old institution, Howard College, and has an experience of five years in teaching and is highly recommended. Now if all interested will go to work in earnest to build up a school we will have one of the best in the county. For in unity there is strength. JAKE.

[Professor Spinks is one of our school boy friends, and we know him to be a young man of sterling worth. We congratulate Harpersville on his election.—Ed.]

Calera Cullings.

Mrs. C. Onderdonk returned home Monday last from Talladega Springs, where she has spent two weeks visiting her daughter, Mrs. Beauland.

Miss Nancy Miller, a former resident of this place, is visiting friends in the city.

Our city is remarkably healthy now, notwithstanding one of Columbiana's officials came down on Friday and reported that we had a case of small-pox. Tally McGraw says he is the feeblest man in town and he is better.

Professor Brown is arranging already for opening up the Calera High School, and says that prospects so far are very encouraging.

The Misses McKibbin are visiting relatives at Suttle.

Mr. Percy Suttle, of Centerville one of the editors of the news and reliable County Press, is in company with Dr. Slocum, of Blocton, in the city a few hours last Sunday.

The water famine which threatened Calera previous to the late rains is averted, as all the wells are now full of water.

Calera was very much excited Sunday evening over the report of a wreck on the Mineral Road, but soon quieted when it was learned that no one was hurt.

Capt. R. E. O'Brien returned from east Alabama on Saturday night, where he had been called to the bedside of his wife.

Recd. John Milner, of your place, filled the pulpit at the Presbyterian church for Rev. W. I. Sinnott.

From Lewis and Fournile.

Prof. H. L. Horsley, of the Sand Mountain, is visiting relatives on Fournile this week.

L. B. Riddle and J. W. Powell visited Helena a few days last week, visiting the former's relatives.

Miss Alice Blackberry, of near Weldon, attended church at Fournile Sunday.

Poll Stinson, of Massy's Business College, Birmingham, is at home near Fournile, and attended church at Fournile Monday.

Mr. Ray, of Lewis, attended services at Fournile Monday.

Henry Lester, of near Liberty, Yellow Leaf, spent Sunday on Fournile the pleasant guest of Miss Alma Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith, are the proud recipients of a bouncing baby boy.

Prof. W. J. Horsley, of Weldon, spent Sunday on Fournile.

Protracted meeting is going on at Fournile church this week, conducted by Rev. R. A. Kidd.

Mrs. J. A. Spinks, accompanied by her cousin, Prof. Henry Horsley, visited the former's sister, Mrs. J. W. Taylor, of near Wilsonville Monday.

We regret very much to note that Miss Mary Finley on account of sick ness had to return to her home near Columbiana Thursday.

A very nice lot of young people of the Kingdom composed of the Misses Stones, Stewarts, and others not known to your writer attended church at Fournile Sunday night.

Miss Louella Lyon, formerly of Fournile, but now teaching at Ebenezer church, is at home attending church this week.

Miss Bertie Downs, of Harpersville, is visiting here this week, the guest of her cousin, Miss Annie Crumpton.

Prof. S. S. Crumpton has 75 pupils daily at Fournile summer school.

Mr. John Lyon and lady, of near Wilsonville, attended church at Fournile Monday night.

Items from Creswell.

E. E. Wallis and little sister, Ada, are visiting relatives and friends at Talladega this week.

Mrs. Sarah Machan returned to her home at Sylacauga last Saturday, after spending some weeks with relatives and friends here.

J. F. Bates spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives and friends in Talladega and Coosa counties.

J. E. Stone, of Talladega, was with us last week looking after the interest of the machine and insurance business.

G. W. Wallis, Jr., made a pleasure trip to Talladega the early part of last week.

Bob Wallis, E. C. Cline and George Randall were down from Talladega last Saturday to play ball with the Sterrett boys.

The Creswell and Vincent teams crossed bats on the latter's ground last Saturday, with a victory for Vincent of 33 to 11.

All Worn Out

Able to Work Since Taking Hood's.

"My husband was afflicted with a worn out, tired feeling and could not do much on his farm. He heard and read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla and he concluded to try it and it helped him and now he is able to carry on his work."

Miss L. L. Olson, Newville, Iowa.

CHANGES WROUGHT BY TIME.
Not So Noticeable When Relatives See Each Other Daily.

"There ought to be a law that families should live in communities, and not straggling apart to the ends of the earth," said the woman who was reading a letter in the car to her friend who accompanied her. "What led to that?" asked her friend. "Any letter?"

"Yes, it is from my sister Amy, whom I have not seen since she went west. That was 15 years ago. She writes me that her hair is perfect, and she weighs 90 pounds more than she did when I last saw her. As she only weighed 100 then, she will not be immense now, but I think of the change. A change from a thin, delicate, fair-skinned girl to a woman of a fine physique and the loveliest black hair—why, she is simply another person."

But she would have changed as much if she had stayed here, in all probability, said her friend, trying to comfort her. "Yes, but the change would have been so gradual that I would not have noticed it. Now I seem to have two sisters, one with coal black hair and one with snow white. One is a stout, healthy, middle-aged woman, the other a dreamy-eyed romantic girl whose waist I could span with my two hands. Probably her face is lined with care and her character changed as much as her features."

"What of yourself?" inquired the friend. "Has time changed you?" "I? Myself? I never thought of that. Yes, I have changed, too, and no doubt Amy will be as much disappointed in me as I will be with her. But I am content in my present position in favor of families keeping in touch. Or if that is not possible then let them remain separate or as strangers. There is enough of the pathetic in life without these shocks of reunion."

And she thoughtfully folded her letter while her friend looked out of the car window and was silent.—Chicago Times-Herald.

B. & O. Fast Freight Schedule.

The Baltimore and Ohio, in connection with the Continental Line and Central States Dispatch fast freight lines, has inaugurated another fast freight schedule to the west, to be known as Train 95. It will be made up at Baltimore, and is put on especially to accommodate import business by way of Locust Point, and at the same time gives to Eastern manufacturers and wholesale dealers a rapid service to the west. The running time of the train is arranged so that it will make 50 hours to Chicago, 30 to Cincinnati, 30 to Cleveland, 30 to Columbus, 118 to Dallas, Tex., 50 to Detroit, 88 to Duluth, Minn., 37 to Indianapolis, 78 to Kansas City, 75 to Memphis, 50 to Louisville, 74 to Milwaukee, 83 to Minneapolis, 61 to Portland, 111, 50 to Pittsburgh, 50 to St. Louis, 81 to St. Paul, 39 to Toledo, 78 to Youngstown, 30 to 44 to Toledo, and correspondingly quick time to other western and southern points.

The Freight Department expects to make 95 as popular and reliable a train as 97, which makes the run from New York to Chicago and St. Louis in 60 hours.

VERY ABRUPT.

Another One of Those Very Sudden Proposals.

Slowly the great steamer steamed from the dock. Between two stern parents a young girl in tears stood watching the receding shore.

A listless young man rushed out on the pier and stretched out his arms toward the ship.

Alas! that parents will be so hard-hearted. "Marry," he cried, "I am not to be my wife?"

And the said waves rocked.

A year had passed.

The young man had discovered a gold mine on Broadway, and was now worth $100,000,000.

He rode to the pier in a fine carriage.

When the steamer was launched the young lady and her parents came ashore.

"Oh, Algeon," the young girl cried as she blushing laid her head on his manly bosom, "this is so sudden!"—N. Y. Journal.

Man's Two Best Friends.

Man's two best friends are said to be a gun and a dog. It is easy to get a good dog, but hard to get a good gun. The guns made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., are not only the best made, but they are acknowledged the best made in the world. For years the Winchester has been the standard of the world, and to any one who has studied or examined its many points of superiority its popularity is not hard to understand. The repeating rifles and shot guns made by the Winchester are in demand all over the world. Although they cost comparatively little, they are better than the highest priced hand made guns in every way. Winchester ammunition is of the same high grade as the Winchester guns and can always be relied upon. Send for a large illustrated catalogue free.

"I suppose," said the stern parent, "you know that the man who takes my daughter takes her as she stands, without a penny."

"You don't say so," replied the impetuous lover; "in that case I shall be doing the dear girl a great wrong. I love her too well, sir, to take her under such conditions."

And the stern parent embraced the impetuous lover, and told him to go and get married, and said to him: "You are the man I have been looking for. You are an easy-going man, and you have tact."—Boston Transcript.

FARMER AND PLANTER.

THE MODERN STOCK FARM.

Conditions of Prime Importance in Insurance Successful Stock Raising.

The stock farm should be founded with reference to its surroundings. In addition to this, climate should be considered of great importance. There is loss in the production of meats, wool, dairy and poultry products if one must contend with severe cold weather during many weeks of the year. As dull as are the times in late years the live stock growers in the milder climates of Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Texas and other places of similar latitude have found profit because of favorable winters. In more northern latitudes it has been as often the rule that loss would occur throughout a season as gain, because of the severity of winter.

Next to the importance of climate is to be considered the value of grazing lands. In what we may term the older states, rough hills and timber lands are often considered as good only for pasture. When such lands can be bought at nominal rates and cleared so that the sunshine will bring forth the best quality of grass, when the soil is right, the owner of such land, in the right management of his stock, should find good returns for his pains. Many stockmen, however, have been slow to realize that they must look for profit mainly in the cheaper grades of food, such as grazing, hay, straw and corn fodder. Along with this, the labor required must be the smallest amount possible. If help is hired, one strong man should usually take care of from 60 to 100 cattle in winter. Along with the cattle should be a good number of hogs and in some instances a moderate flock of sheep may be carried to advantage, making a triple combination.

Where the cattle are being fattened to a finish and have delicate taste for the provender and will select only a small amount of roughness offered them, sheep may be allowed to glean after them, provided there is care to prevent the odor of the wool from affecting the feeding grounds of the cattle. To guard against this trouble, the fodder may be either handled a second time and thrown into the sheep yards, or in the case of long-wooled sheep, they may be permitted to glean in the cattle yards for but an hour when they should be turned out before they are inclined to lie down, and by a prolonged stay affect the grounds and refuse of the fodder.

The greatest fault on the average is too limited area for pasturing. Many proprietors expect a definite number of acres to support a certain number of animals, regardless of the grass which may grow upon the land. In some seasons there is an abundance, and in other seasons scarcely half as much. Many farmers are not observant of the fact that when there is scant grass their animals scarcely gain a pound in weight during a season. They also fail to realize that by a halting condition of growth through both winter and summer their animals come to be only of the commonest variety and command only the lowest price. The stunting of the growth for a year makes it impossible for a new system of bounteous feeding to make the growth and gain in flesh which is desirable. Where one has very cheap grazing and hay lands, it is at times advisable to depend entirely on such provender for the growth and finish of cattle, horses and sheep for the last two-thirds of the life of the various animals. Where the climate is mild, permitting grazing almost entirely throughout the winter, hay and other provender should be furnished to the older animals only in such an emergency as a deep snow or some other insurmountable difficulty.

One who is inexperienced in winter grazing will be surprised after careful observation of such practice, to note how well the animals will survive where there has been good rains during the summer and autumn seasons to cause a rank growth for a winter's supply. It is of course not reasonable to expect live stock upon the same limited grounds in winter as they were confined to during the summer and autumn. The successful stockman will provide, as a rule, for three different grazing fields for his herd throughout the year. Timothy, clover and alfalfa, according to the soil, or other substitutes, will be provided for the principal summer ration. Blue grass, rye, oats, millet, etc., will be depended upon for late autumn and early spring feeding. If possible, the best blue grass will be reserved for the winter months. If it is permitted to grow up rank, during the previous autumn months so that it falls down in its profusion, this will largely protect the latest growth of the blades and furnish an attractive diet in mid-winter which moderate snows will not cover with serious results.

Wherever there are natural windbreaks, prudent thought will preserve these for winter protection. They will prove less expensive in the end, on ground of moderate value, than reliance upon sheds made of lumber which sooner or later decay. No expense should be spared in providing an abundance of pure water. This should be accessible at every hour of the day throughout the year. An abundance of drinking troughs should enable the weakling to satisfy its thirst as freely as the strongest animal. Constant thought and search for light as to the best methods will enable the industrious man to find returns for his labor, if guided by intelligence and skill.—Western Rural.

RURAL PHILOSOPHY.

There is Food in It for Reflection by Every Farmer.

Dow, Jr., has said that we have three kinds of poor, viz: God's poor, the devil's poor and man's poor. Waving a classification of the first two elements and without being irreverent, it is the poor devil that we shall get after. He seems to have come in existence backwards and goes through the world the same way. He was born about a month ahead of his money, his prosperity always in sight in the future; just ready to be overtaken, he is always waiting for something to turn up. He is full of theories without a single conviction. He disturbs his shallow mind in the study of complex questions, which he can't solve, and he can't be of no earthly advantage. If he does the right thing, it is at the wrong time. With him the most opportune time is out of season. The greater his opportunities the less he attains and the more disappointing to his neighbors. He is never at ease when left to his own reflections, always seeking an opportunity to give vent to a sordid stock of information through a babbling tongue. If he has a farm it is by inheritance, which he will soon rid himself of. Although he considers himself a careful farmer, he has more bad luck than any of his neighbors. He starts out on his road to prosperity by buying every conceivable article used in the house or on the farm, no matter how useless. In addition to buying himself rich, he also tends to advancement by borrowing all the money in sight and indorsing other people's paper on all occasions. And when overtaken by adversity, he attributes it all to bad luck, without taking lack of judgment and industry into account. If you visit him in the winter of his adversities, he will tell you that the weather and elements of the past season were against him, and he made no crop; that his horses got poor through distemper; that "old sook" had died of the hollow horn, and that he had lost his calves by weaning them when the sign wasn't right, and that he had lost his hogs from some new disease, but that next year he had a great prospect and would begin in time and make enough to pay his debts and have enough left to fix up the farm. But why discuss further? Read your "Just-then-and-there" and the careless man. Holy Writ records "The poor ye always have with you," which I suppose includes the "poor devil" and makes him permanent, if not a necessity; but let you and I have a care not to come under that category.—H. F. Work, in Farmers' Home Journal.

THE MANURE PILE.

One of the Ofttimes Neglected Adjuncts to Successful Farming.

Fifty per cent. of the manure on many farms is allowed to go to waste around improperly-arranged barns and yards. If kept in compost heaps until thoroughly rotted, and then spread as evenly as possible over young clover, it probably does land more good than if used in any other way. Manure is so valuable that it is worth carrying away from the eaves of the barn. Take it to a safe place and pile compactly in a solid heap, or use a fertilizer. Let not those who use commercial fertilizer almost exclusively forget that it will benefit the land to have a crop of clover plowed under every few years to lighten and mellow the soil.

The manure from young growing animals is less than from matured ones, the food being the same. Full-grown animals, not gaining in weight, throw off in the dung and urine practically all the fertilizing constituents taken into the body. In milk cows and growing animals from one-half to three-fourths of the fertilizing constituents of the food passes into the manure. In fattening or working animals it is from 90 to 95 per cent. The value of the manure is more dependent upon the kind of food than upon the age of the animal. For example, animals fed on cotton-seed meal, wheat, bran, clover hay or blue grass, will produce a manure very much richer than when fed on corn, oats and timothy hay. The passing of the food through the animal adds nothing to its fertilizing value except to render its ingredients somewhat more readily available to the plants. Save the manure.—Rural World.

LITTLE SHORT ONES.

The Grave Which Told Sandy Wickenton Gets "Off"—Free Silver Question.

My good old grandmother use to tell me when I was a boy that my nearest weak point was right down there immediately under the brow band of my breeches. Now, to tell the unvarnished truth, I do love to see a tremendous well. And I do love to see other people eat, and eat like they enjoyed the exercise. Way back there in my youthful growin' days—when I was forever healthy and forever hungry—if all the men and women in the discovered world had come and told me that a boy could eat enough to kill him I never would of thought it. But, white people, I'll be everlastingly whangdoodled if I don't know it now.

The Little New Grave.

They tell me there is now a little new grave at the old Liberty church graveyard down there on the Flat Woods, where they had set singin' and slow walkin' one day last week for Dick Hanson's boy Toke. That was aint Toke, you reckon? He didn't have the fever, nor the breakin out, nor the usual summer complaint. He didn't have any regular human disease. He had just simply bit in and dug his own little grave with his own teeth, as it were.

On Sunday—which was likewise the Fourth of July—Dick Hanson come up from the Flat Woods to see me and bring his boy Toke along with him. The women folks put in they did and fixed up a most salubrious good dinner. Man, sir, there was kitchen physic on the dinner table that day the very appearance of which would put a razor edge on your teeth and make the salt water back up in your mouth. And there was a gracious plenty of it. Me and Dick and the rest of us—exceptin' Toke—all eat hearty and quit and felt a whole paltry better. But my me! It was a sight and a show to see that boy Toke in and clutch up around a few sections of plain American grub. He was more than welcome to everything in sight, but yet still I wondered in my soul how he would ever manage to take it home with him.

Now presently after dinner the boy Toke curled up on the floor and went to rollin' and gruntin' considerable. And by this time it was plain as daylight to me that the only way to move all that grub to the Flat Woods would be for Dick to put it in his one-horse wagon and haul it down there. They had come up to pass the day and night with us, but under the general circumstance of the calamity I loved it would suit me a whole lot better if Dick would bolt the convention and take the boy and the grub and go on back to the Flat Woods and hold a caucus with the family doctor.

"You know I wouldn't say it if I didn't think it, Dick, but your boy is a gone gossin'," says I. "He never can come across with his load. The dinner would kill any livin' human in the created world. If you was to take the grub which that boy eat and put it in a croaker sack I have some rare serious doubts if he could pick it up and put it on his back and tote it. He is tired now and sleepy too. I ain't no doctor, and we are too scandalous busy with the Lord's prayer, Blev, and Andy got into a little red hot private dispute on that point once upon a time."

"You don't even know the Lord's prayer, Blev," says Andy.

"Who, me?" says Blev. "Of course I know it. I learnt that at my mother's knee when I was nothin' but a kid."

"Det you a dollar you can't say it off hand," says Andy.

"I will take that bet and win on a dead certainty," says Blev, and they put the money up.

"Now go ahead, Blev, and let me hear you say it," says Andy.

Then Blev he stared off with that beautiful little trundle-bed racket:

"Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to keep. If I should die before I wake, Thy will be done, O Lord, my God."

"Told on right, there, Blev," says Andy. "I give it up. The money is yours and you can take it, but by golly I had no idea you knowed it."

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY left Washington, on the 28th, for his vacation that may keep him away from the city for six weeks. He was accompanied by Mrs. McKinley, Secretary and Mrs. Alger, Mr. Porter, Assistant residential secretary, and Executive Clerk Cortelyou, besides servants and children.

The secretary of war has suspended the execution of the order starting a party of United States troops for Alaska on the boat sailing from Seattle August 5. There will be one more opportunity to move the command, on a vessel sailing August 20, but the indications are that nothing will be done before spring.

The conference report on the Dingley tariff bill, having been previously adopted by the house, met with similar indorsement in the senate, by a vote of 49 to 30, on the 24th, secured the signature of the vice president and was returned to the house for the signature of the speaker, after which the bill as passed was sent to the president, who at 4:07 p.m. attached his signature to it.

Dun's trade review, issued on the 31st, says: "Dispatches from almost every northern city of importance report, without exception, improvement in business, and from Detroit to Seattle and Portland splendid crop prospects. The task of adjusting the business and industries of the country to conditions created by the new law has progressed with gratifying rapidity and ease."

DECREES of sale in the foreclosure of the mortgage on the Union Pacific railroad were received in Omaha, Neb., on the 27th, by Gen. John Cowin, special United States attorney in the case. The decrees are signed by all parties to the suit.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

MRS. GERTIE B. MACK-SCHOOLTAN died, on the 26th, in Jersey City, N. J., in her one hundred and first year. She was born in Prussia. She saw Napoleon march into Prussia, and waved a red handkerchief at the great emperor.

FATHER TOM SHERMAN, son of Gen. Wm. T. Sherman, has arrived in Seattle, Wash., from the east. He is broken down in health and went to Seattle for recuperation.

The pope is again directing special attention to the question of international arbitration, which he considers a matter pertaining peculiarly to the papacy.

The comptroller of the currency has issued a call on national banks for a report on their condition at the close of business Friday, July 31.

THE statement of the condition of the treasury, on the 30th, showed: Available cash balance, $299,273,843; gold reserve, $143,736,317.

THE steamer City of Topeka arrived at Seattle, Wash., from Alaska on the 26th. The Topeka brought no Klondike passengers nor glittering gold, but reported that the miners were flocking toward Dyea by the score from Juneau and Sitka, and that both places threaten to be depopulated.

At Watson, W. Va., locks have been put on all the gates and deputies called for, which places every mine in the county under the county's protection. This is done by the operators so the county will be responsible if any of their property is burned.

COL. J. FENTON SEYMOUR died in Denver, Col., on the 27th, of Bright's disease. He was born in New York state in 1832, and went to Colorado in 1869. In the early days Col. Seymour operated stage lines. Later he engaged in mining.

THEODORE C. SCHINTZ, a Chicago lawyer and real estate dealer, who recently failed to the extent, it is said, of nearly a million, was arrested, on the 27th, on a charge of alleged fraud in selling a trust deed for $5,000. He was released on bail.

OTTO WEBBER, who was arrested recently, charged with being an accomplice with John Schlegel in the sensational street murder of Dr. Lyman A. Berger in Kansas City, Mo., was liberated, after his preliminary trial on the 27th.

THE British government has purchased from the Maryland Steel Co., of Baltimore, 750,000 tons of rails, that company's bid being $8,075 less than the lowest British bid.

THE St. James Gazette, commenting upon Japan's protest in the Hawaiian matter, says: "According to European usage it amounts to a threat to resist the transfer of the archipelago by force, and is equivalent to warning the United States that they must give up their views as to Hawaii or prepare for war."

ON the 27th the president announced, among others, the following recess appointments: T. V. Powderly, commissioner-general of immigration; Robert J. Tracewell, comptroller of the treasury; and Alexander L. Morrison, collector of internal revenue for the district of New Mexico.

A DISPATCH received by the state department from the United States consul at Mozambique, on the 28th, said that the French steamer Alphonse, which cleared for Beira, May 31, for Mozambique, had not been heard from and that it was feared she had foundered at sea. It is probable she had mails from the United States on board.

THE stock of the Glucose Sugar Refining Co. has been placed in the list of unlisted securities on the Chicago stock exchange. The official announcement, issued on the 28th, stated that the total issue is $40,000,000, of which $26,000,000 are common and $14,000,000 preferred shares.

MISS GRACE ALLEN, the Kansas school teacher, on trial at Chandler, Okla., was acquitted, on the 28th, of the charge of poisoning Miss Phronia Eckes, her rival, and the latter's mother. The verdict received the commendation of the public.

BIDS were opened at the treasury department, on the 28th, for the foundation work of the Chicago post office building. There were 28 bids, of which that of McArthur Bros. Co., of Chicago, for $203,453 was accepted.

SWEEP BY A TORNADO

Seven Persons Killed and Their Bodies Frightfully Mangled.

Decimated Illinois Homestead—It was Torn to Fragments and Scattered to the Four Winds—Narrow Escape of the Town of San Jose—Other Damages.

SAN JOSE, Ill., July 31.—A terrible calamity befell this little city last night. A tornado struck this region at seven o'clock, and left death and destruction in its wake. At 11 o'clock seven deaths had been reported, and three more persons were severely injured. It is probable that there were other casualties in outlying districts, which will be reported later.

After a day of terrible heat, about six o'clock the clouds began to gather and the air grew thick and oppressive. The heavy nimbus in the north especially grew dark. Every one instinctively feared the coming of a tornado.

About seven o'clock, quite suddenly, darkness fell upon the earth, broken here and there by vivid flashes of lightning. Soon with a rush and roar came a tornado from the north, carrying with it terrifying clouds. Everyone ran for places of safety, many seeking refuge in cellars.

It was a tornado in all its characteristics, with the funnel-shaped cloud, the rumble as of heavy wagons and the frightful greenish color of the sky. San Jose escaped damage only because the storm rose north of the town and passed above it.

Half an hour after the passage of the storm a messenger came galloping into the town on a foaming horse. He reported that terrible carnage and destruction had been wrought on the farm of A. C. McDowell, 2½ miles north, and summoned the assistance of surgeons and the populace.

A rescue party hastened to scene, in which were all of the village doctors. A terrible scene was that at the home of the McDowells. The tornado had struck the farm at its northern line and swept across it, cutting a pathway of destruction. The McDowell homestead was utterly demolished, the house twisted from its foundations and torn into fragments, its timbers and furniture scattered in all directions. The barn shared the same fate, and its contents were blown out of sight.

Seven persons were killed here, and their bodies mangled and torn, were scattered about the ruined homestead. The dead are: A. C. McDowell, Mrs. Samuel Brownlee and three children, a grandson of A. C. McDowell and Jesse Groves. The injured are Mrs. A. C. McDowell, Charles McDowell and Mary McDowell.

The tornado also struck the farm of John McDowell and destroyed his barn and fine walnut grove. The house escaped, the tornado passing within a few yards of it. During the passage of the storm it was dark as midnight, and a deluge resembling a cloud-burst followed.

At Mason City lightning struck the spire of the Presbyterian church and set it on fire.

HAWAIIAN ANNEXATION.

Our Retiring Consul General at Honolulu Interviewed.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—Ellis Mills, the retiring consul general at Honolulu, arrived from the islands on the steamer Alameda. Mr. Mills was succeeded by Wm. Hayward, and with his wife he is now on his way back to his home in Virginia. Speaking of political affairs in the islands, Mr. Mills said:

"Annexation is now regarded universally by the people of Hawaii as a certainty. The enthusiasm over the annexation movement is more intense now, if such a thing be possible, than it has ever been before, and almost everybody has an abiding faith in the happy result that they all wish for and anticipate. It is confidently expected that the whole matter will be settled when congress meets in the winter."

JAPAN AND HAWAII.

Japan Accepts Hawaii's Offer to Arbitrate Disputed Questions.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The Japanese government has accepted the offer made by Hawaii to arbitrate the dispute between the two countries. The state department has been informed of the offer and its acceptance. The subject of arbitration will include not only the difficulty over the landing on the islands of the Japanese immigrants, but also will include other disagreements between the two countries, the most important of which is the tax imposed upon a Japanese liquor largely imported and consumed by the Japanese in Hawaii.

A NATURAL RESULT.

The Way Hawaiian Annexation Is Referred to in Europe.

LONDON, July 31.—Hon. John W. Foster, in an interview leaving London, said:

"As to the Hawaiian question I may say that in London, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg I have had ample opportunity to ascertain the prevailing sentiment in political and commercial circles. In all these capitals annexation is generally regarded as the natural, if not inevitable, result of the large growth and expansion of the United States, on the western coasts of America."

THE BUFFALO REFINING CO.,

An Old Antagonist of the Standard Oil Co. Goes to the Wall.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 31.—The Buffalo Refining Co., of which C. B. Matthews is the president, has made a general assignment for the benefit of its creditors.

While the company is a comparatively small corporation, being capitalized at only $15,000, still it has been famous for proportion to its business magnitude, because of its active antagonism to the Standard Oil Co.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Improvement in Business and Splendid Crop Prospects Reported from Northern Cities from Detroit to Seattle and Portland—Southern Inconsistency in the Industrial and Commercial Situation Explained—The Week's Fallures.

NEW YORK, July 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade, issued today, says:

Dispatches from almost every northern city of importance report without exception improvement in business, and from Detroit to Seattle and Portland splendid crop prospects. The task of adjusting the business and industries of the country to conditions created by the new law has progressed with gratifying rapidity and ease. Even the increasing strength of the striking coal miners probably forwards the adoption of the uniformity plan, which promises to remove most of the causes of such struggles. Some confusion is caused by events seemingly contradictory, by closing of large cotton mills when other works are starting, and by decline in some prices when others are advancing, but the balance is unmistakably on the right side. The important evidence, the passage of the new tariff, which was generally anticipated a week ago, had been the marked increase in foreign demand and advance in price for wheat. The latter has risen 4½ cents during the week, with western receipts for the first time exceeding last year's and western railroads besieged for cars and with Atlantic exports of 1,718,738 bushels, flour included, for the week, and 6,351,178 bushels in four weeks, against 6,917,865 last year. With heavy contracts for shipment exceeding 1,200,000 bushels on a single day, Liverpool reports of a shipment from America to northern Bohemia and with French markets excited, speculative sales here have little influence. The fact that corn exports exceed last year's, although the price has advanced to 32.7 cents, is further proof that foreign demands are substantial.

With crop news still favorable, producers may probably realize something like $30,000,000 more than last year on wheat, which means a great difference in purchases by agricultural states. Corn also advanced 1.25 cents and cotton a sixteenth, though reports as to yield are good of both crops are general.

The industrial sky is partly overclouded by coal and iron difficulties and by the closing of some large cotton mills. Having run for months far ahead of consuming demand on cotton bought at comparatively high prices, the mills see ahead a large crop and cheap cotton, and it is but the rational way to halt production, clear off accumulated stocks at the season when vacations are common, and begin the new year on its own basis.

The woolen manufacture answers wholesomely and moderately to new airift conditions, and while opening light weights below about one dollar in cost has met an encouraging demand, the advance in prices asked is not large. With very heavy stocks of free wool on hand, manufacturers are able, and in the presence of large stocks of foreign goods are obliged, to engage for the next season without advancing prices in proportion to the rise in wool, and large contracts of that nature have already been entered into.

Sculling of wool at Boston, where the speculation has been most active, is suggestive, amounting to 8,848,000 pounds for the week, and at the three chief markets to 11,984,500. Sales for four weeks have been 46,109,200 pounds, 22,538,500 being domestic, against 7,211,350 in all last year.

Delay in the iron industry is partly because wages have not been settled at all works, though at many, and partly because steadily rising demand does not yet raise prices. In some products prices are a shade lower, notwithstanding a larger demand, owing to competition between works, but lessener is a shade higher. In structural work, plates, sheets and bars for the enormous operations of agricultural implement works, the demand increases, and for rolling stock owing to the abundance of crops.

Failures for the week have been 236 in the United States against 281 last year, and 28 in Canada against 40 last year.

KLONDIKE ISN'T IN IT.

J. K. Hardy, of Chicago, Producing a Metal as Good as Gold for Ten Cents a Pound.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Working behind closed doors, J. K. Hardy claims to have produced at a cost of ten cents a pound a metal which experts pronounce gold. Several bricks of the metal have been purchased by jewelers, who declare it good enough gold for them.

Hardy does not say the metal is gold, however. One brick, which he left with a manufacturing jeweler over night for examination, was purchased for $400 after all the gold tests had been applied. Hardy is producing also a white metal that has a resemblance to aluminum in every respect except that it is 10 per cent lighter and can be sold 50 per cent cheaper.

Hardy is the man who first compounded oleomargarine, and from this he realized $100,000, which was quickly spent. Hardy was a southern scout during the war. He has been living in St. Louis for several years and came to Chicago a few weeks ago to complete the last details of his extraordinary discoveries.

A NEW GOLD MINE

It Is Located in the Famous El Oro Vein in the State of Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 31.—A new gold mine has been located on the famous El Oro vein in the state of Mexico, and prospects for a valuable property are excellent. The Esperanza gold mine at Tultenango is taking out $160,000 in gold ore monthly. The government has taken measures which will result in economies which assure the punctual payment of the gold interest in October without in any way crippling the public service.

ALASKA'S CLIMATE.

Statement by Chief Moore of the Weather Bureau—There Are Two Distinct Climates—That Along the Coast Is Fairly Temperate, While That of the Interior Is Exceedingly Rigorous—Some Official Figures.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Under the direction of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Chief Moore of the weather bureau has made public a statement in regard to the climate of Alaska. It states Mr. Moore says:

"The climates of the coast and the interior of Alaska are unlike in any respects, and the differences are intensified in this, as perhaps in few other countries, by exceptional physical conditions. The fringe of islands that separates the mainland from the Pacific ocean from Dixon sound north, and also a strip of the mainland for possibly 20 miles back from the sea, following the sweep of the coast as it curves to the northwestward to the western extremity of Alaska, the temperature rarely falls to zero; winter does not set in until December 1, and by the last of May the snow has disappeared except on the mountains.

"The mean winter temperature of Sitka is 32.5, but little less than that of Washington. D. C. The rainfall of temperate Alaska is notorious the world over, not only as regards the quantity that falls, but also as to the manner of its falling, viz.: In long and incessant rains and drizzles. Cloud and fog naturally abound, there being an average but 66 clear days in the year.

"North of the Aleutian islands, the coast climate becomes more rigorous in winter, but in summer the difference is much less marked.

"The climate of the interior, including in that designation practically all of the country except a narrow fringe of coastal margin, and the territory before referred to as temperate Alaska, is one of extreme rigor in winter with a brief but relatively hot summer, especially when the sky is free from clouds.

"In the Klonkike region, in midwinter, the sun rises from 9:30 to 10 a. m., and sets from 2 to 3 p. m., the total length of daylight being about four hours. Remembering that the sun rises but a few degrees above the horizon, and that it is wholly obscured on a great many days, the character of the winter months may easily be imagined.

"We are indebted to the United States coast and geodetic survey for a series of six months' observations on the Yukon, not far from the site of the present gold discoveries. The observations were made with standard instruments and are wholly reliable. The mean temperatures of the months October, 1890, to April, 1890, both inclusive, are as follows: October, 33 deg.; November, 8 deg.; December, 11 deg.; below zero; January, 17 below zero; February, 15 below zero; March, 6 above; April 20 above.

"The daily mean temperature fell and remained below the freezing point (32 deg.) from November 3, 1889, to April 21, 1890, thus giving 163 days as the length of the closed season of 1889-90, assuming that outdoor operations are controlled by temperature only.

"The lowest temperatures registered during the winter were: 32 deg. below zero in November; 47 below in December; 59 below in January; 55 below in February; 45 below in March, and 26 below in April.

"The greatest continuous cold occurred in February, 1890, when the daily mean for five consecutive days was 47 degrees below zero.

"Greater cold than that here noted has been experienced in the United States for a very short time, but never has it continued so very cold for so long a time. In the interior of Alaska the winter sets in as early as September, when snow-storms may be expected in the mountains and passes. Headway during one of these storms is impossible, and the traveler who is overtaken by one of them is indeed fortunate if he escapes with his life.

"The changes of temperature from winter to summer are rapid owing to the great increase in the length of the day.

"The mean summer temperature, in the interior, doubtless ranges between 60 and 70 degrees, according to elevation, being highest in the middle and lower Yukon valleys."

NOT YET SENTENCED.

The Case of the Young American Manuel Fernandez Chacquolet Referred to Madrid.

HAVANA, July 31.—Manuel Fernandez Chacquolet the young American who was tried here by court-martial on the 22d on a charge of filibustering under the third article of the protocol of 1887, Consul-General Lee being present, has not yet been sentenced, although the prosecutors asked for the imposition of the capital penalty.

The report that he had been sentenced to death and that his sentence was subsequently commuted to imprisonment for life, was premature.

In consequence of Consul-General Lee's intervention the matter is still in suspension, and has been referred to Madrid.

The Sixteenth Annual Sunday School Convention of Shelby County was held at Ebenezer church, Friday and Saturday, July 30 and 31. It was well attended and much interest manifested in Sunday school work, as will be shown by the list of delegates present from different schools throughout the county:

E. T. Witherby, C. F. Witherby, Miss L. C. Witherby, Miss Kitty Avery, J. A. McGiboney, Miss M. McGiboney, Miss Kitty Hill, Rev. T. M. Wilson, Miss Lula Wilson, I. D. Mason, Mrs. M. E. Mason, Pierce Mason, Miss Belle Hugett, Miss Sallie Lawrence, J. H. Harmon, W. P. Ryan, John Phillips, J. T. Killingsworth, Emmett Pilgreen, J. M. Roebuck, A. A. Roebuck, Mrs. T. H. Alexander, R. F. Griffin, James Denton, J. M. Lyons, W. J. Hale, Mrs. J. L. Wilson, Miss Ella Pardue, J. E. Yeager, Mrs. Yeager, J. M. Allen, J. A. Williams, W. W. Abbott, James Garrett, Osie Curlee, James Holmes, C. W. Archer, G. W. Nixens, C. Farr, Miss Temple Stinson, Rev. C. L. Herring, Jasper Holcomb, J. M. Garner, J. B. Wiggins, Mrs. M. E. Wiggins, W. C. Hinton, J. L. Butler, J. H. Nabors, B. F. Cunningham, Peter Juzan, Annie Juzan, D. H. Daughtry, Miss Georgia Daughtry, Miss Francis Branch.

The programme as published in THE CHRONICLE was followed, and an altogether interesting meeting was had. The delegates desire to express their thanks to the good people there for their universal kindness and unlimited hospitality bestowed upon them as well as the ministers of that vicinity for their presence and help during the session. Also the committee on entertainment and good people of the community for the delightful homes which were provided for them.

DUBOSE-BOLIN.

Married, on Tuesday evening, August 3, at the residence of the bride's father, Capt. J. W. Bolin, near Wilsonville, by the Rev. Dr. E. B. Teague, assisted by Rev. W. I. Sinnott, Dr. J. J. DuBoise, of Columbiana, and Miss Mary B. Bolin, of Wilsonville. The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock in the evening in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. A wedding supper and reception was tendered immediately after, and many congratulations and good wishes were bestowed upon the happy couple.

The bride is a beautiful and accomplished young woman, who is a prize upon whom the Doctor is to be highly congratulated. The groom is a son of Dr. W. S. DuBoise, of this place, and is just entering upon the practice of the medical profession. THE CHRONICLE wishes them a long, happy, and prosperous life, full of sunshine with just enough of shadows to tinge the days with joyful twilight at the close.

We Want Agents. THE CHRONICLE desires an agent at every post-office in the county—one who will send the local news and increase the subscription list. To anyone who will act in this capacity we offer 10 per cent for collections and 25 per cent for new subscribers. We shall be glad to hear from those who have the time and inclination to do this work, which, with the proper effort, ought to be reasonably profitable. Write for the present list at your office, from which to make collections, see that all your neighbors have an opportunity of subscribing. Send us the news, and we will all be benefited by a small effort.

FOR SALE!

One-half interest in the O'Neal place near Vincent, 220 acres of land and a house. Apply to W. F. Thetford, Jr., Columbiana, Ala.

To Subscribers.

The terms of subscription to THE CHRONICLE will remain, as in the past, strictly in advance. If there is an X opposite the address on your paper it indicates that your subscription has expired, and you will confer a favor by remitting at once or by paying our agent at your office. Two marks will indicate that you are due two years. Should it not be convenient to pay at once please notify us, that we may continue your name on your list until such time, not too far in the future, as you may desire to pay.

Dr. G. W. Shackelford, Dentist

Will visit Wilsonville, August, 12, 13, and 14, of next week. All those wanting dental work will do well to call on him.

A Murder at Sylacauga.

At a negro church four miles west of here yesterday a 13-year-old negro boy was murdered under peculiar circumstances.

John Graham, a negro, returned to the neighborhood after an absence of two years. Yesterday, during services in the church, the negro boy said to Graham:

"You have been away so long that you look like a toad frog."

Graham drew a pistol, and saying with an oath: "I'll make a frog of you!" fired at the boy, killing him instantly.

The murderer made his escape. Sheriff Childs and Deputy Sheriff Glover are in pursuit with dogs.

Announcement.

I am a candidate for your cash trade at close figures.

J. H. HAMMOND.

A FORTUNE IN ALABAMA LAND.

Five Kinds of Rich Ore on one Tract in Clay County.

A representative of THE CHRONICLE was last week shown samples of three different minerals—mica, kaolin, and graphite—taken from one 80-acre tract of land lying in Clay County, Ala., 11 miles from Talladega and very near Chandler Springs. In addition to these he was assured that iron, in rich and almost endless quantities, and gold were to be found on the same ground.

The iron, mica, kaolin, and graphite are being developed by the owner, Mrs. Z. F. Mahone, of Kansas City, Mo., and notwithstanding this product has to be hauled 11 miles to the railroad for shipment, she is realizing a handsome profit.

Messrs. Horn & Bascom, expert miners, of San Francisco, Cal., are superintending the mining operations, and Major Phillips, of Birmingham, is the geologist in charge.

Mrs. Mahone is the widow of the late William Mahone, of Kansas City, and was, back in the sixties, a citizen of Auburn, Ala. She is now at her Kansas City home, but will return about September, when she will begin active operations.

Besides this 80-acre tract, this lady owns 1,300 acres of finely timbered land.

This promises to be one of the industrial features of this section, and one of the many that are making Alabama, the leading Southern State, the South the garden spot of the Union, and the Union the ne plus ultra of the universe.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemic dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of Cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

Calera Cullings.

Deputy Sheriff James Crim carried two negro women to jail from this place last Friday, who were charged and found guilty in Justice Huggins' court of infanticide.

Mr. Wm. Blake, one of Calera's best young men, was painfully, and probably seriously, hurt last Saturday evening. His team ran away with the wagon which was loaded with wood, and he jumped off. The wagon ran over him mashing and bruising him up considerably. At last report he was resting very well, but the extent of his injuries were not known.

News reached this place Sunday morning that Mr. Tom Moore, manager of the Adams Lime Works became involved in a difficulty with one of the employees and was seriously stabbed in three places. Dr. Gunn was called to attend him, and at this writing has not returned. His many friends here sympathize with him, and hope his wounds will not prove serious.

Dr. A. R. Scott left on Saturday night, it is rumored, for Kentucky for an indefinite period.

Mr. and Mrs. Beanland, of Talladega Springs, visited Mrs. Onderdonk this week.

Mr. Flavius Onderdonk returned on Sunday night from his temporary run as express messenger from Flomaton to Pensacola.

A Mr. Whittaker, of Kansas, was in the city on Friday last, in the interest of an immigration association to be established here at an early day. Mr. Whittaker informed our correspondent that the association had on the road a bran new plant and would immediately commence the publication of an immigration paper, which will circulate largely in the North and West. Mr. Whittaker with his brother, both of whom are practical printers, will be the managers.

Mrs. Z. F. Mahone and her charming daughter, of Kansas City, Mo., who owns large mining interests in Clay County, spent a day and night in Calera, the past week, the guests of Mrs. S. H. Gist.

The Pratt & Holcombe Lumber Co. are running their mill and planer night and day, billing orders for dressed and undressed lumber for local and foreign markets.

Rev. W. B. Carter filled his pulpit Sunday. Rev. C. L. Herring and family left Monday on a visit to relatives in North Alabama.

Mr. C. L. Hasbrouck, a druggist at Mendon, Mich., says all of the good testimonials that have been published by the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy could be duplicated in that town. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

SUMMER RESORTS.

Many delightful summer resorts are situated on and reached via the Southern Railway. Whether one desires the seaside or the mountains, the fashionable hotels or quiet country homes, they can be reached via this magnificent highway of travel. Asheville, N. C., Roan Mountain, Tenn., and the mountain resorts of East Tennessee and Western North Carolina—"The Land of the Sky"—Tate Springs, Tenn., Oliver Springs, Tenn., Lookout Mountain, Tenn., Lula Springs, Ga., the various Virginia Springs, also the seashore resorts are reached by the Southern Railway on convenient schedules and at very low rates. The Southern Railway has issued a handsome folder, entitled "Summer Homes and Resorts," descriptive of nearly one thousand summer resort hotels and boarding houses, including information regarding rates, board at the different places and railroad rates to reach them. Write to A. B. Crocker, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Southern Railway, Chattanooga, Tenn., for a copy of this folder.

SHELBY SPRINGS.

A Few of the Things that Make It so Popular.

[Montgomery Advertiser.] A visit to Shelby Springs just now will quickly explain in a most satisfactory manner why the place is the most popular resort in all Alabama.

A grove of gigantic water oaks whose shade is so dense that Old Sol so fierce and fiery in Montgomery has been reduced to a condition of the most abject terror and timidity, and a wee little peep through the heavy foliage of the great trees is the nearest approach he makes to the cool grounds. Nestled in this delicious retreat are rows of neat, cool looking cottages ranged in the shape of a University quadrangle, filled every one with a crowd of the most delightful people. There all is jollity, good humor and comfort par excellence. It is in every sense of the word a "Hall of Freedom," and at night one can hear that glorious and much abused bird shrieking his defiance to formality and fashion—though on a more minute scrutiny one finds that the bright plumaged bird has been transformed into one of the big bullfrogs down in the spring branch, who in that tremendous bass voice that comes straight from the tips of his toes is singing of the innumerable joys of Shelby Springs.

Every evening after supper there is dancing in the airy pavilion, but the event of the season was a tacky party on Tuesday last. There have been tacky parties and tacky parties, but never before anything like this—it was a revelation, and if Edgar Saltus had been there he would most assuredly have regretted that he ever wrote that sentence "The inexpressible does not exist." An attempt at a description would not only be futile, but useless and foolish, for even the English language with its ample capacity has its limitations. Suffice it to say that "Pete" Shaw got the prize—a box of cigars—and he certainly deserved it—dressed as a stable boy in clothes that would have done honor to the dirtiest pilgrim of the road on earth, a newsboy, bootblack, or other street gamin would have been consumed with an inward fire of jealousy. Then there was the irrepressible Daniels, a dead ringer for Thomas Q. Seabrooke, as the King in his "Isle of Champagne"—the likeness was perfect in every respect from the comical hat down to the equally comical lower extremities, the only difference being that the King did not know the taste of water, while Daniels does—at least that is what he is accused of. It was hard to decide what Jim Campbell represented—whether some favorite brand of laking powder or the efficacy of the Springs. The evening was rounded off with a cake walk, and nothing could have been more appropriate, the King of the Isle of Champagne putting everybody into convulsions of laughter, and easily taking the prize.

The sulphur water at Shelby while not so strong as at some other places is said by medical people to be far more effective for that reason—it has just enough sulphur in it, and in drinking it one does not have to do as an eminent jurist advised a lady to do at Blount. "Throw your head back, hold your nose, trust in God and let her slide." The chief charm of Shelby though is the absence of mosquitoes—such a thing as one of these attentive little insects was never known there and it is a genuine luxury to be able to sleep without one of these stifling Montgomery nets. Everyone has heard of the old soak who on raising a glass of water to his lips mechanically tried to blow the foam off—well it is the same way the first night at Shelby—after putting the light out one will mechanically try to lift the net when getting into bed.

Harpersville Echoes.

Rev. M. E. Butt, of North Alabama, passed the city one day last week on his way to Childersburg.

The Methodist meeting closed Friday night without any accessions to the church.

Miss Robbie Johnson, of Cropwell, is visiting Miss Minnie Florey.

Misses Nellie Parker and Eva Davis, of Columbiana, are visiting Harpersville friends.

Two Misses Darby, of near Birmingham, are visiting J. W. Kidd's family.

The bed spring factory has been moved to the old post-office.

S. K. Cross sells bed springs one day, sells fish the next, and talks on the stock law the next and so on. And says that he has the best crop that he ever had.

The commissioners and Mr. Nabors have raised quite a number of taxes in this beat, and those who have had their taxes raised can't see why it is that those five men know better about their property than they do, and some are kicking like blue blazes.

Mrs. M. M. Robertson is visiting her daughter at Good Water this week.

Thurston Darby is over getting up a drove of beef cattle for the Birmingham market.

Work on the new gin house has begun. It is to be built mostly of sheet iron, and the contractors are to have it completed by the 25th.

Rev. Mr. Neal, of Wilsonville, is holding a meeting this week near W. Wallace's known as the Wallace school house. A large harbor has been built. Congregations are large and a great deal of interest is being manifested.

Crops are needing rain. In some localities they are very good, while in others very sorry. There is a great deal of young corn planted, and should the rains come any time soon there will be more corn made than last year, but I doubt very much if there will be enough to do the country. So we urge upon our farmers the necessity of sowing something for a winter pasture. Rye makes the best pasture that we ever tried.

JAKE.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Fredericktown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Montevallo Murmurs.

Mrs. Zoe E. Huckabee and daughter, Miss Kathleen, of Anniston, who attended the Christian Endeavor meeting at San Francisco, Cal., and visited friends in Los Angeles, and other points in California, stopped over here to call on their friends.

Miss Clifford Roberts, of Reynolds, Ala., is paying a long deferred visit to her schoolmate, Miss Kate Kroell, at Montevallo.

Miss Lena Belle North, Miss Maria Hawkins, and Misses Annie and Leola Hawkins, all of Birmingham, are visiting relatives at this place.

Miss Wilmer Saunders has just returned from a long stay at Talladega Springs.

Thursday the handsome and hospitable residence of Mr. J. L. McConeaughy was thrown open to welcome the beauty and chivalry of Montevallo, Aldrich and Birmingham, and bright the lamps shone o'er fair women and brave men; where soft eyes looked love to eyes which spake again." From the general appearance of some of the participants next day, anyone would infer that their stay was a late one, and the time passed was extremely pleasant. Music and refreshments were in order and greatly enjoyed by all present. Mrs. McConeaughy is a model hostess.

Jas. A. Moore, S. A. Curry, and E. E. Eddings, of Dry Valley, was in town Monday.

Professor Ruffin has completed his arrangements to open his school at this place September 6. The people of Montevallo are to be congratulated in securing Professor Ruffin to take charge of their school.

Messrs. Cary, Morgan and Reynolds are preparing for an extensive fishing trip to the Burnt up Ford in Cahaba River.

Last Saturday evening the spirit of Rev. D. Y. Watt winged its flight to its maker's mansion on high. He had been sick for a long time; during that period he was a great sufferer, but was at all times patient and resigned to the will of the Master. Thus closes a life of purity and good works, a record of which his children may well be proud. On Sunday, at Spring Creek church, the funeral services at the church were conducted by Rev. Mr. Oglesby, when the last sad ceremony was conducted by the Masonic Lodge of this place, assisted by brethren from Calera, Six Mile, and Helena.

News has just reached Mr. J. D. Farrington, of this place, that his nephew, Mr. Thomas Moore, of Longview, had been seriously, if not fatally cut by some party at last named place. Rumor has it that Mr. Moore, who is superintendent of Longview Lumber Works, had detected someone in the act of stealing or robbery, and that in the difficulty that followed, Mr. Moore was wounded. Dr. Cunningham Wilson, of Birmingham, was wired for, and came to Longview to attend him, but finding that he was in a critical condition, and desiring to place his patient where he could give him the best of attention, had him taken to Birmingham, this (Monday) morning. Mr. Farrington accompanied by Rev. P. L. Abernathy, went to Birmingham to give him all the attention that he might require. Grave fears are entertained as to his recovery.

Col. W. H. Oliver, of Calera, accompanied by his daughter, passed through this place going to Blocton Monday morning.

Mr. Wm. Lyman and bride returned home last Saturday from an extended tour to Niagara Falls and other points of interest, including a visit to relatives of Mr. Lyman in Connecticut.

Mr. Burr Nabors has been sick, but is now out and around.

We have the busiest little city in the State. This is the universal statement of all visitors. Many substantial and beautiful residences have already been built, and several more being contracted for, besides additions to those already in use. We are not in favor of a boom; none here desires that the report should go out that we are trying to get up a boom.

Mr. W. B. Reynolds is now improving his residence by adding another story and other improvements. It will be a very handsome house when completed. O. W. Pulse is the contractor.

Mrs. E. S. Lyman entertained the young folks at her house last Friday night. Dancing was the order, and refreshments the after consideration. The guests all arrived home in time for breakfast.

Miss Leila Parker, of Columbiana, is visiting Miss Mary Kroell.

Mr. George Honeycutt, who has just moved to this place from Texas, not being able to secure a house, bought a vacant lot, erected a tent, moved into it, and commenced to build a residence. Such is right.

Dr. D. L. Wilkinson, of Fowlers, Ala., with his wife, a bride of two months, will move to Montevallo, and engage in the practice of medicine with Dr. E. G. Girvan. They will be a welcome addition to our society.

Dr. Shackelford, the tooth carpenter, arrived in town last Monday. He hadn't more than hit the ground before he had a patient. Such is a good resident.

President Reynolds is making things everlastingly jump up on College Hill. He is bound to have the chapel and eight new class rooms ready before school opens in October. And you can bet your bottom dollar that it will be did.

From the way certain parties are "burning the wind" with new high top buggies every Sunday, we venture to say that there will be one or more weddings in this vicinity in a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Reynolds, of Blocton; Miss Jessie Roberts, of Birmingham; Mrs. Dr. Luther Latham, of Ensley City, and her sister, Miss Josephine Hutton, of Woodlawn, are visiting relatives and friends in the city.

Montevallo has established a strict quarantine against Birmingham, Bessemer, Blocton, Belle Ellen, Montgomery, Shelby and all infected points.

SPECIAL.

Sterrett Stirrings.

'Tis so hot, and getting hotter. Prof. A. R. Thompson began teaching a class in penmanship at this place last Monday. Your correspondent was present and heard the opening address of the professor to his class, and we are fully impressed that those who attend his school will be greatly benefited.

The protracted meeting that was carried on all last week and closed last Sunday at Benah church, at this place, resulted in adding to the church by baptism, Mrs. Hattie Stewart, James L. Jarrett, George T. Austin, and Pinson Falkner; and by letter, Mrs. Anna Hambricht, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hitt.

Miss Myrtle Neal returned to Dunnavant, last Sunday, where, we are informed, she has a class in music.

Miss Birtie Allen, who has been here visiting and attending the meeting, returned to her home at Leeds, last Sunday.

Miss Mollie Walker, of Weavers Station, is visiting the family of Mr. John Walker, of this place.

J. H. Falkner, of Sylacauga, came up last Saturday visiting his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Falkner, returning to Sylacauga Monday.

Miss Sallie Donaldson's school, at this place, is progressing finely, although sickness among the patrons and pupils has lessened the former attendance some.

R. F. Glover and wife, of Vincent, are visiting the families of Elias and R. E. Cosper, this week.

What a wail will go up from some of the tax payers now that their taxes have been raised under the new tax commission law. And in many instances a very just wail it will be.

Blev Scroggins and Three Gentlemen from Tucker's Mill.

The Big Meeting at Old Sweet Water—
Some "Fervent and Magnolious" Love Letters—"The Gay and Gorgeous Widder."

Last Friday, Saturday and Sunday
they had the reglar three days' meetin' down at old Sweet Water church, with three or four sermons a day and dinner on the grounds.
The general crops had been laid by, folder want ripe, the weather was sweltery hot, and it was a very good time of year for a man about my size and shape to take a few days off and do nothin' at all for certain. So consequently I lit out by times Saturday mornin' and went down there to mix and mingle with them good people and hear the Gospel "dispensed with," as old Mises Standenmire use to put it.

The first and mainest preacher on the grounds was the Reverent Luther Randle, and it was plum surpris to me the way he could quote the Scriptures and hand down the word. You must recollect that I was right there in person at old Sweet Water church on the very day and hour when Luther Randle got his papers of entitlement to preach the livin' truth accordin' to the faith and orders of the Old School Baptists.

They had what I reckon you might call a committee to put the questions and then report back if the candidate was worthy and well qualified and fit-ten for the nomination. And if my recollection ain't dead wrong old Deacon Ascheraff left off with the questions, and amongst other things he wanted to know of Luther if he believed what the Bible said about Daniel goin' down into the lion's den and comin' out sound and well and without a scratch.

"To be certainly of course, brethren,
I do believe that," says Luther. "I believe it most in generally because the Bible says it was so, though I raley don't see how I could worry it down if I had found it in any other book."

Then they wanted to know of Luther if he believed the Scriptures in regards to them three fellows with such hard and curious names, which went through the fiery furnace when it was heated seven times hotter than any use for. And Luther he believed it because he had read it in the Bible.

Next then they wanted to know his honest opinions touchin' Jonah and the whale. Did he believe all the Good Book said about that?

"Yes, brethren," says Luther. "I believe that Jonah swallowed the whale."
Some members of the committee saw where Luther had slipped a cog and put the question to him once more as if in the hopes that he would see the break and mend it himself. But still Luther maintained that he was plum satisfied from what the Scriptures said that Jonah did raley swallow the whale.

"You mean to say, Brother Randle, that you believe the whale swallowed Jonah, for that is what the Scripture says about it," put in Deacon Ascheraff.
"Of course, brethren, I believe anything the Bible says about Jonah and the whale," Luther went on. "I jest only knowed there was swallowin' some-wheres in it."

Now after that about all I recollect for certain is that the committee found Luther Randle firm in the faith and sound in the doctrine. And from that day henceforward he has stood forth as a mighty power for good in this naughty old world here below.

The Reverent Luther Randle is a full half brother—by consanguinity or otherwise—to Billy Randle—which you recollect Billy is the youngest who told the preacher down at Ebenezer last summer that he would ruther be burned again for fears he might be a gal the next time.

"The Old Ten Was On."

But when I got down there to the Sweet Water meetin' Saturday mornin' who else do you reckon I found—both right in on the ground floor and havin' some "felonious flush times," to hear them tell it? Nobody but Blev Scroggins and Andy Lucas. With me it want in the least ways surpris to catch Andy Lucas down there, since the news had went out broadcast that there would be three sermons a day and dinner on the grounds. Wheresomever you find a few good people gathered together to hear the Word, with dinner on the grounds, you are more than apt to find Andy Lucas as one in their midst, if not the lead dog of the pack.

But as to Blev Scroggins, that would be the last place in the created world for him if it want for the fact that the human race has been borned and bred into sin and sufferin' and devilment from before the foundations. And so when I first driv at old Sweet Water church that day and found both Blev and Andy there I knowed tremendous well that the old hen was on. Next to that I naturally wanted to find out if I could what she was settin' on, and when she would hatch and come off.

"I have writ three letters, Rufe—three of the goneyest most fervent and magnolious love letters you ever heard tell of," says Blev to me when we had ambled off down to the spring to find out if that water would bear a little mixin'.

"If you recollect, Rufe, when I was a candidate for high sheriff the secont and last time the delegates from down here in Tucker's Mill Beat—which lileth over agin Sweet Water church, you understand—went back on me, even after the old cat had lunched her feet to jump my way. Well, the three mainest men in that fight, which cooked my gonese to a brown crisp, as it were, was Buck Collins, Babe Peterson and old Squire Leatherwood.

"Now, some time last year, as you will remember, Rod Mayfield—which in the main time he had married Dolly Halloway—took sick and died all of a sudden like. And right now the alloverest most handsome young woman in all this strip of country is the Widder Dolly Mayfield. Tain't no use in talkin', Rufe—when she puts on her Sunday riggins and fancy fixments she is jest simply pluperfectly and supinely beautiful to behold."

"In these long, hot summer days it has likewise also come to pass that Buck Collins, Babe Peterson and old Squire Leatherwood have all three fell deads over appetite in love with Dolly, the widder, and—well—my time has come. You needn't to feel any earthly doubts about that, Rufe. This is my time of year to win out even, and, by gattins, what I am savin' up for the three gentlemen from Tucker's Mill will be a most hellatious plenty. Old Squire Leatherwood has buried two wives and raised nine children, but from what they tell me he is worse gone on Dolly Mayfield than Buck Collins or Babe Peterson, and they have got it mighty bad. The way a town hog loves slops is nothin', Rufe, to the way them three native-born idiots love the ground which Dolly Mayfield walks upon—and —well, dadblame 'em, my time has come."

The Three Love Letters.

In the next place Blev then showed me the three love letters which he had writ—all in a little, scrawny, crumpled-up female handwritin'. The one to Squire Leatherwood went like this:

My Duckydiddle Dear—Buck Collins and Babe Peterson have both been lallygaggin' around here two or three days, tryin' their loveliest to get my company to meetin' Sunday night. But they are so young and fresh, and salt is skeerce at my house. If you will be so kind, condescendin' and obligin' as to meet me down at the Spring branch crosstin' late Sunday evenin' I will go with you. Come at first dusk sharp.

Yours fervently,
DOLLY MAYFIELD.

P. S.—Remember what the book says about the still pig and the milk.

DOLLY.

The letter to Buck Collins run along as follows below:

Dear Buck: Old Squire Leatherwood and Babe Peterson have all but petered the life outen me for the last three days. Both of them want to go with me to church Sunday night—which of course you know full well who I would ruther go with than any mortal man in the round discovered world. Meet me down at the spring branch crosstin' Sunday evenin' at first dusk sharp, and I will let you go with me.

Yours serenely,
DOLLY MAYFIELD.

P. S.—"Roses red, violets blue, Sugar is sweet, and so are you."
DOLLY.

The one to Babe Peterson was a tear starter and a heart smasher:

My Ownlyest Own: You don't know how bad your Dolly wants to see her Baby. Buck Collins and old Squire Leatherwood between the two have been such a botherment to me this week till life ain't scarcely worth the livin'. Buck wants me to go to meet-in with him Sunday night, and the old squire wants me to give him the pleasure of my company. But I want to go with you. And if I can't go with you I can go by my lone and lonely self.
Meet me down at the spring branch crosstin' Sunday evenin' at first dusk sharp. Don't fail, and don't forget.

Your sweetheart,
DOLLY.

"When the Widder Heaves in Sight."

"The mail to Tucker's Mill goes by here this evenin', Rufe," Blev went on,
"and all three of the letters will go through to their proper places tonight, or in time for the old squire and Buck and Babe to put on their Sunday best and meet the widder at the spring branch crosstin' to-morrow evenin' at first dusk sharp."

"How do I know that Dolly will be there? By the 12 epistles she has promised to meet me there and let me have the superb felicity of her company to church and back home. You will please keep in mind that I have set up the pegs and fixed the triggers, Rufe, and if I don't win out even with the three gentlemen from Tucker's Mill, then the world don't move and fits must run in the Scroggins family. I will be there, but not at first dusk sharp. I will purposely hang fire somewhere around in that neighborhood till the widder heaves in sight. And then, when the old squire and Buck and Babe meet and mix and tangle up together in the open field of combat, me and the widder we will cross below the crosstin' and let the best man whip the fight."

"You can bet your chin whiskers and your Sunday pants on one thing, Rufe.
When old Squire Leatherwood and Buck Collins and Babe Peterson all three go down there to the spring branch crosstin' to meet the widder—and when the widder heaves in sight—the next thing in order will be a free-for-all fight. Somethin' is bound to happen, and somebody must consequentially suffer. They can't blame me if I happen to come along in the pinch of time, and they can't say nothin' to Dolly if she runs away from a free fight and tends night meetin' with the fourth man. All you have got to do in the main time is to sing the song soft and low. After to-morrow evenin' at first dusk sharp it might be that you can bear the wounded from off the field, or go and fetch the doctor."

"Two and Two Make Four."

In the general settlement of the country Sweet Water church was designed and built about a mile from the Mayfield place, and the spring branch crosstin' is about half way between.

Now, as to my own individually self,
I didn't go down to the spring branch crosstin' Sunday evenin'. Dolly Mayfield, the widder, didn't write me no "fervent and magnolious" love letter, tellin' me to meet her there and we would go to church together. And in regards to the little messment between Blev Scroggins and the three gentlemen from Tucker's Mill—I didn't have a blame thing to do with that. From what I have saw with my own naked eyesight
I couldn't say for certain that anybody went down to the spring branch crosstin' in Sunday evenin'. But if you take and add up two and two together, you are more than probable to git four for the answer. And from all the signs and outside apperments I have no earthly doubts but what the widder, Dolly Mayfield, and Blev Scroggins, and also Squire Leatherwood, and Buck Collins, and Babe Peterson all went down to the crosstin', and got there about first dusk sharp.

They had sung one old famolious hymn, and the preacher had took his text when Blev and Dolly Mayfield come swashin' through the side door arm in arm, and took their seats right up next to the amen corner. Dolly was all over in a flutter, and lookin' as pale as a whitewashed horse rack on a moonlight night. Blev wore his best Sunday clothes, a white neck tie, and a smile as big as a crib door. When he looked around and saw me his left eye went shut slow and cautious like, and he puckered his mouth to give a low, caut' whis—come to his senses—caught his breath, and then looked at the preacher as meek and lowly and contrite and humble as a white kitten with the sore eyes.

Fifteen or 20 minutes had wore off when one of Squire Leatherwood's boys come in, said somethin' to old Rod, Travis, and they went out together.

Blev looked at me, closed his left eye and held up one finger as much as to say:

"That's one."

Presently somebody come to a window and sent word to old Mises Peterson—which you will recollect Babe is her onlyest boy. The old lady caught her breath rale quick and scrambled out the door.

more and held up two fingers—which said to me as plain as United States language could speak it:

"That's two."

The next minute two of the Collins boys, both full brothers to Buck, lit out through a window, and went off in a lope towards the spring branch crosstin'.

Blev shet the same eye and held up three fingers—which seem to say to me:

"That's three, dadblame 'em, and Rocky creek sends her doublebreasted compliments to Tucker's Mill."

Blev Scroggins maintains till yet that the world ain't square, and that three of a kind will beat two pair.

The gay and gorgeous widder, Dolly Mayfield, is still healthy and happy, still single and still "supinely beautiful to behold."

Buck Collins has got one missin' eye, whilst Babe Peterson has shedded seven of his front teeth, and old Squire Leatherwood has got one arm in a sling —which all put together is a goodness gracious plenty to make them remember the time when they all three went to meet Dolly Mayfield down at the spring branch crosstin' on Sunday even-in' at first dusk sharp in durin' the three days' meetin' at old Sweet Water church.

RUFUS SANDERS

THE QUEEN'S PLAISANCE.

Greenwich House the Favorite Residence of Elizabeth.

And truly a wonderful palace was the Queen's plaisance, as Greenwich house was called. Elizabeth was born in it, and so loved it most of all. There she pleased oftentimes to receive and grant audiences to envoys from foreign courts.

And there, on that account, as was always her proud, jealous way, she made a blinding show of glory and of wealth, of science, art and power, that England, to the eyes which saw her there, might stand in second place to no dominion in the world, however rich or great.

It was a very house of gold.

Over the door where the lads marched in was the queen's device, a golden rose, with a motto set below in letters of gold: "Dieu et mon droit;" and upon the walls were blazoned coats of noble arms on branching golden trees, of pure gold and finest silk, costly beyond compare. The royal presence chamber shone with tapestries of gold, of silver, and of oriental silks, of as many shifting colors as the birds of paradise, and wrought in exquisite design. The throne was set with diamonds, with rubies, garnets and sapphires, glittering like a pastry crust of stars, and garnished with gold-lace work, pearls and ornament; and under the velvet canopy which hung above the throne was embroidered in seed pearls: "Vivat Regina Elizabetha!" There was no door without a gorgeous usher there, no room without a page, no corridor without a guard, no post without a man of noble birth to fill it.

On the walls of the great gallery were masterly paintings of great folk, globes showing all the stars fast in the sky, and drawings of the world and all its parts, so real that one could see the savages in the new world hanging to the under side by their feet, like flies upon the ceiling. How they stuck was more than Nick could make out; and where they landed if they chanced to slip and fall troubled him a deal, until in the sheer multiplication of wonders he could not wonder any more.—John Bennett, in St. Nicholas.

A Bit of Home Realism.

"No, my dear," said I, with decision
"you will do nothing of the kind."
I was talking to my wife.

We had been married a week.
I was 43 and she was 37 or more.
A very sensible marrying age, you must admit.

No frummary and frippery.
A man knows just what he wants.
So does a woman, and knows that she can't always get it.

It is so different with silly girl wives.
My wife was no silly girl.
Thank heaven!

When I had thus spoken, my wife looked at me appealingly.

Woman's mission is submission.
But so many men never discover it.
I was not so other men.

Men never are until after they marry.
As I said, my wife looked at me in response to my decisive remark.

"Won't I?" she replied, with a snag in her eyes that dazzled me.
I have been dazzled ever since.

That was 20 years ago.
I have never had occasion to speak to my wife in that manner since.

But it isn't every man who learns as readily as I did.

It isn't every man who has my kind of a wife, either.—Truth.

Some English Phrases.

A great many terms which are regarded as American provincialisms turn out upon investigation to be unquestionably of English origin. Some Englishman, reading William Dean Howells' "Shadow of a Dream" came upon the sentence: "He was rather expecting the doctor himself in the afternoon; he had been out of kilter for two or three years, but he was getting all right now." He wrote to Rod. Skeat to ask him what the unfamiliar American-ism might be interpreted as meaning, and drew out this reply: "Kilter" or "keltter" was an "Anglicism" long before it was an "Americanism." Skinner, in 1671, has "keltter"; he is not yet in keltter, nondum est paratus." It is also given in my reprint of Ray's Collection in 1661. The 'k' before 'l' points to a Scandinavian origin. Compare the Danish 'kilt', to truss, tucked up, whence the English 'kilt'. Rietz gives a Swedish dialect word, 'kiltar band', a band for holding tucked up clothes; 'kiltar sig', to gird up, tucked up and fasten. The metaphor is obvious enough.—Troy Times.

THE TARIFF PLASTER.

A Republican Dose for Declining Industry.

Mr. McKinley's celebrated republican remedy for hard times—the Dingley tariff plaster—will soon be ready to be spread on the epidemics of the country.
Mr. McKinley's front-porch speeches show that he expects great results from the Dingley tariff plaster, and the medicine men of the senate are now adding to it all the ingredients that go with a republican dose which is intended to take effect promptly.

The whole process is simple, and it is as blinding as the invention of cupping and blistering. The theory is that of counter-irritation. The medicine, when a patient has a case of cramps, a mustard poultice is applied to his abdomen. In other cases of plaster is applied. The effects of counter-irritation are well known in medicine, but what is to be the result when the theory is applied to the condition of the people?

Mr. McKinley declared from his front porch that the scheme would work.
When he said that a tariff tax would open the mills, increase wages and restore prosperity, he meant that the doctrine of counter-irritation would prove efficacious in trade and business.
That is to say, he meant (if words mean anything) that a man who has no money to buy goods at present low prices would be benefited by being compelled to pay a higher price for the same goods.

That is the whole scheme in a nutshell. Mr. McKinley's method of making the people prosperous is to increase the cost of the necessities as well as the luxuries of life. As the people are not now able to buy these necessities and luxuries except in the most pinched and pinching way, it will be interested to watch the effect of the tariff plaster and thus get an idea of the process by which the public at large is to be made prosperous as the result of higher taxes.

Stripped naked, this proposition partakes of the nature of a lunatic delusion, but Mr. McKinley took care to array it in a good many small clothes, with ruf-les, frills and furbelows. He lifted his eyebrows and lowered them, and his voice grew pathetic as he described the beauties of higher taxation levied upon a population already brought to the verge of pauperism.

But at last the whole business is to be put to the actual test. There is nothing in the way to confuse the public and the business men, manufacturers and their employees, farmers, the whole population in short, will have an admirable opportunity of beholding the true inwardness of the republican tariff fraud. We have no doubt that Mr. Mc-Kinley really believes what he says about high protection. He has made it his hobby until he is stricken with fanatical fervor when he discusses the subject publicly.

But there are other republicans, cold-blooded and long-headed, who know that protection is simply a private snap for a monopolistic cabal composed of the millionaire manufacturers. There are some of the long-headed men in the senate, and they do not hesitate to say in private that the expectations which have been raised in the public mind as to the effect of the new tariff are doomed to disappointment. Some of these men would be glad of an excuse to delay the bill in the senate; but they know that the fortunes of the republican party have been tied to the tariff cart, and they dare not make a public disavowal of their fears and desires.

Even Mr. McKinley seems to have a vague idea that the tariff fraud is about to be exposed, and he is credited with a desire to take public attention off the new measure by sending in a message on the currency question. He has already committed himself to the retirement of the greenbacks, and he desires to commit his party to that scheme. This programme is so doubtful in its nature that the republicans in congress, especially in the house, do not care to injure their chances for reelection next year by promoting it.

Meanwhile the tariff delusion will soon be on exhibition.—Atlanta Constitution.

PRESS COMMENTS.

—The goldite press continues to exclaim against the ingratitude of the starving masses in the coal mines and the factory cities of the east.—Illinois State Register.

—For blind and reckless courage there is no parallel to that displayed by the League of Republican clubs in passing those resolutions concerning prosperity.—Chicago Chronicle.

—Strikes and disasters characterized the Harrison administration, and the present federal regime appears to have started out under promise of a similar cataclysm.—Binghamton (N.
Y.) Leader.

—Gage is explaining to a wondering public how he began on five dollars a week. The wondering public's turn will come when it relates to him how it is trying to get along on five dollars a month.—Illinois State Register.

—Hereafter we may have sufficient revenue for the needs of the government, or we may not, but however that may be the revenue of the farmer is not going to be helped by anything that the administration or congress has done.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

—Nine months ago thousands of workmen were gathered up by railroads and transported free of charge to McKinley's portico in Canton to receive his pledges of immediate relief if he should be elected. Four months after his inauguration and eight months after his election between 200,000 and 300,000 of these workmen stand idle about the factories and the mines which they have closed down, or from which they have been driven by reduced wages.—Louisville Dispatch.

—President McKinley is having a hard time in paying some of Chairman Hanna's political debts. None of the before-election pledges has cost him more wry faces or greater hesitation than that of making Terrence V. Powderly commissioner of immigration.
But he had to shut his eyes and take the dose at last, and recently he sent Powderly's name to the senate. Powderly is singularly unfit for the place.
He is a scheming demagogue, not a tactful, clear-headed man of executive ability, and he is likely to spend a good deal more time chasing phantoms of one sort or another than in a careful and effective performance of the duties of his office. The appointment is a bad one, viewed from any aspect, and one that is likely to bring the administration to end of discredit and annoyance.—Philadelphia Times.

REPUBLICAN CELEBRATION.

Over the Non-Fulfillment of Canpaign Promises.

An over-zealous Iowa republican comes forward with the suggestion for republicans everywhere to lay aside business cares the day the Dingley bill goes into effect and celebrate the event
"in every hamlet, village and city in the United States with parades and speaking, to bring before the people the fact that a republican congress and a republican president are fulfilling republican pledges."

The suggestion is logical, though nobody thought that the republican party had a follower who was foolish enough to make it. When the Dingley bill becomes a law it will be a fact that "a republican congress and a republican president are fulfilling republican pledges." The whole substance of democratic contention is that the Mc-Kinley administration, backed by the republican congress, is carrying out the pledges made as conditions precedent to success in the last campaign.

The Dingley inquiry is a fulfillment of only one of these pledges. It is true that some of the far-sighted republican leaders are now trying to save their party from the wreck and ruin sure to be wrought by the measure, but they have started too late to check the heedless fury of the short-sighted bosses who enmeshed the organization in such a network of promises to favored trusts and combines for the corrupt aid which these concerns extended to the party last fall.

Speaker Reed, for example, who had little or no influence in the party councils during the campaign, is now attempting to bring his party to a realizing sense of its own danger in following blindly the behests of the sugar trust, which will wring $25,000,000 from the American people as a reward for its assistance to McKinley if the senate amendments to the Dingley bill are permitted to stand. Even should he succeed in forcing the sugar trust to yield some of its immense profits given in the bill, the principle of shameful bargaining remains.

The party is keeping its promises not alone in the matter of tariff bounties to trusts. It also pledged itself to maintain the gold standard until European creditor nations consented for the United States to run their financial affairs to suit themselves. This pledge is being kept to the letter. The president and his advisers are indulging in much talk about "commissions" to inquire into the currency question, thereby hoping to involve the issue in an impenetrable mist of obscurity until the favored few who are profiting by present financial conditions are rewarded in accordance with ante-election pledges, and to this extent only are they exhibiting the slightest inclination to forswear promises.

One pledge, and only one, they have not lived up to is the hastening of the return of prosperity. Probably the over-zealous Iowa republican imagines himself in the full flood of returning prosperity, and can celebrate the fulfillment of this promise, too. If he can, he is the luckiest citizen in the United States to-day.—St. Louis Republic.

VICTORY IS COMING.

Signs of Growing Strength in the Democracy.

Opposition to democracy in Kentucky on the part of gold advocates, who still claim the name of democrats, is noisy but ineffectual.

Ohio presents an encouraging condition of affairs, and the friends of bimetallism and true democracy are confident of success.

In Iowa the republicans are badly frightened, and their panic is made manifest through their untruthful statements as to the political beliefs of the democratic candidate for governor. Unable to meet the arguments of their opponents, and recognizing that the hypocrisy and falsehood of their campaign promises during the last presidential contest have been fully exposed, the republicans are forced to resort to misrepresentation of the position taken by the democrats.

The situation in the three great states referred to is largely encouraging. During the presidential campaign Kentucky goldites gave 5,000 votes to Palmer and Buckner, while the democrats cast 218,000 ballots for William J. Bryan. The malodorous Breckinridge, the non-resident Carlisle, the sturdy but mistaken Buckner and the volcanic Watterson are about all there is to the gold democracy of Kentucky.
These gentlemen will make a good deal of noise, but not many votes.

Last fall they succeeded in electing a legislature that sent a republican to the senate, and for this triumph of the Watterson democracy Carlisle and Watterson are receiving the blessings of a secularized trust robbery through the Dingley tariff. Kentucky will go democratic this fall with a good, old-fashioned vote to the country, and break forever from the influence of such recreant leaders as Carlisle, Watterson and Breckinridge.

In Ohio the silver republicans and the silver populists are united with the democrats, and the fight against the Hanna influence and the Hanna dollars is going to be uncompromising. Thousands of workmen who were fooled by the republican promises last autumn are going to repudiate the republican party this fall and cast their vote for bimetalism and democracy.

Prospects for democratic victory all along the line are growing brighter every day. Republican subservency to the trusts, republican hatred of the wage-earners, republican hypocrisy and falsehood are being exposed by the over-zealous of the republican themselves, and the people are rising in revolt. Success this fall will be but the harbinger of success in 1898 and victory in 1900—Chicago Dispatch.

—It is no excuse for the president's cowardly shuffling on the currency question that his message would have been ignored had he sent it in. That might have been an excuse for postponing the matter until the regular session. But to discuss the message formally with the cabinet, to prepare it, to announce to the country that it would be sent to congress the next day, and then, under pressure from Allison and Quay, to abandon it indefinitely, was a course utterly unjustifiable. It has sadly shaken the confidence of the conservative portion of the republic in Mr. McKinley.—N. Y. Times.

MR. POWDERLY, who succeeds Mr. Stump, of Maryland, as commissioner-general of immigration, appeared at the treasury department, on the 3d, qualified and entered upon the duties of his office.

FAILURES throughout the United States for the week ended on the 6th, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., were 237, against 240 for the corresponding week of last year. For Canada the failures were 29, against 33 last year.

News from Simla is to the effect that the revolt in the Chitral is rapidly spreading. British and native Indian reinforcements are being pushed forward. Several skirmishes have been fought in which large numbers of the enemy were slain.

CARL CROHNHEIM, of Boston, has been notified of the death of his elder brother, Count Henric Julius Cronheim, without issue, and has been requested to return to Sweden and take possession of the estates. His property will give him an income of $50,000 a year.

THE Herald, of Madrid, says it understands that the United States government has decided to wait four months longer for the pacification of Cuba, and that unless it is accomplished by that time the United States will undertake the protection of the insurgents.

ON the 2d United States Senator M. S. Quay, of Pennsylvania, announced his intention of making an early trip to the Hawaiian islands, to make a careful study of the country, its prospects, and the advantages or disadvantages which will accrue to this country through annexation.

THE German government has again entered a formal protest against the application to German sugar of section five of the new tariff act, by which such sugar would be taxed with a higher duty than that from other countries, because of the payment of an export duty by that country.

CONSIDERABLE alarm has been caused in Bombay by the publication of the official statistics showing that there were 1,071 deaths there during the week ended on the 6th, of which 220 were from cholera and 18 from plague. This total death rate is equal to 65.61 per thousand, or double the normal rate.

THE congress of Nicaragua was formally opened, on the 2d, by President Zelaya. In his address to the house he said that Nicaragua was anxiously awaiting the arrival of the United States engineer commission which is to survey the route for the marine canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific across Nicaragua.

THE August grand jury of New York county, N. Y., is composed chiefly of millionaires, whose aggregate wealth is estimated at $125,000,000. The foreman of the jury is Joseph J. Kittel, a retired merchant, and among those on the list are Wm. G. Rockefeller, Horace E. Sturges, Thomas D. DeWitt, J. Stanley Isaacs and Philip Daly.

THE Industrial World, published at Chicago, said on the 5th: "Railroad companies are entering the market for large additions to equipment. A southwestern system purchased 1,000 cars last week at St. Louis, and there are inquiries at Chicago from the Illinois Central and other roads, with prospects of some extensive purchases."

THE big battleship Indiana sailed from Newport, R. I., on the 5th, for Halifax, N. S., where she will be docked, cleaned and painted. She is the first of the battleships that has been sent from the United States to a foreign dock for lack of docking facilities at home, but it is probable that others must follow before the New York dock, the only American dock capable of receiving these large war vessels, is repaired.

SILVER certificates sold on the New York stock exchange, on the 4th, at 57, and bar silver was quoted at 57 1/2 against 57 3/4, the low record of the previous week. The price of Mexican dollars also receded to 44 1/2. These are all new low price records. Bullion dealers assert that there is no especially heavy offerings of silver in the world's market to account for the continued fall in price, but that there is practically no demand.

A TERRIBLE outbreak of the great volcano of Mayon, on the Island of Luzon, one of the Philippine group, occurred on June 26, and up to July 1 no less than 500 persons were engulfed in the fiery streams of lava and destroyed, and it was expected that the number of fatalities would reach at least 1,000. Fifteen villages had been burned and the destruction of the cities of Bacana, Malipot, and Libey was thought to be certain.

JOHN MADDEN, treasurer of Modoc county, Cal., disappeared some time ago, and District Attorney Baker, believing Madden to be a defaulter for at least $35,000, has asked the board of supervisors to declare the office vacant and appoint a new treasurer.

NOT DISCOURAGED.

THE American Bimetallite Commissioners in England. Hopeful of Securing Recognition. The Importance of Their Mission Recognized by the British Ministry, and an Early Reply to Their Proposals Expected.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The British government has informed the American bimetallite commission that it will probably reply to the proposals of the commissioners on behalf of the United States in October.

The commissioners have been awaiting in London since their conference with the cabinet, and, desiring to know the exact position of England before opening negotiations with other governments, they wrote, Thursday, to the cabinet, inquiring when they might expect a decision, as they were getting anxious to arrange their future programme.

Yesterday Senator Wolcott received a reply from Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, in the course of which the chancellor expressed a fear that the government was not in a position to reply to the proposals of the envoys of the United States and the French ambassador on the question of an international agreement. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach said:

"It is due both to the importance of the subject and the manner in which it has been brought before the English ministry by the representatives of the two countries, that these proposals should be very carefully examined and considered; and this process must be somewhat prolonged, owing to the time that must necessarily be occupied in communicating with the government of India."

The chancellor adds that he cannot say with certainty how long these communications will take, but he hopes the cabinet will be ready to meet the envoys of the two nations again early in October.

While this postponement of England's decision delays the work, the American envoys do not consider it discouraging. On the contrary they consider Great Britain's interest in the question justifies them in expecting that the Indian mints will be opened. They believe that the "Times" in opposing the reopening of the Indian mints, does not represent the government, but rather the city financial circles, which are opposed to any change. The report made to the government from the mint is understood to be favorable to silver. The headquarters of the commission will remain in London until October.

Sensor Wolcott may visit Austria in the meantime and pave the way for negotiations with the Austrian government. The commissioners do not wish to approach other governments until England's attitude is settled, as her participation in the movement, if secured, will aid in enlisting others. After receiving the English reply they will go to Austria, Germany and Russia in that order.

THE DECLINE IN SILVER.

Coloratians Express Their Opinions Some Are Discouraged.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 7.—The effect of the decline in silver to 53 1/2 cents per ounce, and the probable further fall to as low as 50 cents, which seems to be conceded by those in the best position to judge, is current topic of conversation among mining men, and while some are greatly discouraged at the outlook for mining in Colorado, the general opinion seems to be that the decline of silver will have no very serious effect upon the mines, because there is comparatively little silver now mined in the state except in connection with copper, gold and lead. There is a possibility that some of the Aspen and Creede properties will shut down, but outside of these there will be little change in the situation.

EX-Gov. J. B. Grant, of the Omaha & Grant Smelter, said: "I am of the opinion that silver will continue to go down until there is a marked decrease in the production in some parts of the world, and it remains to be seen which of the silver-producing countries will give way first. If the present volume of silver production is maintained, with silver at 55 1/2, it will go lower until the supply and demand are nearer together. Of course there will come a time when it will stop falling, but I do not think that will come until there is a very marked decrease in production, unless in the meantime silver should be remonetized. One thing will result from the decline—no more new silver enterprises will be started, and there will be an increased activity in the search for gold. I also think it will have some effect upon the development of Mexico, and that no more railroads will be built to the mines of that country. It will have no serious effect upon the production of lead, for I have figured out that with lead at $3.00 and silver at 55 1/2, it is just about as profitable to the miner as when lead was $3.25 and silver 65."

EX-Senator N. P. Hill, of the Boston & Colorado smelter, thinks that the decline will be seriously felt in many quarters. "The aggregate loss will be quite large," said he. "Last year the average price paid our company for silver was 66.88 cents per ounce, and the difference between that price and to-day's quotations amounts to about $120,000 in our production of last year. In 1892 the price was much higher, and the loss compared with to-day's prices would be nearly $250,000."

IN A DILEMMA.

Has the Choice of Two Offices, and Finds It Hard to Choose.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 7.—G. R. Pray, who has been given his choice of appointment as surveyor general for Alaska or Indian commissioner, arrived in Des Moines yesterday. Mr. Pray said he had not decided which position he would accept, but would probably do so when he reached home.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Remarkable Showing for the Month of July. The Possibilities are Growing Weary—Greatest Volume of Business Reported by Clearinghouses for Five Years—Large Crops and Advancing Prices Among the Causes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Four years ago, August 5, 1893, the first number of Dun's review was issued with failures in that month amounting to over $80,000,000, while in the month just closed failures have been only $7,117,737, the smallest in any month since 1892. The statement of failures by classes of business for July and for 46 months shows that in manufacturing failures have been smaller than in any other month of the entire period; in trading smaller than in any other month except one, and in many branches of each department smaller than in most months of which records exist. The pessimists who pronounced reports of grain distillations and misrepresentations have grown weary of their dismal views, and begin to see the dawn of better days.

Last month was the first for four years of which the volume of business reported by clearinghouses was larger than the same month of 1892, and the telegraphic dispatches from all parts of the country given this week show a gratifying improvement. This is partly due to a large yield for which there is good price, though the crop is probably not as large nor are prices thus far as high as in 1892, but of cotton the price is higher, and the yield probably larger than in that year. Other farm products are realizing greater prices, and the possible decrease in yield of corn may help to take the enormous supply brought over from last year.

IT is the wrong season to expect much from industries, and yet there has been material increase in the number of hands employed in the iron manufacture, because of the satisfactory adjustment of the wage disputes with the Amalgamated association and the opening of numerous establishments which have been waiting, while the coal miners' strike seems each day more likely to end in a permanent settlement beneficial to both parties. Meanwhile, the demand for most finished products is steadily increasing, the feature this week being large pipe contracts for Russian oil fields, Sumatra and Germany. While consumption does not yet equal the capacity of the works in operation, and prices of iron and steel products average slightly lower, the situation is altogether more hopeful.

IN minor metals the consumption of tin equals the receipts, so that prices do not change, and the visible supply is practically the same as a month ago, while exports of copper have been heavy and prevent a decline of lake below 11 cents and realizing in 3.80. The sales of wool, as comparative returns by months show, bear little relation to the actual consumption in manufacture, but heavy liquidation since the new tariff bill was enacted gives the impression that some dealers are no longer confident of a speedy advance. Nevertheless prices have risen during the past few weeks nearly one cent per pound. Manufacturers are buying but little, though they are rapidly increasing the output and are able to obtain an advance of about ten per cent. in prices of goods with rapidly increasing orders. The temporary curtailment of output by cotton mills continues, but does not yet bring improved prices.

FAILURES for the week have been 237 in the United States against 240 last year, and 29 in Canada against 33 last year.

THE ALASKAN MINES.

The Chief Clerk of the San Francisco Mint Talks About Klondike Gold.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—Speaking of the Klondike output of gold, the chief clerk of the mint said:

"All the gold brought to this city from the Alaskan mines will not exceed $800,000, and all that has been taken this year and sent to other mints will not exceed $2,000,000."

"The gold from that part of the country is generally from 700 to 800 fine, and some of it ran to 900, the average being worth from $15.50 to $17 an ounce."

J. C. Butler, of the Pullman Car Co., is in receipt of a letter from R. P. Taylor, a financial broker of Seattle. A few days ago Taylor received word from some men whom he had sent to the Klondike section last spring, in which they inform him that every claim within 150 miles of Dawson City has been taken up, and that men are rushing all over the country looking for locations. He says that starvation and hardship stare many of them in the face.

Capt. Niebaum, of the Alaska Commercial Co., who has made a careful study of the situation, fears there will be a great deal of suffering in the mining regions the coming winter. He thinks the people going are far in excess of the supplies for winter.

A letter from Hart Humber, a prospector, dated Dawson City, June 18, just received, shows that the gold seekers need plenty of capital. After reaching Dawson and paying the heavy duty on his outfit, besides 30 cents a pound for getting it over Chilkoot pass, he will have to pay 25 cents a pound to get his stuff from Dawson to the diggings.

CUBAN ITEMS.

Two Surrendered Cubans to be Shot—Rich Families Leaving the Island.

KEY WEST, Fla., Aug. 7.—Casala and Mendaz, two insurgents who surrendered, will be shot in a few days.

The insurgent colonel, Gucho Montegudo, attacked and destroyed the town of Encrucijada, Santa Clara province, killing many of the enemy.

The recent attacks in the outskirts of Havana have caused great alarm, and the few rich families that remain are leaving for Spain, France and the United States.

A PREHISTORIC RIVER.

Its Ancient Bed Is Now the Deposit of Rich Gold.

THERE is another source of Coeur d'Alene placer gold even more potent than the decomposing ledges with which the country is bound together, and that is the old wash. Beginning near Raven, and running down on the sidehill north of Murray and Eagle City, clear across the North Fork, and still on westward for an unknown distance, is the old wash. What the stream that created it, whence its source nor whither it flowed, no man knows. Perhaps primeval man floated his boat upon its waters, and with his stone weapons endeavored to slay the mastodon resting beneath the shade of the tropic verdure that lined its banks. Everything regarding the era or nature of the stream flowing there is more conjecture, but some things regarding it are well known. One is that it was a stream of no mean proportions. For a quarter of a mile in width the bedrock is covered with the rounded gravel washed smooth by its waters during the ages that it existed, and even after the countless years since its springs dried up at their source, or some convulsion of nature turned it into other channels, have been washing the easily rolled stones down the mountain sides, they are still 125 feet in depth—perhaps more in places. Another thing certain about the old river is that its source was far away beyond the Coeur d'Alene mountains or the Bitter Roots, that hedge them on the east, for in great quantities among the gravel now choking its old bed are huge boulders of a rock that is entirely foreign to this region. Resembling a mixture of sandstone and quartz, if such a mixture can be imagined, it is a rock that is unmistakable, and nowhere within more than 100 miles around is it found in any place except the channels of present or prehistoric streams.

Another thing known regarding the old river, more potent than all else, except, perhaps, to the student, is the fact that it traversed a country interspersed with gold-bearing ledges, parts of which are picked up and brought down with its gravel. Everywhere that the old channel has been cut it has been found rich in gold. Many of the smaller gulches about Murray were rich up to the point where they had been cut through the old channel, and above it their gravel was barren of the yellow metal.

THE most economical way to handle this old wash was by hydraulic mining, but water was too scarce for more than the few to do this, and many others have taken the slower way of drifting. With gravel spreading from 50 to 500 yards in width, and varying from five to one hundred and fifty feet in depth, probably one-half of the gold would lie in a strip a rod wide and within five feet of bed rock. So while the hydraulic miners would proceed to move the whole mass, wash it down the hill and sifting out every particle of gold, the drift miner has taken his more laborious method and none the less surely secured for himself a competence if he possessed the faculty of saving what came into his hands.—Spokane Spokesman.

COST OF ARTIFICIAL LIGHTS.

Electricity Is Cheaper Than Any Other Form of Illumination.

THE director of the Electrical company of Cologne has made a comparison of the cost of the different sorts of artificial light, reduced to the same standard of illuminating power. As the cost of materials for illuminating varies in different localities, he has taken the price of coal gas at 91 cents per 1,000 cubic feet; of alcohol, for use in incandescent lamps, at 30 cents a gallon, of coal oil at 15 cents a gallon, and of electricity at 1 1/2 cents per kilowatt. Supposing the "mantles" of the incandescent gas burners to last 400 hours and to cost 50 cents each and other apparatus to have the average life, he finds the most expensive ordinary light to be that from incandescent lamps, which costs ten cents per hour for a given amount of illumination.

NEXT comes the light from ordinary gas burners, with openings in the form of slits, which costs six cents for the same illumination. Argand burners are, light for light, about 20 per cent. more economical than the other sort. Next to these come incandescent lamps burning alcohol, which give light at half the price of the ordinary gas burner. Ordinary coal oil lamps give light much more cheaply, the cost per unit of illumination being little more than one-fifth that of incandescent electric light, but the modern gas lights with incandescent mantles are still more economical, furnishing for 1 1/2 cents per hour the same amount of illumination as incandescent electric lamps at ten cents. Electric are lamps are about ten per cent. more economical still and are the cheapest sources of artificial light at present known to us.—American Architect.

The Queen's Bracelets.

WE are told that since the death of Prince Albert the queen never wears other bracelets than two, each with an enamel setting for portraits. On her right arm is that bearing the likeness of the prince consort, and in that on the left her majesty has for years always worn the portrait of her youngest descendant. Frequent have been the changes in this bracelet since the days when the present German emperor's baby features appeared upon it. His youngest son has quite recently been deposed from his position in the queen's bracelet by the little Greek prince, infant son of Princess Sophie of Germany, now duchess of Sparta.—Chicago Tribune.

A Woman's Comfort.

"These stripes," sighed the convict, "make a man feel small."

The kind woman, who had come into the darkness place to cheer him, smiled radiantly.

"Only think," she urged, "how much worse they would be if they ran the other way."—Detroit Journal.

ABDUCTION CLUBS.

Stealing of the Kennedy Heiresses and Its Unfortunate Ending.

THE express object of the abduction clubs was the forcible carrying off of rich heiresses, and their marriage under duress to husbands chosen from their captors. During the seventeenth century, when protracted wars and penal persecution had impoverished many old and honored houses, Ireland became overrun with the class known as "squireens"—younger sons or brothers of land-holding gentry, who were for the most part very poorly endowed with the world's goods.

IN 1773 two young ladies made their appearance upon the Irish social horizon who combined in themselves the rare attributes of considerable wealth and great beauty. They were Katherine and Anne Kennedy, daughters of a County Waterford squire of large estate, Mr. Kennedy, of Rathmearham manor. A meeting of the South Leinster abduction club was called and lots were drawn for the heiress. The lucky (or,

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

GIVES a good price for cotton, and it is all up with Bryanism in the South—Register.

THE crowds in attendance on the commissioners' court this week were proof of the fact that when you touch a man's pocketbook you arouse his interest.

THEY spell it Klondike, Klondyke, Klondike, and Klondyke. The Board of Geographic Names should be called together by the President at once to settle this thing.

MR. BRYAN is actually being charged with the passage of the tariff bill. They can not answer his free-silver arguments and have to confine themselves with trying to draw attention away from them to something that does not exist.

THE premier of Spain was assassinated on Sunday last. It is believed that his death will change the aspect of affairs in that country and especially in its attitude toward Cuba. It may result in the complete settlement of the entire matter in favor of the Cubans.

WE are in receipt of the proceedings of the Alabama Industrial and Scientific Society. The title page shows it was printed by an Atlanta firm. We doubt the effectiveness of any Alabama society that has its printing done outside the State. To go to build up a community is to go abroad for only such things as cannot be gotten at home.

WHEN THE CHRONICLE said in a recent issue that Senator Morgan was above the suspicion of any except the prejudiced and ignorant it did not mean to charge the Advertiser with ignorance. It gives every evidence of that degree of prejudice which is only dangerous when paraded before the ignorant. We trust this statement of our meaning will satisfy our brother.

PERHAPS Senator Morgan will reach the Hawaiian Islands in time to see the American flag raised. If such should be the case, he would be the happiest man alive.—Advertiser.

RIGHT you are, brother. The old man is thoroughly American, and he is never happier than when he is defending the American flag, fighting the battles of the American people, or guarding the interests of American institutions.

IT strikes us that Mr. Waller, of Hale, placed himself in a very ridiculous attitude when he charged that he only voted for the back-tax law when he was assured by those high in authority that the law was only intended to be executed against the city people and the corporations. A man who would vote for a measure for such a reason is in just as pitiable a light as those who gave the assurance.

A STRIKE was experienced in Atlanta last week because white girl operatives were forced to work in the same room with negroes. It resulted in the company acceding to the demands for separation. Organized labor is getting to be a power in this country, and its just demands are beginning to be respected. It has only to throw off the influence of the employer at the ballot box to be in a position to better its condition very materially.

ONE thing about the gold Democrats, they are not looking for any place to please the public; they can therefore well afford to allow patronage politics to get on as it will. The other fellows may do the worrying on that score.—Center News.

OUR brother is very much mistaken. We know of a good many gold Democrats who are seeking positions under the present administration. One of these was a candidate for Congress in this State on the gold ticket. They know their course helped the Republican ticket and they are asking a reward for their services.

THERE is a paper published down at Montgomery called the Monitor, edited by one of those soreheaded cranks who can only compose editorial by calling people names. Out of seven columns of these so-called editorials you might scrape together one column of sense, but it would be a hard job. This pretense for an editor pays his respects to THE CHRONICLE in his last issue, though how he got hold of a copy of this paper we can not imagine. We have no reply to make to his column of rot; we only discuss questions with people who clothe their articles with some degree of decency and good sense.

SENATOR Morgan is lucky with commissions abroad under Republican administrations. Mr. Harrison sent him to the Paris conference on the fisheries question, and now under Mr. McKinley's administration he is to go to Haiti to help along annexation. But he never helped along the projects of a Democratic administration, even when they were pledged to the party's national platform.—Advertiser.

SOME men more quickly recognize merit and ability than others. It is altogether Mr. Cleveland's fault, that he did not have Senator Morgan's aid in his administration. Mr. Cleveland preferred to call for aid on Republicans and capitalists, as was evidenced by his selection of a secretary of state and in his bond deal, to listening to the advice of his own party leaders. His administration would have been much more Democratic and much more successful had he accepted the aid of Mr. Morgan and some other Democrats.

THE TAX RAISES.

The new tax law has not seemed to work very well in this county, and it is very hard to place the fault, whether it is in the law itself or in the execution. There is, in this county, as in all others, and evident necessity for the better equalization of the taxes; some valuations are placed too low, and a great many people see in the law a good remedy for a very great evil. Judging from the crowd of people before the court this week, the tax commissioner has made a great many raises, and while that official was not present to present the evidence to sustain his action, there is a strong sentiment that he has made the raises more upon general principles than upon any personal knowledge or definite information concerning the lands in question. A great many people feel that they have been put to needless trouble and expense in appearing, when they have placed their lands at a fair valuation. It is clearly the intention of the law that the tax commissioner shall present evidence to sustain his raises, but whether he will be able to do this remains to be seen.

A careful reading of the law shows an evident intention on the part of its framers to provide for an equitable adjustment of the inequalities of taxation, and possibly when the law has been given a fair and proper trial it will be found to work very well.

It seems to us that to be successful the tax commissioner should be thoroughly familiar with the lands of the county, or have some definite information upon which to base his raises; otherwise he would fail in his efforts and cause the people much trouble and expense. The commissioner for this county is doubtless prepared in many instances to support his action with proper evidence, while in other instances he has doubtless acted on his judgment rather than personal or other information.

The law should be given an impartial trial before it is condemned.

ALABAMA INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

A movement is on foot in Birmingham to secure the armor plate plant, the erection of which is contemplated by the government. As is well known, the Secretary of the Navy is now investigating the ground, and the refusal of the Carnegie and Bethlehem plants to supply armor plate at the figure proposed by the navy authorities is expected to precipitate matters. Now that steel has been made successfully, there is nothing in the world to stand in the way of Birmingham being the site of the first armor plate plant of the national government.—Dixie Home.

The Providence (R. I.) Journal says in a recent issue: "Alabama is now the only section of the country which exports basic iron at a good profit. The addition of basic steel to its products, which has now been accomplished, is therefore an important event and marks the era of some new business for the State. The Rockefeller-Carnegie combination must be alert if it would catch up with the manufacturers at Birmingham."

A well-known ore operator was recently heard to say:

"I never knew the prospects of the Birmingham district to be better than they are now. With the settlement of all our wage difficulties and our coal mines running at full tilt as the result of that settlement, with the inauguration of the manufacture of steel, with our foundry and machine shops booking large orders for sugar mill and other machinery, Birmingham looks into the future with a brighter face than she has for three years."—Dixie Home.

The Demopolis Express of last week published a resume of the work that has been done in that town within the last two years. It footed up in round numbers to $210,000. There is now a plan on foot for the erection of a carriage and wagon factory. Messrs. Knox, Webb, Deffen and other prominent men are at the head of the movement, which is considered a surety of its ultimate success.

Alexander City is right in the push in a building way. She far eclipses any Alabama town her size in this particular.—Alexander City Outlook.

The Montgomery Advertiser says: There is so much building going on now that it is growing contagious—talk of a magnificent new modern hotel is being revived.

Jerome Hill, general agent of the American Cotton Company, has closed a deal with a prominent Alabamian for a double cylindrical bale press in Montgomery; also for presses at Selma. A plant at Huntsville is being rapidly built for this press.

The American Oak Extract Company at Decatur is now working full time and employing about 100 men. All the buildings for the big tannery, which will be the largest in the world, are nearly completed, and will be ready for operation by early fall. This alone will employ 600 men.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company is ready to receive the congratulations of its friends. For the first time since the panic of 1903 its statement of gross earnings compares favorably with the figures that were recorded before the panic. The fourth week of July shows an increase over the same week in 1902 in all three departments of freight, passenger and miscellaneous service. The totals for the whole year show an increase over every year except 1902, but the present rate of gain is sufficient to prove that shortly the record of that great year will be surpassed. This will be remembered, is the statement in money. Rates on freight are less than in 1902, so it is fair to conclude that the gross business handled is even now greater for 1902 than for 1902.—Mobile Register.

Reduced Rates via Southern Railway, to Washington, Richmond, and Norfolk.

On August 12, 1903, and 14, 1903, Southern Railway will sell round trip tickets to Washington, D. C., Richmond, Va., and Norfolk, Va., and return at rate of one fare for the round trip. Tickets good to return fifteen days from date of sale.

This will afford an excellent opportunity not only to visit these three cities but also Eastern cities at small cost.

Call on any agent of the Southern Railway for further information.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

We are sure every mother in this town feels the importance of getting our little ones properly started in life, and this starting point begins in infancy. So come, by all means, to the kindergarten meeting.

One of the objections we have heard against Governor Johnston's administration is the pardoning of so many criminals. We have not inquired or taken particular notice of these cases except that of Lottie Jemison, of Talladega. The only surprising feature or mistake in that case is that a pardon was not granted sooner. In fact, it is a disgrace that any court convicted her. Governor Johnston has no doubt endeavored himself to all justice-loving and right-minded people in this one act of pardon and the reasons he assigns for doing so. We have often heard it remarked that Alabama has the best laws of any State in the Union for the protection of woman and her property rights; and this step of the Governor inspires us with the hope that we may expect clemency, justice and reason from our chief executive. Our women will do well to note this down in the front columns of their memorandum. True we have no voice in who shall be Governor or who shall not be, but it is well for us to mark out who is going to be our friend when he is Governor. The men have been having such things as these their own way about long enough, and the sooner our women demonstrate their gratitude for signs of relief the better for them.

The New York Journal and many other papers have for months been passing judgment on American heiresses for marrying foreigners with a title, most of whom are men of dissipation and exceedingly bad morals. When Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt and Miss Mary Leiter married foreigners with very little more than a title the press of our country stirred a considerable noise over these events. It strikes us there is something wrong when our girls turn their backs upon American men and upon short acquaintances with men of foreign birth link their destinies with them. They decide they must get married, look over their list of proposals (for an heiress always has a supply of those), and these men may possess wealth, intellect, education, and social standing—if he has the former he has the latter—but there is an undercurrent of dissipation, a quiet notoriety of his deeds that are black as midnight. Our girls become familiar with them, too familiar with these facts to feel that she can be happy with him. She shuts her eyes to the possibilities of the foreigner who is suing for her hand in marriage. She at least has not been breathing the air of this dark undercurrent of his private life, so reaches forth her hand to him, and off she goes across the water with her charming self, her accomplishments, and her money. Young women, you can do better than this. Stand firm on American soil and demand a higher standard of morals for boys and young men, and do not sacrifice that demand by excusing, looking over, and pardoning them when they trespass after warning. You possess the moral right of this demand, and see to it that you stand your ground and at no distant day they will meet your demands. Our boys and young men have not been properly taught that they are trespassing on your rights. When they see their folly and the retribution that will follow your injunction, there will be, in our opinion, a revolution in their lines and conduct. And let this demand go forth among rich and poor, and if our girls are very few who inherit much money they will make better and happier wives, and the spirit of happiness and contentment will rule over our homes.

Administrator's Sale of Real Estate.

Under and by virtue of a decree of sale which was rendered by the honorable probate court of Shelby County on the 12th day of January, 1903, the undersigned, as administrator de bonis non of the estate of John W. Hardy, deceased, will offer for sale and proceed to sell, in the town of Calera, Shelby County, Ala., on Monday, August 23, 1903, the following-described real estate, to-wit: All the stone, wood, and timber in and upon the east half of the northeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 24, and the stone, wood, and timber on the southeast fractional quarter of said section 24, excepting forty acres of the east end, formerly belonging to Hiram Butler; all in township 22 of range 3 west, situated in Shelby County, Ala.

The terms of the sale will be one-third cash and balance on a credit of one year from the date of sale, secured by note with good and sufficient sureties.

LOMAX PITTMAN, Administrator de bonis non of John W. Hardy.

Non-Residents Notice.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY. In Chancery at Columbiana, Sixth district, Northeastern Chancery division.

E. C. McKeever, complainant, vs. Alabama Iron and Steel Co., et al., defendants.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of J. M. Reynolds, that the defendants, to-wit:

Justin S. Morrill, who resides in the state of Vermont, whose place of residence is not better known; Samuel Thomas, who resides in the state of Pennsylvania, but place of residence is not better known; Carrie S. Plumb, who resides in the city of Emporia, in the state of Kansas; M. S. Pomeroy, who resides in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia; Central Trust Company, a corporation under the laws of the state of New Jersey and its principal place of business is in the city of New York, N. Y., and that all of said parties are non-residents of the state of Alabama, and further, that in the belief of said plaintiff, the defendants are over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in THE CHRONICLE, a newspaper published in Columbiana, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring the said Justin S. Morrill, Samuel Thomas, Carrie S. Plumb, M. S. Pomeroy, and Central Trust Company to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 24 day of August, A. D. 1903, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against them.

Dated at office in Columbiana this 8th day of July, A. D. 1903.

J. R. White, Register.

8 pounds Levering Roasted Coffee for $1.00 at J. H. Hammond's.

Miss S. J. Todd, of Plantersville, is a guest of W. G. Parker's family.

Miss Ella Bridges is quite sick. We hope soon to chronicle her recovery.

Mr. Walker, of Jacksonville, is a guest of his daughter, Mrs. T. J. Weaver.

Mr. Bliss, of the firm of Elliott & Bliss, Childersburg, was in the city yesterday.

J. B. Adams, of Longview, was in the city in attendance on the commissioners' court.

Miss Leila Parker, who has been on an extended visit to Calera, returned home Monday.

Miss Kate Seybrook, of Childersburg, is a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Laura Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. McDaniel, of Birmingham, visited friends in our city Wednesday last.

Mrs. Walter Meroney, and family, of Avondale, are spending some time with relatives here.

Frank Nelson, president of the Bank of Anniston, was in the city this week visiting friends and relatives.

Ex-Gov. R. W. Cobb was here this week representing the people in the matter of the tax raises.

The crowd in attendance upon commissioners' court was nearly as large as that on the day of the reunion.

Among the citizens of Shelby present at commissioners' court were W. H. Bell, Geo. Avery and A. F. Smith.

Mrs. McGee, who has been a guest of her daughter, Mrs. W. G. Parker, returned to her home in Stanton Monday.

Mr. Morris, of the Saginaw Lumber Co., was in town Monday, representing his company before the commissioners' court.

Rev. T. M. Wilson, assisted by Rev. Henry Millstead and John Milner, is carrying on his protracted meeting at Good Hope this week.

E. T. Witherby furnishes us a more complete report of the Sunday School Convention, which is published in another column.

Everybody call at J. E. Scale's & Co.'s or The Hall Drug Co.'s stores and get a dream book and a free sample of Dr. Hartner's Little Liver Pills.

The Advocate, of this place, has changed managers, Mr. H. M. Norris taking the place of Major Pitts. It is not known yet who will edit the paper.

You may have the world over you will not find another medicine equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. It is pleasant, safe and reliable. For sale by J. E. Scale & Co. Druggists.

The first open ball of cotton was received in this office last week, just after going to press. It was sent in by J. C. Crawley, of the Kingdom, and was open on the 3rd instant.

The watermelon crop is very plentiful, but the melons are small. The finest lot of the season was brought in Saturday by C. W. Archer and bought by J. H. Hammond.

On Monday next, August 16, Dr. G. W. Shackelford, dentist, will practice three days at the White House, Columbiana. He extracts teeth by a painless process. All dental work first class and warranted. Call on him.

FROM MORO CASTLE.

A Tale of Varied and Interesting Experiences.

A young man by the name of Murphy landed in our city Tuesday who has had a very varied experience for the past few weeks.

He left Chicago, his home, and wandered down into Florida. On the coast he got acquainted with two sailors who invited him to sail with them to Key West. He accepted, and while enroute a storm blew them out of their bearings. They landed, after six days of hard battle with wind and wave, in the harbor of Havana, where they were once arrested and thrown into prison by the Spanish authorities on the charge of filibustering. They were sentenced to be shot, and lay in Moro Castle for four days under sentence of death, when Consul-General Lee secured their release. After a few days of unsuccessful effort to get the proper clearance papers they stole out at night and sailed away in their little craft for Key West. Arriving there they were arrested for violation of the quarantine laws and held in custody for six days. Murphy was finally sent to Mobile and is now making his way back to his home.

When asked by a CHRONICLE man of his experience in the now famous Moro Castle he said that he did not see how anyone could live there a month. He was given warm water for breakfast, weak bean soup for dinner, and water for supper. He lay in a cell hewn out of the solid rock, with only a small airhole in a solid iron door, and nothing but the floor for a bed. Every hour in the night he had to answer the call of the sentry.

When asked if he suffered from the thought of his impending doom, he replied that he suffered more from hunger. He lost 32 pounds of flesh during his trip of a couple of weeks, and is very glad to get back under the Stars and Stripes.

He speaks encouragingly of the condition of the Cubans, and reports that they are in possession of the entire island except the city of Havana. They are well armed and feel that the accomplishment of their liberty is near at hand.

The young man gives many good reasons, gathered from his observations, why the Cubans should win their fight for freedom; and in a highly intelligent manner gives an interesting account of his trip.

NOTES.

All the ladies of Columbiana who have children from 24 to 6 years of age are requested to meet at the residence of Mrs. D. R. McMillan on Saturday afternoon next at 4 o'clock to discuss the advisability of a kindergarten class. We trust none will overlook or neglect to attend this meeting. Will those unable to attend send a note or message saying whether they favor the idea and how many children they could send at a tuition rate of $1.50 per month.

We had the pleasure of a call from Capt. J. L. Walchall, of Birmingham, on Tuesday, who is here attending the commissioners' court in the interest of Boston and New York parties. The Captain speaks enthusiastically as to the future of Birmingham. The question of steel making is no longer a matter of doubt, which means the erection, in the near future, of various plants in and around Birmingham for the manufacture of nearly everything made of iron and steel, in which will be included axes, hoes, plows, pocket and table cutlery, scissors, etc. The Captain thinks that as soon as the smelter is in operation, and that is very near, the city will be filled with visitors looking for investments and locations for residence. He says Birmingham is not expecting anything like a "boom," but that evidences are already in sight of a gradual but substantial progress all along the line. A number of splendid business houses are now in course of construction, and many handsome residences are going up in various parts of the city and suburban towns.

I positively will not sell any goods where bills past due remain unpaid.
J. H. HAMMOND.

Prof. R. A. Rasco, of the Six Mile Normal Institute, was in the city yesterday. The advertisement of this school appears in this issue. This is a successor to the Six Mile Male and Female Academy, which Capt. R. H. Pratt made so famous. The two gentlemen now in charge are keeping up the standard of the school, and their patrons will be more than pleased with their instruction.

The following is the jury drawn for the August term of the county court, which meets on the 23d: S. Evans, S. D. Cox, J. W. Dunson, J. V. Shrader, G. B. Monroe, J. H. Jones, C. C. Bailey, W. G. Lee, Tom Hill, L. W. Patton, J. W. Morrow, A. M. Doss, C. A. Bowles, J. A. Honeycutt, F. M. Ellison, J. F. May, J. L. Wright, C. C. Coats, J. O. Moore, J. W. Horton, T. E. Coshart, W. F. Adams, S. M. Roberson, J. P. Spencer.

A novelty in the way of a watermelon was presented to us by Nolan Barnett, of this place. The rind is a bright clear yellow and very thin. The meat is red and as good tasted as the average melon. He has raised several this year, and expects next season to increase the size.

Mr. C. L. Hasbrouck, a druggist at Mendon, Mich., says all of the good testimonials that have been published by the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy could be duplicated in that town. For sale by J. E. Scale & Co. Druggists.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Action taken by the City Fathers on Saturday Last.

A meeting of the mayor and city council was had last Saturday with a full board present.

After passing upon several bills and ordering them paid, a motion was made to elect a board of school examiners. The motion prevailed and Professor Mynatt, C. J. Christian, J. H. Hammond and Henry Milner were elected as a board.

A motion was carried that colored teachers applying for position in the colored school who have no licenses be requested to procure the same at once.

The existing danger from smallpox was fully discussed by the council, and after consultation with several physicians, who were present, the following resolution was adopted:

It is earnestly requested by the board of mayor and aldermen that all persons who are citizens of Columbiana and vicinity call on their family physician and be vaccinated at once.

The following ordinance was adopted:

AN ORDINANCE.

Be it ordered by the Mayor and Council of Columbiana That all loading on the streets of Columbiana is hereby forbidden, and all persons coming within the city limits from places infected with smallpox are hereby forbidden to remain inside said limits. All persons violating the provision of this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be fined not less than $5 or more than $25, and may also be sentenced to hard labor for the city, not more than 30 days, or both, at the discretion of the mayor. This ordinance shall go into effect at once.

County Sunday School Convention.

The Seventeenth Annual Convention of the Shelby County Sunday School Association was held at Ebenezer church, in the Cahaba Valley, July, 30 and 31, 1897. It was assembled by the president at 10:30 a. m., Friday, and W. L. Butler elected secretary pro tem.

The enrollment of the delegates, some fifty outside of the home school, and the attendance on the sessions of the convention, three hundred, marked a greater interest than has yet been manifested in organization.

The pastors and superintendents were present in goodly numbers and took an active part.

The questions, How to study next Sunday's lesson? How to conduct? Who should superintend? Who teach? and Who attend the Sunday school? together with the importance of keeping open all the year, the duty of the pastor to the school, and the use of the blackboard, were developed in interesting detail.

The teacher who was present was thoroughly equipped to teach next Sunday's lesson, "St Paul in Corinth." The Convention is to be held at Chapel church next year, and all teachers are urged to assemble there that they may know and feel the benefits that come from organization.

The pastors and superintendents who get weary in the year's work are invited to consider whether they can afford to miss the inspiration and uplift that comes from these convocations.

The hospitality of the people of Ebenezer was unbounded and left nothing to be desired. No one would have surmised from the reception accorded the delegates that this gathering was the last of nearly a month's entertaining on the part of the noble women upon whom these burdens so largely fall. In all this heartiness and cordiality the brethren bore a generous part, showing us a river clear as crystal flowing from this Ebenezer, stream of help, fit emblem of their exhaustless generosity.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, I. D. Mason, Columbiana; vice-president, Wm. Richards, Siluria; secretary and treasurer, E. T. Witherby, Shelby. Executive committee—John F. Avery, Shelby, chairman; D. R. McMillan, Columbiana; A. H. Avery, Shelby; J. L. Ruffin, Montevallo; W. H. Kidd, Vincent; J. R. White, Columbiana; J. H. Nabors, Siluria.

We Want Agents.

THE CHRONICLE desires an agent at every post-office in the county—one who will send the local news and increase the subscription list. To anyone who will act in this capacity we offer 10 per cent for collections and 25 per cent for new subscribers. We shall be glad to hear from those who have the time and inclination to do this work, which, with the proper effort, ought to be reasonably profitable. Write for the present list at your office, from which to make collections, see that all your neighbors have an opportunity of subscribing. Send us the news, and we will all be benefited by a small effort.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
 2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
 3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
 4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
 5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemic dysentery.
 6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of Cholera infantum.
 7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
 8. Because it produces no bad results.
 9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
 10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.
- The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. E. Scale & Co. Druggists.

Professor Mynatt, the newly elected principal of the school here, was in town last week. He will open the school next month, and we are assured by his previous record that he will make a success of it.

Calera Cullings.

Notwithstanding the continued rains, warm mornings, and abundance of watermelons and other fruit, the town is remarkably healthy.

The Calera base ball team went to Anniston last Tuesday and played Anniston's team two games, losing the first by a score of 6 to 7, and winning the second by 9 to 7.

Some burglar entered the residence of Mr. J. B. Randall last Friday night and stole his fine watch. John Anos, a young negro noted in this place from childhood as a petty thief, was arrested and placed in the lockup on suspicion.

Several violations of city ordinances have suffered penalties assessed in such cases since my last.

There was no preaching service at any of the churches on Sunday.

Mr. Wm. Blake, who it was feared was dangerously hurt last week, was able to be up town Saturday.

Judge Campbell returned to Calera Saturday night, after an absence of ten days visit to relatives in Montgomery.

It was reported that several loads of melons sold from the wagons at 2 cents each on Saturday.

"Jim" Garner, Chilton County's staunch free silver democrat, was in town Friday and Saturday with melons. Don't think he got much silver for them.

Mr. Eli Barefield, a former citizen of Calera, now of Dry Valley, was a visitor here last Saturday.

J. M. Reynolds, Esq., of Montevallo, was in the city Friday on professional business.

The wife of the editor of THE CHRONICLE passed through Calera Saturday en route home from West Calera, where she had been on business.

Mr. Whittaker, one of the managers of the prospective immigration paper, had the misfortune to fall and seriously strain his right ankle one day last week. We are glad to state, however, that he is able to be out by the use of crutches.

Copy for the catalogue of the Calera High School is, we learn, in the hands of the printer. The school board at its session this week elected Miss Leila Parker, of Columbiana, and Miss Howard, of Autauga County, as assistant teachers. These young ladies come highly recommended, and with Professor Slaton as principal, Calera will have a fine school—something she needs. The school board, which is composed of the city council, will probably select teachers for the colored school at its meeting this week. This duty was postponed at the last meeting on account of the numerous applicants for the positions before them.

From Lewis and Fourmile.

Jas. L. Riddle has been very sick for a few days, but is at this writing thought to be convalescing.

J. W. Taylor and family, of near Wilsonville, visited relatives on Fourmile Sunday.

Mrs. Mary E. Riddle is very sick. We hope she may soon recover.

We are pleased to note the return of Miss Mary Finley, of near Columbiana, to our summer school, after an absence of a week and a half.

John Brasier, who is attending our summer school, visited homefolks at Vandiver Saturday and Sunday.

Several of our primitive brethren attended the three days meeting at Ebenezer Friday, Saturday, and Sunday last.

Miss Mary Burgess, of Sylacauga, after a two months' sojourn among relatives and friends on Fourmile, returned to her home Saturday.

Prof. Joe Horsley, of Union, Yellow Leaf, spent Saturday on Fourmile.

The protracted meeting held at Fourmile church week before last, closed on Friday night, with 13 accessions to the church, 4 by letter, 9 by confession of faith.

J. E. Dykes and wife, of Waxahatchie, spent Thursday and Saturday night on Fourmile, going and coming from Ebenezer.

Our school patrons have decided and agreed to erect a new school house and have a school equal to any village school. Why can't we as good substantial citizens, with the teacher we now have, have a school to compare with our neighboring towns?

Some of our young people are attending the protracted meeting at Center Hill this week.

The protracted meeting at Blue Spring M. E. church, conducted by Brother Parish, of Wilsonville, will begin next Sunday.

Jesse Lyon and Karl Jackson, of Fourmile, are constant visitors to Jackson's Mill.

Leonard D. Riddle paid Vincent a business visit Saturday.

Mr. Albright, of Lewis, was happily married, for the third time, to Miss Robertson, of Yellow Leaf. We wish them well.

John W. Spearman attended the baptizing services at Liberty Sunday. Mr. Bolin's son-in-law, Mr. Wilby, of Atlanta, while visiting his father-in-law, came out Friday to see his saw mill location.

W. E. Riddle went to Columbiana Monday on business.

Gaule and Will Tinney, of Columbiana, visited friends on Fourmile last week.

Mr. Bolin's saw mill one-half mile west of Lewis has broken down; his engine is out of repair, but will soon be in full blast again.

J. E. Jackson, of Fourmile, has bought a small farm near Sylacauga and will perhaps move there in the near future.

ONE OF WE.

Montevallo Murmurs.

We now have two livery stables, two new hotels, and will soon have a bank; have two regular hack lines running between town and the depot. The fare has been reduced from 50 cents a round trip to 25 cents. We think that in a short time it will be free, with a chrome attached.

Mrs. M. A. Holbrook is a visitor in the city, after an absence of several years.

Col. W. W. Wadsworth, of Wadsworth, and Capt. T. S. Howman, member of Congress from this district, both members of the executive committee of the Girls Industrial School, spent two days in the city on business connected with the school. Both of these gentlemen are always welcome visitors.

Messrs. Barbour and Stockton, of Birmingham, the first named of whom has the contract for steam heating, water, and fire escapes for Girls Industrial School, are here preparing for getting in their work.

Rev. P. L. Abernathy and Mr. J. D. Farrington, who have been in Birmingham, in attendance on Mr. Thomas Moore, have returned, and report we are pleased to learn, that Mr. Moore will probably recover from the wounds inflicted on him.

Col. E. F. Vest, high sheriff of Shelby County, was in the city Friday and Saturday inviting the boys to come up to the Captain's office in September for settlement of old scores.

While the Colonel has a great many friends in this vicinity, somehow or other it makes a fellow feel sorter ticklish for the sheriff to get hold of his hand, for you don't always exactly know whether he will turn it loose easy.

Col. Joe H. Harris, an old time Montevallo boy, now of Piedmont, Ala., and President Manning, of the Dear, Dumb and Blind School of Alabama, at Talladega, were on a visit to friends in Montevallo last Monday.

Montevallo is making a strong fight against the introduction of smallpox into our town. Free vaccination is offered to everyone; J. C. Harris is quarantine officer, and is doing his whole duty; meets all the trains, and has guards on all the roads leading into town.

There is considerable complaint on the tax-raising question, and a great deal of kicking against it, and the law authorizing same.

The building boom continues without abatement; more houses and more folks to occupy them. President Reynolds has let the contract for a 12-room residence, work to commence at once.

President Reynolds has just left for a general tour of the State in the interest of the Industrial School, not that it needs any "drumming," but so many people want to learn more about and have requested him to visit various towns to give the people an opportunity to hear all about the working of the school.

S. A. Curry, of Dry Valley, W. W. McCollum, of Brierfield, Zeke Eddings, of Concord, Pleas Shaw, of Aldrich, and T. H. Alexander, of Elliottsville, were in the city Monday.

Miss Osie Wilson and Mrs. Wm. Dean, of Fayetteville, were present at the DuBoise-Bolin nuptials.

Born, August 3, to Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Pope, a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilby, of Atlanta, arrived in the city some time ago to visit relatives, also to witness the marriage of the latter's sister.

We did not misstate facts when we chronicled the election of Professor Sox as principal of the free school. Professor Mathews, of Clay County is now principal, Professor Sox being ineligible on the Greek score.

Mrs. Pope came down from Oxford last week to visit her son and family.

Bird Naird is the father of a girl who was born on August 6.

Professor Greek, of your town, was in our city a few fleeting moments last week.

Miss Nellie Parker is to reach Wilsonville the latter part of this week to spend a while with different lady friends.

Wilsonville has been well represented at the protracted meeting now in progress at Major Wallace's school house. The meeting has been going on for ten days and will probably close soon.

Free gratis work on our streets was begun Tuesday. Pitch in and help put the streets in order and the mayor will perhaps discount your fine if you should happen to get in the jug while trying to keep out of the ditches.

The last week's issue of THE CHRONICLE contained a brief, though definite account of the DuBoise-Bolin wedding. We therefore deem it unnecessary to supplement anything to the previous article.

Mr. J. J. Henderson was in town last week securing men to cut cross ties for the new railroad passing through Maplesville and Tuscaloosa.

Claude Jackson was in Shelby Friday having some work done on the saw mill machinery.

YUKON GOLD FIELDS.

Events Which Led Up to the Present Boom.

The route to Klondike-Hardships to be Encountered-Surprising Figures as to Distances-Cost of Living.

The excitement caused by the discoveries of gold in large quantities along the Klondike river and the waters tributary to it, near the Alaskan boundary, has aroused a spirit of wealth-hunting which will not be allayed for many a day. Determination to become possessed of the riches of the cold and dreary Yukon basin has impelled thousands to go forth, in many instances with very imperfect preparation, to secure the yellow metal, which, it is known, this region so largely conceals. The gold fever has taken such a hold along the Pacific coast that breathless haste to reach this new land of promise has dominated all considerations of prudence and even of safety. The tales told by miners returned from the Klondike fittingly rival the stories of California's golden period.

As far back as 1860 a deposit of gold was found in the basin of the Yukon by a prospector named George Hott. He also reported the finding of coarse specimens along the Hootalingqua river. But it was the discovery of gold near Sitka in 1873, followed by the finds in the vicinity of Juneau in 1880, that drew attention to the possibilities of the newly-acquired territory of Alaska as a gold-producing country. The great abundance of gold was first made known by Joseph Juneau, who prospected in the region around the city bearing his name. In 1885 mining prospectors began to scatter themselves along the Klondike and the Yukon rivers, and in the year following much mention was made of the Stewart river as a field for the enterprising gold hunter. Rich strikes were made in 1892 by prospectors along Miller creek, a tributary of Sixty Mile creek. The progress made in finding gold along the Alaskan and British Columbian rivers, although giving high promise of future discoveries of gold, was not followed by anything which created a widespread adventurous spirit among people who were outside the mining region.

The Klondike and its aptly named g. len tributaries, the Bonanza and the Eldorado, have again turned the heads of Americans and Canadians, starting them in pursuit of the metal which has been described as "bright and yellow, hard and cold, heavy to get, and light to hold."

The reports from this locality of riches would indicate that the gold diggers have computed themselves in such an unexemplified manner in times of great excitement as to somewhat revolutionize the traditions of gold-mine prospecting. Systematically and orderly did they go about their work, and when the harvest was reached each one appears to have rested content with the measure of his luck.

Encouraged by their tales of success, thousands of others are crowding the outgoing steamers in the hope that similar good fortune may be awaiting them. So dazzling appears the prospect that distance and hardships are insufficiently measured, and the long wintry Alaskan day which will have dawned upon the fortune seekers before they reach their intended destination has, it is to be feared, been little taken into consideration. Few setting out from San Francisco, Seattle or Vancouver have stopped to think that when Behring sea has been reached and a distance of 2,500 miles traversed over the waters of the Pacific, the journey is but beginning. The cliffs of St. Michael's, however, can only remind the traveler that there is still before him a voyage almost as long, much more perilous, and from Dawson City, has told the world that the dreaded mosquito finds a home there, and that he is "our worst enemy."

The landing place by the Yukon river route is St. Michael's, about 60 miles from the mouth of the Yukon. From this point, before the gold fields are reached, it is necessary to plow the waters of this great river for a distance of 1,890 miles, leaving behind the territory of the United States as the destination is neared. To reach Dawson City, states a recent writer, "one must traverse icy plains, climb steep, snow-clad mountains, and invade treacherous rivers."

In the shorter route, by way of Juneau, on the southeastern part of the Alaskan territory, difficulties are also encountered. When the Pacific inlets and straits have been left behind and the vessel enters the harbor of Juneau a diversified method of travel lies before the gold hunter. It takes 90 days to reach here from Seattle. Then Dyea, at the extremity of the Lynn canal, is made. This town reached, the great passes of the Chilkoot, Chilkat, and Moore, with their frequent snowstorms, next invite the weary traveler to continue his journey. This is not a path of roses he is about to tread.

To save themselves when caught in the terrible storms which overtake wanderers in these passes above the Lynn canal, men have been known to crawl under some overhanging rock and remain there without food until the danger was past. The storms sometimes last for several days. From Juneau to Dyea is 100 miles. Crossing the Alaskan line one goes to Lake Linderman, 30 miles, on foot. Then across the lake for about five miles, after which an overland journey to the head waters of Lake Bennett, 28 miles long; on foot again to the Cariboo river; four miles to Tagish lake, from whence 21 miles may be traveled on boat. Continuing through a mountainous country, Mud lake is reached; thence to White Horse rapids, and on to Lake La Barge, where 31 miles of navigable water is found. After a further journey of 200 miles along the Lewis river the Yukon is reached at Fort Selkirk.

From Juneau to Dawson is a distance of 650 miles. The following advice has been offered to parties intending to take this route to the gold creeks: "No one should venture without eight months' provisions, and these should be bought at Juneau. He should have 400 pounds of flour, 100 pounds of beans, 100 pounds of bacon, 100 pounds of sugar, 10 pounds of tea, 30 pounds of coffee, 150 pounds of mixed fruit, besides salt, pepper, and cooking utensils. All these can be bought for the sum of $90. To convey them to the head waters of Lake Linderman would cost $15 per hundred." A month of perilous travel is ahead of the prospector.

The Klondike empties into the Yukon 50 miles above the Big River. Bonanza creek is a tributary of the Klondike and Eldorado is again a tributary of the Bonanza. It is along these two rivers

Forty-Mile creek contains a great deal of the yellow metal.

The wages paid to miners in the Klondike district are $15 a day. Workers in the small of Joseph Ladue, who claims to own the entire Dawson City site, are paid ten dollars a day.

Prices in the latter place are fairly representative of the amounts charged for provisions and articles of wear, and the following list will give interesting information on this subject. These were the ruling prices when the miners left Dawson City to return with their immense wealth and entrance their neighbors with the recital of the story of their success:

Flour, per 100 lbs. $12.00
Moose meat, per lb. 1.30
Caribou meat, per lb. .65
Beans, per lb. .10
Rice, per lb. .10

The dominion government at Ottawa, Ont., is now considering means to preserve to Canadians the lion's share of the profits which will flow from the northern Eldorado, but it is highly improbable that there is any foundation for the report that the exclusion of all but British subjects is under contemplation. What the government probably will do is to impose a royalty on all ore taken from the soil.

It was somewhere late along in the sixties and times were monstrous hard. Prices had run way up, money was hid out, and a man had to hump and hum and hustle soon and late to make tongue and buckle meet. But my doctrine is that poor folks must have poor ways or mean ones, and I was fighting it out on that line tolerable close, when a blame fool notion worked through my hair and consequently landed me in a tight place. All of a sudden like I took up with the notion that I must have more land. I had a gracious plenty of land right then to do my farm in, and with one more good crop I could lift the mortgage higher than a kite.

But I watched a woods paster to head out the stock law descript with, and so nothing would do but I must pitch in and buy another eighty down there on the creek from John Henry Ashcraft.

Mother was agin the move, and she put her little foot down on it so.

"You are plantin your feet on slippery grounds, Rufus," says she. "You won't rest now till you wade up to your eyes in debt once more and then you will bust loose and fret and fuss and fume like as if somebody else way off yonder was to blame for the contortionment. Better let well enough alone. Folks have got to crawl some and then walk a little before they go to flyin."

But in the meantime my head was set on the trade, and trade I would. I bought the whole tract for $400—$100 spot cash and gave John Henry a waverly note for the balance. That was in the summer, when the corn was in full silk and tassel, and the cotton fields were bloom like a nest of roses. I didn't know anything about the wash-out ahead, but it was there. In less time than a month after I made that trade and signed up the papers the game was runnin agin me like a shot. The dry drouth and the rust and the boll worms and the caterpillars all rounded up and closed in and swooped down on the farm. Crops fell way short and prices went off on a grand tumble down to rock bottom. I took the blues all over in spots as big as a bed quilt.

But mother went on singin and hummin and bustlin around as busy as a bee in a tar bucket. She didn't talk about my big land trade, nor the sorry crops, nor the store account, but went on tendin to her own business as gentle and tender like and happy as ever. Somehow I felt like she ought to set down and come right out flat-footed and tell me what a beautiful and bloomin old fool I was. That would of made the surroundings more natural like and easy for me. But she wouldn't talk any to speak of along that line. When I would try to lead her around to the subject she would take the bit in her teeth and fly the track like a three-year-old.

Presenting a Bold Front.
So when the large and lovely autumn come I woke up and found myself in a most tremendous tight place. How and when I got there was not the question. The deed had been did and the mainest question was how to get out. With a mortgage on one side and a waverly note on the other and the crop a dead failure—dast if it didn't look to me like the day and hour had come for the man and the ceilin to meet.

Now, white people, I am not one of the sort to go nosin and pirootin around huntin up trouble, but when it comes my way I try to keep up a bold front and face the music like a little man. It will pay a man to pull his vest down and hold his head up and look big, no matter what sort of a hand he holds. In this present day and generation of people a game of bluff is better than no game at all—particular if it wins.

Sing It Soft and Sweet.
Well, after thinkin and smokin and dreamin over the general circumfrence of the surroundings, I loved it might be better to lift the mortgage and then take my chances with John Henry and the waverly note. If I could onest more read my papers and trimments clear to the old farm my fight would be half whippin. I settled up at the store and had $100 in the clear. Two hundred more would lift the mortgage. Bill Simpkins, one of the settlement's favorite boys, had took and moved off to town and got rich runnin of a bank, and I made up my mind to go and hit him for the necessary two hundred. The best way to reach a man's heart and pocket is through his good wife, and the best way to touch the wife is through the children, and the way to hit the whole family at one lick is to shoot with molasses. Sing your song soft and sweet.

So consequently I hooked the old bay horse to the spring wagon, loaded her down with fresh butter and red apples and plumgrates and other farm producements, and throwed in a Thanksgivin turkey for good measure. Then I put on my Sunday-go-to-meetin clothes and my calf skin boots and a standin collar, which stood so high till blamed if I didn't have to clam up on the fence to spit—and sailed out to town. The trappings and fixments set rather awkward and danvers which have to be encountered by explorers in that land. The lack of a mail service seems to be felt almost as great an inconvenience as the want of a claims registration bureau, with a court for the collection of debts.

Getting It Back.
"I see the railroad Bunker has so much stock in has gone into the hands of a receiver."
"Too bad. I suppose he has lost everything?"
"Oh, no. He has been appointed this receiver."—Brooklyn Life

THE "CLOST PLACES."

The Sage of Rooky Creek Has "Went the Gaits."

The Mortgage and the "Waverly Note"—A Plan That Worked as Smooth and Slick as Molasses.

But precious few men can make the long hard drive from the cradle to the grave without landin in a tight place now and then. Everything which goes up must come down. The weather may be fine, and the horse fresh and truck light when the race is called, but there most generally always comes a time and place somewhere down the line when the man and the ceilin must meet. It is a blame lonesome road that never had a washout nor a smashup.

On Slippery Grounds.

Two months since they had any fruit at their house and she was just thinkin about advertisin in the paper for a Thanksgivin turkey. Then the children come in—which I loaded them down with red apples and pleasant words, and told them if they would only come down to our house I would go hay ridin and chinkypin huntin with them, and build flyin Jennies, and grapevine swings, and see-saws and sick like till they couldn't rest for the fun.

White Ones About the Baby.
And in the meantime I didn't forget that another one of them Simpkins boys had turned up at Bill's house, and I was itchin for a chance to praise the youngster. I loved to myself that praise the mother and tellin a few little white ones about the baby would be as good as gilt-edge endorsement and a blame sight cheaper. Then come right down to business and rock bottom, says I:

"By the way, Mises Simpkins, how is the onliest baby in the created world comin on?"
"Fat and fine," says she, "and jest the sweetest thing in town."

Then she went and fetched the youngster and I sized him up. I told her there went a blenish on that boy from foretop to fetlock. I told her he was as smart as his daddy, as handsome as his mother and a dead sure winner for congress by-and-by.

Naturally of course I was lyin like a yaller dog to some extent, but I had went into the game to win. Presently I told her I must be goin as I had a right smart tradin and knockin around to do, and I wanted to see Bill and the bank, remarkin with a bold, off-hand voice that I needed a little lift from him in business.

How the Molasses Worked.
But I didn't make no bee line for the bank. I didn't want to meet up with Bill till after dinner. I loved to myself after he went home and put himself on the outside of a rare good dinner, and heard the news from his wife in regards to my visit and the various and sundry "cute things" I said about the baby, he would be in better shape for business. With nothin in particular to do, I took a little turn around town with the boys and rounded up at the bank along in the shank of the evenin. Bill he was smilin all over his big fat self and lookin as ripe and mellow as a Maypop. He had heard from me at home and was lookin for me to drop in and swap lies with him about the old settlement and old times. Was there anything he could do for me?

"Well, Bill," says I, "my wife's husband is in a scandalous clost place for the time of year. There is a mortgage on one side and a double back action waverly note on the other, and betwixt the two they have got me danglin around from a night sweat to a buck ager. Crops are turnin out sorry and I can't meet both of them papers. With a raise of two hundred dollars I can lift the mortgage on the home place, and that would put me ahead of the hounds onest more, with no fences to climb."

"The money is yours," says Bill, "and all I want is your plain note—no waver, no lean—nothin of that sort, and you can take your time about the settlement."

Bless your sweet life, honey, I was feelin as cozy like as any gray rat in the fodder loft when I got home that night. But after supper I moved my chair around tolerable clost to the other corner, and takin her little hand in mine, says I to myself, but said it out loud so she could hear:

"Rufus Sanders, you are mighty small shakes, and only a very few at best, but you have got the sweetest and most smartest wife in forty-seven states and territories. Her head is level, her hands are willin and her heart is true. Henceforwards from now on she is a full partner in this business, and by the 12 epistles she shall have her say. The next time you go dead agin her judgment to run in debt I will hire a cheap nigger for two bits to kick you clean over the state line."

Andy Lucas in a Tight.
But did you ever hear tell how Andy Lucas got himself into a "most hellatious" tight place, and the easy way in which he got out?

Well, you must recollect that Andy was the mill boy for the family, and every Saturday the good Lord sent him to take a turn of corn on the old gray mare and go to mill. One Saturday the old man started Andy off down to Stringers' mill, and a felonious big rain caught him on the road. Andy's breeches was cut powerful big and loose and snugly like, and he spread himself out over the meal bag as best he could tryin to keep the corn dry. But when he got to the mill he was wet, and the meal bag was wet, and the corn was wet—everything was wet. It seems like the women folks had forgot to beat the meal outen the bag as usual that mornin, and when Andy dismounted there was somethin like a peck of bread dough stickin to the seat of his breeches.

Now it likewise also come to pass that old man Stringer had a whole pasle of likely lookin girls at his house—which the same Andy he had been cuttin the pigeon wing around there at a right frequent and lively lick. But he was in such a bad fix with his clothes that day till he wouldn't go in to the house. He stood out in the yard backed up agin the palins and talked to the girls from long taw, as it were. The girls they wanted him to come in and take a seat and tell the news, but the poor boy wouldn't budge narry inch. He took notice presently that the girls kept up a monstrous gigglin and goin on amongst themselves like as if somethin had tickled them most to death, and when at last he came to his senses, bless gracious, a blame little wobbly-legged calf, which had been runnin loose in the yard, had slipped up behind and chawed about three-quarter sections out of the seat of his breeches.

Andy was tellin a gang of us boys about it the next Saturday, when Bunk Wetherford put in and wanted to know how he managed to git out of that "orful serape."

"How did I git out?" says Andy.
"Well, by golly, I jist naturally backed out."

An Abominable Legacy.

A tendency to rheumatism is undoubtedly inherited. Unlike many other legacies, it remains in the family. The most effectual means of checking this tendency, or of removing incipient rheumatism, whether present in the blood or not, is to resort to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as soon as the premonitory twinges are felt. Nullifying the influences of cold, exposure and fatigue, the Bitters not only fortifies the system against their hurtful consequences, but subjugates malaria, liver and kidney complaint, dyspepsia and nerva disquietude.

THEY CAME TO BLOWS.

A Long-Standing Quarrel Between Rival Illinois Towns For Possession of Headquarters of the Modern Woodmen of America Results in a Hand-to-Hand Conflict in Which Many Are Seriously Injured.

FULTON, Ill., Aug. 14.—The long-standing fight between this town and Rock Island, Ill., for the location of the headquarters of Modern Woodmen of America, culminated yesterday in a hand-to-hand fight between scores of partisans of the respective towns in which a number of persons were seriously injured.

The contest between the two towns dates back several years. At the recent convention of the order held at DuBuque, Ia., it was decided to move the offices and books of Head Clerk Hawes to Rock Island. Then there was a lull, but the factions were by no means reconciled. Those who are desirous of having the headquarters retained in this city applied to the courts for an injunction restraining their removal.

A temporary injunction was granted and the controversy went over until the fall term of court. This was not the first time the courts have been called upon to intercede between the warring towns. The slow process of law was not satisfactory to the Rock Islanders, so they determined to take the matter into their own hands.

Yesterday a party was made up in the city by the Mississippi and plans were made for a raid on the Fulton headquarters with the object of forcibly taking possession of the books, records, etc., of the order and removing the office of Head Clerk Hawes to Rock Island.

A train was chartered, consisting of three coaches, a baggage car and two box cars, and the invaders were soon on their way to Fulton.

The inhabitants of the latter town were forewarned, however, and made ready to give their uninvited guests a warm reception. A fire alarm was sounded and lines of hose were laid to the points where it was thought the Rock Islanders would be most likely to disembark.

The arrival of the special train was the signal for the hostilities to begin. There was intense feeling on both sides and a great variety of weapons, this combination resulting in the following casualties:

Will Bennett, city marshal of Fulton, head cut; believed to be fatally hurt. W. H. Plannagan, head badly cut. L. D. Plank, Fulton; cut on head. E. A. Stenberg, Fulton; badly beaten. Albert Spencer, Rock Island; face cut.

James Carrier, head cut. Ed Barr, head and arms injured. Chris. Miller, Lyons, Ia., stabbed in neck.

P. J. Casey, Moline, Ill., head badly injured. A score of others were more or less bruised and cut.

The free fight lasted for an hour or more, rocks, clubs and missiles of every description being wielded industriously by the opposing forces. The Fultonites finally got the better of the fight and Deputy Sheriff Farley effected the arrest of Head Attorney Johnson of the Modern Woodmen, one of the Rock Island party, and a number of his companions. The railroad wack on each side of the cars that brought the Rock Islanders was torn up by the Fultonites, the latter evidently aiming to cut off the retreat of their enemies.

The scene of the fighting bears every evidence of the liveliest warfare and as there were a number of firearms in both parties, it is a wonder the affair did not result more seriously than it did. A large force of peace officers has been sworn in, and as the invaders, or most of them, are still in Fulton, there is great difficulty in preventing a renewal of the trouble.

IT IS TIME TO CHANGE

Laws Under Which We are Powerless to Protect Ourselves Against the Influx of Dangerous Characters.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Commissioner Powderly of the immigration bureau has sent the following letter of instructions to immigration officials at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Quebec relative to the anticipated arrival in the country of Spanish anarchists:

Information has reached this bureau to the effect that one Planas, a leader of the Spanish anarchists, has been expelled from France, being conducted to Havre, from which port it is expected he will sail for the United States. I am also advised that Tarrida Marmol, another Spanish anarchist, is believed to have gone to England and probably is en route to this country. A careful inspection should be made of arriving passengers in order that should any of this class be detected a careful examination can be had as to their rights of admission into the United States under existing laws.

It is stated at the bureau of immigration that there is no law under which persons can be excluded on the ground that they are anarchists. Nor is there any law which would declare to be a crime, so that if Planas and Marmol are refused admission to the country the refusal must be based solely upon the fact that they come within the general immigration law as to paupers, contract laborers, criminals, etc. This law expressly provides, however, "that nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to or exclude persons convicted of a political offense, notwithstanding said political offense may be designated as a felony, crime, infamy, or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, by the laws of the land whence he came or by the court convicting."

A MARRYING MAN.

Has Ten Wives Living, and Only Three States Heard From.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 14.—Albert Kneeland the alleged bigamist arrested in New Mexico and brought here for trial, according to letters received has ten wives, nearly all of them living. They live in Ohio, Illinois and Missouri. Kneeland is a traveling artist and was married the last time here about two years ago. He was first married at Columbus, O. His fourth wife, living at St. Louis, is pushing the prosecution.

THE FEVER ABATING.

Demand for Transportation to the Klondike Falling Off—Gold Seekers Cannot Get Through—Both the White and Chilcot Passes Blocked—Not One-Half of Those Who Have Gone Will Traverse the Passes This Winter.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—During the past week the Klondike fever has abated somewhat in this city, owing, probably, to the discouraging reports received from Dyea. There are plenty of people who announce their intention of trying the Chilcot route in the spring, and of those who are anxious to go at once a large proportion seem disposed to travel via St. Michael and up the Yukon. Promoters of expeditions by this route are ready with profuse assurances that the trip can be made before the closing of navigation, but in all cases they are careful not to bind themselves in any way to take passengers through this fall.

At the offices of the steamship companies it is reported that the inquiry for tickets is diminishing.

The Return of the Elder.

ASTORIA, Ore., Aug. 14.—The Oregon Railway & Navigation Co.'s steamer George W. Elder has arrived here from Dyea. The Elder left Dyea the 9th inst. She confirms previous reports that both the White and Chilcot passes are blocked.

The route from Skagway via White pass is more level and easier traveling, though 25 miles farther. But the prospector is landed on Bennett lake, the second lake above Linderman, where travelers by the Chilcot pass are landed. Besides, there is plenty of timber on Bennett lake to build boats, while there is none on Linderman.

Nearly all of the Elder's passengers were landed at Dyea, the vessel lying a mile and a half out in the bay. Passengers and goods were lightered ashore at a cost of $10 per ton for freight. Officers of the Elder say that not one-half the people will get over the mountains this winter. Many are selling out their outfits and returning. Letters from parties who went on the Elder advise their friends not to go this fall, as they can not get through.

Supplies for Dyea.

ASTORIA, Ore., Aug. 14.—The steamer Mayflower, towing a large cargo loaded with supplies, has left for Dyea. She will take the inner passage, and her captain anticipates no trouble in reaching his destination.

KLONDIKE MAILS.

Efforts to Make Arrangements With the Dominion Authorities.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The post-office department has written the postal authorities of Canada concerning co-operation in carrying the mails to the Klondike country, but there is not much hope of being able to reach an adjustment, as the American contractor may not accept a modification of his contract. The proposition made is that the two governments should co-operate and arrange for an interchange of mail at Circle City and Dawson City, the United States to maintain a service once a month and Canada the same. This would give two mails every month. No reply has been received from the Canadian government, and even if it was, favorable arrangements must be made with the contractor who carries mail to Circle City to carry the mail destined for Dawson City in Canada. His representative in Washington has intimated that he will not care to modify his contract, and indicates that in case there is to be an increase in the service the contractor should have considerable more compensation. The post-office department can not modify the contract and impose more labor on the contractor without his consent.

ARMY CORPS REUNIONS.

Dates Upon Which They Will Be Held at the Buffalo Encampment.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Dates for army corps reunions during encampment week have been arranged as follows: Tuesday, August 24, First and Fifth army corps, 3 to 5 p. m.; Second and Third army corps, 5 to 7 p. m. Thursday, August 26, Seventh, Eleventh, Twelfth and Twentieth army corps, 9 to 11 a. m. Eighth and Nineteenth army corps, 1 to 3 p. m. Sixth army corps, 1 to 3 p. m. Ninth and Eighteenth army corps, 3 to 5 p. m. Friday, August 27, Fourth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth army corps, 9 to 11 a. m. Fifteenth and Sixteenth army corps, 11 to 1 p. m. Seventeenth and Twenty-second army corps, 1 to 3 p. m., and Twenty-third and Twenty-fifth army corps, 3 to 5 p. m.

MICHIGANDERS EXCITED.

Attempted to Throw a Suspected Incendiary Into Burning Buildings.

BROWNWOOD, Mich., Aug. 14.—Fire yesterday morning burned out buildings and John Kamota and family narrowly escaped with their lives.

Henry Lensol, who recently opened a small candy store in one of the burned buildings, was suspected of starting the fire and a crowd gathered and attempted to lynch him. The police got hold of him, however, and were attempting to conduct him to jail.

The crowd made a rush, seized Lensol and attempted to throw him into the burning buildings. The firemen turned the hose on them, and they desisted, and the prisoner was finally taken to jail.

STREATOR TURNED DOWN.

Defeat for Re-Election of the Officer Who Ordered Private Iams Strung Up.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 14.—Lieut. Col. James B. R. Streater of the Tenth regiment, N. G. P., who gained notoriety during the Homestead riots by ordering Private Iams to be suspended by the thumbs and drummed out of camp, for expressing approval of the shooting of H. C. Frick, was defeated for re-election by Maj. James E. Barnett. Col. Streater has been a member of the guard for 16 years.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Every City Reporting Notes Increase in Business—A Week of Surprising Interest—An Increased Demand with Rising Prices All Along the Line Caused by Eager Foreign Purchases of American Products.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Every city reporting this week notes increase in trade and nearly all bright crop prospects. The great change in business is emphasized by the presence of a multitude of buyers from all parts of the country, by their statements of the situation at their homes, and more forcibly yet by the heavy purchases they are making.

But the customary signs of prosperity are not lacking. The strong rise in stocks, the growth of bank clearings and railroad earnings, the heavy speculation in many products, but most of all in wheat, have made the week one of surpassing interest even to those who best remember the upward rush in 1879.

At the principal clearing houses throughout the country payments in July were for the first time slightly larger than in 1892, and 11.0 per cent. larger than last year; in the first week of August 7.7 per cent. larger than in 1892, and 28.4 per cent. larger than last year, and in the second week of August they are 17.9 per cent. larger than in 1892, and 33.1 per cent. larger than last year.

The great crops and the haste of foreigners to buy and ship wheat in view of shortage elsewhere, have made the week memorable. Taking of profits by a pool lowered the price three cents on Saturday, but it has since risen five cents.

The urgency of French buying of wheat; reports that Russia will stop exports in order to keep supplies for itself, and continuous shipments from the Pacific to countries usually having a surplus, make even the largest estimates of possible supplies not too great for the possible demand.

In all the great industries a large demand for products appears with strong speculation in materials and intermediate products. In the iron and steel branch the starting of many works after settlement of wages keeps prices low and even depresses some, but the fact that the demand is growing, leads to heavy purchases of iron ore, 200,000 tons at Cleveland in a week, and of billets, 40,000 tons, while concessions recently reported in pig iron have ceased. The output of furnaces, August 1, was 165,373 tons, against 164,064 July 1, and decrease in known stocks unold indicates a consumption for two months past averaging 181,000 tons weekly, which is more than in the same month of 1892 though below the greatly increased capacity of works now. Sales of tin are moderate, of copper to American consumers large, it is said, at 11 cents for lake, and of lead at 3.72½ with speculative realizing, but heavy sales of tin plates are bringing slightly better prices.

All textile industries are encouraged by a greatly improved and really large demand for goods, which causes many to advance in price. With production much curtailed, stocks of cotton goods are rapidly decreasing, and in woolen advances have been made in clay woads and mixtures, flannels and Middlesex suitings.

Speculation in wool continues, with prices about 1 cent. higher, but sales of 23,499,800 pounds in two weeks show the willingness of some holders to realize.

Failures for the week have been 239 in the United States against 235 last year, and 30 in Canada against 35 last year.

A GRAND SCHEME

To Irrigate and Utilize the Valley of the Grand for Beet Sugar Culture.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 14.—Hon. James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, and C. F. Saylor, government expert on beet sugar culture, left Denver yesterday to investigate the possibilities for beet sugar culture in Grand valley. At Grand Junction they will meet Col. Balcom, of New York, who will explain to them the Plateau-Grand irrigation project and show them a tract of 36,000 acres on which it is proposed to erect a beet sugar factory at a cost of $300,000.

It is intended to colonize the land under the desert act of the state of Colorado. The factory will be built simultaneously with the Plateau-Grand canal, which will take sufficient water from the Grand river to irrigate 80,000 acres in Mesa county, Col., and 200,000 acres in Grand county, Utah. It is claimed that the climate in the Grand valley is better adapted to the making of beet sugar than in any other part of the United States.

GRAIN AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Sea Wall Blocked with Wheat—Pouring in From All Parts of the State.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—The sea wall is blocked with wheat which has been pouring into this city for some days past from all sections of the state. Five steamers are alongside discharging wheat, and the huge sheds, which are 1,000 feet long by 200 feet wide, are filled to their utmost capacity.

The City of Puebla arrived yesterday morning with 40,000 sacks of grain from Port Harford, and all the river boats and scows that ply daily at river points are bringing in more. Orders have been issued to clean up vacant lots in the vicinity of the sea wall to accommodate the grain shippers and the Lombard-street wharf is also being cleared for the same purpose.

FOR UNION LABOR.

A Strike Initiated on the Chicago School Buildings.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Union workmen to the number of 2,500 initiated a strike on the public school buildings of this city, and work on 35 buildings will come to a standstill. The strike, which was inaugurated by the Building Trades council, is the outcome of the refusal of the board of education to place a clause in all contracts for school building work binding the contractor to employ none but union men.

FEW MAD DOGS.

Therefore, Consider the Dog and Deal with Him in an Intelligent Way.

Now, the very first observation we have to make on this subject is that there are no such days in the year's calendar as "dog days." There are no days on which, and there is no kind of weather during which, a dog is peculiarly liable to rabies. Rabies is a rare disease at all seasons of the year, and there are no more cases of rabies in July or August than in December or January. It follows, therefore, that there is no more reason to dread our family friend, the dog, in hot weather than in cold, and no more reason to dread hydrophobia from his bite at one time of the year than at another. The phrase "dog days" is a false and misleading phrase, which all humane persons ought to avoid in the interest of the dog.

We have said, and we repeat, that hydrophobia is one of the rarest of diseases; and that when it appears to be developed, we believe it, in the vast majority of cases, to be a simulated disease, produced by a morbid imagination. We do not go so far as to assert that it is never caused by the bite of a rabid animal; and therefore we would advise that all proper care should be taken to destroy without delay all animals that are affected with rabies. Yet here again we must recall the fact that rabies itself is one of the rarest of all the diseases with which dogs and other animals are affected. When we hear the cry of "Mad dog!" the chances are millions to one that the dog is not mad; it is the people who are mad with terror.

In the 30 years since the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was established our officers and agents have been constantly on the outlook, but no undoubted case of rabies has ever fallen under their observation or within their knowledge; and of over 100,000 dogs and other small animals which have been cared for at our shelter during the past three years, not one single case of rabies has been found. These facts sufficiently prove that rabies is rare in this city and in this state; but there is such a disease, and it is important for the public, as well as yourself, that you should know whether a sick dog is or is not rabid. If you will note the following facts you will have no difficulty. You will probably find them to be quite different from the popular fancies by which most persons are misled.

1. It is supposed that a mad dog dreads water. It is not so. The mad dog is very likely to plunge his head to the eyes in water, though he cannot swallow it and laps it with difficulty.

2. It is supposed that a mad dog runs about with evidences of intense excitement. It is not so. The mad dog never runs about in agitation; he never gallops; he is always alone, usually in a strange place, where he jogs along slowly. If he is approached by dog or man he shows no sign of excitement, but when the dog or man is near enough he snaps and resumes his solitary trot.

3. If a dog barks, yelps, whines or growls that dog is not mad. The only sound a mad dog is ever known to emit is a hoarse howl, and that but seldom. Even howls will not extort an outcry from a mad dog. Therefore, if any dog, under any circumstances, utters any other sound than that of a hoarse howl, that dog is not mad.

4. It is supposed that the mad dog froths at the mouth. It is not so. If a dog's jaws are covered or flecked with white froth, that dog is not mad. The surest of all signs that a dog is mad is a thick and ropy brown mucus clinging to his lips, which he often tries vainly to tear away with his paws or to wash away with water.

5. If your own dog is bitten by any other dog, watch him carefully. If he is infected by rabies you will discover signs of it possibly in from six to ten days. Then he will be restless, often getting up only to lie down again, changing his position impatiently, turning from side to side, and constantly licking or scratching some particular part of his head, limbs, or body. He will be irritable and inclined to dash at other animals, and he will sometimes snap at objects which he imagines to be near him. He will be excessively thirsty, lapping water eagerly and often. Then there will be glandular swellings about his jaws and throat, and he will vainly endeavor to rid himself of a thick, ropy, mucous discharge from his mouth and throat. If he can he will probably stray away from home and trot slowly and mournfully along the highway or across country, meddling with neither man nor beast unless they approach him, and then giving a single snap. The only exception to this behavior occurs in ferocious dogs, which, during the earlier stage of excitement, may attack any living object in sight—Our Animal Friends.

On the Nature of Girls.

"The time has come," said Bildad, in a determined tone, looking Mrs. Bildad in the eye accusingly, "when our four daughters have got to get married. I'm tired of supporting them."

"I know, dear," said Mrs. Bildad, meekly. "I've told 'em they simply must get married, and done everything I could to get them to accept the young men that call here. They are nice young men, too, but the girls don't seem to take the slightest interest in them."

"Do they all want to be old maids?" "So they say."

"And they pay no attention to you when you urge them to marry?" "Not the slightest."

"I'll fix it," said the old man, and he went into the parlor, kicked the four young men out, swore by all that was holy that the girls should never see them again, and then locked the rebellious and weeping maidens in their rooms.

Within a week there were four elopements from the Bildad house.—N. Y. Journal.

Mrs. Walter Meroney is a guest of her brother, Dr. T. G. Nelson, at Harpersville this week.

Mrs. Carrie Baker and Mrs. Hoffer, of Blocton, who have been visiting here, returned home yesterday.

Mr. Nathan Thomas, the keeper of the poor house, was stricken down this week with paralysis and is very low at present.

There is not a vacant residence in our town. Why don't somebody build some houses so newcomers will have a place to lay their heads?

Our Montevallo and Wilsonville correspondents came up missing this week. They should not let their towns get lost.

Dr. J. J. Dubose has located at Wilsonville, and moved there week with his bride. We wish them much success in their new home.

Those desiring to buy any kind of mill machinery can see DeLoach's Catalogue at this office and may leave their order with us.

We suggest that our boys play ball among themselves often. With a little practice we could beat any of these neighboring scrub teams.

Judge McMillan is suffering with a sore foot. We suspect that the Judge has been getting boyish, and has turned up with a stone bruise.

Tax Assessor Pitts is in town this week. He reports crops very down in his section of the county. Reports from all sections are promising.

You may hunt the world over and you will not find another medicine equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. It is pleasant, safe and reliable. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co. Drugists.

Mrs. Margaret Edwards, accompanied by her sister, Miss Sallie Horton, returned to her home in Childersburg Monday, after a visit of several weeks to relatives here.

Mr. C. L. Hasbrouck, a druggist at Mendon, Mich., says all of the good testimonials that have been published by the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy could be duplicated in that town. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co. Drugists.

SHELBY COUNTY TAX COMMISSIONER

Removed by the Governor—Cases of Raises Dismissed.

An adjourned meeting of the Commissioners' court was set for Monday last to hear the tax commissioner in regard to his raises. Before the hour of meeting the Probate Judge received the following telegram from the Governor:

MONTGOMERY, ALA., Aug., 16.
HON. D. R. McMILLAN,
Probate Judge.
Have removed Nabors as tax commissioner. I suggest that all cases be dismissed unless commissioners are satisfied that valuation should be raised.
JOSEPH F. JOHNSTON, Governor.

We learn that this action was taken by the Governor after an investigation of the complaints that were being made by the tax payers. The investigation disclosed to his satisfaction the fact that the tax commissioner had made the raises in an indiscriminate manner without a proper investigation as to the value of the property involved. The work was all done from a cursory examination of the tax books, and not from a knowledge of the lands themselves; and the result was that a majority of the raises proved to be unjust.

Mr. Nabors was present Monday, and upon learning of his removal very cheerfully gave up his office. He doubtless acted in the matter as he saw best, and readily saw his error.

The commissioners' court acted on the suggestion of the Governor and dismissed all cases except where parties had accepted the raises as just.

In connection with that affair the following appeared in the Advertiser of Sunday:

Judge Wood, the State tax commissioner, has gone to Shelby County, and report has it that he will "call down" the back tax commissioners of that county for being extremely active in the discharge of his duties. It is said that the Shelby County striker for the back tax bushwhackers has been so very zealous as to stir up considerable political feeling, and the administration will either muzzle him or else make a change.

None of this information is true. Judge Wood has not been seen here and there has been no political feeling stirred up. On the contrary there is a universal expression of favor for the good intentions of and the necessity for the law by men of both parties, while all are a unit in condemning its unwise execution. It has not been made a party matter at all, and it cannot be, for a prominent Populist has as much to do with the raises as the assistant of the commissioner as did that official himself.

It is now too late to act under the law this year, and we have not heard of any candidate for the vacant place.

To Subscribers.

The terms of subscription to THE CHRONICLE will remain, as in the past, strictly in advance. If there is an X opposite the address on your paper it indicates that your subscription has expired, and you will confer a favor by remitting at once or by paying our agent at your office. Two marks will indicate that you are due two years. Should it not be convenient to pay at once please notify us, that we may continue your name on your list until such time, not too far in the future, as you may desire to pay.

We Want Agents.

THE CHRONICLE desires an agent at every post-office in the county—one who will send the local news and increase the subscription list. To any one who will act in this capacity we offer 10 per cent for collections and 25 per cent for new subscribers. We shall be glad to hear from those who have the time and inclination to do this work, which, with the proper effort, ought to be reasonably profitable. Write for the present list at your office, from which to make collections, see that all your neighbors have an opportunity of subscribing. Send us the news, and we will all be benefited by a small effort.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season was a tea party, given last Saturday evening by Mrs. H. W. Nelson in honor of her guests, Misses Alma Duran and Carrie Upshaw. The supper was a grand success, and the young people enjoyed it as only happy youth can. The following were the fortunate precipients of Mrs. Nelson's noted hospitality: Young ladies—Misses Duran, Upshaw, Lucy Leeper, Emma Wilson, Essie Mason, T. Hammond, Patty Mason, Lula Wilson and Katie Seybrooks. Young gentlemen—Messrs. Jim Seale, Joe and Ed Spencer, Joe Roberts, Horace Hammond, W. A. Lovett, Ed Duran and John Upshaw.

The following is the jury drawn for the August term of the county court, which meets on the 23d: S. Evans, S. D. Cox, J. W. Dunson, J. V. Shraider, G. B. Monroe, J. H. Jones, C. B. Bailey, W. G. MEETING OF CITIZENS.

Arrangements made for the payment of Indebtedness on Schoolhouse.

A meeting of the citizens of this place was held last Saturday morning in regard to the indebtedness hanging over the school building.

From a report made by W. G. Parker it was learned that there is still owing upon the building about $1,350, nearly $900 of which is secured by judgment liens. The committee holds the notes of citizens for about $600.

After considerable discussion of plans for the collection of these notes and the payment of the indebtedness, the meeting finally adopted the following as a plan of settlement of the entire matter:

Resolved, That the Board of Trustees of the Columbian Academy be and it is hereby authorized and directed to convey by deed all its equity, right, and title in and to the schoolhouse and grounds to the city council of Columbiana; and to transfer to said council all notes held against citizens; and that said council be authorized and directed to pay off the secured indebtedness against said property, and to pay upon the unsecured claims against said property an amount equal to such an amount as may be subscribed by private parties for the payment of said unsecured claims.

The meeting then adjourned to meet next Saturday at 9 o'clock a. m., at which time all citizens living within the incorporation or within 2½ miles of Columbiana are requested to attend for the purpose of ratifying or disapproving the above action.

It is urged upon all parties interested that they attend this meeting, as it is necessary to settle these judgments at once to prevent the sale of the school property, and it is desired that all other claims be paid.

The council held a meeting Saturday evening and appointed a committee to push the collection of the notes spoken of above. The makers of these notes will be asked to pay them by October 1, or give bankable paper upon which the money can be raised, or suit will be brought upon them at once.

Shelby Siftings.

The quarantine has been raised against Albert Morris, and the small-pox scare has about subsided.

The Baptist people have protracted their meeting for a few days.

Professor Mynatt was in our town last week. We were sorry indeed to give him up, but are glad that he is located as near as Columbiana.

We wish to correct the report that Shelby played base ball in Columbiana a few days ago. We have it from good authority that they positively did not play.

Postmaster McLane is quite unwell at this writing.

It is hoped that the furnace may open up here this fall.

Our colored people of Baptist persuasion are enjoying a good revival meeting.

"Watermelon parties" are gaining great favor among the young people.

Good news comes to us of a splendid revival in our country churches on Spring Creek. About 50 members have been added to the church list.

This is a source of good pleasure for us, and may the Spirit sustain them in their efforts.

Farming interests are more promising now than they were a few weeks ago.

A number of our young people attended the Good Hope meeting last week.

Old man McCarroll, who used to carry the mail and help about the livery stable is stricken with paralysis. He has been in this condition some time, and we are sorry that his symptoms are unchanged. He was a faithful fellow, and we sympathize with him.

Calera Cullings.

Dr. H. T. Caffey has been confined to his room for several days with slow fever. His many friends here hope to see him able to practice again soon.

Rev. Mr. Russell filled his appointment at the Cumberland church Sunday, preaching an excellent sermon to a good congregation. A heavy rain prevented him from having services at night.

Rev. C. L. Herring and family are still absent visiting friends and relatives in north Alabama.

This vicinity is still being visited by good rains, and everyone is in fine spirits over prospects of good late gardens and a crop of corn.

Mrs. Bud Howell has been quite sick for a week, but is better at this writing.

The material for the new immigration paper is on the road, and is expected every day.

We learn that Mr. Joe Teague is erecting a new building on the lot between his mother's residence and the freight depot and will open up a foundry at an early day.

Mr. A. J. Powers, a former merchant here, now of Anniston, is in the city.

SHELBY COUNTY ASSESSMENTS.

A Comparison with 1895 Shows a Considerable Increase.

The following figures show the tax assessments for 1896 and 1897, and a comparison of the two years shows a wonderful increase for our county:

Assessment of realty, 1896	$1,512,607
Assessment of personalty, 1896	2,350,901
Total	3,863,508
Assessment of realty, 1897	1,569,410
Assessment of personalty, 1897	2,351,901
Raises sustained by commissioners	3,921
Total	3,915,331
Pol. tax assessment, 1897	2,550
Pol. tax assessment, 1895	2,137
Increase	323
Total assessment, 1897	3,915,331
Total assessment, 1896	3,863,508
Increase	21,736

The assessment as given above will net the county $16,661.33, which will be quite sufficient, with economical management, for the county expenses.

This is a good showing, indeed, for Shelby County in these hard times. It might have been more with a proper enforcement of the new law, but the above figures are quite satisfactory.

Harpersville Echoes.

Dr. Teague is in town. Work on the new gin house is progressing finely.

The Baptist Sunday school is well attended.

Rev. Mr. Clotfelter filled his appointment at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening.

Mr. Bell, of south Alabama, is handling the yard stick in R. M. Borum's store.

Mrs. Phillips, of Fayetteville, is visiting the family of her mother, Mrs. Cater.

Miss Mattie Worsham, of Ironville, is visiting J. L. Walthall's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Green, of Columbiana, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. B. S. Rowe.

B. S. Davis, of St. Clair County, attended preaching here Sunday.

Miss Zilla Sparks and her brother, John, of Talladega, are visiting D. W. Kidd's family.

Miss Margaret Burrow died very suddenly one day last week and was buried here. Rev. Mr. Neal, of Wilsonville, conducted the burial service.

The Baptist meeting is progressing finely, and we hope that much good is being done. There is quite a number of ministers present, whose names are as follows: Dr. Teague, Revs. B. F. Giles, J. F. Parker, John Corley, Neal, Clotfelter, and Rev. Mr. Longdryer.

The last named gentleman is doing most of the preaching, and such preaching we have never heard before. Such an orator we have never seen in the pulpit, and such attention we never saw. In fact it seems that all of our people have forgotten everything else but the meeting, and you can hear it talked on the streets, on the farms, in the shop, and in fact everywhere you go. On account of sickness in his family the pastor, Mr. Giles, did not come in until Monday.

Sterrett Stirrings.

We are having the rains now, and crops are finishing up in nice order.

R. E. Cosper and wife, of this place, left last Saturday on a visit to relatives at Jenison, to be absent for some days.

The writing school taught here by Prof. A. R. Thompson closed last Friday, showing a great improvement among the pupils in their handwriting.

The percentage of improvement ranged from 100 to 200 per cent. A gold medal was awarded to Miss Emma Johnson, of this place, she having the highest rate of percentage. Her advancement was from almost nothing to a good fair handwriting. Professor Thompson has gone to Creswell where he has a class. Some of the students that attended the school at this place have gone to Creswell to take lessons through the school there.

The base ball teams of Sterrett and Cobb crossed bats last Saturday on the latter's ground, and resulted in a victory for the Cobb boys. They only played 7 innings, or the result might have been otherwise.

Several of the young people of Sterrett attended divine services at Vandiver and Trinity churches last Sunday.

Watermelons in abundance; almost to give away.

The meeting at Pleasant Grove church, at Vandiver, is being protracted this week, conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. T. Brasher, J. W. Lawley, of Branchville, and some local preachers.

Some new cases of slow fever in this community. A. J. Johnson has a little boy quite sick with it; C. H. Bradshaw's little girl, Irene, is thought to be taking it. Mrs. J. M. Hartsfield is also very sick.

Why don't some physician locate at Sterrett? There has been quite a lot of sickness here this year.

SUMMER RESORTS.

Many delightful summer resorts are situated on and reached via the Southern Railway. Whether one desires the seashore or the mountains, the fashionable hotels or quiet country homes they can be reached via this magnificent highway of travel.

Asheville, N. C., Roan Mountain, Tenn., and the mountain resorts of East Tennessee and Western North Carolina. "The Land of the Sky,"—Tate Springs, Tenn., Oliver Springs, Tenn., Lookout Mountain, Tenn., Leaning Springs, Ga., the various Virginia Springs, also the seashore resorts are reached by the Southern Railway on convenient schedules, and at very low rates.

The Southern Railway has issued a handsome folder, entitled "Summer Homes and Resorts," descriptive of nearly one thousand summer resort hotels and boarding houses, including information regarding rates for board at the different places and railroad fares to each. Write to A. B. Rescorder, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Southern Railway, Chattanooga, Tenn., for a copy of this folder.

Who can think of some thing to patent? Protect your ideas! They may bring you wealth. Write JOHN W. WILKINSON & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1.00 price free and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

A CALERA BURGLAR CAUGHT.

Police Officers Make a Find of the Stolen Watches.

Sunday afternoon Officer Perdue arrested William Baker a negro on a charge of being wanted in Calera for grand larceny. It is said that Baker stole several fine gold watches from the dealers in that town. Deputy Sheriff J. B. Randall, of Calera, came up to this city Sunday and identified the negro. He took him back to Calera Sunday night but returned to Birmingham yesterday to try and find the watches. The negro gave the officers quite a long chase from Second avenue and Seventeenth thence to Fifth avenue and the same street before he was captured.

The officer caught him under a building.

When taken to the station and searched a lady's chain and a man's watch was found on his person. The watch was identified by Mr. Randall.

It was afterwards ascertained that Baker had exchanged a finer watch for the one that was found on his person. A case with the works removed was found in a pawn shop by Deputy Randall and the works were found in another case. There is a watch at the headquarters that has not been identified. It is said that a negro from Calera came to this city and found Baker after, which he informed the police officer.

Items from Creswell.

Mrs. J. H. Coleman and family returned from Fayetteville the early part of last week, after spending several days with relatives and friends there, attending the protracted meeting.

Miss Mattie Byars, of Harpersville, spent a few pleasant days the early part of week before last with her friend, Miss Jennie Bates, and others here.

Prof. A. R. Thompson, accompanied by his wife, came down from Sterrett last Saturday, where he had taught a successful writing school, and took up his school at this place Monday with flattering results.

Mrs. J. H. Green, of Ellsville, Miss., is on a visit to relatives and friends here, after an absence of two years. Her many friends are delighted to have her with us again.

John Hammett and family, of Seden, spent a few days with us recently.

W. N. and J. A. Darlin, the blind boys, returned from Sulphur Springs Monday, after spending some weeks there.

J. B. German, of Columbiana, now contracting in Bibb County, was with us a few days last week.

"FRESH FROM GEORGY."

The Sage of Rocky Creek and the Boys.

Where Lou Watson Came Across the Border Line—A Little Fun at Tankersley's Station.

Hit was 15 years ago by the almanac when Lou Watson turned up at our house all of a sudden like about "first dusk sharp," as Billy Scroggins were wont to say. He was right fresh from somewhere back in Georgy. He was the glibest and most homeliest and loquacious boy that ever left his tracks in the regions around Rocky Creek—a stranger in a strange country amongst strange people, and nothin but a yearlin boy at that.

Onest upon a time I was a boy my own individually self. From what they tell me and from what I can recollect there ain't no earthly doubts about that. Consequently I love the boys. I love the boys better than any livin thing that cumbars the soil and breathes the native air—exceptin the girls. And when Lou Watson come pickin along the big road that evenin and sidled up to the front gate and said "hello" rather weak and trembly like, the onliest thing for me to do was to go out there and see who it was and what they wanted.

He Had Come to Stay.

"Is this where a man by the name of Sanders lives?" says the boy as he leans back and braced himself up agin the horse rack.

"This is the place and this is the man," says I. "Where did you come from, where are you headin for, and what was your name when you left home?"

"My name was Lou Watson when I left home," says he. "My name is Lou Watson till yet. I come from Georgy and I ain't goin nowhere in partiar right now. I loved to stop here and go to work and live with you."

"The crops are laid by, fodder ain't ripe and cotton ain't openin up to speak of yet, and raley there ain't a blessed thing around here for a boy about your size to do," says I.

"Don't make a blame bit of difference to me about the crops, mister," says the boy. "Work I want and work I must have. I would rather not steal, and I'll be essentially dabbled in if I don't die before I will beg. But I can work and do my share of anything that comes to hand on the farm."

I could see as how the boy was in dead earnest in regards to the work, and I then went to tell him that old man Jerry Rutherford was ravin out boards to cover his new gin house, and maybe he might get a job over there.

"Tain't no use in talkin, mister," the boy went on as he run his thumbs under a pair of home-knit galls and pulled his breeches up under his arms. "I have come all the way from Georgy, come afoot and come to your house to git work to do and a place to stay. I haven't a rule good square meal in somethin better than three weeks. There are wrinkles under the brow band of my breeches right now as big as your arm—dast if they ain't. I do essentially believe I could take the slack of my breadbasket and wipe my nose with it—dast if I don't. I must eat, and I must wear clothes and I must work. I have come all the way from Georgy. I have come to Rocky Creek. I have come to your house and I have come to stay."

And Lou Remained Over.

That night I went to bed and went to sleep wonderin what in the thunderations I would do with that stray American boy from Georgy. According to the Scriptures the earth had already been replenished considerable right around there, and so far as I knew nobody hadn't forgot the multiplication table nor burnt up any cradles to speak of. And if in spite of that the boys had put in to come across the line from Georgy, and come to stay, I didn't know for certain where the rush would stop.

But, anyhow, I put the Georgy youngster out in the shed room that night with the rest of the boys. By the first crack of day next mornin he was up and about. When I got out to the lot he had fed the horses and tended to the stock. When I got to the woodpile he had cut up stove wood enough to last two days. When I started to the spring I saw him comin up the hill with three buckets of water—one in each hand and the third one on his head. And then when mother went down to the cow pen, bless heavens if he want standin there at the bars with the calf rope in his hands ready waitin for a chance to turn off another job.

Now, it had went through my head the other night that I would ride over to old man Jerry Rutherford's the next mornin to see if he wouldn't take the Georgy boy to his house and make a place for him. Old man Jerry didn't have no boys of his own so far as anybody knowed, and I loved it might suit him to fill out his hand with the little straggler from Georgy. But before breakfast that mornin, seen what I had saw, says I to myself, says I:

"Little man, your name might be Watson, or it might be Smith—it might be that you come from Georgy, or Reelfoot Lake, or Habbersham or Kallamazo. But I'll be essentially dabbled in if you ain't right in regards to one thing—you have come to stay."

And so for seven long years Lou Watson remained over at our house and tarried around in the Rocky Creek settlement. After that he took and got married and settled down. He held his own from the jump and is now ahead of the music in regards to this world's goods. And even till yet he can do more work in less time, and clamber up around more country grub than any one man that ever came across the border lines of Georgy.

The next time you go down the old federal road across Wolf creek and through the stump hills country—in a big oak grove along the level on yonder side of Butler's mill, you will notice the most loveliest country settlement that you would pass if you rid on for three days. Right there is where Lou Watson and his folks now live.

Hit was fifteen years ago to-night when he come across the border lines of Georgy, come to our house and come to stay. And there is room and work and plenty of good things anywhere in the discovered world for every boy that "comes to stay."

Then Two Town Girls.

When Billy George Bogin come by our house on Saturday evenin before the last third Sunday on his return back home from a big picnic they had that day over at Tankersley's Station, I couldn't help from feelin sorry for the boy slap down to the bottom of my heart.

The few remainin clothes which Billy George had on, the shape and color of his homely countenance, and a badly left and lonesome look in his eye give him all the general outward apppearments of a young man who had swum the snaggy fork of Salt creek where the water was ragin high and muddy.

"Where have you been, Billy George?" said I; "where have you been, charmin Billy?"

"About and about," says Billy George.

But I could see that I had the boy where the hair was short and the ground slick, and I wouldn't turn loose till he opened up and told me the story. And from the way he told it I reckon no doubts he had been "about and about." He had likewise also been over to Tankersley's Station to that picnic, and if there was any pickin to speak of that day he had furnished his share of the feasters. He had got in amongst the ribbons and the culico, and after that, to let him tell it, he had a most felonious and smashin big time with some of the female generation.

"There was two town girls come down to the station and tended the picnic," says Billy George—which I had my private opinions right then touchin the great gods of fun the boy had that day. "And let me tell you, Uncle Rufus, they was pritty as red shoes and blue stockings—but hot stuff and a heap of it."

"You must recollect I never have took my stand and made my final restin place around in the calico corner, but when them two town girls come and picked me out for a native born idiot and put in to have some fun they couldn't see the snags ahead. They had their fun, I reckon, but I hadn't went off nowhere and I got my share whilst the show was goin on."

"One of them girls had fetched a wheel, as she called it, and nothin would do, but I must ride the blame thing. I told her I had rid most anything from a buckin mule to a long-horn steer, and I would do my level durndest to ride anything that anybody else had ever rid. In the main time I had saw the girl mount her wheel and go spinnin and flyin around the picnic grounds as smooth and easy as fallin off of a wet log—which I didn't have no better sense than to think it was as easy as it looked. And it stood plum reasonable with me that if a gay and gorgeous girl—with all her frills and fixments and riggings on—could ride the thing so graceful like and easy, it would be still more easier for a boy like me, with only a few plain clothes on, to 'make the mount and scorch the wind,' as she called it."

"So consequently I made the mount. But I didn't burn any wind to speak of. The blame thing flew up behind and before at the same time, and instid of scorchin the native air I plowed a hole three feet long in the fair bosom of the native earth with my own native tace. Them town girls made out like they was tremendus sorry—which at the same time they laughed and cackled and cackled and laughed till blamed if one of 'em didn't jest simply fall down and wallow in it. Well, I jined in with 'em and laughed some at my fool self and made out like it didn't hurt much. All of the skin had come off of my shins on the first round, but dablame 'em, I knowed their time was comin."

In the Grapevine Swing.

"After that," says Billy George with an able-bodied twinkle in his eye, "I didn't have a blame thing to do but hang around and let them town girls ride their own wheel and have their own fun. Dablame 'em, I knowed their time was comin."

"First thing after dinner we went off down on the creek to the grapevine swing under that big beech tree. One of the girls lowed she had read somethin in a book once upon a time about swingin in a grapevine swing and she was most crazy to see how it would feel. The other one was more than willin providin I would swing with 'em and the vine was plenty strong to hold up with three. Now as for me I had on my Sunday clothes, and I didn't have no wild romantic notions about how it would feel to be swingin in a grapevine swing back and forth across the widest place in the creek. I was pluperfectly satisfied that somethin would come to pass with them two town girls before the sun went down with a bobtail flush behind the western hills, and I loved their time was comin now presently."

"But pothin else would do, and rather than bust up the show and spile the fun, I went on across with the girls. By this time I reckon they have got a slight idea that swingin in a grapevine swing ain't what it use to be. We swung across back and forth two or three times with a smooth and steady swish, and then the old swing broke and we all went down into the creek with a mighty swash."

"Now, if you remember, Uncle Rufus, there is a plum nest of grapevines and bamboo briars along the banks of that creek. We didn't get drowned because the water want deep enough for that, but all of the scramblin and screamin and splashin and huggin you ever saw or heard tell of or read about, me and them two town girls we had it then and there."

"And when finally at last we come forth and got out on safe ground onest more they want so tremendus much prettier than me, and I had on just about as many clothes as they did. Doblame 'em, I knowed their time was comin somewheres along the line and I was willin to go down with 'em if it had to come that way."

"What next? Well, them two town girls took their blamed old wheel and went on back home, whilst I left the dear, delightful old grapevine swing floatin down the creek and went on my way rejoicin."

"You can tell all you know about how I rid the wheel. You can tell all you know about me and the girls and the grapevine swing. But I would rather you don't say nothin about the other boy that had took my pocket knife and clum up in the big beech tree to turn things loose in the due fullness of time. The other boy was my side partner, Brit Walton, and I love Brit like a brother, I do."

RUFUS SANDERS.

TARIFF INEQUITIES.

Prosperity for the Mill Bosses and Favorites.

Charles H. Evans, who has had much to do with the preparation of tariff bills during the last 25 years, figures the ad valorem equivalents of the duties under the late and the present tariff in different schedules as follows:

Schedules.	Old tariff.	New tariff.
Chemicals.....	25.00	30.00
Barthen and glass ware.....	35.00	40.00
Metals.....	38.11	42.00
Sugar.....	40.94	44.16
Tobacco.....	119.06	121.30
Agricultural products.....	22.44	28.42
Spirits, etc.....	61.54	68.83
Cotton manufactures.....	42.75	52.23
Silk.....	46.36	53.41
Wools and wootens.....	47.62	55.51

Mr. Evans' estimates for the three remaining schedules—wood, including lumber, pulp and paper and sundries—are not given. He places the average on all dutiable goods at 54.66 per cent. against 40.10 per cent. under the late law. The present law is the worst we ever had. Even under the McKinley bill the average on dutiable goods was only 50.06 per cent. at the highest, in 1894.

Mr. Evans' averages are figured on the basis of quantities and values of imports for the fiscal year 1896. The average for the current fiscal year will be less than 54.66 per cent., and may be less than for the fiscal year 1894, because so great a quantity of the goods on which rates are highest and have been increased most has been imported in advance under the lower rates of the late law.

The average may reach the figure given, because many of the increased and highest rates are prohibitory, or nearly so, and the actual average will be brought down by the comparatively large importation of goods on which the duties are lowest.

But for the purposes of fair comparison it is proper to figure on the basis of imports under the comparatively low tariff. So far as the actual average may be less than that figured on the basis of imports of 1894 the difference will represent privation caused by the monstrous Dingley rates. It will mean that the people have been forced by the "prosperity" law to wear less woolen clothing and more shoddy and cotton. And so of other articles of necessity and comfort.

As prices advance all along the line the people will begin to see that the new law means prosperity for the mill bosses at their expense. The farmers will begin to see that the duties on their products are a fraud and an insult to their intelligence. Not a few of the tariff beneficiaries themselves who really desire to find foreign markets for their products will see that the Dingley law handicaps them heavily, and that they would be much better off without any protection for themselves if they were relieved of the expense of protecting others who could do without protection as well as they.

In short, all but a few protectees organized as monopoly trusts will see that the protective system is a curse to them. Then will come a tremendous reaction, more sweeping by far than that of 1892, and it will come to stay.

Some of the monopoly protectees expect it, and that is why they grasp at the straw of a permanent tariff commission. They would be delighted to "take the tariff out of politics" just as it is. But they may as well accept the conclusion that it will not be taken out of politics until it is taken entirely out of existence as a machine for protection and that it will be taken out in that way before very long and so quickly that their heads will swim as they never did before.—Chicago Chronicle.

NOTHING BUT TARIFF.

A Policy That Does Not Help the Country.

The currency question is not regarded as a serious one by republicans generally. There are some who, like the president, think that the federal financial system ought to be doctored; many more who are indifferent on the subject, and not a few who insist that there is no need for any action looking to financial reform. The senate did not think the matter important enough to justify a few hours' extension of the special session, and the president's message recommending the establishment of a commission was not over-courteously received by that body. The administration doubtless has reason to regard itself fortunate in getting a tariff bill passed, for it is to be noted that the president signed the Dingley bill in such haste as to suggest that he was haunted by a fear that if he wasn't quick about fastening executive sanction on it it might get away.

The tariff is, therefore, all that is to be hoped for just now, and that is a terrible condition of things that invades the concern and activity of the administration. The protectionists say that the tariff is enough; that all good is bound up in the new law, and that the country can now settle down and enjoy the prosperity that is sure to follow the establishment of Dingleyism as a policy. Thousands of the supporters of the "advance agent" insist that this new law is not what they voted for, but it is quite likely that the protectionist leaders know better than they do what they voted for. It seems to be held that if they didn't vote for it they ought to have done so, and that if they don't like it it is because they don't know what is good for them.

The new tariff is a fact, anyway, and we must make the best of it whether we like it or not. The Cleveland Plain Dealer, lapsing into a satirical mood, suggests that "everybody get rich by paying taxes and then bless the tariff. Don't," it says, "stop to think a minute about the necessity of having money with which to pay the taxes; that is a minor consideration. It is far more important that the trusts should have the privilege of collecting subsidies than that the money question be settled."

This is the truth, ironically speaking. The problem that the great American people should now set about solving is this: How to be happy though taxed like thunder.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

—To the man who is hungry, idle and in despair, it seems a mockery to be told that the country is in the enjoyment of unexampled prosperity. When good times come everybody will know it without being told. Does anybody know of anybody who is resisting the coming of prosperity?—Columbus (O.) Press.

—The people will let the administration know what they think of the new tariff act when the congressional elections come around.—Kansas City Star.

WHEAT AND GOOD TIMES.

At Variance with the Logic of Tariff-Makers.

People may differ as to the relation of the passage of the Dingley tariff bill may have to the evident indications of the revival of business and the return of prosperity, but no one has a doubt that wheat is the most important element among the many that are bringing about a brightened outlook and preparing the way for "good times." The settlement of the tariff agitation for at least four years will give the markets an opportunity to adjust themselves to stable conditions—a thing most desirable in the business world. But this stability is largely a negative factor, while the big crop in the United States, and especially the big crop of wheat, is a positive factor that is making its influence felt more strongly every day. A record crop of wheat in this country, coupled with short crops in most of the other grain-producing countries of the world, is a conjunction of circumstances that cannot fail to be advantageous to American farmers. While the shortage in Russia, the Argentine Republic, Australia, India and other countries is now said to amount to about one-tenth of the world's crop, the United States wheat growers, who fortunately overplanted their probable market by about 75,000,000 bushels, will profit greatly by this extra demand. The department of agriculture estimates the total wheat crop of the United States this year at 460,000,000 bushels, or 32,000,000 bushels in excess of that of last year. A big surplus wheat crop and an advancing price is the condition that is now making glad the American farmer from the Alleghenies to the Pacific coast.

Throughout the grain belt of the United States the crop of wheat is not only the largest since 1891, but is now safe, while the European crop, on the contrary, is the smallest since 1891. Expert statisticians estimate that the exportable surplus in the United States this year is 185,000,000 bushels, as compared with 145,000,000 bushels last year, a balance of 40,000,000 bushels over last year to aid in bringing good times. Compared with the millions of dollars the wheat crop will bring to America this year, the riches thus far taken from the Klondike mines are insignificant.

Kansas, Texas, Nebraska and Colorado and the west generally are already beginning to feel the good results of a most satisfactory year in agriculture. Nebraska is said to have paid off from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 of its mortgage indebtedness owing to the good crops and prices of last year and this year. Kansas is also paying off its mortgages, and the moving of the great grain crop is giving more employment and profits to the railroads, to merchants and all classes of business. Doubtless Mr. Dingley will look upon the big wheat crop in the United States as an indication that Providence is on the side of protection. In fact, most high protection papers are already pointing to the undoubted improvement of business conditions as a result of the new tariff law. The coincidence of big crops and foreign demand for our cereals with the enactment of a tariff whose average duty rate as compared with that of the Wilson law is as 54.66 to 40.10 is at least fortunate for the country, even though it is unfortunate for the logic of tariff-makers who claim that all blessings flow from protection.—Chicago Record (Ind.).

A TRUST TARIFF.

The Consumer Will Not Receive Any Benefit.

Whether the working man is to benefit by the trust-promoting duties of the Dingley law or not, there is no question that the trusts are to benefit. The enhanced value in trust stocks was anticipated before the passage of the tariff bill, and reflected by the most flourishing boom in prices seen on the New York stock exchange for many a year. This meant the majority of the speculators believed the trusts were to get an open chance to grind the people, who must buy at trust prices or go without. That grinding of the consumer is already beginning.

The United States Leather company is the legal name of the leather trust. It has $62,147,700 of capital, embraces nearly all the big dealers in the country, and can almost control the price of hides. Where it fails to control the price of hides, the people who benefit are the beef packers. Yet the leather trust is to raise the price of leather to the manufacturers in order to be able to pay profits on the money invested in its stock at boom prices. The manufacturer, in turn, having to pay more for his raw material, must raise the price to the retailer, and he to the consumer.

The leather trust officials have already announced their intention, and it has been estimated that on account of the rise the price of workmen's heavy shoes, which now sell at $1.25, will advance 40 cents, the price of women's shoes, selling for one dollar, will advance 30 cents; 75-cent children's shoes will advance 20 cents, and "farmers, who can get their heavy grain leather boots for two dollars, will have to pay $2.50." This must be done because the tariff on hides, which under the McKinley and the Wilson laws were on the free list, is now 15 per cent., and the manufacturer can buy his raw material from the leather trust, leaving the leather trust and the beef-packing combine to fight for the booty.

The manufacturer will have no more money to pay out in wages except what the trust allows him; the man who breeds cattle will have no more for his hides than the packing combine and the leather trust see fit to give. The people who wear boots and shoes will pay for the year's rise from 49 to 63 1/2 in the price of leather preferred. That is, they must pay the profits on the $3,856,047 which this rise represents.

These are facts. Whether it will be made up to the consumers in increase of the wages of the trust's employees is matter for conjecture.—Chicago Journal.

—Mr. Dingley may talk till doomsday and apologists for the republican party may rack their brains and their consciences with excuses, but the big, ugly fact cannot be hid that as soon as the sugar schedule of the new tariff bill was made public in the form in which it will be enacted into law the investors and professional traders of Wall street immediately concluded that the republican tariff had made the $37,500,000 of sugar trust common stock worth $4,125,000 more than it was before.—N. Y. Times.

SHE WANTED SNAKES.

The Regulation Kind That Are Seen in Beloit, Wis.

"Do you keep snakes?" she asked, as she peered through her glasses at the parrots and guinea pigs in the bird store. "I have a Gila monster and some chameleons," said the bird man.

"I don't think they would answer. You see what I want is a regular snake, one of the long field kind that are not poisonous. I may as well tell you that my husband has taken to drinking and I want the snake to put in his boots."

"If I were you," said the man, "I'd wait and if he keeps on drinking he'll see snakes anyhow."

"Yes, I can fill an order. If you call around to-morrow you can get the snakes," and the man took down the address of his customer.

"It's a test case," he said, as the woman went out, "and I feel sort of curious to know how it will turn out. My idea is that the husband will be found when he finds the snakes in his boots that he'll go out and get drunk as a biled owl, but maybe it will work the other way—we'll hope it will."

Then he sent his boy out to hunt for snakes in the hedges and ditches of the prairie.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Getting It Right.

They were riding on the rear seat of a Collamar car, and were strangers to each other. One of them was short and stout; the other was a man of medium size, to whom everything along the route seemed to be new.

As they were passing along near the car barns the medium-sized man looked up at the line residence upon the bluff and said: "Do you know who lives in that large house up there, with the big veranda?"

"That big brown house," the other returned.

"You mean the one with the porch running clear around it?"

"Yes; do you know who lives there?"

"The third one from the end of the row?"

"I mean the third from the westerly end of the row."

"Yes; that's the one I mean."

"Yes; one with the green awnings?"

"Let's see! Blamed if I know who lives there."

The medium-sized man said no more, but he looked as if he wanted to fight.—Cleveland Leader.

A Ruined Reputation.

"And you say," said the Sympathetic Person, looking down from the elevation of the doorstep upon the latest applicant for suburban charity, "that you have honestly done your best to find employment?"

"I have, madam."

"You have a regular vocation?"

"I was formerly an expressman."

"What city?"

"In Boston."

"But, surely, at this season of the year you ought to find work enough as an expressman in a large city like Boston."

"Madam, you do not know Boston. You have heard of the Bacchanale? Yes? Then it is only necessary to tell you that I am one of the expressmen who carried her to the station."

"But I do not see—"

"The fact became generally known, madam. From that moment I have ceased doing my regular work. There is no one in Boston who will now employ me."—Boston Budget.

Misunderstood.

"Well, I played golf with my wife this morning," said the man at the club.

"Which won?" said the man at the little table.

The first man looked up, twisted his mouth around a bit, started to say something, but refrained.

The other one looked up.

"Which won?" he repeated.

"Which one?" said the other angrily.

"What do you think I am, a Turk or a Mormon?"—Buffalo Enquirer.

A Partner in Crime.

"Parson," said the dying man, "do you believe in a deathbed confession?"

"Under certain circumstances," said the reverend gentleman.

"Well, it is this way. Years ago I was a passenger on the Great Consolidated Street railway."

"Yes, go on."

"Oh, I hate to tell it."

"Do on."

"And one day in a moment of vicious insanity, I bent them over a nickel fare!"

"He sank back exhausted."

"Listen," said the reverend man, "it may comfort you. Can you hear me?"

B. & O. Improvements.

The work of straightening the track and reducing the grade at Tables Station on the second division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad was recently completed, and the first train to use the new line was No. 1, the New York and St. Louis flyer. A heavy grade and three bad curves have been eliminated by this work. A mile east of Meyer's Hole, a similar improvement has also been completed after months of work. Several reverse curves and a nasty and dangerous dip are done away with at this point. Near Meyer's Hole, at Tablers, the alignment of the track is being materially changed, and, as in the other two improvements, bad grades and sharp, annoying curves are being removed. This part of the work will be done in sixty days and then a series of very dangerous places will have been entirely removed. This work in its entirety means the hauling of several additional cars in each freight train, besides reducing the danger of derailments to almost nothing. The second division, running from Cumberland to Brunswick, will soon be in first-class condition and more cheaply operated than ever.

Confinement and Hard Work.

Indoors, particularly in the sitting posture, are far more prejudicial to health than excessive muscular exertion in the open air. Hard sedentary work is far too weary after office hours to take much needful exercise in the open air. They often need a tonic. Where can they seek invigoration more certainly and agreeably than from Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is particularly adapted to recruit the exhausted force of nature. Use also for dyspepsia, kidney, liver and rheumatic ailments.

WOODEFORD'S MISSION.

The United States Minister to the Castilian Court

Charged with an Important Message—If Spain Does Not Specially Put Down the Rebellion in Cuba the United States Will Intervene—Gen. Grant's Idea.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Officials of the state department were very reticent yesterday when asked concerning a report in circulation that definite instructions had been given all our foreign ambassadors and ministers to European countries to sound and ascertain the attitude of European governments in case the United States should interfere in Cuba. While general denials were made by some of them, others intimated that the United States was ready to assume the position taken by Gen. Grant in 1874, as shown by the instructions of Secretary Fish to Minister Cushing.

Although it never appeared that these instructions were carried out, and there is no knowledge what Spain would have done in the premises, it is possible that Minister Woodford will have a different report to make.

It can be stated, on information received, here that there is no truth in the report that Lord Salisbury has sent an unfavorable answer to a suggestion that the United States would interfere, the fact being that he has not replied at all to the attempt of our ambassador to sound him on the subject, and that his attitude gives reason to believe he will not oppose such action as our interests may make necessary.

Minister Woodford's instructions are to intimate to Spain that the United States will intervene unless the situation in Cuba speedily improves. This, in effect, was the instructions which were given Mr. Cushing by Mr. Fish, and it is understood, that the attitude of the United States is almost identical with the position taken during Gen. Grant's administration. Then, as now, the good offices of the United States had been tendered to Spain to bring about a settlement of the war. "But," said Secretary Fish, "the well-intentioned proffers of the United States were unwisely rejected by Spain."

The secretary reviewed the situation, which presents many similar phases to that which exists now. President Grant, said the secretary, regarded independence as the only certain and necessary solution of the Cuban question. The attitude of the present administration is said to be on the same lines, and it is said Minister Woodford will make it clear to the Spanish authorities that our interests will make intervention by the United States imperative unless something is done speedily by Spain to improve the situation, disastrous as it is to our country.

A TERRIBLE SMASHUP.

A Dozen Persons Injured in a Collision Between a Freight and Passenger Train.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 21.—A special to the Commercial from Lima, O., says: A terrible smashup occurred here at 10:30 last night at the junction of the Lima Northern and Lake Erie & Western railroads in the eastern portion of the city. A Lake Erie freight crashed into a Lima Northern passenger train, carrying a large number of excursionists on their return from Toledo, the train being a special excursion given by a tea store of this city.

The Lake Erie engine was knocked off the track and badly demolished and two coaches of the Lima Northern were overturned, badly injuring a large number of Lima's prominent people.

Relief trains hurried in the injured, all physicians being pressed into service.

Neither train stepped at the junction, the Lake Erie engine dashing into the second coach, overturning it. It was filled with passengers. The engine was sent into a wheat field 50 feet from the track.

ANGIOLILLI GARROTED.

The Assassin of Senor Canovas del Castillo Pays the Forfeit of His Crime.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Aug. 21.—Michel Angiolilli, who shot and killed Senor Canovas del Castillo, the premier of Spain, at the baths of Santa Agnera, on Sunday, August 8, was garroted at 11 a. m., according to the sentence of the court-martial imposed upon him on Monday last after his trial on the previous Sunday, which sentence was confirmed by the supreme council of war Thursday.

Angiolilli heard calmly the news that he was to be executed to-day, but he appeared to be surprised at and bitterly complained of the frequent visits of the priests, declaring they would obtain nothing from him. He declined to enter the chapel, saying he was comfortable enough in his cell.

An executioner from Bourges performed the garrotting, just prior to which a priest exhorted the anarchist to repent, to which Angiolilli responded: "Since you cannot get me out of prison, leave me in peace. I, myself, will settle with God."

ARTHUR B. CONNELLY DEAD.

Was for Sixteen Years Chief of Police of Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 21.—Arthur B. Connelly, for 16 years chief of police of Atlanta, died at his home in this city at 4 a. m., after a long illness. He began his career on the force as a patrolman, rose to be captain, and was finally elected chief, which post he held through eight successive terms, until his death. He was a prominent member of the National Association of Police Chiefs, and known throughout the country as an able official.

WORLD'S GRAIN CROPS.

Summary of Advice Received by the Agricultural Department Deficiency in the European Crop—The Aggregate Contribution to the European Supply Will be Materially Curtailed by the Drought and Resultant Famine in India.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Advices to the agricultural department from private and, indirectly, official sources, confirm the predictions of a considerable deficiency in the European wheat crop, while rye, which is the chief bread grain of eastern Europe, is also short. This fact, a special report of Statistician Hyde of the department says, as well as the wheat deficiency, will tend to restrict the exportation of the latter from those European countries which usually have a surplus of that grain. As to non-European countries other than the United States, their aggregate contribution to the European supply will be materially affected by the fact that India, denuded by the famine, will have practically no wheat to export.

Agricultural conditions in foreign countries follow:

GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Returns from every county in England and from many districts in Wales, Scotland and Ireland, published by the Agricultural Gazette, July 28, indicate the wheat crop would be considerable, oats and potatoes in a less degree, and barley only slightly below the average. Hay was largely, and considerably and beans somewhat above. Barley had suffered an unfavorable change in quality; and as part of it will be unfit for malting purposes, the returns, which make it nearly an average crop, must appear by some what discounted.

Wheat harvest began in some of the southern and south midland counties during the week ended July 24, and was progressing favorably up to the end of the month, but taking the country as a whole, the harvest of the crop is harvested in August. The different cereals were ripening more nearly together than usual.

FRANCE. Conservative commercial estimates put the wheat crop at 100,000,000 hectolitres, making it about one-seventh less than the heavy crop of 1896. Reports up to near the end of July report that the weather was unfavorable for harvesting, and especially in the north. So far as the harvest has yet advanced the reports from France speak favorably, both as to quantity and quality, and do not tend to encourage any expectation that the crop will exceed the lower estimates.

GERMANY. An official report, dated July 15, in which the figure is denoted superior, "2" good, and "3" middling condition, puts winter wheat at 2.3, rye at 2.4, barley at 2.7, oats at 3.3, potatoes at 2.7 and hay at 2.6. Thus none of the leading cereals are rated as "good." According to reports from Hamburg the crop is said to be more than half the usual apple, pear and plum crops in northern Germany this year.

RUSSIA. Advice from Nicolaief, of July 25, report an average yield of wheat, but the quality of spring wheat had suffered from hot weather, and much of it would be light. Rye was unsatisfactory in quality and quantity. Barley was unsatisfactory in yield, but its color had suffered from the rains. Other maladvices from Russia speak unfavorably regarding the wheat and rye crops, the recent great heat having caused premature ripening.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY. Prices of wheat at Vienna are reported to be the highest in ten years, and foreign wheat is being imported. The weather is wet.

BELOGIUM. The yield of wheat is reported as satisfactory, but that of rye deficient.

HOLLAND. The weather in the latter part of July was somewhat unfavorable for harvesting.

DENMARK. Advice from Copenhagen, dated July 27, stated that rye had suffered from storms, but wheat was a fair average crop, and barley good weather unsifted.

ROMANIA. The wheat crop is described as "very disappointing," and parcels of new grain received in London are said to show irregular and very poor quality.

BULGARIA. According to reports for near the end of July, the wheat crop had suffered seriously from heavy rains.

INDIA. Crop prospects were improved by rains in many districts, but in Bombay and Punjab much more rain was needed.

AUSTRALIA. Crop prospects in Victoria had been improved by rain and, according to latest mail advices, were fairly good.

ARGENTINA. Telegraphic reports to London represent the weather as being favorable for the crops.

STARTLING CONFESSION.

Chas. Krey Has Been Robbing the Pacific Express Co. Fourteen Years.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—Charles Krey, 33 years of age, for 19 years a trusted employee of the Pacific and United States Express companies in this city, has been arrested, charged with grand larceny and embezzlement.

Krey was transfer money clerk, and in that capacity handled large sums of money every day. He was trusted implicitly. Two warrants were issued against Krey, that for embezzlement names the amount at $1,047.80. The grand larceny warrant charge is $4,500.30.

Krey confessed his peculation to Supt. Luther A. Fuller, in charge of the express offices, which are maintained jointly. He explained that he commenced to take money nearly four years ago. He was never suspected of wrong until proof of his crime came suddenly upon him.

An Indiana Town Burned.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 21.—Stewartsville, Posey county, lost its entire business section yesterday by fire. Nine business houses lost buildings and stock. The total loss is $90,000, with $10,000 insurance. The heaviest loser was Henry Debenberger, dry goods. The public hall and Odd Fellows' building were partially destroyed. The residences also burned.

RAILROAD PROJECTED

And Soon to be Built Leading to the Northern Gold Fields.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—A special correspondent of the Bulletin writing from Juneau, Alaska, under date of August 11, says that railroad communication between Juneau and Dawson will be one of the things of the near future. Next spring 5,000 men will be at work and the road will probably be completed before next fall.

The proposed road is to start from the head of steamboat navigation in Klamath river and run to Lake Leslie.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

The Most Encouraging Reports for Many Years, Showing a Uniform Improvement—The Coal Strike, the Only Impediment to a Full Resumption of Business, Shows Signs of an Early Collapse.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say: Not for several years have the telegraphic reports from various cities in all parts of the country been so encouraging or show as uniform improvement as this week. The markets are called crazy by some, but fairly represent the people whose confidence in the future is strong and increasing. Nothing appears to check it.

The demand for money improves, taking from New York to the interior about $500,000 more than was received during the week, and offerings of commercial loans are much larger, including considerable iron and steel paper, and the course of foreign exchange is generally interpreted as an indication that specie imports cannot be long delayed.

The greatest gain has been for agricultural products. Corn has advanced a little in price, but is moving very largely, so that the last year's surplus may soon be marketed unless the new crop turns out better than many now expect. Cotton declined an eighth because of an estimate promising the largest crop ever grown, but the dry goods market is decidedly improving and some of the large mills, after a few weeks of suspension, have resumed work.

Other farm products are doing well also, but wheat has advanced 1 1/2 cents for the week on actual transactions, with heavy purchases for export.

Western receipts for the week were 3,844,544 bushels, against 3,874,775 last year and for three weeks 11,340,207 bushels against 10,697,137 last year, while Atlantic exports are about double last year's, 3,705,237 bushels, against 1,808,347 last year; and for three weeks, 9,819,518, against 5,102,031 last year, flour included for both years.

It is well to notice that corn exports continue more than double last year also, in three weeks 8,516,544 bushels, against 4,119,241 last year.

The iron and steel industry is pushing forward in spite of the still unsettled strike of bituminous coal miners and the enormous purchases of ore at Cleveland, and also of billets at Pittsburgh, show the utmost confidence in the future. Many additional establishments have begun working during the past week and while no material change in price has occurred, the reports indicate fewer concessions to secure business and a much steadier tone.

The sales of ore at Cleveland have amounted in two weeks 400,000 or 500,000 tons, and of billets sales reported at Pittsburgh have been in three weeks about 300,000 tons. Tin is firmer, with full consumption and there is larger business in copper.

The old difficulty remains in the boot and shoe industry, dealers being unwilling to buy largely at the prices which manufacturers now ask, though during the past week the only change has been a slight advance on calf boots.

The market for hides at Chicago is again much stronger, prices having advanced with very narrow transactions. In the woolen business a constant increase appears in the number of establishments at work and the demand for goods has much increased.

Failures for the week have been 223 in the United States, against 289 last year; and 30 in Canada against 27 last year.

DOLLAR WHEAT.

The Event Celebrated on the Minneapolis Produce Exchange by a Band.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 20.—Cash wheat to-day sold at a dollar in Minneapolis, the first time since the summer of 1890. Predictions to-day were that failures would follow within a few days, in view of the advance of six cents to-day. On the chamber of commerce floor, there was a shout of expectancy from the pit as the price approached a dollar. The market was strong, opening three cents higher than yesterday's close, supported by strong foreign news and bullish northwest reports.

The price of cash wheat had just passed the dollar point, when from down the hallway came the sound of martial music. There was a rush for the door, and the crowd broke into a cheer as up the corridor came C. A. Pillsbury at the head of a band of music which was pounding out a dollar memorial march. Mr. Pillsbury led his band through the doorway and onto the floor, while hats went up and cheers proclaimed the entire satisfaction with which a majority received the news of dollar wheat.

The market whirled away and very few attempted to keep up with it. The advance was steady from the opening. At one time over six cents gain from yesterday was realized and September wheat closed in Minneapolis 5 1/2 cents higher than yesterday,

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

BACK TAX COMMISSIONER.

The Montgomery Advertiser of last Thursday, under a big scare head, gives a resume of the operation of the back tax law in this county, in which it attempts to show that Mr. Nabors was removed by the Governor for too general activity in its administration, or in other words that the law was intended only to be enforced against a certain class and that Mr. Nabors was removed for enforcing it in an impartial manner.

Of course the Advertiser is always on the alert for charges to bring against the Governor, and we notice it has a way of twisting facts to suit its own purpose. We have no desire to defend Governor Johnston against the Advertiser, as he is fully able to take care of himself, but as it is being sought to make a party matter of this law we shall insist on the facts being stated as they exist. We did this in our columns last week, and showed plainly that the whole matter had terminated in a purely business manner.

In this article is contained the following from Mr. Nabors:

"I made honest effort to execute the unpopular law without fear or favor. Doubtless I made some mistakes, as any man will, but the report that I was reckless or inconsiderate is false."

"I was unable to attend the commissioners' court at the regular term on account of sickness, and requested a continuance. The court proceeded to hear some cases and, as I am informed, was moving along satisfactorily and orderly (though the State was not represented) until Ex-Governor Cobb made an impassioned speech attacking the law and its administration. This seemed to stampede the court and contestants and created quite an excitement. Cases not reached were continued to last Monday, when I went to Columbia to represent the State's interest, only to find that I had been summarily removed."

"My information is that the Governor acted on information from an attorney representing parties contesting the president of the corporation whose plant was raised, and a farmer who did not contest his."

"The action of the court was on ex parte testimony, and the Governor, in removing me, acted as though I did not construe the law to be a farce. I was not informed that it was to be partially enforced and I tried to make a general and equitable application, and my conscience is clear so far as my actions are concerned."

We do not deny that Mr. Nabors made an honest effort to do what he conceived to be his duty, but the fact remains that his conception of his duties was wrong. He made his raises from the tax books without any investigation of the lands, and in most cases on general judgment as to their value, and that he had no witnesses summoned for the State showed that had he been present at the trial he could not have proven the correctness of his valuations.

Ex-Governor Cobb did not attack the law. He objected to the proceedings of the court because they were not regular. This the court admitted and only took the evidence of the defense for their own convenience.

The CHRONICLE is in a position to state that the Governor acted on information obtained from an official source, and that the information was correct and uncolored.

Mr. Nabors did not begin his labors until it was too late to proceed regularly as the law directs, and acted entirely on his own judgment of the meaning of the law. He made many raises that were very unjust, while he passed other valuations that would have been raised.

This is not a question of honesty of purpose, nor of political policy; it is one of business, and a mistake on the part of Mr. Nabors in his construction of the law.

We repeat that the purpose of this law is a good one, and there is necessity for it. In this assertion we are borne out by members of all parties in this county, and especially by those who are familiar with the finances of the county. We can see no good sense in making it the basis of a feeble attack on the Governor by a personal enemy.

As soon as cigarettes went up under the new tariff the wages of the girls went down. This is one of the rules that work both ways.

History has chronicled the fall of all nations at the height of their wickedness. The day of judgment must be near at hand for Spain.

Wheat has reached a dollar. We congratulate the Western farmer, if he realizes on it, but we condole with ourselves that we will have to eat one biscuit less each morning.

The Rev. Mr. Dickinson, of Selma, was mentioned for Governor, but declines to become a candidate. He is real wise, besides being too good a preacher to make a sorry politician.

Wheat is now going down faster than it went up. The speculator has made his speck, and it's all over. Look out for the same thing in cotton. The papers which howled over dollar wheat Saturday were taking it all back Monday.

We have noticed some men walk into a newspaper office for the purpose of stopping his paper with an air of expectancy that he was going to stop the entire office. He usually walks out with an air which seems to say, "There must be others."

One of Boston's newspapers has severely criticized Mrs. Felton, of Georgia, for her remarks defending the lynching of a certain class of criminals. The Boston papers will please take notice that their opinions are neither sought for nor noticed in this part of the country. We do not need any of their assistance in the management of our affairs.

Thirty-two years after the end of the civil war the number of prisoners on account of that war exceeds by about 250,000 the number of soldiers actually engaged in service in all the armies of the Government at any time between the firing upon Sumter and the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. The army of prisoners after a third of a century is between 30 and 40 per cent larger than the fighting army at any one time during the war.—New York Sun.

No comment necessary.

A STEEL company in Cleveland has just received an order for 20,000 tons of rails for electric roads in Ireland. In securing this contract the English mills were undersold. And yet the Dingley law contains a duty of $7 per ton on steel rails to "protect us from the pauper labor of Europe."—New York World.

This is a fair illustration of the workings of a protective tariff. If the laborer got the benefit of it all of us would favor it, but he does not.

It is beyond the province of a newspaper to express opinions of its own in a news item. When this is done the news is sure to be colored, and the reporter who does it or is allowed to do it goes outside the realm of news-gathering. The news should be given as it is, and if the facts do not suit the editor let him speak through the proper channel. A violation of this rule is apt to cause an unjust discrimination against the paper, for which it should blame itself.

Every report from Cuba confirms and strengthens the idea that it is the duty of this Government to interfere in behalf of the struggling little nation against the acts of a nation utterly devoid of principle and of humanity. If our Government does not take decisive steps in time to accomplish something it should hang its head in shame. The friendly-nation theory is not good, for we should blush to acknowledge friendship for or with a nation of barbarians, such as Spain has proven herself to be.

Mr. Waramaker on Advertising.

The following from John Waramaker, the great Philadelphia merchant, is published for the encouragement of our readers who are business men, and needs no comment:

"I never in my life used such a thing as a poster or dodger, or hand bill. My plan for twenty years has been to buy so much space in a newspaper and fill it up as I wanted. I would not give an advertisement in a newspaper of five hundred circulation for five thousand dodgers or posters."

"If I wanted to sell cheap jewelry or run a gambling scheme I might use posters; but I would not insult a decent reading public with hand bills."

"The class of people who read them are too poor to look to for support in mercantile affairs. I deal directly with the publisher. I say to him: 'How much will you let me run a column of matter through your paper for $100 or $500, as the case may be?'"

"I let him do the figuring, and if I think he is not trying to take more than his share, I give him the copy. I lay aside the profits on a particular line of goods for advertising purpose."

"At first I laid aside $3,000; last year I laid aside and spent $40,000. I have done better this year and shall increase that sum as the profits warrant it. I owe my success to newspapers, and to them I freely give a certain profit of my yearly business."

We want to add the advice that to catch the class of people in country districts who do not read newspapers, the dodgers are a good thing, but for newspaper readers the above is correct.

Your Boy Won't Live a Month.

So Gilman Brown, of 34 Mill St., South Garder, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had lung trouble, following Typhoid Malaria, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctors who finally gave him up, saying, "Your son won't live a month." He tried Dr. King's New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for lung trouble. Trial Bottles Free at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. Gist.

PEOPLE WILL TALK.

You may get through the world, but 'twill be very slow. If you listen to all that is said as you go, You'll be worried and fretted and kept in a stew. For meddling tongues must have something to do.

And people will talk. If quiet and modest you'll have it pronounced That your humble position is only assumed— You're a wolf in sheep's clothing, or else you're a fool.

But don't get excited—keep perfectly cool— For people will talk. And then if you show the least boldness of heart, Or a slight inclination to take your own part, They will call you an upstart, conceited and vain.

But keep straight ahead, don't stop to explain. For people will talk. If you change your dress, or old-fashioned your hat, Someone will surely take notice of that.

And hint rather than tell you can't pay your way. But don't get excited, whatever they say— For people will talk. If you dress in the fashion don't think to escape.

For you criticize them in a different shape. You're ahead of your means, or your tailor's unpaid. But build up your own business—there's naught to be gained— For people will talk.

Now the best way to do it is to do as you please; For your mind, if you have one, will then be at ease.

Of course you'll meet with all sorts of abuse, But don't think to stop them—it ain't any use. For people will talk.

At the hospitable home of Mrs. E. P. Morrisett, of Montgomery, one day last week we were enjoying dinner when the subject of kindergartens was mentioned and our recent efforts to establish a class at Columbiana; whereupon that estimable lady enthusiastically exclaimed, "Oh, Mrs. Gist, do not relent; don't give up until you succeed in securing a kindergarten for your town, and the people there will bless you for many years, and even after you are dead they will bless you for the good the kindergarten has done." Will the ladies who have not already signed the articles for a class please report to Mrs. Gordon DuBoise or myself. We have found many ladies reluctant to place their children in a kindergarten without the father's consent. We beg the fathers of these little ones to think well before they say nay. You can trust your little ones with an ignorant negro nurse and let them go out on the streets, where they are liable to hear uncouth language, learn to tell fibs, are left melting in the hot sun, and allowed to be stuffed with candy and other indigestible things, but you can't trust them in a large clean room with an instructress who entertains by the simplest but most impressive object lessons, expanding the thoughts and training the tender minds for a nobler life. In the rearing of our children we should strive to guide them aright and build them up strong mentally and physically that they may be able to withstand the temptations and snares they will meet; build up in them principles that will stand as a bulwark against intemperance, vice, and all immoral conduct.

A few days ago we were in conversation with a gentleman of this county who is a reformed man. Some years ago he was well known throughout this section as a notorious gambler, and drank of the wine when it was red, until it was remarked one day that he had not been sober for four years. Changing to overbear this remark, even though he was so much intoxicated, he resolved then and there that he would never again touch or taste liquor. He is about the last man in the universe we would have picked out to carry out such a resolution, but by the grace of God and his own determination he has done so.

He related his experience for the two years following his resolution. He very soon met a party of gentlemen friends who led him into a saloon, ordered drinks, and even threatened violence and force to compel him to swallow the contents of the glass prepared for him, whereupon he stood firm and refused, and treating his friends to a cigar walked out, having conquered the enemy and feeling that he was a braver, better man. He tells me that for two years he lived the actual life in his, his thirst for strong drink, the reduction of flesh, and the entire conversion of his system as well as his soul to a different being, a new mortal, free from the venom of dissipation, was an ordeal that only the strongest will power can withstand. Since 1892 he has been a total abstainer and now a glass of liquor has no charm in his sight. His wife must be the happiest woman in Alabama, and R. E. O'Brien is as punctual at Sunday school as the superintendent.

Mr. J. M. Falkner, of the L. & N. R. R., is truly a most pleasing and affable gentleman. In some instances he extends courtesies without the promise, contract, or hope of remuneration. Such men as these must have hearts as large as a whole whale. We are left wondering whether he allows people who accept his courtesies to bless and love him very much. We dare say it was tendered he would exclaim, "Tally for more favors," so we will just plod along and continue to judge the man by his works.

Petitions and cablegrams from women and bodies of women and religious institutions all over the world are going up, forth to the Queen of Spain in behalf of Senorita Evangelina Cisneros, the beautiful, lovely and accomplished Cuban girl who has been sentenced to twenty years imprisonment at Centa. This enormous outrage would place her alongside the criminals, to break stone and do any other hard drudgery. We are beginning to think that the entire extermination of Spain would be a good thing. We wouldn't cry very long to see it wiped off the face of the earth. The heartless and shameless manner in which they have treated brave little Cuba is enough to implant disgust and intolerance in the hearts of every civilized people in the world.

A REVIEW of the report of national banks shows them to be in a good condition throughout the United States.

BARTON LLOYD, once editor of the Montgomery Advertiser, was shot and killed in Butler county, Ala., on the 25th by Barton Gafford. Lloyd was best known under the nom de plume of Rufus Sanders.

The condition of the treasury on the 25th shows: Available cash balance, $280,300,108; gold reserve, $143,878,598.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Speculative Markets Have Their Turns of Reaction, But Business Has None This Season—Wheat Fluctuates, but Advances, Cotton Keeping Pace, and the Wool Market Reflects Greater Strength—Failures for the Week.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say:

Speculative markets have their turns of reaction, but business has none this season, gaining at a steadiness which is most gratifying. The starting of works, increase in hands employed, advance in wages and in prices of products and the heavy movement of crops are facts before which all speculative influences have to bow. The week's dispatches mention 16 iron works which have started, against one closing; 15 woolen works started, and so in many other branches, while many more works have increased forces and many are preparing to resume, and some have increased wages. While these things continue—with grain rising and going abroad in enormous quantities—money markets have reason for abounding confidence and speculative strength. Crop prospects are contradictory as usual at such a time, but it is noteworthy that none of them indicate anything less than an ample supply of the great staples.

Wheat rose over 6 cents Saturday with exaggerated reports of injury, for nearly 8 cents advanced 4 cents, and they declined sharply, closing 1 cent lower for the week.

That some harm was done to spring wheat appears, but no accounts entitled to respect indicate damage reducing the yield below 540,000,000 bushels, which would be 35,000,000 larger than any other crop except that of 1891.

In spite of great lack of cars, wheat receipts were 4,349,553 bushels for the week and for four weeks, 15,589,851 bushels against 14,896,947 last year and at Atlantic ports, exports, flour included, though somewhat checked by higher prices were 3,668,369 for the week against 2,207,516 last year, and for four weeks 13,357,637 bushels against 7,316,177 last year. Exports of corn bear strong testimony to the seriousness of foreign needs, being 6,840,144 bushels for the week, against 2,813,919 last year, and Atlantic exports in four weeks have been 10,468,478 bushels, against 5,617,110 last year. The price rose 1 1/2 cents for the week.

Sympathy for the other markets rather than reports of injury, which capable authorities deem not important, accounts for the advance of three-sixteenths in cotton. But the mills are resuming work with a rush, and will require heavy supplies of material to meet the large demand for goods, which has advanced the prices of many. A general replenishment of stocks by dealers will call for heavy additional supplies.

The wool market also reflects, in greater strength and further advance in some grades, the heavy buying of wools which has set many mills at work at night and the ended makers of many grades to withdraw them entirely from the order market. But, while the mills have been buying somewhat more, most of them hold large stocks and the trading has been mainly speculative between dealers.

At last demand has so far overtaken capacity of iron works that prices are growing stronger. Bessemer and gray forge, 25 cents higher at Pittsburgh, and pig in Eastern markets as much stronger, because rebates and concessions are stopped. Billets are $1 per ton higher, structural angles, bars and plates about as much, rods $1.50 at $20, and wire nails 5 cents per keg higher. The demand is also heavy for merchant pipe and steel, and sheets are very active. The advance in iron and steel prices averages 2.7 per cent for the week. Buying of ore continues heavy, 400,000 tons in two weeks at Cleveland, and among the iron works starting are four more furnaces. While tin is weaker at 13.95 cents with large arrivals, copper is held at 1 1/4 cents for lake by large orders and deliveries, and lead is scarcely obtainable below four cents, sales having been heavy. Connellsville coke works increased output to 123,614 tons for the week.

Hides are again stronger at Chicago, though packers no longer lead, but country hides are called scarce although cattle receipts at the four chief markets $1.40 a head, the largest for the corresponding week since 1894.

Failures for the week have been 223 in the United States, against 288 last year; and 34 in Canada against 33 last year.

Further Extension of Time Refused. WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Acting Secretary Meikeljohn yesterday heard parties interested in the contract for the construction of locks and dams on the Monongahela river. Some time ago the contract was awarded to James McCarnon, who thus far has failed to furnish the bond required. Two extensions of time have been granted and the acting secretary has refused to grant a further extension.

The Houston Construction Co., of Philadelphia, whose bid was $664,638, and about $12,000 higher than McCarnon's, is the next lowest bidder, and is asking the secretary to award contracts to the lowest responsible bidder. Secretary Meikeljohn is considering the advisability of readvertising for bids, but protests have been made against any further delay in beginning the work.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Night finds the Grand Army in retreat from Buffalo. The encampment of 1897 is over, and its comrades are leaving town as fast as the cars can carry them. Band after band, followed by weary men trudging to the railroad stations, passed down the streets at intervals during the evening. "Home, Sweet Home," was the usual selection, and the crowds which filled the streets shouted good-by after the departing comrades.

OPERATORS ACTIVE.

Laying Their Plans to Resume Operations—Will Furnish Protection to Men, and Will Open Their Mines Whenever the Miners Willing to Accept the Sixty-Nine Cent Scale—Awaiting Developments.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 23.—Coal operators of the Pittsburgh district have not been asleep during the past few days. The impression in certain circles that there would be no attempt made to start the mines seems to have been established for a purpose, and that purpose was to divert the attention of the miners' officials. It has been definitely decided to start several mines along the Wheeling division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The preliminaries were all completed last night, and a decisive move can be expected almost any time.

It was given out that the Cleveland operators had gone to their homes for the ostensible purpose of awaiting the result of the St. Louis convention. Some of them went, but others did not. Those remaining behind were members of the newly appointed committee, whose duty it is to perfect arrangements for starting some of the mines and in the end break the strike.

One of the first moves was to get in touch with the railroad companies. The officials of the railroads at once agreed to co-operate with the operators in bringing about, if possible, an era of activity in the coal-producing industry of the Pittsburgh district. It was made very apparent that the railroads were losing a large amount of business, and that they were fellow-sufferers with the coal operators. The question of expense of getting imported labor into the district was discussed, and the railroad companies agreed to stand their portion of the outlay.

After this arrangement was made, the work of hiring imported labor was taken charge of by a committee. Just when they will be brought into the district could not be learned. One of the principal reasons for selecting the Wheeling division of the Baltimore & Ohio is the fact that men can be brought in and unloaded in close proximity to the pit mouths. They can also be brought into the district from the south by way of Wheeling and would not have to be transported through much of the Pittsburgh district.

Another reason advanced is the fact that the mines along this road have been supplying coal for the locomotives of the railroad, and if coal is not furnished United States mail trains cannot be run, and the wheels of the national government would be interfered with. Protection would be offered with, with no cost imposed on the operators, as the government would be bound to protect and maintain its property at its own expense. These plans have all been completed, and the work is well under way.

President Patrick Dolan shook his head when the question of the starting of mines by the operators was broached yesterday.

"I don't believe they will make such an attempt," he said. "I am of the opinion that they will wait until after the conference at St. Louis. Just now it would be a big undertaking to start mines in this district with imported men. Yet they may be sincere in their intentions."

District Secretary Warner does not anticipate that a general strike will be declared at St. Louis. He says it is not needed; as the miners' officials are satisfied with the progress the strike is making.

Henry Floersheim is trying to get his miners to agree to go to work at the 69-cent rate, and says they would do so but that they fear personal violence. To these he has made the proposition that he will care for their families in case they are killed. Other operators who are willing to pay 69 cents do not think Mr. Floersheim can get his men to work, and are not going to make any effort to start until the strike is over.

Harring & McSweeney's detective agency on Fourth avenue has been hiring men for the past day or two to go and guard the miners, and is said to have secured over 100. It was reported that they were to be sent to mines on the Panhandle, which are to be started in pursuance of the agreement made in Cleveland. This was denied by the superintendent of the agency, who said they were for a mine in Central Pennsylvania, though he would not disclose where it was.

James Jones & Sons posted notices at their Catsburg and Evil mines yesterday morning to the effect that the mines would be started up at the 60-cent rate whenever the men are willing to go to work. About 500 miners are affected and a meeting will probably be held to consider the proposition.

LESSONS OF A TRAGEDY.

Francis Bartow Lloyd, better known as "Rufus Sanders," was killed last week a short distance from his home by a worthless man who was his neighbor. At first it looked as if it was a cold-blooded murder, committed out of a desire for notoriety and a spirit of devilry. Then a story appeared of a sister's wrong and a brother's mad fury. The truth will not appear for awhile, and the world may never know the secret of the principal actors in the terrible tragedy, but from the story some lessons may be drawn. If the slayer was a devil seeking blood the community are to blame for their neglect to remove him from their midst for his past crimes, and many a neglect on the part of the people to see that the law is enforced has led to crimes that shocked them when it was too late to save a good life. On the other hand, if the quaint and gentle Sanders forgot his marriage vows and betrayed the sister of this desperate man, destroying her purity in its unprotected widowhood, no sympathy is due to the victim of Gafford's vengeance. Again the weakness of the widowed sister in yielding to a man who was a husband and father is a lamentable chapter in the awful story. All in all it is a terrible ending of a promising life, and from any view a tear of sympathy falls from the guardian angel over the newly made widow and orphans. Let the world around the scene pause and read a lesson from the dark story, and move on with new wisdom for the future.

The Mobile Register takes a fair view of the Shelby County tax commissioner affair. In the words of the Greensboro Watchman, "the Register man is broader between the eyes than some editors we know."

The following is a local that appeared in the last issue of the Blocton News-Herald.

On September 1 the administrator of M. Bare, of the firm of Bare & Knechtman, will be sold for cash to the highest bidder.

We presume the estate itself would not bring enough to pay the debts, and the administrator offers himself for the deficiency.

Some of the strongest denunciations of the Dingley tariff are coming from those Democratic papers which refused to support the Democratic ticket last year. When men give their support to the corporations against the people they must not complain if the corporations secure legislation favorable to their interests.

It is said that Thomas Watson has announced his intention of retiring from politics because the Western Populists will fuse with the Democrats and the Southern Populists will have to do the same thing. We see in this confession what we have long looked for, and the other leaders will follow. The rank and file of the Populists are naturally Democrats, and with the whooping leaders retired they will go back to their first love.

Tax Commissioner Wood estimates the increase in assessments for the State at about $11,000,000, increasing the revenue by about $10,000,000. This is not so bad a showing for a law that seems to have been badly enforced by most of the commissioners. Another year will doubtless dispel all the opposition to the law except from those who are looking for political capital.

The Talladega News-Reporter has come out squarely for an educational qualification for voting. The editor of this paper some years ago advocated, before the Alabama Press Association, the purity and intelligence of the ballot as the best hope of our country. We are of the same opinion still. The arguments are few, but unanswerable. We hope to see all those who favor it speak out. If even these would declare themselves the thing would be accomplished.

The facts have come out in regard to Tax Collector Lott, of Mobile, and they show him to have been in trouble a long time, and that he is now short several thousand dollars. Thus another one of the tales of persecution by Governor Johnston has vanished into thin air. It will be found that the Governor is doing business in a business-like manner, and there will be some editors ashamed of themselves before he gets through.

The Age-Herald explains that Mr. McKinley has no desire to build up a white Republican party in the South, and that he is seeking to revive the same old sectional issues. This will be very welcome to the South. It will serve to disconnect the recent converts to that party, and to cement the white people. This done, with the Democracy purged of its old-time bosses, will give us purity in politics and success at the polls.

The Advertiser still insists that the back tax law was being carried out in its spirit and letter. We have twice stated the facts, and again we deny the Advertiser's statements. We do not attempt to say whether the dismissal of the commissioner by the Governor was altogether justifiable, but we most emphatically deny that the Advertiser has any grounds for its statement that he was dismissed for trying to execute the law impartially. If the Advertiser would confine itself to the truth its arguments would have more weight.

VISIONS.

Standing to-day on the wondrous pillars of the past, time haunts our every vision with its undulating force. Ever since the divine Master first touched the great wheel of civilization and started it upon its eternal course, it has been the custom of civilized nations to ponder o'er the imaginative scenes of other heroes. Through the long intricacies of history's untold, are found the sequels of imagination. As objects of profoundest mystery appear before the eyes, so are scenes of new descriptive beauty presented to the imagination.

Imagination in its wondrous and descriptive power, conveys to man through visions the creative genius of an all-wise controlling Deity. From the dawn of man's earthly career, down through the unfolding centuries of empire and wonder, he has been led by the hand of picture into fancy, and the God of worlds into sublimity.

The construction of man as formed and mechanized in the workshop of God portrays to every soul the power of a divine being. In this wonderful mechanism of God is found, the contention of thought against utterance, and the contention of soul against flesh. In the creation of Adam was this most vividly exemplified; as he stood there in the beautiful garden of Eden with the gurgling fountains of purity and love being sprayed before him, and with flendish serpents of hellish appetites, peaceful at his shrine, with birds of rarest plumage flitting and fanning his snow-white brow, with countless fields of fragrant flowers stretching out before him in all their graces and paradisaical beauty; he stood still, wondered, slept, and dreamed that life instead of duty, was space all filled with radiant beauty. As from some lonely peak, a bird flits, and finds a home of surprising beauty. So flies the Master of visions and finds himself in the burning bush that so confounds the reason of Moses. A bush whose every foliage seemed inappreciated to the morning dews, that so often quenched its parching germs. Yet in this insignificant piece of God's work Old Moses saw his grand majestic power. And in the twinkling of an eye God touched the tattered son of nature, and as the great king of day illumines the mystic cycle of dies, and moves us onward toward the goal of our destination.

So was the shadowed mind of Moses lighted and his thoughts waited across his past history, like the vivid wings of lightning across a darkened chasm. In the trunk of the bush he beheld a foundation upon which the righteous could build, and as the flames grew higher and higher until they seemed to kiss the stars, he discerned in every twig that casts its radiant beauty, a power of truth for every hour. And in every leaf that showed like golden cycles before an autumn sun he beheld a love that would wrap the world in grandeur. One leaf the smallest of the bush broke from its fiery home and winding its way heavenward became the pillar of light that guided us on till we reach the brink of Jordan's swelling tides, whose banks are clothed in the verdure of weeping willows, and pines whose mellowed tones ring out upon the billows as proud of the God who "Rocks in the cradle of the deep."

Alas! thou God of Visions, go. "Like April morning clouds, that pass With varying shadows o'er the grass, And indicate on field and furrow, Like cheerful scenes of joy and sorrow; Like streams of the mountain North, Now in a torrent racing forth, Now winding soft its silver train, And almost thundering on the plain; Like breezes of the Autumn day, These voices inconstant dies away, And ever sweeps again as past. When the clear dews its morn'g past; The vision of my romantic dream, Flits, winds, orisus a morning dream." J. P. R.

Table Manners.

EDITOR CHRONICLE:

I wish to speak a few words about nice table manners. During my life I have noticed so much ignorance in table manners in old as well as young people, that I have decided I would write a few lines and beg of them to give more thought and time to the cultivation of nice table manners. I beg of the young people to notice how they hold and use the knife and fork.

Always hold them under your hand; do not hold them like a Chinaman holds his pen while writing. Always cut your food with the knife and convey it to your mouth with the fork; never under any circumstances use the knife for this purpose. I have seen young men as well as young ladies put the knife in their mouth nearly up to the handle. This is not becoming by any means. It is useless to speak to the old folks, as it is very difficult to learn old dogs new tricks. But you old folks notice and see how nice table manners are and while our children are young teach them so that nice table manners will become natural to them. Mothers that have to cook are always tired at meal time, but this should not make her careless as to the way in which the children should eat. Learn them not to cram the mouth, but put in a little at a time, close the mouth while chewing, and thus avoid getting into that awful habit of smacking the mouth. Don't drink noisily like a hog; you should drink your coffee from the cup, leaving the spoon in the saucer. When you are forced to use the handkerchief at the table use it becomingly. If napkins are on the table you will have no occasion to use the handkerchief unless for the nose. Should you from any cause have to leave the table ask to be excused and place your chair as much under the table as possible, so it will be out of the way. Never reach at arms length for anything that is on the table, but ask someone by whom it is to pass it. (Never say hand it to me). Do not make a meal of any one thing, no matter how fond of it you are. We should all try to cultivate a taste for everything that is to eat. Mothers who have grown up girls should exchange places with them and teach them how to eat at the table in case they have to fill mother's chair.

No girl knows at what hour she may be left in charge of mother's place. Girls should practice nice table manners and learn to cook. Under my knowledge I know some grown up girls that have never cooked a meal and do not know the first rule in table manners. I feel cramped for all such and place all the blame on their mothers. Mothers, teach your girls nice table manners, teach them how to act in your absence, teach them to wait on the table, teach them how to carve. Boys, too, should be taught to carve; there are very few young men in our day that have been taught to carve and when asked to carve they are embarrassed. Teach your boys and girls to carve and above all things teach them nice table manners. Many other things to observe in order to have nice table manners. I have only mentioned a few of the important rules.

DENOVO.

Harpersville Echoes.

Cotton picking has begun. Our farmers have saved quite a crop of fodder. Dentist Johnson passed through the city Monday. Professor Strock and wife returned home Saturday from several weeks visit to Chilton County.

Miss Stella Posey left her Monday on a two weeks visit to her friend Miss Nene Johnson, at Cropwell, Ala. The Presbyterians are protracting their meeting here this week. The pastor is being ably assisted by Rev. W. I. Sinnott, of Columbiana.

Our people are all sorrowing over the death of "Rufus Sanders," and his family have the sympathy of us all. Oh, how we will miss him.

Our school will open the second Monday in this month. Tuition is very reasonable and we are said to have one of the best teachers in the State. Parents and guardians who live in the country and our adjoining little towns who have children to educate would do well to patronize the Harpersville school.

Mrs. Gorman and family are to move next week to Childersburg, where her son, W. A. Gorman, will teach the Childersburg High School assisted by his sister, Miss Kate. We are very sorry to see them leave us, but wish them much success in their new undertaking and new home.

Last week we made a very pleasant trip to Ashville and stopped over a short while at the following little towns on the way, Eden, Easonville, Cropwell, Broken Arrow and Coal City. The merchants at all of these places seemed to be doing a good business, and crops on the road from here there are very fine. We spent most of our time at Mr. J. M. Phillips, one of the leading farmers of the county. He owns a farm of 700 acres. He raises corn, wheat, oats, and stock of all kinds, and most always has something to sell. We spent a few very pleasant hours Sunday at Judge Watson's. He is one of the cleverest men that we ever met, and I was told is giving very general satisfaction as a judge. The merchants at Easonville seemed to be selling more goods than any place that we stopped at and at living prices. They are getting quite a large trade from this valley and say that if fair dealings and low prices are any inducements that they will get it all. Monday night, after a hard rain and a muddy drive found us at home again, hoping that we will have the opportunity again in the future to take another trip. The road from Coal City to Ashville is awful bad, and that mountain, oh, my, my, it was reported that we would have to take the wheels from our buggy and take one down at a time and then slide the buggy down, but this was not the case; a person can very well go down by taking off three wheels and locking the other one, but we did not do either.

Master Grover Cleveland Warren, of Brinson, Ga., is visiting his uncle, J. N. Warren of this place. Miss Viola Griffin is visiting relatives in Texas. The school board will meet again Saturday evening.

JAKE.

Saginaw Drop Shots.

Superintendent Wingate visited his father at Jimison Saturday returning Sunday.

Mr. Jas. McLane is visiting his family and relatives at Shelby but will return to-day (Monday).

The young people of our town enjoyed themselves at a nice singing at Mr. Reeds last Sunday evening.

Mr. Ed Harkins, of Maylene, is a regular visitor at Campbranch or thereabouts.

Rev. Mr. Cooper preached a very able sermon at Campbranch Sunday to a very large and attentive congregation.

I venture to say that the Sunday school at Campbranch can not be excelled in this county for a Sunday school; average attendance 65. And the literary school is hard to beat.

A. M. Piper has purchased the tract of land known as the Elias Little place about three-fourths of a mile from here and will move to it soon.

W. M. Walker has returned from his visit and is again behind the counter here.

Mr. W. M. Galoway is on a visit to homefolks near Wilcoxville.

Mr. Fletcher Green and family, of south Georgia, are on a visit to relatives here.

A. M. Piper and Mr. Wesley Orzley made a business trip to Irondale last week.

PETE.

"Let me give you a pointer," said M. E. Gregg, a popular conductor on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. "Do you know that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cures you when you have the stomach ache? Well, it does." And after giving this friendly bit of advice, the jolly conductor passed on down the aisle. It is a fact that thousands of railroad and traveling men never take a trip without a bottle of this Remedy, which is the best cure for bowel disorders in the world. 25 and 50-cent bottles for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

From Lewis and Fournille.

Some disturbance in these communities concerning the new roads the one that was cut two weeks ago and another that is being cut known as the Crenshaw road.

Rev. J. C. Lyon filled the pulpit at Fournille Sunday.

Karl Jackson and Willie Riddle attended services at Wilsonville Sunday.

Jno. Brasier visited homefolks at Vandiver Saturday and Sunday.

J. M. Kyle and lady, of Jackson's Mill were visitors on Fournille Friday.

Prof. S. S. Crompton will resign as teacher of the Fournille school Friday which we all regret.

The last was a beautiful week for pulling and saving fodder and our farmers made good use of it.

The time is fast coming when we can set aside old sorghum, as the present crop is very good.

Cotton is fast opening and corn was never better. Cotton is a little damaged with rust.

The young men of Fournille met at Fournille schoolhouse Saturday night and organized a debating society, and arranged a very interesting and simple program for Friday night, September 3. Subject, "Which is more destructive, fire or water?" Affirmative, Prof. S. S. Crompton, E. S. Kyle and J. W. Powell. Negative, Prof. W. J. Horsley, W. S. McEwen, and J. W. Spearman. The following officers were elected pro tem: J. F. Baker, president; L. R. Riddle, secretary. Everybody invited.

ONE-OF-WE.

Items from Creswell.

J. H. Lybrand was down from the Cobb neighborhood last week.

J. B. Gorman and family, were up from Columbiana a short while last Saturday visiting relatives and friend.

Miss Ethel Keith, of Selma, is visiting relatives in this community.

G. T. Wallis, of Kynulga, was with us a short while last week.

Meddies Wall and P. L. Chancellor were over from Childersburg a few days last week.

J. R. Falkner, Tom and Henry Gill returned to their homes at Sterrett last Friday.

Mrs. W. S. Hilbrey was down from Vincent the first of the week visiting her mother's family.

G. W. Wallis, Jr., spent several days of last week and this in and around Talladega, and reports a pleasant visit. He sustained the loss of his buggy horse while on the trip.

T. W. Coleman and family have our sympathy in the loss of their baby a few days ago.

George and Bob Douglas have gone into the mercantile business here, and are putting in a nice stock of goods.

The Creswell and Childersburg ball teams crossed bats on the latter's ground on the 17th inst, with a victory for the Creswell team.

CHICOTAW.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhoea.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 16th Pennsylvania Volunteer, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50-cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, Henry Steinberger, Allentown, Pa. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

The Winslow Typewriter is "THE BEST" Writing Machine.

The regular subscription price of "DEMOREST'S MAGAZINE," "JUDGE'S LIBRARY," and "FUNNY PICTURES" is $3.30.

"DEMOREST'S MAGAZINE" is by far the best family magazine published; there is none of our country in which the beautiful and the useful, pleasure and profit, fashion, literature are so fully presented as in Demorest's. There is, in fact, no publication pretending to a similar scope and purpose which can compare with it. Every number contains a free paper coupon.

"JUDGE'S LIBRARY" is a monthly magazine of fun, filled with illustrations in caricature and replete with wit and humor. Its contributors are the best of American wits and illustrators.

"FUNNY PICTURES" is another humorous monthly; there is a laugh in every line of it. All three of these magazines are handsomely gotten up. You should not miss this chance to secure them.

Photographs! Photographs!

To the Ladies of Columbiana and the surrounding country:

I take this opportunity to say that I have a first-class photo car. This car is fitted up at considerable cost. I have a good light for making negatives and keep a first-class operator. Now, this car will be at the L. & N. depot in your town for ten days. Do not let this car leave your town without giving me a call. Bring your husbands, bring your brothers, bring your sweethearts, and get a likeness of them.

Respectfully,
W. H. McMILLAN.

Frank Spears passed through our town Monday on his way to Marion Junction, where he expects to reside in future. Frank came to Shelby some five or six years ago, since which time he has made many warm friends. We regret to lose him from our neighbor town; but we wish him much success in his new home and feel, while he has gone to "old Dallas" to add treasures to his store, his heart remains in Shelby, where his many friends unite in wishing him a long and useful life crowned with success.

On last Friday evening Miss Essie Mason tended her friends a most delightful entertainment. There were assembled the fair daughters and noble sons of our town, who did honor to their fair hostess.

As through the hushed admiring throng she moved with stately steps along.

Refreshments were served and all went merry until the still late hours of the night.

"Tis so pretty it, the evenings of summer, so many gracious faces brought together To reciprocate with beauty the fine weather.

Capt. W. H. Bell, of Shelby, left Sunday for Marion Junction, where he will reside. Captain Bell moved to Shelby in 1891; since that time he has been a successful shoe merchant of that place. The genial, whole-souled Captain has many friends throughout the county who regret to see him leave. We trust he may be pleased, and successful in his new home.

Don't forget that we are prepared to do any kind of job and book printing at the lowest prices. We shall feel especially slighted if you send your orders out of the county without giving us a chance to bid on it.

We call attention to the advertisement of J. E. Seale & Co. in this issue. This enterprising firm are the first to begin the fall advertising. They have a good stock of drugs and medicines, and will give a good return to their customers.

To the Christian People of Columbiana.

The young men of this city have succeeded in getting a prayer meeting started in the jail and also have a work at the poorhouse. The prisoners and the people at the poorhouse are very fond of reading and we are often pushed up to get reading matter to supply the demand. We want all christian people in town who take christian papers who will bring them to the postoffice and leave them with J. S. Falkner, and we would also be glad to get tracts and books. If you want the books, tracts, and papers returned we will do so.

Announcement.

Columbiana Public School will open Monday, September 13. The session will be divided into two terms of four months each, and each pupil is required to pay an incidental fee of 40 cents per term to the city clerk. The receipt for the payment of this fee will entitle the holder to a seat in school, and must be presented to the principal before the pupil is allowed to enter.

The course of study has been carefully revised. There will be a new corps of instruction, and the advantages we offer cannot be excelled by any of our public schools.

For further information address, F. MYNATT, Principal.

Alabama Day Tennessee Centennial.

All Alabama ladies who propose visiting the Centennial at Alabama Day are requested to communicate with any one of the following committee of the Executive committee of the Alabama Ladies' Club, who will furnish badges entitling holders to participate in a reception in the Woman's Building of the Centennial at Alabama Day, September 20, at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. R. Miss Myrtle Swain left Tuesday for Illinois, where she goes to secure a position as musical instructor. Miss Myrtle is a fine musician and we feel sure of her success.

Mrs. Bruce Harris, of Rome, Ga., is visiting her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Spencer.

The Women's Column is crowded out this week. Look out, next week and see how she gets revenge.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist of Olney, Mo., and he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years. He should certainly know. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Montevallo Murmurs.

Col. R. L. Rice, publisher of the Blocton News Herald, was in town for a few hours last week.

H. E. Reynolds, Esq., and Col. S. J. Morgan, of Blocton, are in the city.

Dr. J. D. Tamm and Mrs. Trammel, and Mr. Moore, of Gurnee, N. A. Graham, and Dr. J. H. Gunn, of Calera, Mr. M. S. Wilson, of Camp Branch, S. A. Curry and Zekiel Eddings, of Dry Valley, came to town last week.

Real estate is in active demand, and several business and resident lots have changed hands within the last few days at good, but still moderate prices.

Mr. Clifton Newton, editor and proprietor of the Montevallo News, has just received his newspaper outfit, and Montevallo will now have a home paper.

Colonel Wall, landlord of the St. George, will give a grand opening about September 14. Everybody is invited, grub free this time and no mistake.

Mr. D. C. Savage, of Maplesville, has rented the Williams house, and Mrs. Horn, of Selma, the Holbrook house; Mrs. V. A. Davidson has bought the Burr Nabors place; Dr. Trammel the Dr. Claughton place; F. W. Rogan has commenced to erect a handsome residence on his beautiful lot adjoining the Episcopal church.

The Sash Blind & Door Factory are erecting a store house on their property; they have also added a planing mill, gin and lath mill to their plant.

Professor Ruffin will open his school next Monday. He will have pupils from Helena, Jamison, Mulberry, and other points, besides a large local attendance.

Rev. M. P. Reynolds has moved to the Vandergrift residence near the Industrial School.

A dummy line leading from the depot via Montevallo and the Industrial School thence to Aldrich is being talked of, and may be an accomplished fact in a very short time.

Hon. W. H. Skaggs spent Sunday visiting the family of Mr. J. L. McConaughy.

E. S. Lyman and W. S. Cary are building additions to their residences in the shape of new kitchens. Wonder what they propose to do with them? If they are not careful their neighbors will quit sending grub around to their houses.

We notice in the Age-Herald that the Governor of Alabama receives about $10 a day for being Governor. We know several fellows down in these parts who will take it for a steady job the year round for $9.75 per day (in advance of course); this would be a great saving to the public, as it costs about $75,000 to a $100,000 a year to elect one.

Will Johnson and family, of Sterrett, is on a visit here at his wife's father's where she has been down with slow fever for four weeks.

Lonnie Wilder has a very sick child. John Crane is in very poor health.

Rufus Lester and family, of Columbiana, are visiting his wife's old home this week.

Hosea Wilder, of Bessemer, is visiting his father and brothers here this week.

W. A. Weldon and family are visiting in Jefferson County.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Chesser a bouncing girl.

Last Saturday morning a little fox chase sprang up near here and men and boys left the fodder fields and stopped the sorghum mills, fell into ranks until 49 men, 10 of them on horseback, 28 hounds, 2 curs, and a flee had collected, and after an eight hour chase they caught it.

STERRETT STIRRINGS.

R. E. Cosper and wife returned home from a visit to relatives at Jamison last Thursday after a stay of near two weeks.

John C. Jarrett and family, of Woodlawn, came over last Saturday on a visit to relatives at this place. J. C. Jarrett, who has been very low a long time with typhoid fever, is slowly recovering.

Dr. J. J. Dubose has located in our town for the practice of medicine, and can be found at the residence of the late L. H. Dyke.

Jock Falkner and wife are quite sick, supposed to be slow fever. We hope for their speedy recovery.

Little Irene Bradshaw, who has had the fever for sometime, is improving. R. M. Holbs, of this place, has had several cases of fever in his family; all are improving except one little girl, Ida.

Quite a number of the young people of Sterrett, attended an all-day singing at Vandiver last Sunday, conducted by Messrs. O'Barr, W. F. Borrough and Voster Whitfield, and they report having had a fine time and a good singing.

Look out for a report of the banner stalk of cotton, in quantity of bolls, that one of our enterprising farmers will report soon.

From the amount of freight hauled over Central of Georgia railroad it would seem that business was prospering some parts of the country.

There is considerable complaint of rust on cotton though not very much in this community.

Watermelon season is about over in this section; they are getting scarce and small.

Wilsonville Waifs.

J. H. Wilder, of Vincent, was present at the Sunday morning service.

W. H. Kidd, of Vincent, was in town one day last week.

E. Dymaris was in Columbiana a few fleeting moments, Sunday afternoon.

Dr. J. J. Dubose removed his household endrires to Sterrett Wednesday. Mrs. Marion Martin, nee Miss Marion Kelly, of Maplesville, paid Col. Smith's family a short visit last week, returning home Saturday.

A protracted meeting will, in all probability, begin at the Methodist Church next Sunday.

Mr. E. Williamson and wife returned Monday from a week's visit to his parents and family, of Coatsop. Mr. Smith has been serving us in the railroad capacity during his absence.

Prof. C. A. Matthews and family are on the premises, ready to begin the work of the City School. He is occupying the Lilly cottage on Southside.

Very scarce fruits of all kinds. Ed Bradley is visiting his brother Porter, of Selma.

Our citizens resumed the street working Tuesday. When the work is finished the good ladies of the town should unite and give the men a banquet and toast them royally in part compensation for this commendable undertaking.

John Bannister, living on the Kidd place, has the distinguished honor of marketing the first bale of new cotton. The cotton was bought by J. F. Pope.

Dr. Ed Parker and Miss Oliver, Mr. Horace Hammond and Miss Nellie Parker, attended the closing sermon here Sunday night.

Mr. Pierre Jackson, the Georgian man of Tallapoosa, after quite a lengthy and pleasant visit to his brother's here, returned home Monday much to the regret of us all. However he assured us that he would return next Spring ere the flowers bloom again.

The series of meetings which have been in progress at the Baptist Church for the past week was a complete success in every particular. Truly the closing was something grand in the way of "bringing in the sheaves." Rev. Burns labored faithfully with untiring zeal; as a result 15 were gained to the church, largely through his personal efforts and instrumentality.

Dr. S. H. Hosmer, presiding elder of this district, held quarterly meeting at Mt. Tabor Saturday and Sunday. He also preached here Monday at 10 o'clock.

About 5 o'clock Monday afternoon was the scene of an exciting electrical storm. A keen clap of lightning struck the telephone wire extending from the depot to Mrs. Deniers', which shocked the relief agent and operator to his senses, tearing off several pieces of ceiling in the railroad office and burning out the

OVER THE RIVER.

Lige Ranno's Sends Word by the Dying to the Dead.

Three Old Men and Their Doctrines of the Future Hereafter—A Land of Peace and Plenty and Nothing to Do.

One night last week old man Travis Waters put out and went on over the river. In my day and generation I have seen various and sundry different people go down into the valleys and shadows, but the things I saw and heard with my own eyes and ears that night came back to me so constant and so fresh till for the present I can't think about nothing else. It was the first and only time I have ever saw a livin man send word by a dyin man to a friend and fellow citizen who had died and gone on before.

A Brighter and Better Land.

Now if there ever was three old men in the settlement that didn't have any religion for certain, it was Travis Waters, Luke Wesley and Lige Ranno. They never did belong to the church and they never seached the Scriptures. But they had their own peculiar notions in regards to the things of the future hereafter. They maintained and held to it that we are all headed one way and bound for the same country. They believed that we will live together in that country a right smart like we live here, and that the general settlements of the people will be the same thing over there on the other shore. They didn't think the land of the future beyond will be particular cold, or so very tremendous hot, and their doctrine was, that people which live together here, will likewise also live together there. They maintained in general that the people of Rocky Creek will live all in the same settlement and be neighbors and friends and fellow citizens onest more over there, and that the people from the hill country, and the people from Huckleberry Ridge, and from Panther Creek, and from the Flat Woods will all live together in their different settlements, and there will be meetin and visitin and courtin and marryin and goin on there about the same as you see in this country to-day.

"It will be hot or cold in that country accordin to the way a man would rather take his weather, Rufe," says old man Travis to me onest upon a time. "If you would rather have cold weather you will just naturally find your place in some pleasant strip of country where it is cold all the year round. But if you would rather have your weather hot you can go where it is summer time straight through for 12 months in the year. And if you want it mixed about half and half, or only middlin hot or cold you can nominate your weather and take your pick."

"And over there in that country, Rufe, people won't have to work only when they feel like it. The seasons will hit right every pop, and every year will be a good crop year, but in that country people won't have to tend the soil and eat their bread and meat and greens in the sweat of the face like they do here. There will be plenty of something good to eat and plenty of clothes to wear, but people won't have to scratch and scurgle and work their daylight out in orderment to git the necessary wherewithals of life. You will know just the same people over there as you know here, and you can go on scrapin up new acquaintances if you want to. There won't be any taxes to pay and no government to maintain. There won't be any money there, from the fact that people can have everything they want without money and without price. And then they won't have no politics there, Rufe—which there wouldn't be any here if we didn't raise up so infernal many politicians that are forever scurmlin for a soft job. Everybody will be out of debt—no more mortgages, no more waverly notes, no more papers or compellment—and everybody will be healthy and happy over there."

"Finally at last, Travis, in my own ramblin way I will put you in mind of some general settlement news which will be welcome to Luke. You know I never was no great hand for mixin and meddlin with other people, but yet no mortal man was ever more anxious like and greedy for the news than him."

"Hit use to worry Luke to see the way Bob Linton and Miss Callie Mayo had been courtin and carryin on for years and years and years, but didn't take and marry. Understand Luke didn't make out like it was any of his business in particular, but he didn't think it was right for them to fool the poor sufferin public forever. You can tell him they are still takin on as constant and fervent as ever, but with no prospects of a weddin match and the necessary good eatin. Bob's is now growin gray in streaks and patches, whilst Miss Callie has shed her front teeth, but the lallagaggin goes on about the same as usual."

"Every year for 20 years before Luke went on across old man Berry Ringstad had went on a drunk indurin the Christmas, got turned out of the church at Park Log on Saturday before the third Sunday in January and returned to the field indurin the big protracted meetin in August. You can tell Luke that Berry never has missed a Christmas yet, and I was over at Park Log one day last week when he come foot the door to the amen corner and got his name on the church books onest more."

"Consequently upon the long dry drought the creeks have run down low and the fish are now bitin tremendous free and reckless. But maybe you would better not tell Luke anything in regards to that. He might get homesick and want to return back into this land of sin and sufferin."

"Don't forget about Dunk Strickland, Travis, and his three new babies—strip-lets as they call 'em. Tell Luke they are now comin three in a burr at Dunk's house. I went over in the hill country last Sunday evenin to see the sight. Tell Luke I found Miss Strickland and the strip-lets gettin along as well as you could expect under the circumstance of the surroundin calamity, but I have some serious doubts if Dunk ever will recover."

"I will tell Luke what you say when I see him," says Lige—and I could see the salt water backin up in his eyes—"but if you must I reckon you must. I ain't got no particular word to send to anybody exceptin Luke Wesley. Give my double-breasted and most pious regards to Luke. Tell him whilst I ain't to say in no breakneck hurry to pay quits with this country, I would be the proudest in the world to see him and strike bands with him onest more."

AFRICA'S PROFITABLE GOATS.

They Are Angora and Boer Stock, and Their Fleeces Are Valuable.

One of the most lucrative industries in the Karoo districts of South Africa is Angora goat farming, and although it has only been established for less than 40 years, the cape bids fair to become the most important center of mohair production in the world. The early attempts to import this goat from Angora were attended with great loss of money and great disappointment, nearly all the goats dying either on the way to the cape, or very soon after landing; in fact, from the early importations only a very small number survived. But in 1879 a large importation was successfully made by three different firms or individuals, who landed a large number of pure-bred Angora goats at Port Elizabeth, where they were sold at from £100 to £400 apiece. Soon after that the exportation of Angora goats from Turkey was prohibited for a time; but in 1894 Mr. Rhodes obtained the relaxation of this prohibition. Early in 1898 a shipment of 200 Angora goats, after being quarantined, was sold at Port Elizabeth at an average of £50 apiece, some of the rams selling for as much as £300 each. At present there are somewhere about 4,000,000 Angora goats in the colony.

The Angora in the colony is not now pure-bred; the original imported rams were crossed with carefully selected pure white Boer goat ewes, and from the succeeding in-breeding the present flock have sprung, and a fine, glossy, silky fleece secured. Indeed, it is accepted that mohair can now be produced in Cape Colony as perfect in quality and as beautiful in luster as any produced in Angora itself.

The goat itself is a pretty-looking little animal, looking, with its long white, wavy fleece, more like a sheep than a goat. The beard, too, so characteristic of the goat, is almost hidden in the long hair about the neck and face. The head is small and narrow, with drooping or lop ears. Horns, light in color, flattened, twisted slightly and spreading outward—are possessed by both rams and ewes, though they are smaller in the latter.

The small body is thickly covered with a beautiful long fleece of white, lustrous, wavy, silky hair, which in well-bred goats nearly reaches to the ground; and, in addition to this long hair, there is an inferior under coat of hair, or second coat, which has its own separate market value.

The Karoo and higher lands of the colony are the places where the Angora flourishes best. Almost every farmer in the Karoo has his flock of Angoras, some several flocks of several hundred in each. Every morning the flocks are driven out to kraals or sheltered inclosures into the veldt, where they are allowed to wander and graze all day, but at night they are driven back to the shelter of the kraal after being taken to the dam to be watered.

Angoras are sheared about June, when a good fleece will average from five to six pounds in weight, with hair from five to six inches long. About November the goats tend to shed their hair, but rather than lose it the farmer again shears in October. After shearing the wool is packed into large bales, which are fastened securely with iron bands; it is then exported to England for manufacture, a large part going to Yorkshire. In 1895 mohair to the value of £710,867 was exported, and at the present time one-tenth of the total British supply is received from the Cape.

Among the most dreaded foes of the timid little Angora are the jackal, the red lynx and the baboon; the two former kill the kids for their flesh, but the baboons rip open the udders of the ewes in search of milk, and even open the stomachs of the kids for the sake of the curdled milk they may obtain. The first two animals are poisoned and hunted down with dogs where possible, and to keep down the baboon shooting parties are frequently organized. By way of encouraging the extinction of these pests the government pays the billings a tail for jackals and one shilling a tail for baboons—Black and White.

LIFE IN ALASKA.

More Money in Merchandise Than in Prospecting.

After spending nine years or more in the gold fields of Alaska, Charles Rosenberg, who was born and reared on the North side, and whose parents live on California avenue, near Sedgwick street, does not think much of the prospecting for gold business. He tried his luck at digging for three or more years, spent all his savings in gold stock investments, and finally gave up the idea and settled down among the Indians of the territory, trading in furs and general merchandise. He has since found that there is much more gold in the regular business channels of Alaska than in the ground where so much of the valuable mineral is supposed to be deposited.

Henry Muth, of Allegheny, was one of the boon companions of Rosenberg before he left the city. He met his old comrade two years ago when he came here on a visit. Mr. Muth says that Rosenberg was discouraged with the gold business, but was impressed with the rugged life he had been leading in the north. Mr. Muth is familiar with the tough experience of his friend in finding a suitable claim in Alaska that would pay the profit in gold to pay him for his hard work and troubles.

Mrs. Rosenberg, mother of Charles, said recently that she had not received a letter from her son for over seven months. When he last wrote he said he was doing a thriving business. He is now located in Eek, Prince William sound, and is doing a general merchandise business. He is about 150 miles away from the gold mining region. The letter speaks of a number of people from Pennsylvania who went to Alaska to seek their fortunes, but who finally returned short of money and everything else. The writer declares that gold is to be found in the region, but he says it is one chance out of a dozen who will turn over the lucky soil.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegram.

A parish beadle was lately much exercised at the appearance of a strange old gentleman who, when the sermon was about to begin, took an ear-trumpet, in two parts, out of his pocket, and began screwing them together. The beadle watched him until the process was completed, and then, going stealthily up, whispered: "Ye mauna play that here! If ye dae, I'll turn ye out!"—Tit-Bits.

PREDICTION AND WARNING.

What It Means to Start for the Yukon Country With a Preparation.

Here is a prediction. Should the rush to the Yukon country continue, should the multitudes, or any considerable portion of the multitudes now striving and pressing to get off to that region succeed, there will be a tragedy during the coming winter the like of which never has been known in America.

Do men realize that they are starting for the Arctic regions? That the summer is already well advanced, and that winter will set in there by the time they reach their destination? That winter in those hyperborean regions lasts from October to May? That the temperature falls so low that cold performs the effect of fire? That without adequate protection against the climate and abundant food all life will disappear? Do men who have always been accustomed to mild climates realize what it is to winter at the Arctic circle?

Life there is possible during the winter only as careful preparation is made to support it. Food, clothing and shelter are indispensable. Exposure there is no trifle, as in our mild climates. Exposure there means sure and sudden death. Along the Alaskan and British Columbian coast the climate, tempered by the ocean, is not severe; but the gold fields lie in a vast river basin beyond a high mountain range, at great distance from the coast, and very far toward the north, where all the rigorous conditions of an Arctic winter prevail. Water will not flow, the streams are frozen to the bottom. Even in summer the ground thaws only at the surface. Transportation over mountain ranges, where rugged trails furnish the only lines of passage, is so slow, costly and difficult that scarcity of supplies is inevitable. If large numbers succeed in getting over the mountain ranges into the basin of the Yukon, accessible with difficulty in summer and not at all accessible in winter, it may be set down as certain that the greater proportion will perish.

This is no safe adventure, like the rush in former times to the gold mines of California or to those of eastern Oregon, Idaho and Fraser river. Climate is a fact that must be taken into account. In mild climates men may take their chances for food and shelter; in severe climates they cannot. It is a sure prediction that, should any great numbers succeed in getting into the Yukon region this fall, there will be a tragedy the like of which has not been known to the world since Napoleon's Russian campaign.

A good deal of grub will change hands at Dawson this winter at the point of the revolver. Where there is only about half enough provender to go around, the man that draws first will continue to acquire food. It was the situation in the Fraser diggings, near as they were to civilization. The extremity will be accentuated in the polar regions.—Portland Oregonian.

Growing Usefulness of X Rays.

M. Ollier, showed, at a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences in Paris, how, by the use of Roentgen rays, the progress of bone-growth in the human body, after surgical operations, could be watched and studied in a manner hitherto impossible. In the same way the position of diseased portions of bone can be readily located, and such portions can be removed without amputation of the limb in cases where such amputation would otherwise be necessary; but while proving themselves exceedingly useful when carefully and skillfully employed, the X rays are also capable of mischief. Messrs. Seguy and Quenisset reported to the academy that prolonged exposure to the rays had, in several cases, caused violent and irregular palpitation of the heart.—Youth's Companion.

Cast Iron Dogs and Bogus Statues.

For iron, in America, it would perhaps have been better if the gardens of Italy did not exist to enthrall the traveler with their sensuous charms, for to them we owe the unhappy attempts at imitations which find expression in the cheap substitutes for real magnificence—the zinc statues, the fountains in which the feeble stream seems glad to hide itself in the cast iron basins, the stars and ferocious mastiffs in bronzed iron, the century plants in cheap vases, the bogus statues, ugly pavilions and summer houses which seem a necessary adjunct to our private gardens and public parks.—Architectural Review.

Taxation of Foreigners.

Norway and Sweden have adopted a new method of raising money. Commercial travelers from other countries are required to pay a tax of 100 kroner ($26.80) for each calendar month that they remain in the country. As might be expected, the German and French newspapers are making strong protests.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

WOUNDED IN THE WAR.

Shot in the Abdomen at Cumberland Gap.

Blind, Rheumatic and Dropsical. A Union Colonel Is Given Over to Die. How the Old Soldier Gave Azeal the Slip.

From the News, Harboursville, Ky. At the time when a command of a Union regiment at Cumberland Gap, Colonel Messer, now of Flat Licks, Kentucky, received a severe gunshot wound in his abdomen. In a few days he was again in the saddle, but soon was obliged to undergo further medical treatment, and his condition became so serious that in the winter of 1863 he returned to his home, and was never again fit for active service. During the years that have since passed, Colonel Messer has been a confirmed invalid from the effect of his wound, and has been under the constant care of the local physicians, not improving, but growing worse as the years rolled on. His condition eventually became deplorable. Almost blind, legs swollen, so that he was unable to walk, the doctors who could do nothing to arrest the progress of the disease, diagnosed it as dropsy, and said recovery was impossible.

The old soldier did not half believe his physicians, but said that since they could do nothing for him, he would, upon an old friend's strong recommendation, try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The first box was taken by Col. Messer according to directions, and by the time that was gone, he felt so much easier and more comfortable, that several other boxes were procured, and he continued to take them faithfully. Soon the swelling in his legs disappeared, and with it the fierce rheumatic pains with which he had long suffered. Strangest of all, his eyesight, which for so many years had been useless, was restored.

In all, Colonel Messer took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills six months, and then was thoroughly cured. He now is a healthy-looking man, rides on horseback, and stands as much fatigued as any man of his age.

The Colonel, since his recovery, is never tired of describing the virtues of these pills, and every advertisement that he finds he carefully clips, and sends to some sick friend or neighbor, with the assurance that they will cure him, too. He is still Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Gentlemen—Yours of August 14th to hand, enquiring about testimonial written by Mr. Sampson concerning Colonel Messer, of Flat Lick, Ky., will say that the cure of Colonel Messer was considered almost miraculous, and he is now well.

Yours truly,

PHILIPPS & HERNON.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as nervousness, irregular menstruation, weakness, to build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from overwork, over-exhaustion, or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail at addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Encouraging Statistics.

The Baltimore and Ohio officials are very much pleased with certain statistics that have recently been prepared of the performance of freight trains on the Second division, which handles all the east and west-bound traffic between Baltimore and Cumberland. Before the new freight engines were purchased, and the improvements made in the track in the way of straightening curves and reducing grades, the average number of cars to the train was 28.12. Now, with more powerful and modern motive power and a better track, the average is 40 cars per train, an increase of 41 per cent. The average cost per hour of operation for the first ten days of August was 1,123 loaded cars. On the Third division, Cumberland to Grafton, where there are grades of 25 feet to the mile, the engines used haul 19.12 loads to the train. Now the average is 23.23 loads per train, an increase of 31 per cent. It would certainly appear that the new freight engines, and improvements on the B. and O. is being amply justified, and that the cost of operation is being very materially reduced.

Do We Need Big Muscles?

By no means. Persons of Herculean build frequently possess a minimum of genuine vigor, and exhibit less endurance than very small people. Real vigor means the ability to digest and sleep well, and to perform a reasonable amount of daily physical and mental labor without undue fatigue. It is because a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters enables the enfeebled dyspeptic to resume the alert activity of every day life, as well as to participate in the discomforts in its enjoyments, that it is such a preeminently useful medicine.

ALABAMA LADIES

DON'T LIE

Miss W. A. Garrett Oak Lowery, Ala., writes: Have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in my family for 10 years, with good results. I think it is stronger than "Zellin's" or "Black Draught."

Are caused by an irritation of the nerves. They are local spasms, frequently the result of uterine disease. There are inching, gnawing and contractive pains in the region of the stomach extending to the back and chest. They are often the symptom and effect of indigestion. Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine should be used to stimulate the digestive organs and Dr. Simmons' Squaw Vine Wine to give immediate relief and permanent cure.

After the old proprietors of the article now called "Black Draught" were by the United States Court enjoined from using the words constituting our trade name, we do not equity require that they stand on their own trade name and merits (if any) of their own article, and not seek to appropriate the trade for our article called for and published the picture of another Dr. Simmons on their wrapper and falsely advertising that their article "Black Draught" was established in 1840, that being the year in which our article was established, while no one ever heard of "Black Draught" till after 1875. Why do they advertise that falsehood and associate their article with ours (having the picture of Dr. M. A. Simmons on it) by their publication of the picture of another Dr. Simmons, if not done to unfairly appropriate our trade? Is not the motive apparent?

Profr. & Riley's

San Antonio, Tex., says: My wife has used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine many years for Sick Headache and never fails to buy a package when she expects to travel. It saves her from taking injurious drugs. For 15 years it has been a necessary medicine in my house.

Caution. Don't be fooled into taking cheap worthless stuff. If the merchant tells you "it is just the same" as Dr. M. A. Simmons, you may know that he is trying to sell you cheap stuff to make a big profit by palming off on you a wholly different article.

COLUMBIANA.

A RESUME OF OUR LITTLE CITY.

Something of Her Business Men and Her Enterprises.

Columbiana is one of the oldest towns in this section, and she has an interesting history. But in these days of thrift and energy we do not dwell long on the past, only as it relates to the future; and the world deals more with the present. To Columbiana's present we desire to devoted this space, and we will try to give it as we found it.

There are no picturesque scenes about us, unless we look to the sunrise from behind the hills, or turn to its setting beyond others; but it is a commonplace, everyday little city, to be reached by two railroads, drawing its support from a fertile country around, which it supplies with the necessities of life and from which it receives the product of the soil. It may be called rather dull, and some of the citizens complain that it is a poor town; but it is no more so than other towns without manufactures. Our people are honest and clever, and take life as they find it, making a living easily or roughly as the circumstances control.

The seat of government of a county of varied resources, we are interested in all the affairs of the day; and the farmer or mechanic, the merchant or manufacturer find sympathy from our people.

We are incorporated, and within our city limits there are near to 1,500 souls, and we want to tell about the people who are looking after these temporal and spiritual. Mr. A.
P. Longshore, who also represented the county in the legislature, is the mayor, who, with Messrs. W. G. Parker, J. H. Hammond, W. W. Albright, A. J. Strickland, and Henry Milner, controls the city's affairs well and frugally.
Rev. C. W. O'Hara is the clerk of this board and Tom Evans looks after the godd order.

Three churches afford places of worship, and a reference to the directory in another column will tell you when to go to these temples of truth and who presides there.

A graded school is open to the young people, and Professor Mynatt will this year impart knowledge to our boys and girls. True, we haven't paid for our schoolhouse, but we are going to,
and we are going to have our children grow up with strong minds and pure hearts for the battle of life.

Most of the county officers reside here, and they are all honest and obliging. It were useless to speak of them individually, for what the people did not find out about them last election they will next.

NEWSPAPERS.

The People's Advocate prints the news of the county and gives editorial advice to the Populists. It is managed by the genial Henry Norris, who is doing fairly well with his first newspaper venture. It is five years old and shows signs of living on.

THE CHRONICLE, of course, is here.
It has been here eleven years, and in all that time has been a red-hot Democratic sheet. It prints the news, and anything else you want printed.

SOCIETIES.

The Masons have a lodge here, and they have done many a good deed of charity and love.

A Young Peoples' Christian Endeavor is doing much to inform and interest its members in good work.

The young men have a prayer meeting, and they attend regularly their services.

MEDICAL.

Dr. W. S. DuBose, whom everybody knows and loves, has a good practice, among the people who have so long been accustomed to look to him for relief. Dr. J. H. and H. I. Williams ministers to the bodily ills of the people faithfully and well. Dr. A. T.
Rowe is a jolly old fellow, who loves to joke the boys, but is ever ready to relieve pain.

MINE HOSTS.

The White House, presided over by J. R. White, feeds and sleeps the drummers and all others well, and they do say that once you eat there you don't want to go away at all.
At the Central you can get the very best of accommodation in that good old homelike style that makes you feel so welcome. Mrs. Weaver, who lost the companion of her youth recently, is a mother to all her guests.
Mrs. Huyett and her charming daughters have a large patronage from the county folks who come to court, and they had rather stop there than to go home with their friends.

If you leave Columbiana hungry you need medicine and you need it bad.

LEGAL.

Brown & Leeper do a big general practice, and are on one side or the other of most of the cases tried here.

Longshore & Beavers are a hustling pair, and they have many clients whose interests they guard right well.

Good, social Joe Peters makes it hot for the criminals, and does some civil practice too.

W. F. Thetford, Jr. is a young attorney who is just starting in the world, and shows his worth by his attentiveness to business.

B. W. Brand can't play checkers much, but he can make the court house ring with eloquence and legal lore.

FINANCIAL.

Gordon DuBose started a bank some years ago in his office desk. Now he has a handsome building and is doing a profitable and safe business.

LIVERY.

Amos Elliott hires teams, feeds your horse, brings you up from the station and carries you back in time.

MILLING AND GINNING.

H. M. Millstead grinds your corn and gins your cotton, and does a great deal of both.

W. R. Morgan does the same thing in addition saws lumber.

JEWELRY AND PICTURES.

T. J. Weaver will fix your watch or take your likeness, when he is not engaged at the hotel in looking after the guests.

DENTAL.

Dr. Lovett pulls teeth, and fills the cavities or supplies the missing molar, and also belongs to the string band.

TONSorial.

El Chapman can shave you quick and slick, shampoo your head, or cut your hair; and he also plays the fiddle.

SMITHING.

Either W. W. Albright, J. T. Barnett, or Richard Tinney will fix your wagon, sharpen your plows, or do any iron or woodwork.

DRUGS.

J. E. Seale & Co. are an enterprising young firm, whose advertisement in this paper speaks for itself.

The Hall Drug Co. also fill prescriptions and dispense medicines and other articles of a like nature.

MILINERY.

Mrs. L. C. Armstrong & Co., the head of which firm is one of those women who so nobly prove their fitness for business, keep a nice line of headgear for the ladies and also make dresses for Sunday and other wear.

MERCHANTS.

You can't get everything you want at the stores, and some complaint is heard, but most of the necessities of life are sold cheaply enough.

LESTER, MASON & CO.

Mr. Mason, of this firm, is one of the oldest business men in Columbiana. They sell general merchandise and furniture, and supply a good large trade in the surrounding country.

JOHNSTON & WHITE.

These gentlemen are closely identified with the interests of the place.
They carry a general line of goods, and are very accommodating merchants.

COLUMBIANA MERCANTILE CO.

This concern is run by two very clever Jews, and they know their business, carry a heavy line of goods and sell them far and wide.

W. R. A. MILNER.

His son, Henry, is the leading spirit, and dispenses various things, including hardware and jewelry, to his many customers.

J. H. HAMMOND.

This jolly one-legged veteran laughingly tells the boys that he started with 15 cents in cash that he borrowed, and has been here eleven months longer than his friends said he would. He advertises all through the dull season.

J. H. PAGE & SON.

They sell a general line of goods, are close calculators, and have their share of the trade.

J. M. SPENCER.

Managed by the genial John that the boys like so well, this house is keeping up its end of the row. If John can't supply you out of his store he can out of his watermelon patch.

JAMES EVANS & CO.

They do not make much noise nor a great display, but they have some goods that are always for sale.

Sometimes we have two meat markets, sometimes one, more frequently none.

We have two shoe shops, but still the writer's heels are worn off. This is because he hasn't an extra pair to wear while those are being soled. It will be better later on.

This we claim is quite an array of business talent, and we are altogether proud of our town. These we have mentioned, with their hired helps, makes up the city directory. We have other talent that is at present not engaged, but it is not their fault.

Nobody asked us to write this, and nobody will be asked to repay us for the trouble; but if these people will put their business before the county through THE CHRONICLE we would present the finest displayed paper in the State.

One man said to us that the town needed stirring up. We have started out to do it. This is our inventory of material to work on, and if we ever get them all to going the town will have to spread to hold us.

If there are any towns around here that want to be stirred we would like to put in our stick there as we go along.

Now, let us all get together and make things hum this winter and at least make enough so we can play checkers next summer with a clean conscience. With a good profitable season THE CHRONICLE will guarantee to hold the championship of the county. Next year we are going to talk politics and talk it mighty strong, but now we want to stir up the town, and we are going to stir it from the bottom.

There are goods to be sold; let Columbiana sell them. There is lots of cotton to buy; let Columbiana buy it.
Get that long face off the street, and everybody get into the stirring.

KLONDIKE ECLIPSED.

According to Dr. Cameron, Alabama is as El Dorado.

[Age-Herald.]

Dr. H. J. Cameron, of Alexander City, was in the city last night. He said that the country around Alexander City and Heflin, Ala., has a brighter future before it in the way of gold and copper mining than any country in the world. He has prospected for gold and silver in all parts of the world—South Africa, Central America, Mexico and on the Yukon rivers in Alaska, but according to his views none of these countries have as much rich ore as the country around Heflin. "The gold in Alabama," he said "is found in quartz formation.
There are no placer deposits. The La Mascota stamp mills are located near Alexander City."

Dr. Cameron has purchased "shoes" and "dies" in this city and the mills which have been idle while waiting for the machinery, will resume operations at once. "So far," Dr. Cameron continued, "the results of our mining operations have been very satisfactory.
We have been put to some trouble," he added, "heretofore on account of having to send away for our machinery, but that inconvenience will be obliterated by the Hardy-Tynes Foundry and Machinery company, who hereafter will manufacture "shoes" and "dies" and devote especial attention to gold stamp mills." According to Dr. Cameron more gold and copper stamp mills will be erected in Alabama during the next year, than anywhere else in the world.

He thinks that a veritable gold boom, eclipsing the Klondyke, will break on Alabama in a short time.

Inch by Inch.

Many crimes are committed in the name of justice, but the act of the federal judge in West Virginia who enjoined the striking miners from marching peaceably along the public highways is one of the most outrageous proceedings that has ever taken place on American soil. This high-handed act of this federal judge in preventing the assemblage of law abiding citizens is an outrage upon decency, a stigma on what pretends to be a free government. Inch by inch the big corporations are robbing labor of its rights, but the Times never dreamed that it would call in the strong arm of the law to prevent them from marching along the public highways.
What are we coming to? Whether are we drifting? These are questions that only the future can answer. We tremble for the safety of our republic when courts become the plant tools of corporations to oppress labor and sheriffs are willing servants to carry the tyrannical order of unscrupulous wearers of judicial power.

SILVER AND WHEAT.

THE CAUSE OF THE RECENT RISE,
And its Relation to the Price of the White Metal.

The following, taken from an interview with Hon. John W. Tomlinson in the Age-Herald, is a reasonable and simple explanation of causes and effects:

"All this hue and cry in the gold papers about the rise in wheat refuting the Democratic argument that the volume of currency regulates prices amounts to nothing. The Democratic argument made in the last campaign was based on the general average of prices of all commodities through a series of years, and not on the price of one particular thing for one particular year. Sauerbeck's table of prices, cited by the Democrats, also Baker's and Secretary Morton's, showed that wheat during some years brought a greater price than it is bringing now. To refute the Democratic argument it would be necessary for them to show that the general average of prices of all commodities and labor has not fallen since 1873. This they can not do. The fall has been more than 30 per cent.

"Instead of refuting the arguments made in the last campaign our opponents, by citing the rise in the price of wheat as an evidence of prosperity, admit that a rise in value brings prosperity. This is what we contend; that the free coinage of silver would increase the volume of money, and that would increase prices as every man who knows anything at all about the science of money concedes.

"Yes, our opponents argued against the benefits of rising prices; yet now they are proclaiming that the rise in wheat is a special blessing to the laboring man. When I spoke at Mobile last summer a number of questions propounded to me and the other speakers printed on a circular were scattered through the large audience, and one of them was in substance, 'If the free coinage of silver would raise the price of all commodities tell us how this would benefit the wage earner whose wages would not be increased?' The answer, of course, was that his wages would be increased proportionately; that the same law which increases values would increase wages. Now, I would like for those who propounded that question to me to now tell the laboring man how he is benefited by the rise in wheat alone without his wages being advanced.

I would like them also to tell the farmers what will put up their wheat in the years to come when there will be no short crop in countries which are our competitors in the foreign markets.

"The fall in silver can not be the result of overproduction. In the year 1896 the production of gold and silver (at the coinage value at the ratio of 16 to 1) was exactly the same, namely $215,000,000 each. It can not be attributed to better facilities in mining, as that would apply to gold also, and who says gold has declined? If the production theory is correct the Klondyke ought to cause gold to go down, oughtn't it? The fall in price is because those who now control the great governments of the world not only no longer permit silver to be coined into legal tender money, but insist that the $3,600,000,000 of coined silver of the world is only good as money when redeemable in gold. The fall in silver but emphasizes the necessity of action—by this Government alone, if the others will not start with us—if mankind is to prevent the gold standard, with all its evils, from being made permanent throughout the world. This great Government alone, with the total product of the world at only $215,000,000, much of which goes into the arts, can easily uphold silver at 16 to 1, if it really wants to do it, because the supply is limited by nature."

When a man comes into the office and planks down the cash and says
"Send me the paper for a year," that's business. When one says "I want the paper, but haven't got the money now," that's all right. When a man spends from 10 cents to $1 a week for tobacco and then says he can't afford to take the paper that's fabrication.
When a man borrows the paper every week to read that's check.—Gadsden Times-News.

A man can't get out of debt by borrowing money.

It is easier to sign three notes than to pay one debt.

TEN MILLION BALES.

Total Cotton Yield will Reach Enormous Proportions.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 2.—Notwithstanding the light receipts of new cotton during August, which were generally anticipated, local operators look for a large crop, the most popular estimates being in the vicinity of 10,000,000 bales. In Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama, as well as in other Southern States, there has been a decided increase, and it is this, added to the Texas yield, upon which the operators here base their estimates of 10,000,000 bales. The heavy rains of the latter part of August undoubtedly hurt the early cotton in Louisiana, but this damage has been more than offset by the advantage derived from these rains by the late planted cotton.

Interest in this State now centers principally on the weather probabili-ties in September and the possibilities of an early frost, which would materially lessen the yield. The tone of the market here is exceedingly bearish, which is of itself sufficient to indicate the trend of public opinion.
Reports from the section which suffered by the spring floods are favorable. In these districts the cotton was necessarily planted late, but has thriven, and but for an early frost will yield handsomely.

A NEW INDUSTRY.

Captain Walthall has Secured the Herendeen Plant for Birmingham.

[Age-Herald.]

Capt. J. L. Walthall has returned from a trip to New York, Boston and Geneva.

Capt. Walthall's principal business in the east was to secure the machinery of the Herendeen Manufacturing company, located at Geneva. This he did and will at an early date open a plant in Birmingham near the rolling mills. "The building has already been secured," said he. "We will make the famous Herendeen harrow and a line of improved agricultural implements. I can sell this class of utensils in New York by the car load.

"We will use Birmingham steel and it is just as I told some of the New Yorkers. It will not be long before we will be sending them their cutlery and other fine tools manufactured from steel."

Capt. Walthall was honored with a membership in the Merchants' association while in New York. He says the hotels are crowded with Southern buyers who have taken advantage of the merchants' excursion rates.

In the matter of making the right kind of a home, every member of the family has a part to play and a duty to perform. A failure in duty on the part of one member of the family will mar the peace and pleasure of the entire home. Often the happiness of the home is greatly hindered if not entirely destroyed by the waywardness of a single child, and even the very small children are such important factors in a home that no efforts on the part of other members of the family to make home pleasant and restful will succeed against the disturbance of one refractory infant. Indeed the very small children are the mother's chief care, and for that reason the part they play in the making of the marring of the home is often if not always more important than the duties of older members of the family.

No home can be what every home ought to be with an anxious, overworked, weary, and nervous at its head, and nothing else unnerves a mother so completely as the frettings of an infant.

While children are too young to understand their duties and properly appreciate their obligations in the making of a home, there is nothing to be done but for older members of the family to divide the labor and share the responsibilities of keeping the little ones in line among themselves; but so soon as a child is old enough to be taught anything at all, it ought to be made to understand that it is a partner in the work of making home pleasant and restful to all the family.—
Youth's Advocate.

How dear to our hearts is the old silver dollar when a kind subscriber presents it to view—the liberty head without necktie or collar, and all the strange things that to us seem so new:
the wide spreading eagle, the arrows below it, stars and the words with the strange things they tell. The coin of our fathers! We are glad that we know it, for some times or other 'twill come in right well—the spread eagle dollar, the big silver dollar that we all love so well.—Ex.

FIRST it was smallpox; now it is yellow fever. It is reported in epidemic form on the Southern Coast, and the whole country is quarantining.

THE Sunny Southland, devoted to the interests of immigration and published at Calera, has reached us. It is a bright little sheet, and is calculated to do much good for this section.

THE Daily Annistonian, until recently published by Frank Connolly, has been sold to the Hot Blast, and will be discontinued. Frank is a hummer, and we regret to see him go out of the business.

THE business season is now open and it is time to advertise if you are going to catch the trade. THE CHRONICLE has the space now and will make you reasonable figures. If you wait later the good space may be gone.

AFTER conversing with one of our merchants on the need of improvement in our town, we decided to set the example. Let every man in Columbiana make some change in his business that will please his customers and it will draw others. The way to improve is to improve.

AT the Presbyterian Church Sunday night the pastor had to step in the midst of his sermon and correct some young people who were misbehaving. This is the worst impoliteness one can be guilty of, and is a violation of the law. It should be punished very severely. Parents are to a great extent responsible for such misconduct, and they should see to it that their children, young or old, behave or stay at home.

SOME Republicans in Bessemer have been prosecuted for false registration in the last election. The party platform declares for a "free ballot and a fair count," but says nothing about registration. There are various ways to cheat, and the Republicans are about as well up on them as anyone else.

OUT of the $180,000,000 or more of pensions the South pays probably forty or fifty millions each year. She lost her slave property and is still paying for the loss. A few years will make her payments equal the value of the slaves. How much could have been saved by an acceptance of the proposition to buy them.

OUR better half wanted five different articles during the past week that could not be found on sale in Columbiana, all simple articles of everyday household want. There is a pointer. Some merchant get these and some other things that he don't keep now, let the people know through THE CHRONICLE that he has them, and he will at once have increased his business to that extent.

THE Chicago Record is sending out the draft of a bill for a postal savings bank system. Some good features appear in such a system both to the people and to the Government. A full investigation on the part of our law makers may cause them to establish the system. It is intended to encourage savings by the people in small amounts, and incidentally it will be of advantage to the Government.

FROM the printed record of evidence in the contest of Wm. F. Aldrich vs. T. S. Plowman one can find some interesting facts. One hundred and fifty-eight voters made affidavit that they voted for Plowman at Montevallo box; the official returns give Plowman 119. Ninety-nine got lost in the shuffle. The question is, Who doct the cards?

THE ruling of the auditor, as noted in our local columns, seems to us to be very much a la Bowler. It destroys the good intentions of the legislature, which clearly was to give those who failed to participate in the distribution of the two years preceding the passage of the act, designated in the act as 1895 and 1896, an opportunity to file application and share in the reserve fund. The auditor upon a technicality prevents this and nullifies the entire act. It strikes us as one of those cases of straining at a gnat, which public officials are very much in the habit of doing.

THE Advertiser says that "Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle had tremendous difficulty in so arranging as to prevent a break between the silver dollar and other currency, but they succeeded by a strict compliance with the law." Rats! There was not the least probability of such a thing. What these two gentlemen did do was to enhance the value of gold by paying it out in redemption of all paper money, in disregard of the spirit of the law, until they had to sell bonds to keep up the gold reserve. A strict compliance with the law in this and some other matters would have made their administration much more successful.

OUR CHANGE.

Our readers will notice that the outside of this paper contains original matter and is printed at home. We intend making this a permanent feature, and feel sure our readers will be pleased with the change. With the increase of advertising which we naturally expect the ready print would leave us no room for the local news our correspondents are furnishing and which is too interesting to crowd out, to say nothing of what we would like to say ourselves. Then, too, the ready print matter is not interesting to all readers, and we hope to select matter for the outside that will be more readable to all. The general spirit of improvement which seems to be pervading the land has some influence in the change, and we like to be right up with the procession. We invite articles upon subjects of local interest from our friends, which will do much toward arousing zeal and energy in business and social circles. With an eye to business for ourselves and our patrons we solicit advertisements for the increased space, and can safely guarantee a fair return for the investment. We begin the change by reducing the paper to twenty-four columns, believing the readers will prefer a six-column all home print to a seven-column half patent. The other four columns will be restored as business justifies it. As all improvement merits some reward we hope to have an increase of patronage for this.

THE FIRST BALE.

For many years in the South the first bale of cotton received in a town has been the real beginning of the business season. It heralds the approaching collections, the wiping out of old scores, the laying in of the winter supplies, the new suit of clothes or the new dress. It may be to our disadvantage that this is so. We are inclined to envy the section that has a class of business which affords money all the year around, and yet when this time comes to us we are all happy. Happy in the prospect of paying our debts, of selling lots of goods, or of buying something for the wife and babies out of the little mite left over. At any rate it is the time of business and everybody is on the alert to secure his share while it is going about.

This particular year there are many pleasant things to think of along with the perplexities that crowd around us. We don't know whether we will make a full crop or not; it is not certain yet. We don't know if the price will be better than last year; that depends too much upon the will of the foreign manipulator and the gambler in futures. But we do know that we owe less than we did last year, and that more of this crop will go into our pockets than of the last one. Our merchant was not able to advance us as freely as before, and of necessity we have bought less. It has seemed hard on us, perhaps, that we had to live so closely; that we couldn't buy the wife a new frock or the baby a pair of pretty shoes; that we couldn't have the good Sunday dinner for the preacher as of yore. But here we are; we have lived through it all, and the wife's smile is just as freely given, the little one's prattle just as sweet, and the store account isn't near as large. The first bale is ready for market, and we see our way out of debt; a great big mortgage is lifted off the farm and a big load off our heart.

The farmer has been benefited by the very hard times that have made everybody suffer with him. Now is the time to prepare for that genuine era of prosperity that is sure to follow when the defects in our financial system are remedied and we start even again with the world. This year the first bale is a welcome arrival and a joyful one. Let the lessons it brings with it abide with us.

COLD facts forces the Advertiser, after many cries of persecution, to give the following weak endorsement of the Governor's action:

Mr. Lott has been an honored official for many years and at every test of strength developed the fact that he possessed the confidence of the majority of his fellow citizens. He has not, however, kept his office up to the plane on which it should have been conducted and the public generally will endorse the action of the Governor in taking steps to remove him.

If the same thing had happened under the former administration the Advertiser would have devoted a column of praise to the executive for his wise care of the State's interests.

THE Russell Register has the following pertinent remarks on an interesting subject:

A fifty-pound sack of flour is worth 25 cents more today than it was a month ago. The man who gets his money to buy flour by picking cotton has to pick just 100 pounds more than he used to have to pick to get a sack of flour. That is the gold standard variety of prosperity. Where will a deluge of such prosperity land us? And we are told that a great wave of it is upon us.

The only true prosperity is that to be realized from an equal adjustment of prices both of labor and of products. This can be attained by an expansion of the currency; this in turn by the free coinage of silver at a fixed ratio.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. E. W. GIST.

THE MOTHER'S GOOD-BYE.

Sit down by the side of your mother, my boy. You have only a moment, I know; but wait until I give you my parting advice. It is all that I have to bestow. You have not yet sought for employment, my boy. By the world you have yet to be tried. But in all the temptations and struggles you may find your heart in the Savior's confide. Hold fast to the right! Hold fast to the right! Wherever your footsteps may roam, Oh! forsake not the way of salvation, my boy. What you learned from your mother at home! You'll find in your satchel a Bible, my boy; 'Tis the book of all others the best. It will teach you to live, it will help you to die. And lead you to the land of the blest; I gave you to God in your cradle, my boy. I have taught you the best I knew to a life, and as long as His mercy permits me to live, I will never cease praying for you. (These beautiful and touching lines echo the feeling of every mother who has seen her boy pass out from home and parents to begin the battle of life.—The Mobile Register.)

Speaking of legal matters and woman's relation thereto, it is appropriate that women should familiarize themselves with the divorce bill which was recommended by the uniform law commission to the National Bar Association, O., during the past week. It is expected that the legislatures of the various states of the union will be persuaded to make it a law, thereby rendering it the universal divorce law of the United States. The bill reads: "No person shall be entitled to a divorce who has not resided in the state two years before bringing suit nor unless the defendant shall have been personally served within the state, or shall have voluntarily appeared in such action. No divorce shall effect the legitimacy of the children of such marriages, except where it shall be declared void because of a prior marriage. The proceedings shall be had in the county where the complainant resides; but process may be directed to any county in the state. If it shall appear to the court that the defendant is a non-resident at the time of application for divorce, and that the cause of action arose while the defendant domiciled in the state and that the defendant has been absent from the state for a year after the return of one summons not found, the court may authorize notice of the suits by publication. The court must hear the case by examination in open court, and divorce shall not be granted in default unless the judge shall be satisfied that proper means have been taken to notify the defendant and the cause has been fully proved. The court may allow a divorce, so that the woman may resume her maiden name, or that of her former husband. The court may compel the conveyance of property after divorce held by either party, when it appears that such property belongs to the other. When a marriage is dissolved, either party will have the right to marry again. A fine of not less than $100 or more than $1,000 and imprisonment of not more than one year or less than three months, or both, for anybody who publishes in any way, notice of any kind, intent to procure, or aid in procuring any divorce.—Age-Herald.

There are no middle-aged, no old women nowadays. Every woman attires herself as her individual taste suggests, some in older, some in younger styles, and, in consequence, feminine beauty is not regulated by the years, only by the fascination of personal charms. There is no longer any etiquette as to dress, for women of advancing years. If a woman fifty-five or sixty years old desires to don white organdie gown, worn over blue, green or heliotrope silk slips, she is entirely at liberty so to do. She, this pretty, stylish grandmother, need not be forced to wear the regulation bonnet with strings. She can select instead a picture-hat, if she is especially brave and independent. Even in conservative England, with the good old queen setting an example in old-fashioned dress, the fancy for gay colors and youthful styles has grown rapidly of late. No woman's age can any longer be estimated by her toilette, and better than all, no one can arbitrarily force a handsome grandmother to dress like an octogenarian, if she does not so desire. A woman can now wear whatever is becoming and appropriate, regardless of all the tantalizing dates inscribed in one's family Bible.—Mrs. Ball.

A gentleman of the Lime Co. Club of Calera, asked a representative of THE CHRONICLE the other day if we wished to write up any more reformed drunkards. We certainly do, for it is better and pleasanter to write up the reformed than the unreformed. However, we are not likely to attack either without the personal consent of such parties. Yes, brother, send in your experience and let us know if you are reformed and we will pay R. R. fare and come to see you, and write you up as another example of the results of good determination and the grace of God.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church, have fitted it up with a handsome new carpet, and with their own deft hands have made everything inside the church look new and cosy.

Rev. W. I. Sinnott has presented the church with a handsome new lamp.

There is much ado and severe criticism on the decisions of the women of Nebraska, that it is wrong in morals for the boys of this country to be trained in military exercises. The Mobile Register supposes the women intend doing all the fighting themselves, and suggests that the boys be provided "skipping ropes." Such attempts at high down sarcasm dashed at the wise and level headed women of our country fills us with pain and disgust, and only displays a mark of ignorance on the subject of the present methods of teaching and training boys in military exercises in the schools in some portions of the country. It is a fact that the military element is predominant over all other legitimate studies with the small boys at school in some portions of our country; and the continuous training and exercising fills the young boy with a war spirit that is deplorable, and destroys his ambitions in other studies. In many schools, especially in the East, this training begins in the second and third grades; the boy comes in from school and proceeds to buckle on his mother's ribbon belt, thrusts a stick under it to represent a sword and paces up and down his room frantically so imbued is he with the war spirit. He is pitiable to behold; he has forgotten every other lesson of the day and becomes delirious with the anticipation of the time when he can pierce the side with a sword and level a gun at some other man or body of men. It is not unpatriotic or any discredit that some of our women are calling a halt and restriction on such training for small boys. We have no objection to every boy in the Union taking a thorough course in military training, but we wish him to acquire a suitable age before doing so.

Our good brothers over the country are prone to inconsistency. One day they proclaim on every house-top that women are the wise guardian angels of our children and implore them to stick close to that one and only calling. The moment she takes a decisive step in that direction he sets up a howl and capers around in all sorts of ridiculous attitudes.

Oh, man, thou art not immaculate, Though thou sometimes get disconsolate.

An anonymous letter threatening the assassination of President McKinley, was published in a paper at Columbus, Ohio, a few days ago, but was subsequently denounced as a hoax. It suggests however that recent assassinations in other countries may incite to the minds of some obscure crank a desire for notoriety. Like the numerous lynchings and the awful crimes that bring it about, it seems that one awful affair incites mischief and notoriety in other low minded mortals, and thus the fair women of our country and the high officials, even the President of the United States, are in danger of their lives being unscrupulously taken.

This issue of the CHRONICLE is not a fair sample of what we are going to turn out. We are giving now our "make up" printed on "just any old paper." When our subscription list is marked "paid up" just watch us.

Professor Slaton, of the Calera High School, gave us a pleasant call last week. And the unexpected is happening. Calera High School is to have a kindergarten department. In fact the first grade is to be run on the kindergarten principle. Columbiana had better turn about and see "where it is at." A hint to the wise is sufficient.

What is the matter with our merchants? We are unable to flail a pound of oatmeal, a package of corn starch, buckwheat flour, yankee beans, white potatoes or a can of condensed milk at the grocery stores, or a palmetto fan at the dry goods stores, or an ounce of Jamaica ginger at the drug stores. It strikes us that each article is an everyday necessity.

We hereby return thanks to our many good neighbors for various huge baskets of delicious fruits and vegetables. With no market at hand and no garden of our own we should probably have starved and been wandering hungrily around in unknown regions, but for the kind thoughtfulness of friends around us.

It is said that Alabama day, September 29, is to excel every other effort at the Nashville Exposition. Ample preparations are being made for a reception to Alabama ladies on the evening of the 29th.

A WOMAN'S DEAREST RIGHT.

Edward Box is not far wrong when he says that a Southern woman holds most precious the right to honor, aye, reverence her father, her husband; to trust with all her heart her brother, her lover, her son.

Assured of this, however lowly her lot, she treads the earth a queen. Bereft of this, her priceless crown, she bows, a pariah in spirit, though endowed with the wealth of a Rothschild!

MARAH.

Mr. T. H. CLARK, of Montgomery, who ran for Congress on the Gold ticket last fall, has been appointed to a good position in the Library of Congress. Thus do the Republicans reward their friends.

WEAT did not stay at a dollar very long. So, after all, it was speculation that stirred it up, and the argument that no permanent raise will be effected until we have free silver is not hurt so bad.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Interesting Meeting of the Local Society.

The exercises of our Christian Endeavor Society last Sunday afternoon were of unusual interest. Subject, Give, give, give.

The leader, Dr. W. A. Lovett, had a very interesting programme prepared. After some discussion of the subject by the leader J. R. White gave us the "Reasons of increased giving on the part of Christians," in his paper clearly showing the absolute necessity of increased giving. A beautiful paper was read by Essie Mason on the "Treasures of the Lord," followed by "The Indian teaches us," by J. E. Seale. Another paper by Miss Emma Wilson on "How Jenny Lind thanked God."

After singing "Jesus, I come," Miss Edna Nelson read "Seeing as for the Lord." This paper was followed by a discussion on "How to give to God," by I. D. Mason and Rev. W. I. Sinnott. This discussion was forcibly made, clearly showing that the tenth should be the least the Christian should consider right to give to the Lord.

Mr. Henry Milner brought before the society the history and purpose of the Tenth-Tithe Legion. This discussion closed the program. This proved one of the most enjoyable and instructive meetings it has been our good pleasure to be in for some time. The young people are doing a grand work for the Master in their society; long may it continue.

SHELBY COUNTY DOCTORS.

Meeting of the Medical Association of Shelby.

On Tuesday the regular monthly meeting of the Shelby County Medical Association was held here, at which there was quite a good attendance.

A pleasant session was held, we understand, though we were unable to secure the proceedings in detail.

Among those present we noticed Drs. Givhan and Wilkerson, of Montevallo; Oliver and McAdams, of Shelby; Gunn and Caffey, of Calera.

The next meeting of the association will be held at Calera on the first Tuesday in next month.

Excursion Rates to Cincinnati and Louisville and Return.

The Southern Railway will sell round trip tickets to Cincinnati and Louisville and return at rate of one and one-third fares for the round trip.

From points in the State of Georgia, tickets will be on sale September 13, 14, and 15; in Alabama, September 23, 24, and 25; in Tennessee, September 27, 28, and 29. All tickets will be valid ten days from date of sale.

Call on any agent of the Southern Railway for further information.

After an absence of one year, Miss Annie McMillan returned home Tuesday, much to the delight of her many friends.

J. H. Hammond has a brand new showcase full of cigars. When you want to smoke call in and make your own selection.

Mr. C. C. DuBose has gone with the Washington Life Insurance Co., and will in future write policies in that excellent company.

Prof. C. C. Shuton, principal of the Calera school, also representing the Washington Life Insurance Co., was in the city this week.

We failed to mention John Cromwell as one of those who caters to the visitors to our city. John also carries the mail to and from the station.

Rev. Will O'Hara, who has been spending a part of his summer vacation with his father's family here, left Tuesday for his work near Birmingham.

A very nice game of ball was played here Monday evening between Columbiana and Shelby. The score was 10 to 6 in our favor, but the visitors made us hustle to get there.

The first bale of cotton was received here last week. It was brought in by some colored men from off the Coosa River neighborhood and bought by I. D. Mason at 8 cents per pound.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Strickland are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Oglesby, of Centerville, this week. They were accompanied by Miss Lizzie Oglesby, who has been visiting here.

S. D. Logan, Esq., of Centerville, and Mr. C. F. Douthit, of Birmingham, were in the city yesterday on legal business. Mr. Logan is a candidate for circuit judge in his circuit, and is a lawyer of ability.

Mr. Burgess Little, of Blocton, was in the city last Friday. He will be cashier of the Shelby County Bank at Montevallo. He is a self-made young man, and is entirely worthy of the confidence of his patrons. He will begin business at Montevallo about the 20th.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he cannot certainly know. For sale by J. B. Seale & Co., Drugists.

MEETING OF THE COUNTY UNION.

Session of the Shelby County Christian Endeavor Society.

The Shelby County Christian Endeavor Union was held at the Congregational church, Shelby, Ala., Thursday and Friday, September 2 and 3, 1897. The first session was Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and was led by E. T. Witherby.

7:30—Praise service, led by E. T. Witherby.
8:00—Committee work of the society. Lookout committee, Miss Maude Clarke. Prayermeeting committee, Cleveland Witherby. Social committee, Chas. Avery. Flower committee, Miss Kittie Averyt. Temperance committee, J. P. Roberts. Missionary committee, Dr. W. A. Lovett.

The last two papers were especially fine. The necessity for temperance was clearly set forth, and the duty of the members in regard to the work was impressed upon us. All who believe in God must believe in missions. The spirit of Christ was a missionary spirit. The marching orders given to all Christians are "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

FRIDAY MORNING.
9:30—Praise service, led by Mr. Witherby.

10:00—What is a true Christian Endeavor society? The charity chapter, I Cor., XIII, was read responsively by the leader and the society.

The duties of officers, opened by Henry Milner. The president should be a consecrated man, the shepherd of the sheep. He should not press the members into service, but lead them.

The vice-president should be ready at all times to take the president's place. The secretary should be willing to work for Christ, should be present at every meeting to keep the records of the society in good order.

The treasurer should keep a careful account of the money of the society and report at every business meeting.

The duties of leaders, opened by E. T. Witherby. Leaders must make preparation. Timid leaders may read the lesson and select the hymns, then a more experienced member should take the meeting up and carry it forward.

Timid members may be encouraged and trained into confidence. Good leaders can be made.

Taking some part. As Mr. White could not be present, this subject was opened by Dr. Lovett. It is the duty of members to pray for help at every meeting. The leader is no more responsible for the success of the meeting than you are. We should take part by reading the scripture, by remarks and testimonies, and take some part in enlarging our assemblies.

The discussion upon the subject was participated in by Rev. T. M. Wilson, Cleveland Witherby and other members present.

3:30—Praise service, led by Rev. T. M. Wilson.

4:00—Junior work.

The junior work was illustrated by a meeting of the Shelby Junior Society. The meeting was led by Maggie Owens, assisted by Miss Lucia Witherby, the junior superintendent, and Rev. A. T. Clarke, the pastor. Mr. Clarke gave, in the course of the meeting, a short account of the organization and progress of the junior society.

A nominating committee, composed of Henry Milner and Miss Agnes Averyt, was appointed.

7:30—Praise service, led by Henry Milner.

The report of the nominating committee was presented, and the following officers were elected: President, Cleveland Witherby; vice-president, L. N. Bowdon; secretary, J. R. White; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Johnston.

8:00—Consecration meeting. This was, as always, the crowning meeting. All felt that a blessing was given to carry to their homes and into the years to come.

The union voted to hold the next meeting at Columbiana.

BUTTER AND MILK.

Calera to have a Creamery and a Colony.

THE CHRONICLE is informed by a private source that Mr. A. F. Wilson, of the Calera Land Co., has sold a quantity of land to a syndicate who will proceed to settle thereon a colony of people from Iowa. The prime object is to start a large creamery, and each colonist will be required to dispose of his milk to the head of the concern. Each family is to have an out of ten cows and other necessities to start with and will own the land upon which they live. We have been unable to get the particulars of the deal or find out all the details, but something of this sort is evidently on foot.

Calera is a splendid location for something of this kind. Her railroad facilities will attract attention anywhere, and affords her every access to all points. There are vast quantities of land in the vicinity which if improved will be very useful.

If such a thing is probable we congratulate Calera that she will have another source of business to rely upon than her present small agricultural interest and the lime trade, which owing to present conditions is unsatisfactory.

CONFEDERATE PENSIONS.

A Ruling by the Auditor of Interest to Applicants for 1895.

Under an act of the last legislature some 54 applications were made by Confederate soldiers of this county, who had failed to participate in the distribution for 1895. These applications were recently returned by the auditor to the judge of probate with the explanation that under a ruling of that office none of the applications under the said act would be allowed.

Not understanding upon what such a ruling could be based Judge McMillan wrote for further explanation, in reply to which request he has received the following letter from the auditor:

MONTGOMERY, September 6, 1897.
HON. D. R. McMILLAN,
Columbiana, Ala.

DEAR SIR:—
I am in receipt of your favor of the 3d, for which accept my thanks. My letter of the 19th was written by a new clerk, and was not as explanatory as it should have been in justice to me. The law providing for the disbursement of funds remaining in the treasury belonging to the pension fund was made abortive by its own verbiage (see acts 1896-97, p. 954). Section 3 reads: "Be it further enacted, That only those who failed to receive payment for the years 1895-96 shall be entitled to relief under this act." The pensions for 1896 have not been paid yet; the coming distribution is for 1896, so you will readily see that no one is entitled to relief under that law, and as before stated the entire act is abortive.

W. S. WHITE, Auditor.

The construction of the auditor is, evidently, that applications made regularly in this year are for the fund of 1896, and the verbiage of the act being contradictory vitiates the entire act.

The regular applications will take their usual course, and will not be affected thereby.

To Township Trustees.

VINCENT, ALA., Sept. 6, 1897.

A few have neglected to send me census reports. Do this at once as no apportionment can be made for next scholastic year until census roll is complete.

Your annual meetings with parents and guardians are to be held Sept. 13th or within seven days thereafter. I shall endeavor to get a complete report of these meetings and the chairman in each township should see to it that the blanks sent them are filled out in every space before mailing to me showing school No. 1, No. 2, No. 3, and so on located; the day, month and year such schools will open (name of teacher if known), and above all I must know the number of children located at each school. Set apart about 72 cents to each child located at a school and divide the product by the number of months to be taught; you then have the teachers monthly salary out of general fund. Then in contracting insert on margin of contract that such teacher is to have poll tax extra for 75 or 80 children, as the case may be, thereby giving each teacher his part of general fund and poll tax for number of children located at such schools. No contract will be approved until your annual report reaches this office.

EUGENE WILLIAMS,
Superintendent Education.

Sterrett Stirrings.

Miss Sallie Donaldson's school at this place closed last Friday.

J. H. Falkner, who has been in the photo business at Sylacauga for several months, returned to Sterrett last week to spend a few weeks with home-folks.

Dr. J. J. DuBose made a business trip to Columbiana last Friday and Saturday.

Master Avera and Miss Flora Goodwin, of Oxmoor, who has been staying with their uncle, W. H. Falkner, going to school, returned to their home last Saturday. We regretted very much to see them leave us, but hope that it will be so they can attend another school here soon.

C. C. Elliott, of Vincent, was in Sterrett last Monday.

Miss Sallie Donaldson returned to her home at Eastboga last Monday.

Joel Falkner shipped a car load of stoneware to Birmingham last Monday.

A. B. Turner droye a nice lot of beef cattle to Birmingham last week. Cotton picking is now in order and the indications are that there will be a fair yield.

The prospect for better times is getting some animation in the pottery industries of this section.

Joel Falkner is on a business trip to Birmingham this week.

Mrs. W. H. Falkner is still in a bad state of health, having had another attack of demented mind last Monday morning; she is some better at this writing.

Road working is one of the orders of the day in this beat. We don't know of anything that speaks better for a country than good roads, good schools and churches.

DIXIE.

Wilsonville Waifs.

The fleecy staple is coming in lively. Hardy Nelson, of Coon Town, did his milking here Monday.

Mr. Davis, of Birmingham, was in town Sunday.

The first bale of this season's cotton brought 104 cents. Is this McKinley's or Wilsonville's prosperity?

Rev. S. J. Parish preached two splendid and eloquent sermons Sunday morning and night.

W. R. Smith returned Friday from Columbus, Miss., where he has been for two months engaged in the handling of commissaries for a company of railroad contractors.

Misses Eva and Libbie Privett, of Jacksonvile, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. McGowen.

Mr. and Mrs. James Dykes, of Columbiana, are the related guests of John Millstead and family.

Public road working has followed in close proximity to the street working.

J. F. Pope's warehouse is nearing completion. It is the largest frame building in the town, if not in the county. It has a self-supporting roof, strong enough for a train of cars to pass over it.

Mr. Arlan Jackson has returned from a visit to various places in Georgia.

The meeting at the Methodist church did not begin Sunday as stated.

Misses Ida O'Hara and Bessie Cockrel came up from Columbiana Friday and spent the day with R. A. O'Hara.

PAT.

Saginaw Drop Shots.

Mr. Fletcher Green and family, who have been visiting relatives here for the past few days, have returned to their home in South Georgia.

J. E. Morris and wife returned last Friday evening from a few weeks' stay at Talladega Springs.

H. C. Hale, one of our boys, left us today for about a month's sojourn in Columbiana.

T. P. Farrell, of Yellow Leaf, has been staying in our town attending the writing school at Elliottsville, which is being taught by Prof. A. W. Horton.

On last Friday evening Mrs. C. E. Hale tendered to the young people of our town and neighboring vicinity a delightful entertainment. There were assembled the fair daughters and noble sons of our vicinity who did honor to their hostess. Refreshments were served and all went merry until the still hours of the night.

On last Thursday Mr. Wesley Ozley fell from off his wagon and seriously sprained his ankle.

J. P. Smitherman is in Centreville this week on business.

A. M. Piper had the misfortune to lose a good horse last week.

PETE.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhoea.

In 1902, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 15th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50-cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, Henry Steinberger, Allentown, Pa. Sold by J. B. Uncle Sam's Wealth.

The area of the United States is 3,025,000 square miles; with Alaska it is 3,002,990 square miles, equal to the area of all Europe with Italy and Turkey excepted. Texas, its largest State, is 212 times the size of Rhode Island. Texas might invite every man, woman, and child now living in the world to settle within its territory, offering individual a plot of ground 494 by 100 feet. The State would not be really crowded, for each individual would have four times the space taken by each person in New York City. England, Scotland, Wales, Italy, and Portugal could be transplanted to Texas, and there would still be room for a good-sized promenade, where curious Americans could walk while studying this bit of Europe. Three of the cattle ranches cover as much territory as the Sandwich Islands, which we were to annex four years ago.

The wealthiest nation of the world is the United States. The census of 1890 shows the true valuation, or fair selling price, of the real or personal property of the country to be $65,037,091,197. It is an increase of over forty-nine per cent on the valuation of the previous decade, and is about six times the value of the money of the entire world. The mind cannot grasp the meaning of such figures without graphic illustration. This amount in gold dollars would load 123,570 carts, each carrying a ton. 172,000 gold dollars were piled one on the other, they would form a stack three feet high. Make similar piles close together till a wall of gold one mile long and worth $230,400,000 is formed. Increase this wall to twenty-eight and one-fourth miles and the amount would represent our national wealth. Placed side by side the coins would form a carpet of gold covering five square miles.—Exchange.

Educational.

For the beautiful cut of Liberty Bell, we are indebted to the American Book Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The cut was designed by Supt. H. C. Gilbert, of Florence, and is offered by him as the State's educational motto. We heartily endorse the sentiment so graphically expressed. The State should adopt it.

We admire this effort to build up the country schools. Our country boys and girls are just as bright and intellectual as those of the towns and cities. But they have not a fair showing with only three month schools; nor is it their fault. It is a shame that Alabama, rich in her mineral, timber and agricultural resources, should allow it to be said that 52 per cent of her population can neither read nor write. Let us all rally around this new Liberty Bell, wake up from our sleep, and declare ourselves free from this disgrace.

Camphor Wards off Chills.

[Washington Evening Star.]

"An almost certain preventive of chills, so far as children are concerned," volunteered a professional nurse, "is to have the children wear a small camphor bag under their clothing next to the body. A penny's worth of camphor is all that is needed. My plan is to put a piece of camphor as large as a chestnut in a small bag. This will last a week or so. The smell of the camphor is not an unpleasant one. I do not know whether it is the smell of the camphor or its stimulating effect that keeps the chills off, but my experience has been that children, and especially those who live in the country, escape chills, which are so prevalent in the autumn season when this precaution is taken. Camphor will ward off other troubles to which children are often very susceptible. The preventive is an easy one to try, and I am sure that those who try it with the children will thank me for my suggestion."

"The crop conditions are good all over the country," remarked J. W. Cutrer, a prominent planter of the Yazoo, Mississippi, delta, who was in the city yesterday. "The most encouraging part about this is that the farmers are raising more of the necessities of life at home. It is true that the acreage of cotton has been increased 8 per cent, but then the corn acreage has been increased 12 per cent. The raising of a larger food crop I consider one of the best indications that the farmers are getting on a sound financial basis. The farmers of the South will not only have more to sell but less to buy."

"On the Atlantic coast they have raised nearly all the corn and bacon they need, and will not have to buy from the West. The Virginia farmers have cut down the acreage of tobacco and have put their land in wheat. This has proved quite fortunate, in view of the boom in wheat. North Carolina is enthusiastic over its wheat, oat and cotton crop, and South Carolina possesses the largest cotton crop in her history by 73,000 bales. The rain came too late in Texas, but still a good crop is promised. Mississippi will make a good crop despite her siege with high water, and in fact the prospects of the country at large are glowing."—Age-Herald.

Did you ever think how appropriate was the source from which the word "tariff" sprung? Tariff was a king of early history who held a little province in a gap now traversed by the Suez Canal, where hundreds of traders had to pass from one country to another. Being firmly entrenched in his mountain fort this king could demand any tribute desired from those who passed through his worthless realm. Of course he levied, like his Republican descendants, regardless of all justice and mercy, and grew fat on the spoils he robbed others of. But his day came, as the day of the present robbers is coming, for he grew so mean to others that he forgot to be kind to his own, and his nephew slew him and turned his wretched government over to another country. So, whenever you hear the word tariff remember that it means a robber, and the country fed by robbing will sink sooner or later, and be overrun by others. This is history, and if we study the inside workings of a robber-fed, billion-dollar Congress we can readily see how we are slowly but surely drifting to certain destruction.—News Reporter.

"Let me give you a pointer," said M. F. Gregg, a popular conductor on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. "Do you know that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cures you when you have the stomach ache? Well, it does." And after giving this friendly bit of advice, the jolly conductor passed on down the aisle. It is a fact that thousands of railroad and traveling men never take a trip without a bottle of this Remedy, which is the best cure for bowel disorders in the world. 25 and 50-cent bottles for sale by J. Every time you neglect a duty, you miss a pleasure.

Every opportunity to do good is a chance to lay up treasures in heaven.

Many a man has fallen behind in his accounts by trying to get ahead in society.

Many a man has convinced the world he was a fool by arguing he was a philosopher.

Keep your eye on the man who is quicker to see a fault than to discover a virtue in others.

Many a man fails to see a good chance to-day because he is looking back at the opportunity he missed yesterday.

The man who always follows the truth will occasionally have to go in a very small crowd if not entirely alone.

The Thrice-a-Week Edition of The New York World is first among all "weekly" papers in size, frequency of publication, and the freshness, accuracy and variety of its contents. It has all the merits of a great daily at the price of a dollar weekly. Its political news is prompt, complete, accurate and impartial as all its readers will testify. It has brilliant illustrations, stories by great authors, a capital humor page, complete markets, departments for the household and women's work and other special departments of unusual interest.

Tetter, Salt-Rheum and Eczema.

The intense itching and smarting, incident to these diseases, is instantly allayed by applying Chamberlain's Eye and Skin Ointment. Many very bad cases have been permanently cured by it. It is equally efficient for itching piles and a favorite remedy for sore nipples, chapped hands, chilblains, frost bites and chronic sore eyes. 25 cts. per box.

Dr. Cady's Condition Powders, are just what a horse needs when in bad condition. Tonic, blood purifier and vermifuge. They are not food but medicine and the best in use to put a horse in prime condition. Price 25 cents per package.

BUSINESS IS BETTER.

THERE IS NO HALTING IN THE AD-VANCE.

A Great Increase in the Number of Wage Earners Employed, Reported.

New York, September 10.—R. G.
Dun & Company's weekly review of trade to-morrow will say:

There is no halting in the advance.
Business grows better in all ways, for while its speculative end breaks conspicuous gamblers for a decline, a steady increase in production, in working force and in the power of the people to purchase is the feature which overshadows all others. Reports of New York trade unions show an increase since one year ago of 34 per cent in the number of men at work and a similar increase among men in like positions throughout the country would exceed 340,000, while every week adds many establishments to the active list.

Among coal miners work will probably be very soon resumed by a large share of the men. Among the farmers, while Western receipts do not show that they have marketed a tenth of their crops, assurance of a profit to come prepares them to buy liberally hereafter. Because of this and the increase of hands at work, dealers throughout the country have started to replenish stocks, which is the great force at present operating in manufacturing and trade, though distribution by retail trade has greatly increased.

A gain of twelve per cent in the monthly output of pig iron, from 165, 378 tons, August 1, to 185,506 September 1, with knowledge that half a dozen other furnaces are preparing to resume and that unsold stocks have been reduced 14,400 tons weekly in August, indicating a consumption of about 190,000 tons, more than explains the moderate advance in prices of finished products, averaging but six per cent since the lowest point, August 12.

Wheat has risen 5 cents for the past week, in answer to the daily increasing foreign demand. Though the yield was never surpassed but once, it is believed the deficiency abroad will require about 100,000,000 bushels more than usual.

The price of corn has risen 1/2 of a cent and the foreign demand is limited at present only by ship room.

Since the small corner in August cotton has relapsed to 7 1/2 cents; there have been no rumors affecting prices much. Northern mills are consuming very largely, with a continued demand for goods, which has advanced the prices of many. With enormous speculative sales of wool at Boston, there is also more buying there and elsewhere by the woolen mills, which are enjoying extraordinary demand for goods at prices averaging 10 per cent higher than was paid early in the year. The average advance for the week in prints has been 1.72 square.

Failures for the week have been 215 in the United States; against 316 last year, and 33 in Canada, against 47 last year.

The American Girl in Fiction.

"Sometimes the characteristic type of the American heroine of fiction is vulgar, sometimes cold-hearted, or unkind, or wilful, or indiscreet, but she is never stupid," writes "Droch" in the September Ladies' Home Journal. "That is the verdict of contemporary observers on the American girl. Whatever she may be or do she always has her wits about her; she is 'smart.' While her father delights in managing factories, stock operations, or railroads, she delights in managing men. And in every kind of fiction which she dominates the men seem to be uniformly glad to be managed by her. Often in fiction she has been lacking in certain graces—chiefly the supreme grace of tact. But there are signs that our novelists have discovered that the American girl possesses this grace also, and so it happens that to-day she trails through fiction not only with fine clothes, and a beautiful face, and generous deeds, and witty, if impertinent, remarks—but there is developing around her a gracious manner, an unconscious simplicity that shows itself in consideration for the weakness of others—in addition to that keen knowledge of their foibles which was always hers. What we have yet to hope for is that her wealth or her poverty may be made less a significant part of her always attractive personality."

Referring to a paragraph in THE CHRONICLE the Peoples Advocate says:

The above from THE CHRONICLE shows the drift of the Democratic party. They are still in favor of the rule of "the intelligent and virtuous." They are in favor of class rule, and class legislation. The Advocate is bitterly opposed to an educational qualification for voters. The idea of the State not furnishing means for the educating its children, and then denying them the right to vote, is an outrage on justice and right. We are in favor of universal education and universal suffrage.

We supposed somebody would proceed to jump on us, and we have been waiting for it. We are quite ready to defend our position on this question. The proposition that the ignorant have no moral right to cast a ballot is supported by a great many more people than will acknowledge it. It is an unpopular issue for people who expect to be candidates for office, and in fact very little opposition is manifested to it except from people who hope to curry popular favor. As the editor of THE CHRONICLE is not even a prospective candidate it can afford to speak its real sentiments.

The above paragraph is very inconsistent, to say nothing of the blunders it makes in point of fact. The Democratic party is in favor of the rule of the intelligent and virtuous. It has always been, and it has always given to the State of Alabama a rule of intelligence and virtue in striking contrast to that given by other parties in its past history. When it says "they are in favor of class rule and class legislation" it lays to the charge of the Democratic party that which is only chargeable to that party with which the Populists are acting in concert in this State. If THE CHRONICLE knows anything about the history of Alabama, it knows that all that has ever been done for the education of the masses has been done by the Democrats; it knows that our party has provided the present system of public schools, and that it is a system giving equal privileges to all the people, white and black alike. It knows that the State is now furnishing the means for educating its children as far as the constitution will let it, and that, be it said to the shame of the parents, it is all the education most of the children get.

We, too, are in favor of universal education, and when we get that we shall be in favor of universal suffrage. Give us the former, and the latter will be a blessing; until we get the former the latter will continue to be a curse. The country will always be safe in the hands of intelligent men; intelligence is the safeguard of virtue. Let all the people know what they want; let them understand, from a competent personal conception of the real truth, what is best for them, and then the will of a majority would be a desirable law and the voice of the people would be the voice of God. But while men through ignorance are controlled by the playing of unscrupulous leaders upon their misguided prejudices they are incompetent to rule themselves or to rule others. Warped by these prejudices ignorance is the too ready tool of vice, and you can not build up a virtuous citizenship upon a foundation of ignorance with ignorant builders.

The negro who through careless indifference to honest purpose sells his ballot to the eager buyer has no right to overcome the vote of the honest man who feels upon his shoulders the responsibility of his government; the white man, led astray through ignorance—and that of his own volition perhaps—has no more right to be invested with a power that will, thus used, injure his own welfare and that of his neighbors. Ignorance is not always the synonym of vice, but it has not the strength to fight it nor the discretion to choose between the good and the bad.

Just as well vote by proxy—and better if by an honest proxy—as to put a ballot into the hands of a man who can not read it. If ever so desirous of voting right he does not know if he is doing so. If unable to comprehend the right or wrong of politics he is but the tool of the ward heeler.

It is deplorable that so many of our people can not read and write; it is more so that so many of these do not want to. We are in favor of universal education, and we are in favor of everything that will help to bring it about. We are in favor of changing the constitution so that the people can be taxed to give every boy and girl sufficient education to make a good citizen. We are in favor of compulsory laws that will surmount the indifference of parents. We are in favor of an educational qualification for voting that will force every man who desires to take part in the rule of his country to prepare himself for doing so intelligently and honestly.

If the editor of THE ADVOCATE will let his reason and his conscience speak he will say the same thing.

GOVERNMENT BY INJUNCTION.

A too forcible instance of the evil effects of this modern method of restraint was given the country the other day when a Pennsylvania sheriff and his deputies shot down, on the public highway and without provocation, more than fifty miners. The miners had struck for higher wages, had been enjoined from congregating upon the corporation's property, were marching peaceably and unarmed upon the public highway, when they were met by the sheriff, who ordered his deputies to fire into the ranks. This they did, and twenty-five souls were sent into eternity and forty maimed human beings were borne to the hospital.

The miners had done nothing they had not a perfect right to do under the laws of the land, and the sheriff is guilty of cold-blooded murder. It is true these people were foreigners, but they had been brought here by the corporation and were being worked at starvation wages. They had learned the value of their labor and were demanding it.

A great many people are in a measure responsible for these deaths, in that they are responsible for the conditions that gave rise to the occurrence. The financial condition of the country that has forced the price of labor down to below a living point; the great greedy corporations that have fastened their fingers upon the Government and made it subservient to their will; the public officials, great and small, who have bowed to the influence of wealth until they know no master than these—all are carrying the weight of these dead men's blood.

And yet when the Democratic party dared to denounce this evil its representatives were called anarchists and socialists. The Chicago platform may have declared more than it was possible to present successfully in one campaign, but it was the dictum of the people through their representatives; and they who repudiated it are either prejudiced beyond reason or they are blinded by the gold god from seeing the truth and the necessities of the hour.

When human lives are sacrificed to the greed of corporate power, it is time to ask ourselves whether we are Democrats or whether we are only weak worshippers of an idol that does not even return thanks for our blind devotion to its false doctrines. When labor is denied the right to demand peaceably its honest dues and is shot down by an officer of the law in cold blood it is time the Government were given into the hands of the people again.

THE CHRONICLE, the organ of the Democratic party in Shelby County, has come out in favor of an educational qualification for voters.—Peoples Advocate.

THE CHRONICLE is not the organ of the Democratic party of Shelby County. It is not the organ of anybody or anything except its editor. Organs are mouthpieces, and the editorial columns of this paper are the mouthpiece of the man whose name is at their head. When the opinions expressed herein cease to be the product of his own brain, he will go out of the business. Being a Democratic paper it supports the Democratic party, because the editor believes in Democratic principles; but it is not an organ.

THE newspapers all unite in praise of Mr. Bryan for his heroic conduct at the great train wreck the other day. The man who can keep a cool head in an emergency like this and do so much to relieve suffering, comfort the dying, and cheer the sorrowful would not make a bad President in these times when the people need not only sympathy but help.

THE new paper in Calera congratulates itself that "the Sunny Southland is the only all-home print weekly newspaper in this section of Alabama." Oh, no, brother, you have another guess. Possibly, though, you measured "this section of Alabama" by the corporate limits of Calera. At any rate you are just a little too previous. We have an all-home print newspaper right here in Columbiana, called THE CHRONICLE, and don't you forget it.

Administrator's Sale of Real Estate.

Under and by virtue of a decree of sale which was rendered by the honorable probate court of Shelby County on the 12th day of January, 1901, the undersigned, as administrator of the estate of John W. Hardy, deceased, will offer for sale and proceed to sell, in the town of Calera, Shelby County, Ala., on Monday, September 20, 1897, the following-described real estate to-wit: All the stone, wood, and timber in and upon the east half of the northwest quarter and the west half of the northeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 24; and the stone, wood, and timber on the southeast fractional quarter of said section 24, excepting forty acres of the east end, formerly belonging to Hiram Butler; all in township 22 of range 3 west, situated in Shelby County, Ala., subject to the dower of Mrs. Minnie J. Hardy (now Gist) in said lands. The terms of the sale will be one-third cash and balance on a credit of one year from the date of sale, secured by note with good and sufficient sureties.

LOMAX PITTMAN, Administrator of the estate of John W. Hardy.
By JAMES E. WREN, His Attorney.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

Many intelligent women seem to have a notion that until now woman has been trampled on by the sterner sex and relegated to an inferior position, but really is this true? More than forty years ago my sainted father, whose means were small, chose to educate his daughters rather than his sons. His boys were given a high school education, while each of his girls carried a diploma from the best college within his reach. This did not look as though he considered woman inferior to man. And to-day whenever a man can not afford the best advantages to all his children, the daughters are almost invariably given the preference.

Aristotle's idea of a perfect government was for every individual to find the place for which he was fitted and to fill that position.

Was ever a little girl who did not look upon her father as the embodiment of all that was great and good? Was ever a maiden who would not reign supreme in her lover's heart rather than win all the laurels that ever crowned a mortal? Was ever a loving wife who would yield the privilege of making her home bright and happy to gain the admiration of a careless world? And can you even imagine a mother who would not infinitely prefer training her children successfully to filling every lecture platform in the known world?

These instincts were given us by our Creator for wise purposes, and sad will be the day when woman gives up the sweet quietude with which a man loves to surround his precious ones, to mingle in the noise and bustle of the world.

Instead of a mother's sphere being narrow, it is so broad, so deep, so lofty that it staggers the mind and swells the heart to think of it.

The training of an immortal soul! Can the woman entrusted with this supreme work spare a moment for things of less importance? Rather would she in holy fear bend every energy to her momentous task.

May Heaven defend our Southland from the chaos which must ensue if discontent with God's plans, as shown in nature and His word, shall ever prevail among us.

O, ye clever but unwise women, think not because ye have taste, strength and capacity for taking your place alongside of man in life's struggle, that all your sisters are thus endowed. Remember that for every one of you, there are ninety and nine who prize their birthright beyond rubies; and to whom the miserable pottage of the world is loathsome beyond measure.

All honor to the woman who, when God has taken away her stay, bravely treads the burning plowshares that pave her pathway through the world to earn life's comforts for herself and loved ones. Her noble purpose will keep her nature pure and sweet, no matter where that pathway leads.

Still, we average women recognize our limitations, and we appeal to our stronger sisters not to insist on adding to our burdens, and at the same time rob us of the real source of our strength.—MARAH.

THE above was sent to THE CHRONICLE for publication, and we have taken the liberty of placing it in our column. Our good sister has, no doubt, been kindly dealt with by Providence, as well as an estimable father. We, too, have been blessed with a most kind and indulgent father, but no matter how much education our fathers used to endow us with, until recent years only one channel of industry—that of teaching—was open to us by which we were enabled to earn a support. True, we were fitted for taking our place in the social world; we could converse fluently, play the piano, and felt we were an ornament to society, but teaching school was the only avocation through which young women or old women could earn a livelihood. Does our good sister wish to rob the young women of to-day of the many avenues of industry that are thrown open to her? If our sister will visit the homes of the progressive women of to-day, she will find the most attractive, cheerful, well-appointed homes in the country. As to those occupying the lecture platform, most of them have reared large families of children who have taken places of usefulness in the world. There are some active young women in the lecture field pushing forward the temperance cause. Does our sister wish our beautiful Southland to continue sending its daughters to the cotton patch, or to the plowstock and an ox in the cornfield? Or would she force each and every girl to the marriage altar and to rock the cradle, whether she has a suitable opportunity or feels inclined to get married or not? No; we must exact of our country an education for our girls and the opportunities of turning it to account. We beg that our young women push forward in the business spheres of life, and when the right man of the right morals comes along she will drop her business career, if expedient, and go with him. We fail to see any signs of retrograding in the matrimonial market. We do not think our country is discontent with God's plan. It is only trying to attain God's plan for womankind. Their birthright is liberty, not bondage.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

CONFEDERATE REUNION.

Called meeting of the Shelby County Association.

A called meeting of the Shelby County Confederate Veteran's Association was held here last Thursday. Not very many members were present, but a pleasant meeting was held. A resolution was adopted that the next annual meeting will be held at Wilsonville on August 15, 1898, and that at that time the members will go into camp for two or three days for the purpose of drilling and going through with the regular army exercises of the late war.

A resolution was offered by J. W. Johnston that no veteran will be allowed to participate in the reunion that deserted the Confederate cause, which was adopted.

It was ordered that the captain of each beat be furnished with a blank, and that he make a complete roster of every veteran in his beat that is in good standing; his company, age, when enlisted, when discharged, and that such rosters be forwarded to the secretary, J. H. Hammond, who will have them recorded in the probate office of this county.

The sham battle was not had as intended, on account of the smaller crowd present.

Col. W. T. Smith, the county commander, was present, and presided at the meeting.

SMITH BROS.

An Enterprising Firm of Sylacauga.

We are in receipt of a special from Smith Bros., of Sylacauga, which announces that they are particularly anxious to serve the trade of Shelby County. They desire to buy all the cotton in reach of them, and are offering the highest cash price. They have a gin in this county and will make it to the advantage of all to patronize them. They sell everything from a pin to a sawmill, and at marvelous prices. They are the special friends of the farmers, and will make it to their interest to go and see them. Car loads of freight are now standing on their special sidetrack waiting for room to unload. It will all be sold cheap.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhoea.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50-cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, Henry Steinberger, Allentown, Pa. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Read the card of L. C. Armstrong & Co., in this issue and attend their fall opening. Mrs. Armstrong does not intend that the ladies shall have to send away for what they want, and will make a special effort to please.

R. G. Weldon & Co. sell fresh groceries at surprisingly low prices for cash.

Attention is called to the big advertisement of the Columbiana Mercantile Co., of this place, in the first page. They are hustlers, and came early to get the best space. Their prices speak volumes.

R. G. Weldon & Co., of Wilsonville, have an advertisement in this issue. They are before the people this season with cheap goods of best quality, and propose to sell them. They will also pay you the best prices for cotton and cotton seed.

Professor Mynatt opened school here Monday with a large attendance. After interesting addresses to the school by Mayor Longshore, Mr. Hammond, Rev. C. W. O'Hara, and Dr. Rowe, the teachers went to work in their respective departments. The Professor brought with him here his young bride, upon which we congratulate him.

Miss Essie Mason left Tuesday for Tuscaloosa, where she goes to superintend the practice of the "Music Hall" in the Tuscaloosa Female College. Miss Mason is a young lady of superior qualities. We know one of her rare abilities will succeed in any undertaking. It will be remembered that she graduated at this college in June with high honors.

We learn that an extensive burglary was committed at Wilsonville Tuesday night. Three stores and the depot were broken into. No money of account was taken, but some goods were stolen. The plate glass front of Pope & Co's, storehouse was broken, and the cash register taken away. Nothing definite could be learned yesterday. Parties were in pursuit of the burglars.

The Children's Day exercises at the Baptist church last Sunday afternoon were interesting, and did credit to the little folks. Miss Clyde Brand, in her recitation on Sunday School Work, showed marked ability, and we predict for her a brilliant future. The "acrostic" was another highly entertaining feature, and the entire programme was much enjoyed by a large audience.

We call attention to the advertisement of J. E. Pope & Co., of Wilsonville. This enterprising firm has, perhaps, the largest stock of goods in Shelby County, and one that is well assorted. They make a specialty of keeping everything that the people need. They are making an effort to buy all the cotton in this vicinity and are offering extra inducements. It will pay anyone to look at their stock before buying.

"Let me give you a pointer," said M. F. Gregg, a popular conductor on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. "Do you know that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cures you when you have the stomach ache? Well, it does." And after giving this friendly bit of advice, the jolly conductor passed on down the aisle. It is a fact that thousands of railroad and traveling men never take a trip without a bottle of this Remedy, which is the best cure for bowel disorders in the world. 25 and 50-cent bottles for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

The protracted services at the Presbyterian church closed at noon on last Tuesday. Rev. Mr. DuBose delivered a series of interesting and impressive sermons. Two additions were made to the church; one by letter and one by profession. Every one must feel much benefited from the meetings.

Shelby Siftings.

Mrs. B. F. Mosley, of Tascos, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. John Avery.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Davis, of Goodwater, are visiting their mother, Mrs. A. R. McGiboney.

H. Robinson, a young man of Madison, Tex., is the guest of his sister, Mrs. G. H. Avery.

A protracted meeting is in progress at the Methodist church, and large congregations attend every meeting.

Miss Isla, the winsome and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Avery, left for Blount Springs Saturday morning, where she will be engaged in teaching.

Newton Smith, one of our most promising young men left Saturday for Auburn, to take up his course of studies at A. and M. College.

Shelby and Calera ball teams crossed bats Saturday on the latter's ground, which resulted in a score of 19 to 16 in our favor, the work of our battery, Harrell and Glenn.

Dr. W. A. Lovett and Miss Helen Oliver came up last Thursday evening from Columbiana to witness our play.

Joe Spencer enjoyed our play last Thursday evening.

Arnold Sturdivant brought in the first bale of cotton last Monday and sold it to Avery & Avery for 7 cents.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Avery will be pained to know that their son, Henry, is quite sick.

Misses Jessie Carter and Eloise Bell, who represented two of the most prominent characters in the play acquitted themselves with honor. Miss Jessie as Laura the Pauper played an ingenue part with spirit and vivacity, and knows how to use a rich contralto voice; and Miss Eloise as Mrs. Craft acted the role of a country woman with charming simplicity that wins the hearts of her auditors.

Our High School will open next Monday the 20th inst., tuition is reasonable and we are said to have one of the best teachers in the State. Parents who live in the country and want the children to be educated would do well to patronize the Shelby High School.

The great event of the season was a dramatic production seen at the High School building last Thursday night. "Laura the Pauper" was the largest affair of its kind ever held in Shelby and its memory will remain a joy in the mind of the people who attended. The promoters of the play wrought hard that each and every one present should have a pleasant time and their efforts were certainly appreciated judging from the sounds of joy from the participants.

The following was the cast of characters:
Laura the Pauper.....Miss Jessie Carter Aggie Farnham.....Miss Naldo Christian
Mrs. Craft.....Miss Eloise Bell
Gipsy Crane.....Miss Eloise Bell
Aunt Charity.....Clarence Abbott
Dick Langley.....Cleveland Witherby Will Spriggs.....Newton Smith
Sol Farnham.....Richard Smith
Sol Craft.....Robert Glenn Bub Craft.....Chas. Bell
Mr. Withgorn.....Arthur Carter
Peggy Pucker.....Chas. Avery
Cranky.....Lavert Christian Tony.....Robert Hall

The various promoters of the play deserve praise for their work and to them the congratulations of the citizens are due.

MAX BOXER.

Saginaw Drop Shots.

Miss Ida Ferrell left last Friday evening for a visit to friends in Clanton.

The writing school which has been in progress at Elliottsville schoolhouse near here for the last fifteen days, conducted by Prof. A. W. Horton, closed last Friday evening to the regret of many of his pupils.

Miss Willie Bird, of Calera, returned home yesterday from a short visit to relatives in our town.

Mr. Chas. Sparks, of Shelby transacted business here Friday and Saturday.

On last Thursday morning Will Cowan, a negro employee of the Saginaw Lumber Company, was struck by a piece of timber in the mill shed, dying the following morning from the injury.

It seems that the cross-tie business must be on a boom, from the number that Mr. George Armstrong delivered on the L. & N. to-day something near 1000, hauling the same over the Saginaw Lumber Company's railroad.

Rev. S. L. Dobbs presiding elder of this district was unable to be at the quarterly conference which was to convene at Bethlehem yesterday and to-day on account of sickness.

C. E. Hale transacted business in Calera last Wednesday.

Calera Cullings.

News is hard to gather when one has to work close all day and not able to get out at night.

The Methodist church has the second coat of paint, pure white with green window blinds, and presents quite a contrast to its former dingy and lifeless appearance. Rev. Herring held services there Sunday.

Services at Black's Hall Sunday by Rev. Mr. Smith, Episcopal minister.

Rev. S. L. Dobbs, presiding elder of the Tuscaloosa District, held Quarterly Conference for this charge at New Salem Monday morning.

News reached this place to the effect that Mr. John T. Wilson, in the upper end of Bibb County, had lost his large home and most of its contents by fire Saturday night last. The main dwelling, smoke and stove houses, all provisions and kitchen and contents were burned. It is not known whether he had any insurance or not.

Mr. W. W. Arnold, of Bibb, spent a few hours in Calera Monday en route to Montgomery for a visit of a couple of weeks.

Several offenders were up before his honor, Mayor Pratt, Monday morning for violations of city ordinances. The city treasury was replenished to the amount of several dollars.

Dan Ruddy, the painter, is busy with his force giving the Methodist parsonage a beautiful coat of white.

Several officials and educators have been invited, and will be present at the opening of the Calera High School on the 23d.

Several of our citizens are expecting to visit the Nashville Centennial on Alabama day.

Revs. Herring and Sessions are holding a protracted meeting at New Salem church in West Calera.

W. T. Johnson, Esq., was in the city Monday on legal business.

Our city was visited by light showers on Sunday and Monday.

Mr. Abe Stein was down from Jasper Sunday and Monday on a visit to home-folks.

We were glad to see the editor of THE CHRONICLE and his family in our town last Sunday.

Several changes in residences since our last.

I learn that the post-office at this place was robbed last night. The safe was bored into but not opened. About 45 cents was taken out of the cash drawer.

The merchants and some others of this place have set their heads for a good cotton trade this season.

Marshall Pilgreen has the street force grading and otherwise improving the city's highways.

The new postmaster will take charge Thursday we understand.

Sterrett Stirrings.

Quite a number of the young people of Sterrett attended meeting at Ebenezer church last Sunday.

Messrs. S. C. Perry and W. L. Baxley made a flying trip in the direction of Dunavon and Leeds last Saturday.

R. J. Byers, J. W. Jarrett, J. A. Stewart, and J. L. Jarrett, of this place, left here last Friday to attend the Calera Valley Baptist Association which is now in session at Ashville.

Mr. L. W. Hartsfield comes to the front with his report on cotton, giving an account of quite a number of stalks that have a fine lot of bolls. One had 100; one had 98; one had 94; one had 88, and a lot of it that ran from 75 bolls up. Who can beat this?

G. W. Biltrey and family, of Vincent, visited the family of W. H. Falkner, of this place, last Sunday.

Mrs. J. M. Walker, of this place, returned home last Sunday after a visit of some weeks to relatives in Georgia, and Etowah County, Ala.

Dr. J. J. DuBose made a hasty visit to Columbiana last Sunday, returning Monday.

Messrs. H. M. Hubbard, Colman and Cross have located here, making and selling bed springs.

Rev. Job Falkner, who has been sick for some six weeks is yet quite sick. We hope he will soon be restored to his wanted health.

We are informed that Miss Oar Kincaid, who has been in bad health for sometime is in better health now.

Mr. J. R. Falkner has been quite sick for the last few days.

Mr. Spinks made a short talk to the children, followed by Dr. Teague. The trustees were present, and also some of the patrons, and all seemed well pleased with the opening. Harpersville has not always had good schools, but expects to have better in the future, notwithstanding the opposition we have to contend with. We have no railroads to help educate our children, nor we haven't any property owners living in other towns to help either, but we have a good school and we are going to stand by it. We are expecting several pupils from abroad. We don't propose to board anybody for $5 a month, but good board can be obtained for $8 per month. Tuition is very reasonable, $2.50, 2.00, and $1.50. The board of trustees are: E. V. Caldwell, T. J. Martin, R. B. Posey, G. W. Wheller, M. W. Borum, L. J. Carden, J. W. Kidd, W. N. Moss, J. P. Rowe and B. F. Moore; of this board, T. J. Martin is chairman; R. B. Posey, secretary, and E. V. Caldwell, treasurer. Any one wishing further particulars can write to either or to the principal. The assistants will be employed later on, also a music teacher if needed. There has been considerable work done on the house and ground and new desks have been ordered. Hurrah for the Harpersville school!

Last week's issue of THE CHRONICLE was received with numerous congratulations from its many subscribers at this office, because of the agreeable changes which Editor Gist has wrought in eradicating the patent outside and substituting therefor crisp country news of interest to county people and county enterprises. Heretofore the outside sheets of THE CHRONICLE were ignored by the majority of its constituents because of its foreign makeup. Now that it is truly a county organ it is entirely worthy of the support of every bona-fide resident of Shelby.

Pat McGowan now operates the peanut toaster at J. F. Pope's.

The best and most comical program in the history of the S. P. L. League was inaugurated Friday night at the academy.

Moot Court (no burlesque on our city court if you please) was the topic of this society's work. Everything passed off smoothly notwithstanding the fact that it was our first attempt before the bar. The regular fall term of this "great, grand, high and supreme" criminal court was yelled by the court erudite. Hon. W. J. Timney, judge of this important district of Shelby, presiding. Solicitor W. W. McGowan, Ex-Minister to Shanghai Chicken Roost, was on hand and as usual, rendered valuable service to the State. Great interest was manifested in the case of the State vs. Bub Edwards, alias Jessie Iron Baby, for securing watermelons and peaches under false pretense and presenting them to the girls. Each step in the trial was warmly contested. The defense, Hon. E. Williamson, of the Fourth district of Hall Columbia, worked hard to save his prisoner, stooping so low as to picture honesty on the prisoner's brow, appealing to their sympathy and thus bringing forth a shower of tears from both judge and jury. While the jury was summoning up their written verdict we were treated to two beautiful solos by Miss Georgia Pope, the society soloist. Then Mr. R. G. Weldon, foreman of the grand jury, submitted a verdict of guilty.

The following is the detailed programme for Friday night week:

School politics were compromised Monday and Prof. C. A. Mathews and his assistant, Miss Bessie Cockerel, opened school Tuesday morning with 25 pupils. We can't hope to have a good school here this session with such existing discord. It is true that school politics are at the zenith of unpopularity, however, we can have a good school if we will give it our every support.

FIRED UPON MINERS.

TERRIBLE CLIMAX OF STRIKE SITUATION.

The Men fell like Sheep from the Fire of Sheriff Martin's Deputies.

Hazleton, Penn., September 10.—The strike situation reached a terrible crisis on the outskirts of Latimer this afternoon when a band of deputies under Sheriff Martin fired into an infuriated mob of miners. The men fell like so many sheep and the excitement since has been so great that no accurate figures of the dead and wounded can be obtained. Reports run some fifteen to twenty odd killed and forty or more wounded.

One man who reached the scene to-night counted thirteen corpses. Four of the bodies lie in the mountains between Latimer and Harleigh. Those who were not injured carried their dead and wounded friends into the woods and an estimate is baffled.

The strikers left Hazleton at 3.30 p. m., announcing their intention of going to Latimer. When this became known a band of deputies was loaded on a trolley car and went whirling across the mountain to the scene where the bloody conflict followed.

On reaching Latimer they drew up in line at the edge of the village just as the strikers appeared. Sheriff Martin went out to meet them.

The men drew up sullenly and listened in silence until he read the riot act. This finished, a low muttering arose among the foreigners and there was a slight movement forward. Perceiving this, the sheriff stepped toward them and in a determined tone forbade their advance. Some one struck the sheriff and the next moment there was a command to fire.

The guns of the deputies instantly belched forth a terrible volley. The report seemed to shake the very mountain and a cry of dismay went up from the people.

The strikers were taken entirely by surprise and as the men toppled and fell over each other those who remained unhurt stampeded. The men went down before the storm of bullets like ten pins and the groans of the dying and wounded filled the air.

The excitement that followed was simply indescribable. The deputies seemed to be terror-stricken at the deadly execution of their guns and seeing the living strikers fleeing like wild and others dropping to the earth, they went to the aid of the unfortunates whom they had brought down.

The people of Latimer rushed pell-mell to the scene, but the shrieks of the wounded drowned the cries of the sympathizers and half crazed inhabitants.

A reporter, who soon afterward reached the scene, found the road leading to Latimer filled with groups of frightened Hungarians. Some surrounded dying companions and others, fearful of pursuit, clung to the new comers and begged protection.

At Farley's Hotel, there were two men lying on the porch, both shot in the head. One had three balls in him. His groans for a drink or death were heart-rending. All along the road the wounded men who were able to leave the field of battle scattered themselves and sought the shade of the trees for protection, but there was no need of that then. Approaching the place where the shooting occurred, people were met wringing their hands and bemoaning the catastrophe. They could not talk intelligently and it was with the greatest difficulty that information could be gleaned.

Along the bank of the trolley road men lay in every posture, some dead, others dying.

Three bodies, face downward, lay along the incline, and three others were but a short distance away. On the other side of the road were as many more. The schoolhouse was transformed into a temporary hospital and some of the wounded were taken there. Along the hills the wounded were found on the green, on the roadside and in the fields. Many others who had been carried to a distance could not be found.

As soon as the news of the shooting reached Hazleton, there was consternation. Within ten minutes the streets were blocked with excited people. The Lehigh Traction Company immediately placed a number of extra cars on the Latimer line and doctors and clergymen responded promptly. The rush of people to Latimer was so great that the progress of vehicles along the road was impeded.

Amid the excitement, the deputies turned their attention to the wounded and carried many of them to places where they could be more comfortably treated.

Martin Rakowski, an intelligent Hungarian from Mount Pleasant, who was shot in the arm, was seen by a reporter and gave this version of the affair:

"We were going along the road to Latimer and the deputies were lined across the road barring our progress. We tried to go through them and did not attempt to hit or molest them, when they fired on us. We ran, but they kept on shooting at us while we ran."

BIRMINGHAM CANAL.

Survey Begins on the Waterway to the Warrior River.

[Age-Herald September 10.]

The government engineers, who are here for the purpose of surveying the canal routes from Birmingham to the Warrior river, will begin work by pitching camp to-day on Five-Mile creek.

The corps will be in charge of Chief Engineer Joseph Ripley. His assistants are Messrs. Barnes and Swift. No local men will be given a chance for any work on the corps except for cook and axeman, as the civil service regulations cover all other positions. The camp fixings and supplies are all ready to be taken out to-day.

Some time ago Chief Engineer Ripley examined the entire line from the reservoir location on Five-Mile creek to the Warrior river, and since that time he has made a re-examination from the reservoir to about twenty miles below Birmingham in company with his two assistants, in order to familiarize them with the country and the character of the surveys that will be necessary, and also to select suitable locations for camps.

The present survey will begin at the head of the present water works canal on Five-Mile creek, where it is likely a storage reservoir will be located in order to supplement the natural water supply during the dry season. Thence following somewhat the route of the present water works canal.

Five-Mile creek will be diverted into Village creek, and it is proposed to divert the waters of the two creeks through Possum valley into Valley creek.

Thence the canal will extend down Valley creek to Warrior river.

It is also likely that the same corps will survey the upper portion of Valley creek lying between Bessemer and Birmingham in order to determine whether it will be more expedient for the main canal to reach Birmingham near the western end of Third avenue or near the northern city limits at Village creek. It is probable Mr. Ripley's corps will, in addition to the above two surveys, make a survey down Valley creek by way of Warrior river to Tuscaloosa. From Tuscaloosa to the sea the government has opened up navigation.

On the report of this survey hangs the fate of the canal. The survey will probably be completed in two months.

At a national conference of negroes, called a "Race Council," held in Nashville, Tennessee, last week, Prof. W. H. Council, an Alabama representative man of the race, was the leading orator. He spoke upon the subject of lynch law, and advised that the negroes should speak out in no uncertain tones against outrages committed against the honor of women, regardless of race or color, and against lawlessness of every kind. He said:

"Tell it out so that all the world may hear—print it in heaven's blue so that he who runs may read, that the negroes of this land will frown down, cry down, hunt down and strike down this crime and these criminals, until not one shall be left in all the land, and a black face shall be a badge of truth, of peace, of protection to innocence. I know that these criminals do not form a part of our audience, congregations, schools, social gatherings, industrial communities, and yet it is our duty to seek their haunts and the influence which produce crime and criminals, and with the whip of the law and the gospel of righteousness scourge them and scourge them, until vicious idleness shall give place to virtuous, industrious intelligence, and thus purge ourselves and wash away these foul stains of dishonor from a glorious record transmitted to us by our fathers. That white men form mobs, that they disregard law, that they kill in cold blood is no excuse for our crime. Two crimes can never make one virtue. We cannot afford to apologize for crime—we cannot afford to protect or sympathize with the criminal. We can only afford to do right and fear not before God and the laws of our country."

Literary Note.

The interiors of one thousand of the most attractive homes in the United States have been photographed by The Ladies' Home Journal. One hundred of the best of these pictures will be reproduced in that magazine. The first article of the series—"Inside of a Hundred Homes"—will appear in the October Journal. Bed-chambers, reception and dining rooms, bathrooms, halls and apartments of every kind will be pictured just as they are in daily use. Each picture contains dozens of suggestions. Every woman is interested in taking a peep into the most attractive homes in the land, to see how they are furnished and arranged. She wants to get practical hints and new ideas for furnishing her own. The houses photographed by the Journal are those occupied by persons of moderate income. The interior arrangement shows what perfect taste can accomplish with a little money and the touch of a woman's deft fingers. Homes in every State in the Union—from Maine to California—were photographed for the Journal's unique and useful series.

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

This Wicked World.

[Age-Herald.]

The worst of all crimes is steadily increasing in spite of lynching; the gallows does not check murder, and the prison seems to have no terror for men who covet the property of others.
Is the world growing worse? It would seem so. The newspapers are filled with rapes, seductions, divorces, suicides, murders, robberies, defalcations, frauds, assaults and riots, and there are more of these crimes every year.

Yet the courts are hard at work, and when the law fails to punish criminals Judge Lynch frequently attends to the matter. There is something wrong. People are growing callous, indifferent and defiant. They defy the law, and go to the scaffold cracking jokes with the sheriff and his deputies. They do not seem to dread the punishment either in this world or in the next.

The truth is, the people are drifting away from the religion of Christ.
The money devil has heathenized them, and he is sometimes strongest in the cities which have the biggest churches and the greatest number of them. No improvement can be expected until some awful national calamity humbles our people and causes them to repent of their sins, and throw themselves like helpless children at the foot of the cross.

Almost anything would be welcome that would restore these people to the simple faith and orderly ways of their fathers. Unless they are checked in their mad career they will be worse than the French nation just before and during that frightful reign of terror which shocked the civilized world.

"Curfew Must Not Ring To-night."

We have all read the beautiful poem, "Curfew Shall not Ring Tonight" and admired it; but how many of us know that it was written by a plain, country school girl, seventeen years of age? It was suggested to the author, Rose Hartwick Thorpe, by the reading in 1867 of a story called "Love and Loyalty." At this time her home was at Litchfield, Michigan.
Her parents objected to her wasting her time in idle dreams as they termed it, consequently under the pretext of solving problems, with her arithmetic before her, the poem was written hastily upon her slate, but she spent much time in correcting and revising it. It was first published in 1870 in the Detroit Commercial Advertiser, but was given to the public with no rights reserved, and while it made a fortune for others, it brought to the author only a wide circle of admiring friends.—Ex.

Every honest man who is in favor of white supremacy would support the bill restricting franchise to those only who could read and write. If a man twenty-one years old has not manhood enough to spend a month learning to read, he certainly has not interest enough in the welfare of his country to cast an intelligent ballot.
Make education a test, and you will do more toward advancing the intelligence and safety of your State than the equipping of a thousand school rooms. Give us the pure, unadulterated Australian ballot system where if a man hasn't sense enough to make out his own ticket correctly he hasn't sense enough to vote. Every live freeman then would learn how, and in so doing would take the steps that always lead him to a higher state of civilization and intelligence; for having once learned to read he would not be satisfied until he learned more and became an intelligent citizen.—News-Reporter.

We are told that cleanliness is next to Godliness and that dirt and religion are positive enemies; but we find many people that dress neatly and keep a clean house, who are very neg-lectful of the body. It may not be necessary in order to keep clean to take a bath every day, but those who indulge in a daily bath will never be dirty, and one is not only refreshed and rested but the skin will have a healthy, firm appearance. A cold plunge is very invigorating, but it is not to be compared to a good scrubbing in soft, warm water, with a brush and good soap. For actual cleansing purposes, warm water is necessary and the person who wishes to be clean must use it. The shock of cold water application closes the pores and they will retain all the impurities that they should throw off.

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana, Ala., as second class matter.

WHAT do they care for a reckoning or anything else? Give them free silver and the State and the Party may all go the way Ward's ducks went, for all they care.—Advertiser.

If we got gold we wouldn't bolt the party like you did, brother. It strikes us you are not in a very good position to throw stones.

MUCH space is wasted in discussing lynching. It is a question of doing in all sections, and it is useless to talk about it. We don't care a rap what the Northern papers say about our lynching, and we have nothing to say about theirs.

THE CHRONICLE has already announced its favor of the proposition to eliminate national issues from the State campaign next year. It does so because we have issues of local importance that should be settled on their merits. We need better educational facilities, better election laws, and other things. The way to get them is to make them an issue and not allow them overshadowed by questions that can not be settled in a State campaign at this time.

MANY plans are being suggested for uniting and harmonizing the Democrats in this State the coming year. It is an exceedingly simple question. There is naught but for those who deserted the party in the last campaign to come quietly back and take their places in line again. Only a small percentage of the party is disaffected; it is very easy for them to drop back where they left off, begin over again and stay straight. All this figuring as to what ought to be done to conciliate them is very much out of place. The door is wide open; they can come in if they choose. Mahomet can come to the mountain much easier than the mountain can go to Mahomet.

COTTON is gradually but surely dropping in price. There is no reason why it should not do so. The supply is exhausted, but it has been made into goods that are unsold. These will be offered before any more are made. There is consequently no demand for the present crop. Until the present supply of goods is exhausted, which will be long after this crop is sold, there will be no demand for more cotton. The only good thing for the farmer is that he will have more left out of this crop because he has bought less. The general conditions can not materially and substantially change for the better until there is a change in the financial system.

WHEN the great number of people broke away from the Democratic party some years ago and went into the Populist party after its false doctrines, there was no proposition to conciliate them, or to concede them anything to bring them back. They went out of their own free will, and fell in with policies that the majority of the Democrats did not favor. There was no principle involved except the one of complete acquiescence in the will of the majority, which they violated. Those who deserted the party last year violated the same principle, and that was the only principle involved. The financial question is a mere policy, upon which Democrats disagree, the majority of them taking the silver side. Those who refused to support it only showed their inability to discern between the policies of the party and its principles, and in refusing to support one of its policies violated one of its first principles. Many placed themselves out; they can come back the same way.

THE Advertiser, quoting from an interview of Governor Johnston in the Age-Herald in 1892, gives the following extract, referring to the President's message recommending the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law:

The people asked Mr. Cleveland for bread—he has given them a stone.  I can forgive the President many things for his stand on the tariff and for the rights of the States, but to say that his message is a cruel disappointment, and that if Congress follows his advice, it will result in closing more banks, shutting down all factories and bringing want to millions of fireless is to speak the truth as it appears to me.

Will anyone say that this is not a prophecy, and that it has not been fulfilled? The direct result of the repeal of that law was the very conditions portrayed in the above paragraph. The repeal of that purchasing clause, without the provision of a remedy, was the first cause of an era of almost abject misery in all circles. This is a fact that cannot be denied. The remedy is apt to come in the provision for a freer and more inexhaustive currency than the repeal of that law left the country with.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

TO THE SERENADERS.

What soft, melodious notes are these That float upon the gentle breeze? How distant and again more near, They fall so sweetly on our ear. Like notes by scarp fingers played— 'Tis sure an evening serenade. The moon seems gently sailing through The star gemmed vault of azure hue, While vale and mountain height Is bathed in floods of silvery light. The birds sit hushed on every bough, And silence holds her vigils now, And all is still in earth and air. As if they all had paused to hear The sounds by these musicians made In this our evening serenade. We listened to the flute so soft and low, As with the guitar it mingled sweet, And the mandoline with its glittering strings Reached back the lovely strain. Then soft and low the sweet sounds fade Of this our evening serenade.

For the personal interest we feel for the comfort of our lady friends we call especial attention to the Viau corset "ad." They make all styles and grades, and give the greatest comfort and best figure of any corset on the market. Try one and you will never want to wear any other make.

The mothers of Anniston have taken steps in the right direction. The Hot Blast says:

A new department has been added to Noble Institute at the earnest solicitation of the mothers of Anniston—the kindergarten. Mrs. Walsh, who has studied the theory of kindergarten in Washington, D. C., for several years, will lead the little ones in their happy work and play. She is a teacher of ability, and a woman of sunny disposition and fine traits of character.

Rev. H. M. Millstead occupied the pulpit at the Methodist church last Sunday evening, instead of Rev. Wilson. He preached a very impressive sermon, and we dare say that none of the audience went to sleep during the services. We like Brother Millstead very much. He thinks a man without a wife is a very poor excuse in this world. We are a strong believer in womankind ourselves.

The Longstreet-Dorch marriage has been aired and discussed so much we don't feel disposed to add much comment. We agree with the New Decatur Advertiser, that such marriages ought to be prohibited by law, even if, as the Age-Herald suggests, it does not spring the question, "when is a man too old to get married?" We would suggest never, provided he will marry a woman very nearly his own age.

If we lived in a place where women's clubs existed, we would certainly heartily endorse the following plans for rooms, as suggested by "Ball" of the Age-Herald:

Rooms in which every woman's club of Birmingham could meet can be easily secured at small expense, which could be prorated among the various organizations using the rooms. If such quarters were secured, the literary clubs, Treble Clef club, Daughters of the Revolution, Daughters of the Confederacy, and any other women's organization, could use them without clashing one with the other. By selecting different days and hours, the matter could be easily arranged. The club-rooms could be made homelike and attractive, with papers, periodicals, and a piano and it would prove a very popular meeting place for Birmingham women. These quarters would also afford a suitable place for readings and lectures from distinguished women, who might be invited to the city. The procuring of such rooms by the local Federation of Women's clubs, would be the first great step towards the progressive methods now found so helpful in other cities. With this arrangement once in operation, the most skeptical and conservative would be delighted with the result.

We do not intend to discuss the threadbare question of woman's right to do any kind of work; but we do say that the Woman's building at the Tennessee Centennial is a monument to woman's ability to do well what she does undertake. Considered as a whole, in all its arrangements and appointments, it seems to be as nearly perfect as it is possible for such a thing to be. The very best artistic talent in the nation has been employed in its decoration, and the whole nation has been ransacked for treasures with which to enrich it; and, while the various States, counties and cities have been employed in the preparation of their special exhibit, the Woman's Board in the city, with Mrs. Van Leer Kirkman as its president, has held the reins of the entire undertaking.—Youths Advocate.

VIAU'S CORSETS.

LONG WASTED NO PADDING. These corsets give a perfect curve to the form, there being no pressure on the chest, as the spring holds the corset in a natural way without any padding. We also make corsets for stout ladies with outside belt that comes over corset from the back to lower part of the abdomen, so that one may lace as much as required. For delicate ladies we have a French Batiste corset with bones as light in weight as 7 ounces.

Home Chat.

Our public schools which in a few weeks will reopen, should receive personal attention from the parents, who should strive to understand the position of teacher. "No time" is no plausible excuse; we should make time to attend to a matter that concerns so closely the health, the moral and mental training of our children. It is of the greatest importance that parents visit the school, that they may become acquainted with the teacher and observe the surroundings of the children during school hours. Let the teacher feel that you are her friend and will cooperate with her. Invite her to your home and thus allow her to learn something of the home life of her pupils and of the influence that exists there. Such a knowledge will help a teacher in the proper guidance of the pupil during school hours. Some of our very brightest women are public school teachers; and parents will also enjoy coming in contact with them; the teacher will also enjoy a bit of domestic cheer, and will do better work because she understands the desire of the parents, and the peculiar traits of the children. Affairs are always coming up in the schoolroom that parents do not understand; if we are acquainted with the teacher and she visits our home, all these will be explained and the results will be highly beneficial to the children.—Exchange.

At the close of 1896 there were in the United States, according to Poor's Manual, 182,000 miles of railroad, an increase of 1,687 miles over 1895. The capital stock of our immense railway system was $5,290,730,567; the funded debt, $5,416,074,969; unfunded debt, $339,502,302; current debt, $535,853,808, the total liabilities being $11,968,544,086. The passenger mileage was 13,054,840,243 miles; the freight mileage 93,885,853,634 miles. Earnings were, from passengers, $265,313,258; from freight, $770,424,013; from other sources, $80,894,754. Deducting operating expenses the net earnings are found to have been $332,333,756 and total revenue receipts $430,341,198.

The average receipts per passenger per mile were 2.03 cents; the average distance travelled by each passenger 24.4 miles, and the average number of passengers carried to each mile of road was 38.66. The funded indebtedness of the railroads decreased, in consequence of reorganizations, as much as $179,083,969, or 3.17 per cent. Share capital for like reason, in part increased 3.7 per cent. The average cost of roads per mile, as measured by stocks and bonds, was $59,732, or $456 less than in 1892. Net earnings were 3.23 per cent better in 1896 than in the previous year, though earnings per ton per mile were 2.15 per cent less. The tonnage moved and the number of passengers carried were appreciably greater than in 1895, the increase of the former being 6 per cent; of the latter 3.46 per cent. Over 88 per cent of our railway mileage is now in steel rails.

The manual shows that the new railway construction in the South during 1896 was greater than in any part of the country. The increase in railway building in the South since 1870 has been phenomenal. It was never equaled in any region of equal extent in an equal period and is all the more remarkable that this development should have taken place in a section so recently devastated by war.

The total railroad mileage of the South in 1870 was only 14,735. By the end of 1896 it had risen to the enormous figures of 67,279. The prospects of railway construction in the South for the next year or two are fine and the condition, both financial and physical, of the railroads in this section, has been much improved during the past year.

Trustee's Sale.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a trust deed made by William Prentice and his wife, Dolly Prentice, as parties of the first part, to Jerry W. Goldsmith, Trustee, as party of the second part, and the Atlanta National Building & Loan Association as party of the third part, on the 13th day of October, 1896, which is recorded in mortgage book 27, page 516, in the office of the probate judge of Shelby County, Alabama, said Trustee will proceed to sell in front of the court house door of said county at public auction to the highest bidder for cash on Monday, October 25th, 1897, the following described property to-wit:

That certain lot or parcel of land situate in the County of Shelby and State of Alabama, and described as follows: All of Lot No. thirty-four (34) in the town of Montevallo, according to the plan of said town, (except eighty (80) feet of the northwest end thereof fronting on Main Street). The said part hereby conveyed being more particularly described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of said lot No. 34 thirty-four (34) feet on the east line to the intersection thence northwest along Vine Street to a point distant eighty (80) feet southeast from Main Street, thence across said lot at right angles to Vine to the line between lots thirty-four (34) and thirty-five (35), thence along said line to Island Street, and thence northeast along said Island Street to the beginning corner the said part of said lot being seventy-five feet in width and two hundred and sixteen feet in length, more or less.

Said foreclosure will be made by said Trustee at the request of the said Atlanta National Building & Loan Association, as provided in said deed of trust, on account of default made by the grantors in said deed of trust in the performance of the conditions therein contained.

JERRY W. GOLDSMITH, Trustee. The Atlanta National Building & Loan Association. CANNISS & WEARLEY, Attorneys. Birmingham, Ala.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhoea.

In 1882, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 16th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50-cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, Henry Steinberger, Allentown, Pa. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Circuit court is in session. Judge Brewer did not arrive until Monday afternoon, but got down to business at once. Solicitor Wilson is working with the grand jury, and business is progressing.

"Let me give you a pointer," said Miss Gregg, a popular conductor on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. "Do you know that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cures you when you have the stomach ache? Well, it does." And after giving this friendly bit of advice, the jolly conductor passed on down the aisle. It is a fact that thousands of railroad and traveling men never take a trip without a bottle of this Remedy, which is the best cure for bowel disorders in the world. 25 and 50-cent bottles for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

I take pleasure in announcing to the people of Wilsonville and vicinity that, commencing on Monday, October 4, I will practice at Wilsonville for one week only. Bridge work, gold and Logan crowns, best sets of teeth, gold and other fillings at reasonable rates. Teeth inserted without plates. Children's teeth regulated. Teeth extracted positively without pain. No bad after effects. All work the best known to the dental profession, and fully warranted. Respectfully, Dr. G. W. SHACKELFORD, D. D. S.

Chancery court was in session last week for three days. Judge Dowdell presiding. There was a large docket, and though the business was dispatched with rapidity it was not all disposed of.

Sterrett Stirrings.

R. F. Falkner, of Leeds, came over last Saturday visiting relatives, returning home Monday.

Maj. J. L. Walthall, of Birmingham, spent last Friday, buying cotton. Come again Major. You will have to bid up on cotton or some one else will get it.

Joel Falkner is running the gin at this place, and is making a good turn out of lint, and a good sample.

We are sorry to learn of the serious illness of Mr. Melvin Dyke, who had a very sudden attack of pneumonia and is said to be in a dangerous condition.

R. M. Harris's little girl, Ida, is still very low, and but little hope is entertained for her recovery.

Professors W. Weldon, of Weldon, and J. M. Garrett, of Eden, will sing at the church, at this place next Sunday.

J. A. Kincaid, A. J. Richey and H. Co-shatt, of this beat, are attending court week as jurors.

J. J. Falkner and family, of this place, visited his brothers, W. J. and H. J. Falkner, at Pleasant Valley, last Saturday and Sunday.

We Want Agents.

THE CHRONICLE desires an agent at every post-office in the county—one who will send the local news and increase the subscription list. To anyone who will act in this capacity we offer 10 per cent for collections and 25 per cent for new subscribers. We shall be glad to hear from those who have the time and inclination to do this work, which, with the proper effort, ought to be reasonably profitable. Write for the present list at your office, from which to make collections, see that all your neighbors have an opportunity of subscribing. Send us the news, and we will all be benefited by a small effort.

CASTORIA.

The face-skin cleanser of Castoria is on every wrapper.

Shelby Siftings.

The dry weather continues in this section and the health of this place has not been very good.

Mrs. A. T. Clark, who for several weeks has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. G. W. Warner, at Chattanooga, returned home last Monday to the delight of her many friends.

John Mosley, a popular druggist of Hamilton, and former citizen of Shelby, is in the city visiting relatives and friends. We are very glad to welcome him.

Mrs. Chas. E. Fort, accompanied by her little son of Bridges, who has been visiting the family of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bell, returned to her home last Tuesday.

Miss Naldo Christian has been tendered and accepted the office of treasurer of the Epworth League to fill the vacancy occasioned by the absence of Miss Flossie Kifer.

Miss Naldo Christian has been tendered and accepted the office of treasurer of the Epworth League to fill the vacancy occasioned by the absence of Miss Flossie Kifer.

Mrs. T. M. Wilson and little son, of Columbiana, visited friends and attended our meeting last Wednesday.

Quite a number of the young people of Columbiana, attended the divine service here last Wednesday evening, among whom were Joe Roberts and Miss Nellie Parker; J. E. Seale and Miss Anna Milner and Misses Sadie Williams and Minnie Hubbard.

The friends of Mr. W. R. Craig and wife will sympathize with them in the very critical sickness of their two children.

Capt. W. H. Bell, who was very ill last week is able to be out now; we all rejoice at the prospect of his speedy recovery.

L. E. Christian transacted business in Hamilton, returned home last Sunday accompanied by his brother, Roy; who is employed at Birmingham Machine and Foundry Company; and by their friend and schoolmate, W. B. Stokes. Mr. Stokes left Monday for Auburn to complete his studies at A. and M. College.

Our High School opened last Monday with Miss Agnes Averyt as principal. The school opened with a much larger attendance than expected. Miss Agnes is in every way competent and we wish her much success.

J. M. McLane came up from Saginaw last Sunday to see his family, returning Monday. It is uncertain when the furnace here will resume; but it is hoped that it may go in blast this fall.

Quite a number of young people were present last Thursday evening at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Averyt. The evening was spent in pleasant converse. Some delightful music was rendered by Miss Maude Clark, and magnificent singing by Miss Lucia Witherby. Miss Averyt favored the audience with a few of her choice selections, which were greatly enjoyed. Rev. T. Wilson and Mr. H. E. Wheeler, of Birmingham, were among the number present. All wended their way homeward after having spent a very pleasant evening.

A gracious revival meeting which has been in session at the Methodist church for six days closed last Friday night. Rev. T. M. Wilson, the pastor, assisted by H. E. Wheeler, a very promising young man of Birmingham, who did most excellent preaching and labored earnestly for the cause of Christ. His language is good, chaste and plain. He has given the people the gospel in its simplicity; nothing at all sensational. The church was most wonderfully revived; two conversions were made to the church; both by profession. Dr. H. E. Wheeler left us Saturday for his home in Birmingham. He carried with him the love of our people. We thank our pastor, Rev. Wilson, for bringing with him Brother Wheeler, and praise the Lord for the mighty work He has wrought in our community.

AMERS.

Items from Creswell.

Little Miss Jessie Coleman returned from Jackson's Gap Sunday, where she had been visiting her sister and family for sometime.

There is some sickness throughout the community. T. L. Bates has had a very sick baby that has not been expected to live for several days, but we are glad to note it is improving some.

J. H. Cosper, B. F. Bates and G. S. Glazener were delegates to the Coosa River Baptist Association held at Sycamore last Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The bridge gang is located at this place repairing the trestle over Locust creek.

H. M. Judge came down from Sulphur Springs Monday to spend some time with his father and friends here.

J. F. and Miss Jennie Bates attended the Association at Sycamore last Friday to Sunday.

Miss Willie Lipsey returned home from Sylacauga Sunday, after spending several days with relatives and friends there.

The blind boys, W. N. and J. A. Darlin, returned home from Fayetteville Monday, where they had been visiting a few days.

Professor Williamson was in the community last week looking after a school. All are favorably impressed with him and the probability is he will teach for us another term.

Dr. A. J. Massey was down from Avondale last Monday doing dentistry work.

We have had plenty of drummers, cotton and cotton seed men with us last week and this.

G. W. and J. M. Wallis went over to Sycamore Sunday to take in the remains of the association.

E. M. Douglas and two little boys, Wilson and Eugene, were over from Sylacauga a short while last week.

Mrs. G. W. Butts is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Lybrand, at Cobb this week.

A team known as the Mt. Taber team is expected to cross bats with the team here next Saturday. The Blue Springs team will also probably play a game here.

Rev. J. A. Butts, of Childersburg, has been called to serve the church here another year, and will preach at 11 o'clock next Sunday.

J. H. Green returned from Ellsville.

Miss, a few days ago and joins his wife and baby here; their old home. We are glad to know they will locate here in future, and extend them a hearty welcome.

E. E. Wallis, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. G. W. Wallis, sr., is visiting relatives and friends about Sycamore and Talladega this week.

S. K. Cross had the misfortune to lose his entire dwelling to use and all its contents by fire Monday. The news has just reached us and we can not give any particulars. We learn the family was away from home.

CHOCTAW.

Montevallo Murmurs.

Last Saturday the millshed of the Montevallo Sash, Blind & Door Factory was thrown down, through the carelessness of one of the men who let a log roll down a high embankment and knock down one of the corner posts. Fortunately, no one was injured, and but little damage was done to the machinery.

On Saturday night, the 11th instant, the smokehouse of J. T. Wilson, who lives five miles south of Montevallo, was found to be on fire, and was found to be past saving. From this the fire reached out and set fire to his residence, which in a very short time was consumed. We are glad to state that all of the furniture was saved, but in a damaged condition.

Mr. Shivers, of Gallion, has leased the Magnolia Hotel, and will move to our town. H. S. Latium has rented the Clayton place and will move into it as soon as necessary repairs are made.

The Montevallo News, a home enterprise, owned and edited by Clifton Newton, made its appearance on time last week.

James Ozley has rented the house formerly occupied by Rev. M. P. Reynolds, on Valley Street.

A man by the name of Fogg, but whose proper name is Hogg, jumped a board bill in our town last week, beating Mrs. Davidson out of $6.50. He claims to be a painter from Tennessee. Anyone who knows his whereabouts and will write Mrs. Davidson, will confer a favor upon her. If caught and brought back to Montevallo we will undertake to guarantee that he won't undertake another such act in Shelby County.

Several gentlemen and three lawyers left our town Monday morning to attend circuit court at Columbiana. Hope that you will instruct your night watchman to keep them straight. One of the lawyers is an expert potato raiser, and we fear that unless a strict watch is kept on him he will try to raise some while in your city (at night).

The Shelby County Bank hung open its doors for business last Saturday. It is an up-to-date institution and means strictly business.

The new school building for the Industrial School, and the steam heating and water supply for the dormitory are about completed, and will be ready for use some time before the school opens. The accommodations as to board and convenience will far surpass last year. The attendance this year will be about 500 girls.

T. W. Rogan's house is under course of construction.

Mr. D. C. Savage, of Maplesville, will occupy the Williams residence.

Burr Nabors is building a nice residence on McMath Hill, near town.

Mrs. H. E. Reynolds, of Blocton, passed through the town Monday on a visit to relatives in Gadsden.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Oscar Tinney has returned from Randolph, where he has been serving as relief operator for the past two months.

A. P. Bradley stopped off the train Friday in return from a month's visit to Wisconsin relatives.

Messrs. James and Jap Ray left Tuesday for Hot Springs, Ark., where they expect to get the rheumatism boiled out of their system.

The Methodist meeting closed Friday night with 11 accessions to the church.

Mrs. Monteith, of Atlanta, is the guest of Major Wallace and family.

John Weldon was in Sylacauga three days last week.

C. N. Arnold, of Jacksonville, is working with J. F. Pope & Co.

Mrs. D. N. McGowan, of Oxmoor, is visiting her parents as a refugee from the Birmingham smallpox and yellow fever.

Will Teague, a popular young conductor in "the land of flowers," arrived Thursday for a short visit among friends and relatives. We learn from reliable source that Will is soon to pluck from our garden one of its beautiful rosebuds, and transplant it in Florida.

Representatives of the Baptist church in the Coosa river association were: Messrs. J. F. Pope, P. T. Ray, G. W. Taylor, Henry Jackson, T. V. Neal, and Misses Cora Smith, Georgia Pope and Rosa Wallace.

The S. P. L. league meets Friday night. Come out and be wisely or otherwise entertained.

Rev. S. J. Parish left Sunday afternoon for south Alabama to assist in protracted meetings.

Tuesday night, between the hours of 12 and 4 o'clock, while the peaceable, law-abiding citizens of Wilsonville were bathing their minds in the refreshing elements of slumber, burglars were hastily dispatching their hellish work forcing entrance into three stores, the post-office and depot.

The public supposition is current that the store of R. G. Weldon & Co., was first entered, where they partook of a midnight lunch, consisting of salmon, sardines, and mackerel. In taking their exit they took a pistol. After clothing the inner man they repaired to J. L. Ray's commissary and plundered his stock of sables, searching for winter footwear, but as they failed to find the proper styles and prices to suit their fastidious nature, they decided to let Mr. Ray off by taking a cheap hat. "We must write to our folks and tell them of our successful robbery," was the echoes that whispered in the darkness. So they proceeded to march to the post-office. They scattered the letters pell-mell over the house, but took nothing from Uncle Sam. Now they are almost persuaded to take their departure, in evidence of which they break into the depot for the purpose of making out their own tickets, with "lay-overs" and changes to suit their convenience. However, they were disappointed in not finding any bundle with which to complete their mission.

With one accord they agree to play finale on J. F. Pope & Co.; so they resume their quiet march to Pope's store. Their entrance was made by fracturing the large panel glass in the front door. Soon as they turned themselves loose upon this large stock of goods they were no doubt bewildered; they were in the meantime behooved to act quickly, lest darkness give way to light. A plow was anchored in the combination cigar showcase; consequently they helped themselves to smoking material.

Next they sat in the private office to do a cash business. They ran across a box containing $4.10 in nickles and dimes. They gave themselves credit for this small chink. Before leaving they prized the till drawer from the dry goods counter, but found no cash. They are next attracted to the cash register, congratulating themselves that it contained "nooney, marbles and chalk."

They were impatient to know how many thousand dollars this register contained, so picking it up they bid Wilsonville adieu. When it is opened they are disappointed in finding nothing but marbles. They made their escape in the direction of Columbiana. The alarm was given at sunrise, and by seven o'clock dogs were on the scene, but being sick could not track the thieves. Their damage was of small consequence, yet we hope they will be caught and punished to the full extent of the law.

Harpersville Echoes.

The cold wave is here. Our town is on a boom.

Porter Bradley, of Selma, visited his father's family last week.

My item last week concerning the school should have read, "Harpersville has most always had good schools." To err is humane.

Rev. J. F. Parker and J. F. McGraw attended the Coosa River Association at Sycamore last week.

Mr. Ed. Stone, of Talladega, spent several days of last week here putting down Burum's gin machinery.

Tobe Williamson had the misfortune to lose 50 gallons of molasses by leaking from his barrel one night last week.

Mr. Will Teague, of Ft. Augustine, Fla., is visiting his sister, Mrs. Dr. Nelson.

Miss Meeda Kidd visited Birmingham relatives last week.

Miss Jennie Wallace is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. R. Beavers, at Columbiana this week.

Rev. Mr. Clotfelter, the Presbyterian minister filled his regular appointment here last Sunday evening, and this was his last appointment as he leaves this week for the Seminary in Tennessee. He will be succeeded here by Rev. Mr. Sinnott, of Columbiana. Mr. Clotfelter came here in May a perfect stranger to us all, but by his godly walk and conversation he has made many friends who wish him much success wherever he may go.

Many thanks to the serenaders last Wednesday night. Their singing was splendid and we hope that they will come again and stay longer.

Rev. Mr. Giles filled his regular appointment at the Baptist church Saturday and Sunday last, preaching good sermons on both occasions. His appointment on Saturday has been changed back to 11 o'clock.

Misses Ola and Lillie Parker returned home Monday from a week's visit to relatives at Talladega Springs.

There is a considerable amount of sickness in our community, mostly chills and fever.

Cotton is being gathered very fast and the crop will be short; but the price is shorter, and in fact it does seem to us that the farmers will have to quit raising it.

McKinley's little 1 by 8 politicians, who were barking around last fall that if he was elected that cotton would be worth 9 and 10 cents this fall, are beginning now to see that McKinley is not in the cotton buying business at all, but is busy issuing out offices to Boltercats, Populites, and Republicans, all alike, and these people charge so much that it is a wonder to me that they don't have to bite themselves occasionally to see, if they are the same, as you know these are changeable times.

JAXE.

If the children come to the table with no appetite do not compel them to eat; and in discouragement of wasteful habits do not insist that they eat all upon their plates. Think how you would like to be compelled to eat when you had no appetite and how would you like to eat more than you really want because it is upon your plate? It is revolting for anyone to eat when food is not wanted, and to compel a child to take food is cruel.

MINISTER ASKS INJUNCTION.

Dr Dickinson Doesn't Like Ruling as to Girl's Industrial School.

Selma, Ala., Sept. 21.—Special.—
Dr. A. J. Dickinson, pastor of the First Baptist church and who is spoken of for governor, today notified State Auditor White that he will be enjoined from turning over any of the state funds to the Girl's Industrial School at Montevallo on the grounds that section two of the act creating the school had been disregarded.

As he construes the section it provides for free scholarship and free board under certain conditions and requires all other pupils to pay tuition. He says that no tuition has been charged any pupil. The School had 250 pupils the first year and this the second year, about 600 have applied so far.

Dr. Dickinson, who is a trustee of the Judson Institute for young ladies, claims that the Industrial school as run will ruin the business of private and denominational colleges.

His institute opened today with the largest enrollment for many years.
The Girls' Industrial school is extremely popular and the question raised will interest the entire State.

SCIENCE UTILIZES ALL THE OX.

Every Particle Put to Use; Only its Dying Breath Lost.

In an article on the "Wonders of the World's Waste," William George Jordan, in the October Ladies' Home Journal, details how science at the present day utilized the ox. "Not many years ago," he says, "when an ox was slaughtered 40 per cent of the animal was wasted; at the present time nothing is lost but its dying breath." As but one-third of the weight of the animal consists of products that can be eaten, the question of utilizing the waste is a serious one.
The blood is used in refining sugar and in sizing paper, or manufacturing into door-knobs and buttons. The hide goes to the tanner; horns and hoofs are transformed into combs and buttons; thigh-bones, worth $30 per ton, are cut into handles for clothes-brushes; fore-leg bones sell for $30 per ton for collar buttons, parasol handles and jewelry; the water in which bones are boiled is reduced to glue; the dust from sawing the bones is food for cattle and poultry; the smallest bones are made into bone-black. Each foot yields a quarter of a pint of neat's-foot oil; the tail goes to the "soup;" while the brush of hair at the end of the tail is sold to the mattress-maker. The choicer parts of the fat makes the basis of butterine; the intestines are used for sausage casings or bought by goli beaters.
The undigested food in the stomach, which formerly cost the packers of Chicago $20,000 a year to remove and destroy, is now made into paper.
These are but a few of the products of abattoirs. All scraps unfit for any other use find welcome in the glue-pot, or they do missionary work for farmers by acting as fertilizers."

Two Spanish Hells.

[Age-Herald.]

The Spanish penal colonies, Ceuta, and Fernando Po, on the west coast of Africa, are described as places about as disagreeable and full of torment as the infernal regions. Fernando Po is an island, and is even worse than Ceuta. In both places the heat is intense, and the deadly African fever is always reaching out for victims.

The prisoners are literally tortured to death by the heat, mosquitoes, flies, venomous reptiles and various plagues. The guards manage to keep up and about by filling themselves full of brandy and quinine, but they do not live very long. It is said that the pretty Senorita Cisneros will be sent to one of these hells by General Weyler. The talk of the Spaniards about clemency in her case is believed to be only to deceive the outside world.

Before anybody knows it, outside of official circles in Cuba, the unfortunate girl will be landed at Ceuta or Fernando Po, where she will be put to work with a crowd of malefactors.
She will be at the mercy of the brutal guards, and her death will be only a question of time. It is a disgrace to this country to permit Spain to wage her savage warfare upon women and children upon an island almost in sight of our shores. If Mr.
McKinley will not interfere, Congress should early in the session recognize the independence of Cuba.
Let us be as kind to this struggling Republic as France was to the colonies in the days of '76.

THE WAY WE LOOK AT IT.

Elsewhere will be found an editorial from the Advertiser in regard to our suggestion of the situation the bolters are in. The Advertiser attempts to make a distinction between bolting a national ticket and a State ticket, claiming that the fact that they supported the State ticket gives them the right to be regarded as good Democrats notwithstanding the fact that they bolted the national ticket. We may be permitted to remind the Advertiser that it was not always so lenient; that there has been a time when it was much stricter in its construction of party law. As a matter of fact they who bolted the national ticket rebelled against the action of the very State convention which they claim to have supported, and that they were as much bound to support the national ticket and platform as any other action of their party. This has been the settled law of the party, and we have a distinct recollection that the Advertiser has hitherto wielded the party lash on this line. As a matter of good policy, however, we believe that the party should at all times admit to its councils all persons who signify their intention of falling in with its methods and who are believed to be sincere in their desires. Should they prove untrue they are hurt more than the party.

The Advertiser is not sincere. It raises a howl because the State organization made a liberal invitation to converts last year, but objects to being regarded as a deserter itself. It has much to say about the driving out programme. The men who refused to support the national ticket deliberately went out of the party, having rebelled as clearly against the State platform as the national. There is no such thing as anti-silver Democrats, so far as the organization is concerned. The organization has declared for silver; the silver question is a mere policy; the organization is perfectly intact. A few people have set up their views against those of a large majority; by their action they have placed themselves out of line. They have nothing to do but to come back in the regular way. When the Advertiser speaks of short-sighted and shallow-brained leaders it is only following the lead of disgruntled bolters whom it has been wont to call sore-heads heretofore. Its contention is that a few of its kind are the only ones who have any conception of truth or right. It sets itself up as the only capable leader of the party; its position leads to the theory that the great majority of Democrats are fools and it only wise.

There is no objection to these people staying in the party if they think they are in it; there is no disposition to read anybody out of the party. The only objection is to having those who have proven false to the party dictate to it the policy it should pursue. The leaders are not so shallow-brained as to step aside and let the Advertiser and its followers assume the censorship after having bolted the action of the highest tribunal of the party. Let the Advertiser announce its loyalty to the party if it chooses; but let it prove it by following where others lead. If it can not follow it will make a poor leader and a dangerous one; if it considers itself the only competent leader, the one immaculate and infallible, it had best remain where it is, at the head of a small coterie of would-be leaders.

Let the Advertiser prove its position in the party by supporting its actions, not by flaunting its desire to rule. We are pretty well supplied with generals; we want some corporals. THE CHRONICLE would be delighted to carry the colors alongside the Advertiser, and if it will display its patriotism by obedience we will promise to not even twit it with having been reduced in rank.

COTTON was 54 cents yesterday. No comment necessary.

CANDIDATES are being announced and announcing themselves already for the coming campaign. We think it is too early, and shall make no pledges yet.

THERE is a tariff on goods imported into this country, but none on the pauper labor which the tariff barons bring here to compete with the laborers of the United States.—Peoples' Advocate.

And yet the Populists of this State fused with the party that had for its sole purpose the passage of a tariff bill, and the Populists of this district nominated a high-tariff Republican for Congress. Brother, you have no right to complain at anything that party does. You helped to put them in power and you are a participator in their crime, an accessory before the fact; stand up like a man and take what they give you.

AN EDUCATIONAL QUALIFICATION.

In another column will be found an editorial from THE CHRONICLE, in regard to the suffrage question. We copy the article in full in order that the voters of Shelby County may know how the Democratic party of this county stands on this most important question; and one that strikes at the very foundation of liberty. It is in effect a declaration in favor of class rule, because a large part of the people have no educational advantages to offer their children, those at a distance from any town or village, in sparsely settled communities, and it is impossible for them to educate their children. This class of voters, the Democratic party would, if it had the power, deprive of the right to vote. This strikes at the fundamental principles of republican institutions, and if carried to its logical conclusion would destroy representative government.—Peoples' Advocate.

We are obliged to the Advocate for publishing our article in full. We hope that all of the Advocate readers, and we know some of them, will be able to see the meaning of that article much more clearly than the Advocate will admit that it sees it. We are much more pleased to have our article copied for the perusal of intelligent readers than to have its meaning garbled by an editor who attempts to mislead in his quotations.

Replying to the above criticism we again deny that our article, or any of them, shows how the Democratic party stands on any question. The Advocate prejudices the province of a newspaper. It may justly do so from its own standpoint. The editor of the Advocate may be the head, front, and tail of the Populist party in this county; we think it very likely he is, though we don't know exactly who he is. We think he is, and if we are correct then his perversion of our individual opinions is excusable on account of his want of knowledge as to the proper sphere of an editor. The Populist party is undoubtedly controlled by at most a very few men of very small calibre, much inferior to the great body of misguided men who have unwittingly given over their political destinies into the hands of the demagogue. But the Democratic party is founded upon principles broader and deeper than any one man's mind, placing it far above the reach or control of any puny editor. Upon these great principles we all agree; upon many policies we differ. Until the party has spoken through its representatives no man has the right nor power to speak for it; when it has so spoken no Democrat will set up his opinion in opposition. It is this that makes it a party incapable of disintegration and impossible of dissolution, while other factions have lived and died and been forgotten. Applying this rule, our position is chargeable to us only, until the party sees fit to adopt our belief as its policy. It may not do so at all; if it does not, then as a Democratic paper we will give up our opinion for that of a majority as the best policy to pursue. No doubt the Advocate editor is unable to understand this broad-minded conception of true partisanship; if he had done so he would still be a Democrat.

Referring to the merits of this question, the Advocate seems to intimate that we believe all Populists uneducated, while all Democrats are intelligent. Not so. Very few of the white people of this country who are unable to read and write, or who would be barred under an educational qualification; and those who are owe it to their own negligence or willful and criminal indifference. We deny emphatically that any great number of our citizens have no educational advantages to offer. There is no boy or girl in Alabama to-day, nor has there been for years, who might not have learned to read and write. If there are any such their parents are morally, even criminally, to blame, and a forfeiture of their right of suffrage would not be too great a punishment for their cruel neglect of their highest duty. If there is a young man in this county who can not read and write and who is too lazy or careless to devote his spare time to the acquisition of the rudiments of his language, it is due to his country and to his own good that he be forced to do so.

We agree with the Advocate that this question "strikes at the very foundation of liberty." Civil liberty is that great gift of the Constitution which requires every man to respect the rights and interests of others. He can not do this when in ignorance he is led by unscrupulous men to follow them blindly. There will be civil liberty only when there is intelligent and independent thought and action. There is as much civil liberty in darkest Africa as there is in a community benighted with ignorance, excepting for the little clouded spark of civilized humanity due to the surrounding sunshine of intelligence.

We differ with the Advocate in its last sentence above in that our position, if carried to its logical conclusion, would build up a stronger representative government by establishing a pure representation of intelligent citizenship instead of the present results of purchased power.

The truth is that the Advocate fears the loss of its present control of the negro voter if he is educated. It is unwilling to let the light shine in on its party methods and its fallacies for fear that they will not stand the revelation—"Men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil."

The crimes against fair elections committed by Democratic bosses in Alabama to keep themselves in office, is enough to damn any party eternally with honest men.—Peoples' Advocate.

The crimes against fair elections committed by Populist bosses in their appeals to the prejudice and credulity of ignorance and the purchase of negro votes and the intimidation of laboring men are no more excusable than those they charge against us.

LABOR fills the granaries of the world, and yet has to beg plutocracy for a pittance on which to subsist.—Peoples' Advocate.

If labor would vote in its own interests, for the party that offers it relief it would not have to beg; but when it sells itself to the enemy, body and soul, it should not complain if it gets a stone when it asks for bread. As long as labor is the ally of the known enemy or the tool of designing Populist leaders who barter them off to the enemy they may expect to beg.

As will be seen from an article in this issue, Dr. Dickinson threatens to proceed against the Girls Industrial School. The whole thing gives evidence of the fact that Dr. Dickinson is mad because the State schools hurt the private institutions, and he wants them to stop business on that account. We think a man gives evidence of weakness when he says some other school is hurting him. If his school cannot stand on its merits he had better quit the business. If he has a school that will recommend itself to patronage he will have no need to worry about other concerns.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

We enjoyed a fine sermon at the Baptist church last Sunday by the Rev. Mr. Giles.

Columbiana has long enjoyed a reputation for its unity and christian fellowship among its churches. This fact was impressed upon us last Sunday when the Baptist choir invited the Methodist choir to sing with them. This, indeed, looks like they are all striving for the same heaven.

We are expecting a contribution to this column from Mrs. Bruce Harris. She is a fine literary student, and we hope she will redeem her partial promise.

We want our lady readers to order one of Vian's corsets. It's nothing to us, but you will find it everything that is comfort and good form.

INFLUENCE OF LOVING ADMONITION FROM PARENT TO CHILD.

Does parental love and instruction influence the child?

This subject is of such boundless importance it needs careful thought. In early life the child nestles close in the protecting arms of mother. It looks to her for help in the first lisping words. How important, then, that these first words are correctly taught, so that each lesson in perpetual succession may be indelible. Early impressions are the most lasting. In the young mind's eagerness to learn what father and mother knows, they are constantly around with a question box.

Then if we build a pyramid of snow it would very soon melt away, but the glittering beauty of that snow would remain in memory through life. Our thoughts steal in their minds unawares. This makes it imperative on us to instill purity of thought and action in the very souls of our little pledges of love, and thus cultivate a spirit of sweetness and nobility for future use. With our loving admonition we may induce them to weave the gold and silver threads of truth, which is the foundation of true greatness. In life's work we need the wisdom of truth, the strength of character it affords. Love, the supreme and Godly passion, should guide us in our deportment, feeling the weight of responsibility pressing every fiber of our existence.

Love, the sublime priceless attribute of Jehovah, we are prone to be unkindly of, forgetting its origin and source. Love should constrain us to regard what seem small things in the desire of the little ones. Drops constitute the ocean. Apparently little things make up the whole of life. When our children or students ask for information, in answering, let us remember that "a word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver." Let us cultivate patience, and thus teach the little ones that happy condition which smooths the rough and rugged road through life. We will pass this route but the one time, may it be upward and heavenward. Could we turn back the pages of time, we feel that we could appreciate the diamond worth of every precious hour. Let young parents weave these thoughts in the innocent minds, so that later on, they may have no bitter reflections of sorrowful regrets. Ever letting love be the square and compass to keep each chariot in correct position. Sail on, ye parents and children, through this beautiful grand old world, till you take anchorage in the celestial climes of bliss, to meet our Saviour who is the embodiment of love and purity.

TEN YEARS IN THE PEN.

The Train Robber Pleads Guilty and Gets Lowest Penalty.

On last Saturday Thos. N. Lowe was arraigned in court on an indictment found by the grand jury charging him with train robbery. He pleaded guilty of the crime, and asked for the lowest penalty of the law.

Mr. Fisher, the superintendent of the Southern Express Company, was present and made a statement of the facts in the case. His investigation showed that Lowe was a man well thought of in his home community, and he was satisfied that this was the first crime Lowe had ever committed. The facts showed that Lowe had been led into the crime by Hyatt, who is now serving a term in the penitentiary of Tennessee. Mr. Fisher made a very feeling statement, and asked, as the prosecutor, for the mercy of the court.

Lowe seemed to be quite penitent and to appreciate the efforts in his behalf. He is something of a poet, and we publish below a production of his, which he sent over from the jail:

TURNING BACK.

When sometimes our hearts grow weary along the troubled path of life,
Our aching hearts sink deep in our bosom as we look at the troubles and strife,
We look back and see the many mistakes of our young and happy life,
Oh, how willingly we would if we could turn back and begin again.
Far behind is the brightness of youth with all of happiness so bright;
Before we see trials and troubles and strife and the shadow of the gloom of night;
And we think of the many sunny places we passed so carelessly then,
And our heart sighs, Oh, Father, permit us to turn and begin again.
And yet how vain is the asking; life's troubles will press us all on,
And we must bear them no matter how bright the days were that are gone.
But it may not be far on before we wait places fairer than then,
And our path may be strewn with happiness, although we may not begin again.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhoea.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 16th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50-cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, Henry Steinhilber, Allentown, Pa. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Miss Patty Mason left Saturday for Tuscaloosa, where she will enter college. This is Miss Patty's first year from home, and her many friends will miss her.

Next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock the C. E. Society will hold their regular consecration service at the Presbyterian church. All are cordially invited to attend.

Rev. Bruce Harris, of Rome, Ga., is visiting his brother-in-law, Mr. John Spencer, this week. Mrs. Harris will remain several weeks, to the delight of her many friends in this place.

Rev. E. J. Benton, pastor of Shelby circuit, Methodist Protestant church, will begin a series of meetings here on Monday night October 4, which will extend throughout the week. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Rev. H. M. Millstead has just completed some excellent repairs to his ginney here. He now gins a bale of cotton without handling it at all, having an elevator for unloading and other appliances for passing from one machine to the other.

The State superintendent of education informs the county superintendent that the funds due teachers for the fourth quarter ending September 25, will be ready to forward to the county superintendent November 1. Teachers will govern themselves accordingly.

Leeper, the congenial occupant of room No. 25, White House, on seeing his lamp about to explode the other evening, grabbed it and throwing it out the window down in the orchard as far as possible, began singing, very coolly, "There will be hot times in the pear orchard this evening."

I take pleasure in announcing to the people of Wilsonville and vicinity that, commencing on Monday, October 4, I will practice at Wilsonville for one week only. Bridge work, gold and Logan crowns, best sets of teeth, gold and other fillings at reasonable rates. Teeth inserted without plates. Children's teeth regulated. Teeth extracted positively without pain. No bad after effects. All work the best known to the dental profession, and fully warranted.

Respectfully,
Dr. G. W. SHACKELFORD, D. D. S.

"Let me give you a pointer," said Mr. Gregg, a popular conductor on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. "Do you know that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cures you when you have the stomach ache? Well it does." And after giving this friendly bit of advice, the jolly conductor passed on down the aisle. It is a fact that thousands of railroad and traveling men never take a trip without a bottle of this Remedy, which is the best cure for bowel disorders in the world. 25 and 50-cent bottles for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Harpersville Echoes.

The weather continues warm and dry.

Cotton is being picked in a double rush.

Rev. Mr. Roberts filled his appointment at the Methodist church last Sunday and preached a good sermon as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Ballentin had the misfortune to lose their little boy, aged about seven years, one day last week of congestion; he was a bright little fellow, a pet of the family and will be greatly missed by them all. We extend to them our sympathy in their sad bereavement.

Joe Morgan, of Coal City, a very pleasant young man, but a mute, is visiting our community, his old home. He went several years to the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Talladega, and is well posted on almost everything. His mother and father are both dead. He will leave shortly for Texas to live with relatives.

Died, at his home eight miles north of here on last Friday evening just a few minutes before the sun went behind the western hills, Mr. A. M. Posey after an illness of nearly four months. Mr. Posey was born in the State of Maryland eighty four years ago and came to this country when quite a young man, married and settled on the farm where he died. He was well known all over the county, having served two terms as county commissioner. He was a member of the Macedonia Baptist church and had been for fifty years or more, also a deacon of same, also a Democrat of the deepest dye and was a warm supporter of Johnston for Governor and Bryan for President. Mr. Posey had his faults, and he had his enemies, but we all have them and no one is perfect. He was twice married. His last wife survives him. He was conscious up to almost the last moment, and was ready, willing, and anxious to meet death. During his long illness he never was heard to murmur or complain. His prayer was to go home. He was buried at the Macedonia cemetery Saturday evening, his pastor, Rev. Mr. Lovell, conducting the services. Peace to his ashes.

JAKE.

Sterrett Stirrings.

Mrs. Elsie Green, of Woodlawn, is visiting her father's family of this place.

Rev. John W. Lawley filled his appointment at this place last Saturday and Sunday, preaching instructive sermons. Two members were received into the church by experience and baptism.

Died, at his home near Vandiver, W. H. Collins, better known as Will Collins, on last Sunday the 26th, at 7:30 o'clock p.m. He was nearly 62 years old, and leaves a wife, and several children and an aged mother, with other relatives and friends to mourn his loss. His remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Vandiver last Monday evening. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. W. Lawley and W. J. Brasher. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved ones and hope that their loss is his eternal gain.

John M. Myers has been right sick for some time, but is improving slowly.

We are glad that Rev. Job Folkner is able to be out again after a long-continued spell of fever.

'Tis dry and dusty weather. Farmers are making good use of this fine weather for gathering their crops.

Cotton is coming very slow. We suppose it is on account of the very low price.

Mr. C. P. McLane has been confined to his bed with fever for several days but is some better now.

Su. E. H. Wingate went down to Jemison one day last week to see his mother and father and best girl.

Eddie Piper has been confined to his bed for the past ten days with poisoned hands and face, but he is out going now again of course to the Camp Branch church.

A. M. Piper is on the cripple list now. A wagon loaded with lumber ran over his foot Friday.

Miss Wells, who has been confined a long time with rheumatism, is improving fast now.

Mr. Will Walker was sick a day or so last week, but is able to go to his ha. sh, three times a day now.

Mr. H. C. Hale, of our town, is very sick at Mrs. Thomas's near Columbiana.

E. H. Wingate and Will Walker are taking their meals at Mr. Piper's.

The S. L. Co. have extended their railroad track again.

Calera Cullings.

Still dry and hot.

Mrs. C. Onderduik is quite sick, but is reported better.

Several of our citizens are in your town attending court.

Calera High school opened up on Wednesday with 97 pupils and the number increased to over 100, and the patrons seem to be alive to the great importance of giving the principal and teachers their hearty cooperations.

The long talked of change in Calera's post-office has taken place by Mr. F. M. Vance going out and J. A. Campbell taking charge. The new postmaster is assisted by Miss Lula Blevins.

Calera is taking on city airs. Quite a number of her citizens met at Black's Hall on Saturday night and completed its organization of a commercial club. Dr. Oliver was called to the chair and D. E. McLendon was elected secretary. The chairman explained the object of the meeting in one of his plain and practical talks. Several other gentlemen followed in short talks setting forth the advantages of unity and concert of action in all things. On motion and other suggestions of the chair a committee of five was appointed to suggest names for permanent offices. That committee retired and after consultation reported the following: Dr. C. C. Oliver, president; J. B. Randall, vice-president; D. E. McLendon, secretary; W. H. Duran, assistant secretary; Jas. M. Huggins, treasurer; J. R. Pratt, J. R. Hill, W. R. Oliver, L. W. Beard, Sam H. Gist, directors. The report of the committee was unanimously adopted. Dr. C. C. Oliver was on motion, appointed to draft constitution and bylaws; after which the meeting adjourned until Wednesday night. The meeting was very harmonious and every one present seemed interested in the enterprise. So you may expect to hear big things for Calera at an early date.

Some of our enterprising citizens are already talking water works for the town. This is something our city has always needed, and would add much to the prosperity of the town.

Shelby Siftings.

The continued dry weather is injuring late corn considerably, and the wells and springs in this section are getting very low.

Miss Flossie, the winsome daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kifer, who had charge of a music class for some time at Ganaduarque, returned home last Friday to the delight of her many friends.

Mrs. F. B. Mosley returned to her home in Tasco after a pleasant stay of a couple of weeks with relatives in the city.

Misses Maud Clark and Kittie Avery, two of our most accomplished and attractive young ladies, left Monday for Troy to enter upon their duties as pupils at the State Normal College.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Stark, of Birmingham, returned to this place last Monday to reside and are now cozily domiciled in the residence of Mrs. R. A. McGibony. A hearty welcome is extended to them.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Phillips, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. R. M. Phillips, of Sylacauga, are the guests of their sister, Mrs. J. K. Lanning.

John Mosley left for his home in Hamilton last Wednesday after spending a few days with relatives and friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Lanning left last Wednesday for Nashville, where five or six days will be spent in seeing the Exposition.

Born, last Tuesday night to Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Baker, a son. Congratulations are due.

Rev. H. M. Milstead filled his appointment here, and preached an able and eloquent sermon at the Methodist church Sunday morning to a large and appreciative congregation.

Last Tuesday evening Mrs. G. H. Avery presented her husband with a son, and George is the happiest man in town. The family have congratulations of a large circle of friends.

The patients who were on the sick list last week are convalescent, and we are glad to state that no new cases of illness have developed here.

We regret to learn that Mrs. A. R. McGibony rented her home at this place, and will shortly remove to her daughter, Mrs. W. G. Davis, at Good water.

C. H. A. Hinson, of Sylacauga, kindly filled the office of Mr. J. K. Lanning who is absent on a visit to the centennial Knox will be at home Monday to resume his duties with the L & N Railroad company, with whom he has held a lucrative position for several years.

Mr. G. W. Crossett and family have moved and now occupy the residence of Mac Carter near the Congregational church; our best wishes to them in their new home.

A missionary concert will be given at the Baptist church next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock sharp; every member is urged to be present at the meeting and assist in making it a success. To the lady members it is explained that it is not necessary

Trustee's Sale.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a trust deed made by William Prentice and his wife, Dolly Prentice, as parties of the first part, to Jerry W. Goldsmith, Trustee, as party of the second part, and The Atlanta National Building & Loan Association as party of the third part, on the 15th day of October, 1897, which is recorded in mortgage book 27, page 519, in the office of the probate judge of Shelby County, Alabama, said Trustee will proceed to sell in front of the court house door of said county at public auction to the highest bidder for cash on Monday, October 25th, 1897, the following described property to-wit:

That certain lot or parcel of land situate in the County of Shelby and State of Alabama, and described as follows: All of Lot No. thirty-four (34) in the town of Montevallo, according to the plan of said town, (excepting eighty (80) feet of the northwest end thereof fronting on Main Street). The said parcel hereby conveyed being more particularly described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of said lot No. (34) thirty-four where Vine and Island Streets intersect thence northeast along Vine Street to a point distant eighty (80) feet southeast from Main Street, thence across said lot at right angles to Vine, to the line between lots thirty-four (34) and thirty-five (35), thence along said line to Island Street, and thence northeast along said Island Street, to the beginning corner the said part of said lot being seventy-five feet in width and two hundred and sixteen feet in length, more or less.

Said foreclosure will be made by said Trustee at the request of the said Atlanta National Building & Loan Association, as provided in said deed of trust, on account of default made by the grantors in said deed of trust in the performance of the conditions therein contained.

THE CORN CROP.

Is Made and the Product is Lighter Than Usual.

The frosts of the closing days of the last week do not materially affect the corn crop of the year. The three weeks of excessive heat which preceded this close of the growing season of 1897 pushed corn beyond frost danger, and ripened the crop up quite as thoroughly as is the case in a year of normal conditions.

The crop is now made, and there is no reason warranting any increase in maximum of 1,750,000,000 bushels is fully as much as is warranted. This indication is based upon the unknown conditional average of the crop at the end of the season's growth, modified, however, by a fact that is generally overlooked by those who attempt to reduce "condition" to its equivalent in bushels per acre.

In a season like the present, when condition has fallen from month to month, and when the plant has been lacking in its usual vigor, the final harvest almost invariably shows a disappointment in the rate of yield. This law in crop reporting makes it certain that when the rate of yield shall have been finally determined, it will be found that the last figure of condition seemingly warranted. The opposite of this law was exemplified in the case of winter wheat, when the rate of yield was much larger than conditions indicated, a result which was also confidently predicted in this column before the first acre was harvested.

The quality of the corn crops this year is not good. Ears are short with an unusual proportion of nubbins, and the amount of small and imperfectly filled grains is large. The proportion, however, of soft corn is not large, thanks to the hot weather at the close of the seasons, but of light and chaffy grain there is an abundance. This characterization of the crop, of course, applies in a general way, as some districts have a crop of unusual quality, but on the average the crop of 1897 will be found light in weight and with less intrinsic feeding value than usual.—Chicago Times-Herald.

YOUNG MEN'S BEST CHANCES

Of Success Are to be Found Outside Our Largest Cities.

"Business conditions of the great cities are not favorable to young men," writes Edward W. Bok in the October Ladies Home Journal, advising young men about to begin their careers against going to the big cities. "It is said," he continues, "that competition develops men. It does, unquestionably. But to cope with present competition as it exists in the centres, calls for a vast amount of experience. That experience a man must have back of him before he can enter the competing arena. 'But how can I better acquire that experience than where there is constant need of it? How better, my young friend? By serving a long apprenticeship in some city smaller than the greatest. The large cities are to-day poor places in which to learn the rudiments of business competition, for while the young man is learning, the experienced man swallows him up. 'But that is experience,' persists the young man. It is, but a more severe kind than there is need of; a kind which, once indulged in, does not leave a pleasant remembrance. Competition in a smaller city may be just as keen, proportionately, but, what is all-important to the young man starting out, the risks are not so great; the experience is not apt to be so costly should he fail to succeed. It is a true saying that a man before he succeeds in business must expect to measure his height on the ground a time or two. But it is not necessary that in his first knock-down he should be knocked out.

"But there is another and more important fact which the young man away from the large cities does not realize. It is that the number of possible positions in the large cities is not increasing, despite the reiterated assertions constantly made to the contrary. The very opposite is the truth. Various causes explain this: higher taxes, higher prices of lots, or like of building room, labor strikes, and lower costs of production. The manufacturing interests of this country are constantly tending towards the smaller cities and away from the centres. All this means fewer positions, since only in rare instances does the executive branch of a business call for a larger number of employees that does the manufacturing side. Strange as the change of current may seem, it is, nevertheless, a fact that the young man who to-day leaves a good-sized city of actual manufacturing advantages, turns his back on what in a few years will be one of the industrial beehives of America."

The Wrong Way of Looking at It.

The Columbiana CHRONICLE has this interesting expression on the matter of party harmony in the State:

Many plans are being suggested for uniting and harmonizing the Democrats in this State the coming year. It is an exceedingly simple question. There is naught but for those who deserted the party in the last campaign to come quietly back and take their places in line again.

That is very plausible, but the defect of the suggestion lies in its failure to meet the situation.

It is the integrity of the organization in State affairs only that is involved. The last national campaign really cuts no figure, unless it is forced into State affairs.

There are no Democrats who left the party in the last campaign. They all stood by the State ticket. They have just as much right in the party organization as anybody else, if they choose to exercise those rights. It is, therefore, absurd to advise them "to come quietly back and take their places in line again."

The question of harmony here in Alabama depends upon another thing altogether. The spirit has been manifested by a number of silver leaders to drive anti-silver Democrats out of the State organization. Those short-sighted and shallow-brained people think the best way to harmonize the party is to drive deeper into the State organization the wedge which split and defeat the national party. The practical question in party management is whether these narrow leaders shall have their way. Must they be permitted to do all in their power to prevent anti-silver Democrats from holding their places in the State line?

Therefore the study of the harmony question should be directed to ways and means of defeating the purposes and plans of these incompetent leaders. Stop the driving out program and there will be no need of talking about sound-money Democrats "coming back."—Montgomery Advertiser.

I don't take any stock in the rumors that Senator Gorman is going to retire at the expiration of his present term. Gorman's slickest citizen in the United States senate. He knows more when he's asleep than millions do when they are wide awake. He's going to carry Maryland this year. Don't make any mistake about this. Gorman's not a man to hunt ducks with a brass band. He's laying low. Ain't saying much, but doing heap of thinking. It was Gorman who engineered the scheme to down Welling-ton. Made a split in the party. That's one of Gorman's tricks. Nothing small about Arthur Pue Gorman. He's told me lots of inside political history that's never been printed. Had a talk with him the day before he made his speech in the senate, when he attacked Grover Cleveland. Gorman was right on that proposition. Cleveland had been hounding him for years, trying to curtail Gorman's political power in Maryland. Gorman wouldn't stand it. Gorman was getting pretty deep in the mud when he made the assault. Said the only way to fight Cleveland was to use his own weapons. Didn't take fourteen rounds to knock him out, either. Dealt him a solar plexus blow in the first round. Cleveland was mighty sore about that speech. It hurt him. Cleveland has a good deal of vanity. Gorman punctured the tire of his vanity wheel. Cleveland and Gorman haven't spoken for years. Fell out early in 1885. They were not friends during Cleveland's first term. During the campaign of 1892 they each made a bluff at harmony by speaking for political purposes only. Gorman will succeed himself in the senate. Don't forget this.—Matt Mynor.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. SUMMER RESORTS.

Many delightful summer resorts are situated on and reached via the Southern Railway. Whether one desires the seashore or the mountains, the fashionable hotels or quiet country homes, they can be reached via this magnificent highway of travel. Asheville, N. C., from Mountain, Tenn., and the mountain resorts of East Tennessee and Western North Carolina—"The Land of the Sky"—Tate Springs, Tenn., Oliver Springs, Tenn., Lookout Mountain, Tenn., Latta Springs, Ga., the various Virginia Springs, also the seashore resorts are reached by the Southern Railway on convenient schedules and at very low rates.

The Southern Railway has issued a handsome folder, entitled "Summer Homes and Resorts," descriptive of nearly one thousand summer resort hotels and boarding houses, including information regarding rates for board at the different places and railroad rates to reach them. Write to C. A. Henscoter, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Southern Railway, Chattanooga, Tenn., for a copy of this folder.

MONTEVALLO AND ITS SCHOOL.

The editor visited Montevallo last Saturday, after an interval of one year, and was impressed with the changes that have taken place in that short time. All these changes have added to her appearance. A small fire destroyed two or three unsightly frame houses, and this loss has been replaced by two nice brick structures, while farther down the street a handsome hotel has been added. The repairs and additions put to the old school building, together with other private improvements, have given to the town an altogether different appearance. A great number of girls are there, and, of course, add more to the town than the new houses.

The stores of Montevallo present an appearance rarely seen in small places, and everybody seems imbued with a spirit of enterprise.

These improvements are all the direct result of the establishment there of the Industrial School, and our neighbor is to be congratulated upon her good fortune. For all the help she had in her fight for the school she ought to be, and doubtless is, thankful; and she should never forget the efforts of her enterprising citizens who have done so much in her behalf.

Nothing adds more to the importance of a community than a good school, and every town should take heart of Montevallo's example. As a business matter schools and education are to be desired, to say nothing of our duty to our children.

The following from the Morgan County Herald, a gold-standard paper, are the views of a clear-headed and loyal man. The Herald recognizes what the party did last year as the action of a majority, and it recognizes the right of a majority to control the party. We take the pleasure of reproducing so clear a statement of the existing conditions:

It seems folly to precipitate a canvass for candidates and principles this early. The press of Alabama has been quite vigorous in declaring what they believe is the proper thing to do. Now, to us it looks like this: the gold men are clamoring for no endorsement of Bryan and silver. The gold men can hardly expect such a thing to happen. They have no right to circumscribe the Democratic constituency of Alabama into doing any such thing. When the people of Alabama last year, by a plurality of 48,000, said they believed in Hon. W. J. Bryan, Capt. Joseph F. Johnston and free silver, they certainly meant it. We can see no change in the people since that time. It would be well to come to some agreement whereby harmony might prevail, but the Democratic party of Alabama can not afford to toady to the gold element and lose their clench on the free silver faction. They will not do it; Mr. Bryan and the Chicago platform will be endorsed.

Capt. Joseph F. Johnston will be renominated and reelected and the Morgan County Herald in the light it has before it now will say we will support him. We have not meant the little plesantry in adverse criticism of him that we have been saying to develop a feeling that we are opposed to him. We are not. There are gentlemen in the State of Alabama whom we would rather support for Governor than Captain Johnston, but they will not be nominated by the Democratic party. There is no need of the golden to act obsequiously because the State convention will endorse last year's men and principles. It is pretty precedent and fealty, and they can not afford to do otherwise.

The Spanish Cabinet has resigned and a new one selected from among the more liberal of Spain's statesmen. Their first act was to recall Weyler from Cuba. It is evident a more pacific policy is to be inaugurated regarding the little island, and it is thought a government something like that enjoyed by Canada will be given Cuba. Some conjectures are being made as to the effect the change will have upon the relations with the United States. It is devoutly hoped that the Cubans will be benefited by the change.

The grand jury in its report calls attention to the bad condition of the public roads in this county. This is one of the most important things to be looked after by a county, the condition of its roads having much to do with its commercial success. While it is impossible under the present system of working roads to have the best of roads, much better results could be obtained by more careful application of the law.

Our brother of the News told us that one of Montevallo's merchants thought he was giving away his paper. As a rule Montevallo has some very sensible, progressive business men, but there are always exceptions. The News man must not get disheartened at one evidence of lack of public spirit. He has a good town, and if he gives them a good paper they will support it.

We are very sorry that it is necessary for the judiciary of this State to enter into a scramble for office. These offices, at least, ought to be free from politics; but it can not be so, and we are afraid the bench will show the effects of it.

We were just wondering what had become of the Iconoclast, when we noticed he has been mobbed by students of Baylor University, of Waco. He is still alive and will probably be just as rampant as ever.

The yellow fever up to this time has assumed quite an epidemic form, but it does not seem to be as severe as on former occasions. The death rate is much smaller, and altogether it is not causing near so much uneasiness as usual. Still the damage to traffic is just the same, and the entire Southern country is feeling the effects. Frost can not be very far off, and it will be heartily welcomed.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

Miss Lucy Backus, an estimable young woman of Selma, was in the city last week with her immense stock of samples of ladies' dress goods and hats. We infer from appearances that she did a good business here.

Miss Leila Adams, who has charge of the Lime Company's office at Calera, is handling the affairs of the office with marked ability. She is a good bookkeeper, a rapid correspondent, and dispatches every detail of the business creditably and successfully.

The Age-Herald and Dixie Home are the coming newspapers of the State. One who reads them will keep well posted.

A few days ago we were horrified at a story which came to us of a certain white man—well connected—living in a respectable little village in this county, and who has an invalid wife and several interesting children, at a late hour in the night proceeded to disturb a large number of neighbors by taking a bed slat and brutally beating his wife. The cries and screams of the poor woman and children aroused many citizens who hastened to the scene of the disturbance and had him arrested. We are wondering if the grand jury was apprised of this affair. If citizens uphold such crimes as these by smuggling them we had just as well have no laws of restriction.

The editor of the Ladies' Home Journal appeals to his patrons for their respective opinions of the various departments of that journal, in order that he may judge as to which department is most popular. We very cheerfully contribute our opinion. The paper on which his stuff is printed is the most creditable part of the Journal, and its advertisements are of most interest. Mr. Bok ought to take a rest, a long, quiet rest, after the production of his wonderful advice to two girls about to be married. We are afraid if he doesn't he will find his brain impaired. That function of Mr. Bok is a very puny little thing anyhow.

Girls are teeming into Montevallo to attend the Industrial School. A passenger boarded the Southern on Saturday afternoon and couldn't get his head in edgewise for the crowd of girls, so he stood on the platform and peeped in at the pretty girls, cute girls, large girls, small girls, stylish girls. When the train stopped at Calera and began loading up with more girls, and hitching seventeen, more or less, baggage cars on to take the girls' baggage down, the fellow passenger looked on with admiration and was heard murmuring: "This beats the inauguration of McKinley." He hitched on to the back end of the train and went on to Montevallo, where he saw all the backs and drays in that section were busy up to a late hour in the night hauling girls and their trunks.

Ball, in Sunday's Age-Herald, very appropriately roasts Mrs. Rorer, of Philadelphia. If Mrs. Rorer thinks Southern women are stupid and void of intellect she will probably change her mind when she runs up against Ball a few times. Mrs. Rorer occupies an entire page in the last issue of the Ladies' Home Journal, giving in detail a menu for each meal in the week for a family of eight at a cost of $10 per week. There are scores of Southern women who can beat that, and give much better receipts too.

A Card of Thanks.

I hereby tender to the people of Columbiana and vicinity my sincere thanks for their kindness and unobtrusive interest in ministering unto my family during the late illness of my husband.

Very respectfully,

Mrs. F. A. THOMAS.

Advice to Farmers.

The nations of the world are in a great commotion.

The great masses of the people are perplexed. The laboring class are annoyed.

The tranquillity which once spread its wings over our nation has left us, and chaos has taken its place.

The prosperity which once prevailed throughout the Union is unknown now.

Money, which everyone once possessed, is now held by the few.

The present low wages and low prices of cotton has filled the laboring classes with consternation.

Now, the question naturally arises. What is to be done? Who can tell? Some say war will settle the question; others say legislation.

We hear the cry of overproduction of cotton; which is a sad mistake, for there is not a person in this country who could not use about ten times the amount of cotton goods that they use. They have not the money with which to buy the goods.

There is but one way whereby the crisis may be avoided, to-wit: Let the farming class of people cease buying anything on time. Raise their own flour, meat, and syrup, and such other things that they need.

Ten acres in wheat will make enough flour for any family. Wheat can be grown on any of our lands by putting a few bushels of cotton seed on each acre. Wheat not only gives a man flour, but also bran; which makes good feed.

Taking everything into consideration it is a great deal the cheapest to raise our bread stuff than to buy it. Let the farmers try this and see if times will not be better, and all of us will have more.

Grand Jury Report.

The State of Alabama, Shelby County. Circuit Court. Fall term, 1897.

To the Hon. George E. Brewer, Judge, presiding:

The grand jury impanelled at this term of the court having finished its labors make the following as its final report:

We have examined the books, papers, and accounts of all the county officers, and find them correct and well kept.

We find the county jail secure and the prisoners properly cared for.

The courthouse is in good condition, but at the suggestion of some of the county officers we recommend that as soon as it can be done the commissioner's court have the wooden shelving in the vaults replaced by metal ones of some kind, as a precaution against fire.

The poorhouse is well kept and the unfortunate inmates are receiving all the attention they require.

The bonds of the county officers we find are sufficient and secure, except those of G. B. Spradley, justice of the peace, beat 15, and Daniel Lambert, constable, beat 6. The bonds of these officers have become insufficient on account of the death and removal of some of the sureties. They should have attention.

We find that the public roads of the county are not in as good condition as they should be, and we call upon the road officers to look after them with more diligence in the future than they have in the past.

During our session we have had several very serious cases to investigate, which has prevented us from adjourning at an earlier day. This we regret but it was unavoidable.

We have investigated 40 cases and returned into court 26 indictments.

Thanking your Honor for the able charge given us and Solicitor Wilson for his assistance, we now beg to be discharged.

J. J. VINCENT, Foreman.

Owing to overcrowding and bad ventilation, the air of the schoolroom is often close and impure, and teachers and pupils frequently suffer from lung and throat troubles. To all such we would say, try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For coughs, colds, weak lungs and bronchial troubles no other remedy can compare with it. Says A. C. Freed, Superintendent of Schools, Prairie Depot, Ohio: "Having some knowledge of the efficacy of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I have no hesitation in recommending it to all who suffer from coughs, lung troubles, etc." For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Lester Mason & Co., on the first page. They have a complete line of first class goods, and are offering value received for all sales. This is an old and reliable firm, well known to the trade, and needs no introduction from us.

"My boy came home from school one day with his hand badly lacerated and bleeding, and suffering great pain," says Mr. E. J. Schall, with Meyer Bros.' Drug Co., St. Louis, Mo. "I dressed the wound, and applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely. All pain ceased, and in a remarkably short time it healed without leaving a scar. For wounds, sprains, swellings and rheumatism I know of no medicine or prescription equal to it. I consider it a household necessity." The 25 and 50-cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

The Shelby County Bank, of Montevallo, has a card in this issue. Mr. Burgess Little, the cashier, is a self-made young man who deserves the confidence of all business men, and will be glad to entertain all who have business in his line.

It Saves the Croupy Children.

Seaview, Va.—We have a splendid sale of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and our customers coming from far and near, speak of it in the highest terms. Many have said that their children would have died of croup if Chamberlain's Cough Remedy had not been given.—KELLAM & O'BRYEN. The 25 and 50-cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

The civil docket was not quite finished last week, owing to the long drawn out case for damages against the county. The county was given a verdict, and the water-works will continue doing business at the same old stand.

A great many of our subscriptions are falling due at this time, and we respectfully ask that they be paid. Our agents will accept for them, and the amounts will help us out.

A literary society is being talked of for our town. Let it be established by all means. Our town can be greatly benefited by a society which will furnish readings, debates, and literary affairs of all kinds.

If you want good work done promptly send it to this office. We guarantee correctness and speed, and close prices.

Mrs. Calahan, of Lynchburg, Va., is moved to Columbiana, where she will reside in the future with her son, the agent of the Southern Railway here.

Capt. W. C. Ward and Hon. F. L. Pettus, of Selma, was in the city Monday on legal business.

Fresh Mackerel at 5 cents, at Johnston & Co.

A Royal Entertainment.

On September 28, at the beautiful home of Mrs. W. B. Browne, on Laurel street, was given an entertainment in honor of Miss Tate, a distinguished guest from Pensacola, Fla.

At midday twilight or about 8.45, the guests invited began to arrive, all dressed in evening costumes, and kept coming until the glistening reception room was filled to a beautiful sufficiency. Then began the chats before and behind fans that would have been appreciated and honored by the lords of a Grecian age. Time fled like the dancing winds in a whirl. The chandelier bathed in crimson blushes laughed with a golden brightness, and every ray of light that found its way into the eyes of mutual admirers, told "the old, old, story of love and its delight."

The music rendered by Misses Tate and Stone was filled with melodies divine; such that Apollo, in his musical conception of duty, would have turned from the trivial marches into songs of unequalled beauty.

About 11.30 refreshments of rarest taste were served, and in a way that the Parisian guides would have been appreciated.

Another period of the evening came—the time for departure, but not until the clock of the house had pealed forth the hour of 12, and the proud monarch of the "Hearable-rooster's Circle" had rent his tremendous voice ringing out over the waves of indescribable darkness.

The last moment was a time "when we became all eyes, when one was present, all memory when one was gone."

This was the evening spent, and we journeyed homeward, thanking from the depths of our hearts Mrs. Browne for the entertainment, and Miss Tate for the pleasure unlimited.

The following Sewing Machine Needles can be had at Johnston & Co. Hartford, Weed, Singer, Davis, American, New Home, and Tool.

Shelby Siftings.

Capt. T. G. Bush, of Anniston, was in our town last Wednesday.

Mrs. Clarence Bates and Mrs. E. M. Conifer visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Keith, last week, returning to Montgomery Friday.

Mr. A. J. Long and family, of Bessemer, who spent the latter part of the summer here as refugees from smallpox returned to their home last Tuesday.

L. A. Christian visited his father's family and his best girl Sunday, returning to Birmingham Monday.

Miss Ida Cabiniss left Saturday for Montevallo, where she will enter the Industrial School. Her many friends will miss her.

Miss Catharine Owen was appointed principal of the Bethlehem School at Spring Creek. She will enter upon her duty as teacher the first of next month. We wish her much success.

Mr. and Mrs. Lanning have returned from Nashville, where they took in the Exposition. They report it as a grand affair.

The writer transacted business in Montgomery last Wednesday.

Capt. W. H. Bell, one of our most prominent citizens, went to Marion Junction last Friday to look after his interests at that place, where he will remain several weeks.

The regular business meeting of the Epworth League will be held next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. A full attendance of all the members is earnestly requested.

Mrs. J. H. Johnson lies critically ill at the home of her father, Mr. B. Cardwell. Her many friends hope that her condition may improve.

Rev. A. T. Clarke occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church, as usual, Sunday morning. Brother Clarke, whom we all believe to be truly a man of God, preached a very impressive sermon. He illustrated to us the condition of heaven and the influence of this life.

Married, at the residence of the bride's father, last Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Miss Susie Keith and Mr. W. T. Dykes. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a small number of friends and relatives by Rev. C. W. O'Hara, of Columbiana. We wish for them all happiness possible in this world and perfect bliss in the world to come.

The recital given by the Missionary Society at the Baptist church last Sunday evening was a rare treat to the lovers of music. Every part of the programme was rendered in a manner quite incomparable, showing thorough training on the part of each member. Miss Jessie Carter, the directress, is a young lady of rare attainments. Her solo, an original composition which was gracefully dedicated to the society, was accorded a most favorable reception. Her rendition of the solo displayed wonderful technique and expression. The others acquitted themselves admirably and won their portion of praise.

CASTORIA. The face is bright and clear. In every way.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Water is a thing of rarity among us. Miss Mollie Parish, of Warrior, is visiting her brother and wife.

Will Tinney has begun to erect a "cottage home" on the lot adjoining his father's.

Mrs. J. W. Millstead and children are in Columbiana spending the week with her husband's relatives.

Miss Blossom Densler, our social favorite, left Monday afternoon to matriculate as a student of The Girls' Industrial School at Montevallo. Aside from the regular classical course, Miss Densler will pursue the special courses of millinery and cookery.

Polite Clifton Anchors, of THE CHRONICLE staff, was infesting the coast of our town a part of last week.

Mr. E. Doty, organizing deputy of The Woodmen of the World, has been in town several days for the purpose of establishing a camp of that fraternal order with the benefit of the insurance feature.

Dr. G. W. Shackelford, the tooth carpenter, is in town.

R. G. Weldon & Co. have built a cotton seed house in close proximity to the Southern railroad.

J. F. Pope's warehouse is pronounced by many to be a rival to his brick store since it has received a coat of paint with becoming trimmings.

We learned from a guest that the wedding of Miss Rosa Wallace and W. C. Teague was beautifully solemnized on last Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, 4 miles from town. Mr. and Mrs. Teague left the following afternoon for St. Augustine, Fla., where they will reside in future.

Interesting and eloquent services were held at the Methodist church Sunday morning and night by the pastor, Rev. S. J. Parish.

The S. P. L. Leaguers will meet Friday night to argue love from a desirable standpoint. The question is: "Resolved, That 'tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all." J. W. Weldon and Miss Bessie Cockrell are representatives of the affirmative side of this important question; W. W. McGowen and Miss Georgia Pope are representatives of the negative side.

Those who attended the Teague-Wallace nuptials from afar were: Misses Manie Cox, of Georgia, Mattie Worsham, of Birmingham, Nellie Parker, of Columbiana, Mrs. Monteith, of Atlanta, and Mr. J. M. Kytie, of Helena.

Jinger-linger-linger-linger; hello! Central connect me with 23. These or similar words are now heard from all the principal business houses in town. The fact of the business is, we have the annexation of a very recent telephone exchange, with the central telephone station located at A. G. Weldon's place of business. E. Williamson is the originator and manager of this independent line, which is already proving to be a great convenience to the business men and people at large.

Rev. Dr. Parish, of Warrior, will preach to this congregation Wednesday night, October 12.

The Protestant Methodist will begin a series of meetings at the M. E. church next Monday night.

The old custom of flat roofed dwellings prevailed in England years ago. The roofs were so constructed that they might have open air concerts, etc., thereon. Around the eaves or edges, ballusterings were erected to prevent children from falling; they were all fenced in so there would be no danger. Wilsonville today congratulates herself on having good fraternal, spiritual, and intellectual ballusterings which are worthy of mention. These ballusterings are all calculated to instill into the minds and hearts of her citizens the principles of honesty, truth of God and fidelity to each of their faiths and creeds. They are all good, however, many of them are quite old, some are comparatively new, and others are yet on deck. Now, what town of our size can boast of such a varied list of good institutions, orders, and societies, as the following: Three churches, three Sunday schools, Masonic Lodge, three prayer meetings and young men's prayer meeting, Earnest Workers, S. P. L. League, Epworth League, Baptist Young Peoples' Union, and the expected camp of the Woodmen of the World.

A Shelby merchant is contemplating locating in our town in the near future.

J. W. Bolin's dry kiln and lumber burned Sunday morning. The loss is estimated at $700.

EDITOR CHRONICLE: Permit me, through the columns of your valuable paper, to correct your Wilsonville correspondent as to the opening of our school. He reported 25 matriculates when it should have been 52, with present attendance of 63 and enrollment of 67.

Yours truly, A. G. WELDON.

The Way To Weigh More

Good weight means good health. Good health means good blood. Good blood is at the bottom of it all. If a man or woman is losing flesh, chances are ten to one that the blood is impure and lifeless. Pure blood builds up good, firm flesh. It makes muscles that you can use. There is no fictitious fat about it. It gives you a balance in the bank of health that you can draw on without fear.

Sarsaparilla is Nature's remedy for impure or impoverished blood. It is just the sort of remedy that grandmother used to dig up in the garden. It is simple, pure, efficient. It puts the digestion into perfect order, stimulates the appetite, assists nutrition, cleanses and purifies the whole body.

The surest and purest and safest and best of all sarsaparillas is Trustee's Sale.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a trust deed made by William Prentice and his wife, Holly Prentice, as parties of the first part, to Jerry W. Goldsmith, Trustee, as party of the second part, and the Atlanta National Building & Loan Association, as party of the third part, on the 15th day of October, 1897, which is recorded in mortgage book 27, page 518 in the office of the probate judge of Shelby County, Alabama, said Trustee will proceed to sell in front of the court house door of said county at public auction to the highest bidder for cash on Monday, October 25th, 1897, the following described property to-wit:

Certain lot or parcel of land situate in the County of Shelby and State of Alabama, and described as follows: All of Lot No. thirty-four (34) in the town of Montevallo, according to the plan of said town, (excepting eighty (80) feet of the northwest end thereof fronting on Main Street). The said part hereby conveyed being more particularly described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of said lot No. (34) thirty-four where Vine and Island Streets intersect thence northwest along Vine Street to a point distant eighty (80) feet southeast from Main Street, thence across said lot at right angles to Vine, to the line between lots thirty-four (34) and thirty-five (35), thence along said line to Island Street, and thence northeast along said Island Street, to the beginning corner the said part of said lot being seventy-five feet in width and two hundred and sixteen feet in length, more or less.

Said foreclosure will be made by said Trustee at the request of the said Atlanta National Building & Loan Association, as provided in said deed of trust, on account of default made by the grantors in said deed of trust in the performance of the conditions therein contained.

Assistant Secretary Spaulding of the treasury department at Washington was interviewed on the subject of postal-savings banks the other day by a Chicago Record correspondent. He said:

"I do not think the government ought to enter the banking business in competition with private parties, but the postal-savings bank need not do this. As I understand the purpose of the advocates of this system, it is to accommodate certain small depositors who could not in most cases reach banks and who dissipate their small earnings under present conditions. If this system reaches such people it will prove a great benefit to them. Postal-savings banks open a way for insignificant deposits to accumulate and become of value to the depositors. In this way such banks are an incentive for economy and induce thrift."

Self-respect accompanies the possession of a little money, and such a system, therefore, tends to better citizenship. It also tends to place considerable money at the disposal of the government which otherwise would be lost both to the government and the citizen. It seems to me that the plan ought to be worked out to great advantage to everybody concerned."

Third Assistant Postmaster-General Merritt said to the same correspondent:

"The people should be encouraged in habits of thrift and economy, and no better way of accomplishing that result can be devised than by offering them a perfectly secure and reliable savings bank, where small deposits can be placed at interest. The habit of economy once formed will rapidly grow and spread, and postal-savings banks will prove a success from the day they are established in this country."

General Palmer's New Role.

[Age-Herald.]
It must be most gratifying to those ultra good people at the South who destroyed the possibility of electing a Democratic President last year—a true representative of the people—by supporting the most conspicuous political renegade in the whole country—a man who has been on all sides of every political question—to know that Gen. John M. Palmer is to appear as the self-appointed agent for the colored school children at Alton, Ill., who decline to attend their own school, but insist on going to the white schools. General Palmer is not to appear in the true capacity of an attorney. He is not employed to take the case, but has volunteered to do so.

This being the case, it is taken as the personal wish of General Palmer that colored children should have the same school privileges as the whites—the same school buildings, rooms and teachers, though separate privileges had been provided for them.

Suppose General Palmer had been elected President? He would have been the worst enemy to the South that could possibly have been chosen. If he is willing that the whites and blacks should be educated together, it argues that he would have appointed colored postmasters in preference to the whites with a wholesale recklessness that would outdo McKinley twenty times over.

There was never at any time the least possibility of the election of General Palmer during his candidacy last year, but the crazy vigor with which the self-anointed few shouted his praises as to the only Simon-pure, blown-in-the-bell sample of genuine Democracy will be pleased beyond measure to know that General Palmer entertains the views he does on a question which is of so vital interest to the South, and especially so, as his position is in direct opposition to that maintained by those who have fought for years to uphold white supremacy.

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana, Ala., as second class matter.

The city of Chattanooga was carried by the Democrats Tuesday, reversing the usual Republican majority.

The Advocate does not believe in that kind of slave-like obedience; it believes principles are eternal and when a party ceases to advocate the principles it believes in the Advocate will no longer give its adherence to that party.—People's Advocate.

The Populist party believes in a low tariff; and yet the Advocate supported a high-tariff Republican for Congress. The Populist party believes in the free coinage of silver; and yet the Advocate supported a gold-standard Republican for Congress. It is time for the Advocate to quit the Populist party.

The city of Indianapolis went Democratic Tuesday by a majority of 5,000. The campaign was made on the silver issue, and the Chicago platform was endorsed. Nearly all the Palmer men of last year supported the ticket, and even Ex-President Harrison's precinct was carried by the Democrats. On this statement of facts the lesson is plain. Indiana was carried in the last election by fraud; the Palmerites are getting ashamed of themselves; the silver issue is not dead.

IN AN editorial in yesterday's Advertiser we find the following sentence:

The signs of the times in the country at large are all against silver, and even here in Alabama three to one of the State papers, which have vouchsafed an opinion, have declared against another factional canvass in Alabama on the questionable issue.

This is a decided wresting of the facts. All those free-silver papers which have announced in favor of eliminating national issues from the State campaign have done so upon purely local grounds, and the Advertiser knows they have not abated one whit of their interest in the silver cause. When it comes to the Congressional campaign these papers will be just as firm as ever. The Advertiser should not twist the position of the papers to its own satisfaction.

It is true, as alleged by THE CHRONICLE, that the parents who do not educate their children are criminally liable. It is true the solicitor commenced his prosecutions, for there are many children in Shelby County who have never had any educational advantages, and whose parents are unable to send them to school.—People's Advocate.

The very proposition THE CHRONICLE is laying down is that the Constitution of the State should be changed so as to increase the amount to be expended for education and then to force the parents to send their children to school. If they have not enough parental love to educate their children they should be made to do it. If the Advocate's contention is true it should be favoring any proposition looking to the education of the children instead of opposing it. The truth is the present editor of the Advocate is afraid to have the people educated; he is afraid of losing his former hold upon their support for office. The difference between the Advocate and us is, not that we differ so much in opinion, but that our position is one of benefit to the people, while his is one of benefit to his own political interests. If the man who is writing the Advocate's editorials would place his name at the head of the paper this would be very clear.

THE CHRONICLE says "there is no boy or girl in Alabama to-day, nor has there been for years, who might not have learned to read and write." Perhaps if the editor of THE CHRONICLE had to work as these boys and girls do, in the field from early morn to dewy eve, he would feel more like sleeping than learning to read and write.—People's Advocate.

The editor of THE CHRONICLE was reared on a farm, and a small, poor, rented one, at that; and he studied his lessons and read good books and the newspapers by a pine-knot light, the material for which he gathered with his own hands after his day's work was done, borrowing the books and papers from kind neighbors. He remembers those days with pleasure, too, when he trudged 2 miles to school in all kinds of weather; and, thinking of them, he has no sort of indulgence with any boy who does not learn to read and write. The editor of the Advocate knows there is no excuse for ignorance, and the position he takes is calculated to encourage idleness and ignorance instead of stimulating brave efforts to better the condition of our youths. The man who seeks thus to make political capital of a question like this is the worst enemy of his people. If the editor of the Advocate will forget his own desire for office for awhile and put forth some words of encouragement to his readers they will be persuaded to lift themselves out of the condition he says they are in; but so long as he seeks to make political capital and further his own ends out of every effort to elevate the people he is the worst enemy his people can have.

PRINCIPLES VS. POLICIES.

The People's Advocate last week republished our leading editorial of the week before, and proceeded to reply to it with a lot of rot which is characteristic of one who either does not understand his subject or can not answer his opponent's argument with any logical reasoning or convincing language. We are much pleased that our article appeared in the Advocate in such striking contrast with its own feeble excuse for a reply, which is not a reply at all. We have actually been complimented by some of the Advocate's own party, men of prominence and influence in that party, who had the cruelty to make fun to us of the editor's gullibility and ridiculous position. When the Advocate says the Democratic party in this county needs a paper it unwittingly gives advice to its own party. If the Advocate is the mouthpiece of the Populist party in this county it ought to have an editor who could afford to let himself be known and who can conduct a discussion apart from his own political aspirations. However, we are not in the business of giving advice to the enemy.

The only proposition contained in the Advocate's reply is embodied in its closing sentences, as follows:

The Democratic party to-day is a conglomeration of antagonistic elements that will ultimately destroy it forever. A man can be anything in the world and be a Democrat, if he will vote the ticket nominated. There are high-tariff Democrats, free-silver Democrats, and gold-bug Democrats. There are no designated principles a man must believe in in order to join the Democratic party. If there is will THE CHRONICLE please point them out?

The trouble with the Advocate is that it can not tell the difference between a principle and a policy. The Populist party was founded on policies many of which have already been forsaken, and all of which are dependent upon surrounding conditions; consequently no Populist, much less the editor of the Advocate, whose only political creed is office for himself, can understand the distinction. We will attempt to explain the difference, not with any hope of success so far as the Advocate is concerned, but for the benefit of people seeking information.

A principle is a fundamental truth; a comprehensive law or doctrine from which others are derived or on which others are founded. A policy is a system of management or methods designed to promote external or internal prosperity. A political principle is a fundamental doctrine of government by which every action or measure must be laid out and to which they must conform; a political policy is a certain method of management or administration made expedient by existing conditions or local or general interests. The principles of a party are unchangeable; its policies may be changed by conditions, local or general, and may be believed in or opposed by a party's individual members.

A republican form of government may be conducted upon one of two great fundamental principles; it may, under either of these, pursue policies varied to expediences, or conforming to internal or external conditions. There is room for only two parties founded upon principles; there may be many founded upon policies. The two former will always exist; the latter will cease with the passing of the conditions which gave them birth.

We take pleasure in pointing out for the Advocate the designated principles of the Democratic party, which every man must believe in or at least conform to before he can be a Democrat:

□ He must believe in the sovereignty of the States; that Congress has no power except such as are expressly delegated to it by the Constitution; and in local self-government.

□ He must believe in a government of, for, and by the people through duly elected or appointed representatives.

□ He must believe in complete acquiescence in the will of the majority, from which there is no appeal.

□ He must believe in the economical administration of public affairs, that labor may be lightly burdened.

□ He must believe in exact equality before the law, as opposed to special class privileges.

□ He must believe in equal adjustment of taxes, whether high or low.

□ He must believe in the subservience of the military to the civil authorities in times of peace.

□ He must believe in the rights of trial by jury and in the arbitration of differences by fellow-men.

□ He must believe in the freedom of religion, of the press and of speech.

□ He must believe in the use of the qualified veto power of the executive for the protection of the people against unwise legislation.

□ He must believe that the separation of the funds of the government from banking institutions is indispensable for the safety of the funds of the government.

□ He must believe in the control and security to this government of the great waterways, and of the right to the free use of the ocean; and in the Monroe doctrine.

These, in substance, are what a man must believe in to be a Democrat; and if the Advocate can present for its party a set of principles so closely allied to the declarations of the Constitution or grander in their conception it will have established its right to criticize a Democrat. These are our principles; upon other things we may differ, so long as we let our views conform to these. Believing in the great principles of a majority rule we can not differ beyond the decision of our party as to the policies it will support.

We have complied with the Advocate's request; now let it give its political principles—not the measures it favors, but the cardinal doctrines of its party. We have not heard of its having any; but we would like to know it.

In another column will be found an editorial from THE CHRONICLE. We copy it in order that it may be read by the voters of Shelby County. We urge its careful perusal in order that the position of the Democratic party in Shelby County may be fully understood.—People's Advocate.

Thank you; if the position of the Democratic party were thoroughly understood, instead of having it garbled by a chronic office-seeker, there would be few white people outside of the party.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

The following article from the able pen of Mrs. Bruce Harris we are sure will be read with deep interest by her many friends in this section:

AUTUMN LEAVES.

"If this were all—
The cradle couch, the coffin pall,
And then the end—as leaves to fall,
The gain were small.

But dropping leaves
Reveal the bud that's newly formed,
That in the autumn sunning warmed
New strength receives."

Passing recently through a forest, where for many years I have watched the seasons come and go, I abandoned myself to the spell which the once familiar scenes cast over me. The woods were all aflame with golden red. Here and there glowed a spray of brilliantly hued leaves, the heralds of approaching autumn, which soon will robe the earth in garments of gorgeous loveliness. The rustle of dead leaves, prematurely withered by the intense heat, was heard now and then, prophetic of the time, "when chill November's surly blast lays field and forest bare."

There was the same old suggestion of change and decay, and yet life and beauty reigned supreme; and through an opening in the leafy arch shone glimpses of the far away blue of the sky, and the oft-repeated words came back to me in sweetest tones: "God holds our best good as sure and true and high as the blue sky holds the stars that shine upon its bosom. He plants flowers in our paths and takes them away and leaves upon the soul great imperishable lessons."

Nature is regal and beautiful in all her changeful moods and ever-varying phases; and has eloquent teachings for all who will receive them. From the tiniest fern whose delicate fronds are swayed by the passing breeze to the giant oak "with health and renown in his broad green crown"—from the quickly changing leaf of a fragile shrub to the towering pine whose dark-green plumes toss in defiance of time and changing seasons, comes the same inspiring message, "All the boundless universe of God is life. There is no death!" Even upon the graves of those we knew and loved in former days the same truth is written, and the voice which cheered the sorrowing hearts in Bethany's desolate home speaks still in thrilling tones, "Thy brother shall rise again." So, from contemplating the solemn declaration, "We all fade as a leaf," we turn to the rainbow promise spanning the firmament of our changeable lives: "I am the resurrection and the life."

To one who hears the voice of God in nature and sees through the ever-shifting scenes of time and change a guiding hand, fashioning all things with reference to our highest good, a feeling of hopefulness, deepening with the lapse of time, comes to cheer and comfort and sustain amid vicissitudes which otherwise would appal and overwhelm.

From the heights of a ripe experience we see the meaning of much that once saddened and annoyed us with its baffling mystery. Someone has compared experience to a pale musician holding a dulcimer of patience in his hand, and the music of "sad perplexed minors" to the untrained ear has no measured cadence nor certain tune in it; but angels bending from above listen with profoundest interest, and smiling down upon him whisper "sweet." The grandest musical composition ever given to the world—the Misereere of Allegri—seems to the careless and untuned listener a mass of discords, but in its majestic chords are blended every deep emotion of the human heart, and through its sombre minors and harsh chromatic passages flows an undertone of infinite tenderness and sweetness. So beneath the trials and temptations, the disappointments and sorrows which torture the soul, there is a hidden meaning, "a low sweet prelude of sweetest music which sometimes we can hear though 'faint and far, as from a star.'"

When the song's gone out of your life,
When you thought last to the end,
Let silence softly fall
On the bruised heart's quivering strings;
Perhaps from the loss of all you may learn
The song that the seraph sings;
A grand and glorious psalm
That will tremble and thrill,
And fill your breast with its grateful rest,
And its lovely yearnings still."

We are told of an unseen angel walking beside our pathway, "lowly and sad, by fruits and flowers unblest," who from withered leaves and flowerless stalks is weaving a fitting crown to adorn the brow of the wayworn but patient traveler. After all, as Mrs. Browning beautifully expresses it, "Grief may be joy misunderstood."

"The covering
Drops off our soul as the leaf doth,
And shows the fruit bud in its growth Waiting for Spring.
And so we lie
With souls that meditate upon

The year to come—the year that's gone,
And wait reply

To questions broad;
While shadows of eternity
Wave across our souls which see But dimly God."
Mrs. BRUCE HARRIS.

Mrs. L. C. Armstrong & Co. have a handsome, stylish, and lovely assortment of ladies' and children's hats, kid gloves, woolen underwear, elegant ribbons, etc. They have a superb line of New York pattern hats at $5 and $6 that would cost in cities $12 and $15. English walking hats, cow-boy hats, Fedoras, bronze crowned sailors, Russian Newcombs; all dirt cheap.

In selecting your new hats and dresses remember and have something in plaid. It is indispensable if you are to be strictly in style. Skirts, waists, ribbons, in fact either or all may be in plaid. And don't try to get your hat, dress, gloves, boots, and petticoats all the same color and shade. That once was the style, but not now. Fashion harmonizes any and all colors at present. The Russian blouse and cloaks half way down the skirt are the latest in wraps.

We are indebted to our beloved friend, Mrs. Greene Abbott, of Shelby, for a basket of lovely apples. Through the kindness of Mrs. Dr. Dulse they came safely to hand. We can't enumerate the kind ones who have sent us so many baskets of delicious pears; neither can we express our gratitude for such thoughtfulness in our friends.

The following announcement will be read with pleasure by the many friends of Mrs. B. F. Wilson. We look forward to this occasion as a rare treat to us. Mrs. Wilson's ability is unquestionable, and we are proud she has been chosen for this honor.

Mrs. B. F. Wilson, of our city, has been asked by the Nashville Exposition authorities to deliver one of two addresses by ladies, on Alabama Day at the great fair. The other lady is Mrs. Geo. B. Eager, of Montgomery, whose subject will be "Mobile Women in Literature," that of Mrs. Wilson's being "Alabama Men and Women in Literature." The addresses will be delivered in the Auditorium and are certain to be of the highest interest. Mrs. Wilson requests us to emphasize the fact that the invitation is personal, and has nothing to do with any club or literary society.—News-Reporter.

E. B. Teague, of Fourmile, was in the city Monday.

George Avery, of Shelby, was in the city yesterday.

Editor Graham, of Calera, was in the city yesterday.

Mrs. T. S. Sheffield, of Shelby, was in town one day last week.

We are glad to announce that Mrs. C. C. DuBose is improving.

Max Boxer, of Shelby, paid the office a pleasant visit Tuesday.

Dr. S. W. Jones, of Mobile, was in the city a few days this week.

Pickles, Heinz best by the dray load, for sale by J. H. Hammond.

Remember that J. E. Seale & Co. meet all competition on pure drugs.

J. P. Christian, of the Shelby Iron Company, was in the city yesterday.

Mrs. Robert Carter was a guest of her sister, Mrs. I. D. Mason, Saturday.

A large stock of shoes that defy competition, at R. G. Weldon & Co's.

Mr. and Mrs. James McGowen, of Nelson Switch, were in the city Sunday.

Albert McGhee, of Stanton, entered the public school at this place Monday.

Remember 10 pounds of good coffee to the dollar at Columbiana Mercantile Co.

R. G. Weldon & Co., sells dress goods and notions at surprisingly low prices.

Mrs. Judge McMillan is quite ill this week, but yesterday was reported better.

The commissioners are still in session, being engaged now in filling the jury box.

Boys and men's hats and caps at prices to suit the times, at R. G. Weldon & Co's.

Miss Jessie Carter came up from Shelby Saturday to attend the quarterly meeting.

R. G. Weldon, one of Wilsonville's successful merchants, was in the city Tuesday.

J. D. Hardy, R. E. Bowdon, and J. B. Randall, of Calera, were in the city Tuesday.

Mrs. S. Lefkovits and children, of Bessemer, are in the city, and will remain some time.

Don't forget that the Columbiana Mercantile Co., is selling goods so cheap you will think you found them.

Hammond sells Red Apple and Broad Avo tobacco, 72 spits to every chew. Try it. 25sep3m

Some of our local correspondents are getting tardy. We hope they will keep their places in print constantly.

Misses Eloise Bell and Naldo Christian, two of Shelby's most interesting young ladies, were guests of friends in our city Saturday.

Lester, Mason & Co. handle all the publications of the American Bible Society, any of which can be purchased at cost.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

Call for a Meeting to Organize.

There will be a meeting at the school building on Friday night at 7.30 for the purpose of organizing a literary society. All gentlemen and boys over 15 years of age are invited to attend. It is hoped that all the young men in the place will take an interest in this matter, which is for their especial benefit. It is intended after getting started to invite the ladies to join.

Let everyone who desires to prepare himself for appearing in public, a thing very necessary, come out and go into the society with a determination to make it a success. Let the older gentlemen who have experience attend for the encouragement and help of the younger ones. One night each week can not be spent more profitably than in preparing the young people for making themselves heard and felt in their relations with the public.

SHELBY TO START.

The Furnace to be in Operation by the 15th.

The Shelby Iron Company's furnaces are to be in blast by the 15th of next month. Everything is being pushed to that end, and if the plans do not fail iron will be produced by that time.

The coaling is being operated now, and all other steps are being taken to get ready. All the iron on hand has been sold, and the company have orders ahead that must be filled.

As stated by our Shelby correspondent, Mr. G. W. Crossett has been placed in charge of the store, and will take control next week.

With the old-time life there, the entire vicinity will be benefited, and everybody will be glad to see the smoke from the furnaces.

A Cure for Bilious Colic.

Resource, Screven Co., Ga.—I have been subject to attacks of bilious colic for several years. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is the only sure relief. It acts like a charm. One dose of it gives relief when all other remedies fail.—G. D. SHARP. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Of Interest to Business Men.

We have just discovered that the recent law makes it obligatory upon all business men to take an inventory of their stock of goods within ten days of the 1st of October, to be returned to the tax assessor. There is still time to do this, though a little late, and we publish the information for the benefit of our business men.

J. F. Pope, of Wilsonville, was in the city Tuesday night. He came to interview our tooth doctor, and went away much relieved.

Something good.—Strawberry preserves, preserved quinces, and apple butter, for sale by J. H. H.

Miss Oza Hammond had the misfortune to sprain her ankle Saturday evening. But we are glad to know she is able to be about.

Circuit court adjourned Saturday, after a three weeks' session of much work. The judge and solicitor go this week to St. Clair county.

A refreshing rain fell Sunday, breaking a drought of over two months. The dust had become almost unbearable, and the rain was exceedingly welcome.

Mr. Alonzo Brasher, who lived in this vicinity, and who, at one time, was one of the most influential citizens of the town, died last Monday morning, and was buried Tuesday at the Johnson Cemetery, several miles north of here.

The county superintendent of education presented his report to the commissioners' court last week, from which we gather the following synopsis: Amount received, $6,305.44; paid to teachers, $5,997.85; commissions, $239.91; balance cash on hand, $67.78.

A great many of our subscriptions are falling due now, and we urge upon subscribers the necessity for a renewal. Each one will help us out, and we hope to have them. We have not made much effort to collect heretofore, but now that there is a little money floating around we hope to get what is due us.

The fourth quarterly conference of this circuit was held here Saturday and Sunday, the presiding elder, Rev. Mr. Hosmer, preaching Sunday and Sunday night. It appeared from the reports of the stewards that Columbiana church has already paid its assessment and something over.

Owing to over-crowding and bad ventilation, the air of the schoolroom is often close and impure, and teachers and pupils frequently suffer from lung and throat troubles. To all such we would say, try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For coughs, colds, weak lungs and bronchial troubles no other remedy can compare with it. Says A. C. Freed, Superintendent of Schools, Prairie Depot, Ohio: "Having some knowledge of the efficacy of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I have no hesitation in recommending it to all who suffer from coughs, lung troubles, etc." For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Harpersville Echoes.

The Harpersville supreme court was in session last Saturday.

Borum's gin outfit is doing nicely, and is ginning 20 bales a day.

Misses Minnie Florey and Della Thompson visited Easonville last week.

Dock Flippin, of Birmingham, visited relatives here a few days ago.

Commercial pilgrims visit our town daily, and the credit of our merchants is hard to beat.

Our Colonel Kidd paid Birmingham a business trip last week.

J. P. Rowe has fitted up the old McRae store house, where he will open business.

Our streets were crowded last Saturday with wagons; some hauling cotton, some seed, and some hauling in goods.

Walter Gardner, of Pratt City, is visiting L. J. Carden's family.

We had a fine rain Sunday evening and everything looks revived.

Died, a few days ago, an infant child of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bird.

Our school is progressing finely and new pupils come in almost daily. Professor Spinks is giving general satisfaction as an educator.

Martin and Borum are buying all of the cotton seed that they can get, and are shipping them away. What a great pity that our farmers don't keep them here for manure, they are much better than guano.

Harpersville has been made a money order office. Many thanks to Uncle Sam. Guess it will be made a Presidential office next, and if it is, we are not going to kick "nary bit."

Some of the papers are full of politics; what a pity. Readers of papers want the news and not so much politics. Johnson is going to be reelected for Governor, and Bryan is going to be the next President; so people had just as well quit fretting and be contented.

Thomas Green had the misfortune to get his house burned up last week and most all of its contents. Peter McGraw, colored, had his house, with all of its contents and a bale of cotton burned. Mr. E. V. Caldwell came very near getting his entire premises burned by an ash hopper catching on fire, but fortunately everything was saved but the hipper, and it made more ashes. I have been informed that John Wheat's gin caught on fire, but nothing was lost.

There was quite a shooting and cutting affray took place at S. J. Warren's saw mill near Brinson, Ga., last Sunday was a week ago, in which two men, Meers, Murphy and Archie, were killed, and one or two others seriously hurt. Mr. Warren went from this county three years ago, also the two men who were killed. JAKE.

"My boy came home from school one day with his hand badly lacerated and bleeding, and suffering great pain," says Mr. E. J. Schall, with Meyer Bros.' Drug Co., St. Louis, Mo. "I dressed the wound, and applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely. All pain ceased, and in a remarkably short time it healed without leaving a scar. For wounds, sprains, swellings and rheumatism I know of no medicine or prescription equal to it. I consider it a household necessity." The 25 and 50-cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

News reached this place last Thursday of a rape committed upon the person of a lone widow who lives a few miles from here with her little children. She had gone out before day to gather a few sticks of wood, when she was seized and her person violated by some unknown person whom she was unable to recognize. Some effort was made to track the perpetrator, but owing to the dry weather it could not be done. The lady was considerably injured by the attack.

It Saves the Croupy Children.

Seaview, Va.—We have a splendid sale of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and our customers coming from far and near, speak of it in the highest terms. Many have said that their children would have died of croup if Chamberlain's Cough Remedy had not been given.—KELAM & O'BRYEN. The 25 and 50-cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

One of the most heinous crimes ever heard of in a christian community has just come to light. A white man at or near Aldrich recently forced his wife to submit her person to the criminal assault of his brother. The husband failing by threats to make her do his cowardly will, held and beat her into submission while his brother violated her person. No names are given in the interest of justice, as it is presumed the grand jury investigated the case. A swift punishment should follow their indictment, or the community should act.

Shelby Siftings.

Our town was visited with a light shower Sunday, which was very much needed we are prospecting for more rain in the near future.

Mrs. C. P. McLane, accompanied by her four promising little daughters, of Saginaw, are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McLane.

Rev. and Mrs. C. W. O'Hara, of Columbiana, were visiting friends here last Wednesday.

Miss Carrie Finch, of Anniston, is visiting relatives in the city for some time.

Mr. Green Duramus spent Sunday with the family of Mr. Mac Carter, returning to Birmingham Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Evans, of Columbiana, were in our city Monday.

Mr. Mac Carter is erecting a barn on his premises.

Annie, the beautiful and bright little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Avery, has been real sick for the past few weeks. Their many friends will sympathize with them.

Charles, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McLane, while gratifying his taste for the delicious persimmons fell from the tree last Sunday and injuriously crushed the bone of his thigh. The family has the sympathy from a large circle of friends.

Our Hebrew fellow-citizens strictly observed their holy convocation, Yom Kippor, or Day of Atonement, which occurred Wednesday the 6th.

The Methodism has a great influence in the hearts of our young women. I learned that a number of our fair daughters attended the quarterly conference in Columbiana last Saturday; among them, Misses Naldo Christian, Eloise Bell, Jessie Carter, and Mrs. W. R. Carter.

Mrs. W. H. Bell was quite indisposed last week. We are glad to learn that she is convalescent.

Professor Mynatt delighted his friends with a visit here last Saturday morning, who were exceedingly glad to see him, but regret that his staying was so short.

Rev. T. M. Wilson was in town Friday to solicit aid in the missionary cause.

Dr. C. C. Oliver, a former physician of this city, now at Calera, was in town Monday.

Capt. J. P. Christian, the genial manager of the Shelby Iron Company, and Mr. E. O. Blackford went to Birmingham last Friday, to purchase stock for the company. No doubt they secured all the mules indispensable.

Mrs. Emma Calohan, of Columbiana, spent Saturday with friends here. We always welcome the arrival of guests from our sister town.

Information has been received that one of our successful merchants, G. W. Crossett, was appointed store manager of the Shelby Iron Company, which may open on the 20th instant. Indubitably they selected a trustworthy man, who is well known in their sights. Mr. Crossett, an obedient man, whom we always found to be honest, steady, and correct in his habits and deportment, and well qualified for any position of trust in the performance of every duty, and one who endeavors to make his employers' interest his own.

Most everybody in our town is busy these days. No one idle enough to tell anecdotes, to fear for the apprehension of smallpox or yellow fever. A large number of our citizens are constantly employed for the preparatory of the blowing iron of the furnace. Farmers come in with their fresh eggs and meat, sell them and hurry back to gather their crops. If there is an idle ore digger, but stocky and unblemished, send him down.

Saginaw Drop Shots.

Rev. S. L. Dobbs, presiding elder, preached a very fine sermon here last Sunday to a good, attentive audience.

Miss Annie Clisby opened a day school here last Monday.

A protracted meeting has been going on here for the past 8 days. Rev. T. A. Van is very ably assisted by Rev. Burston, of Birmingham; the latter is doing the preaching. Rev. Burston is certainly a good man. The meeting may last several days yet. Professor Bird is in attendance and helping in the meeting also.

The Sunday school at this place has started up again; hope it will continue.

Mrs. Reed, who has been spending the summer here with her son, returned to her home at Woodlawn last Wednesday.

Mrs. C. P. McLane is visiting friends and relatives at Shelby this week.

Mrs. Green, of Montevallo, was in attendance at the meeting last week.

Mrs. W. G. Brown, of East Saginaw, was in our town visiting friends the first of last week.

Misses Lela and Nannie Fulton, of Maylene, were in attendance at the meeting last week.

Judge E. L. Fulton showed up at church Friday night, on his way home from court.

Miss Almer Hale is quite sick with fever. We hope she will soon recover.

Mr. E. R. Piper opened a day school 5 miles east of this place, near Lynch, last Monday.

A very nice shower of rain is now falling here.

Dixie Jim Nabors and wife attended church here Sunday.

Mr. A. M. Piper will soon have his new house so he can move into it.

Mr. C. E. Hale wants another 1 cent cigar from Mr. Hammond for a friend of his.

Hurrah for THE CHRONICLE, it gets better of late.

Tax payers will please meet me promptly with a legal description of real estate. I would call your especial attention to town property. Under the law the tax assessor is responsible for misdescription of the property, and I can not receive any property of this kind unless you furnish me with the block and lot number, or such a description as will enable any one to locate the property. Bring a correct list of your personal property. Will be in Columbiana from December 18 to the last of December, excepting the 25th. In order that I may not be rushed I would ask tax payers to meet us on first round. Tax books will positively be closed March 1.

Trustee's Sale.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a trust deed made by William Proctor and his wife, Dolly Proctor, as parties of the first part, to Jerry W. Goldsmith, Trustee, as party of the second part, and the Atlanta National Building & Loan Association as party of the third part, on the 15th day of October, 1897, which is recorded in mortgage book 27, page 519, in the office of the probate judge of Shelby County, Alabama, said Trustee, as party of the first part, has caused a house door of said county at public auction to the highest bidder for cash on Monday, October 25th, 1897, the following described property to be sold:

That certain lot or parcel of land situate in the County of Shelby and State of Alabama, and described as follows: All of Lots No. thirty-four (34) in the town of Montevallo, according to the plan of said town, (excepting eighty feet of the northwest and thereof fronting on Main Street). The said part hereby conveyed being more particularly described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of said lot No. (34) fifty four where Vine and Island Streets intersect thence northwest along Vine Street to a point distant eighty (80) feet southeast from Main Street, thence across said lot at right angles to Vine, to the line between lots thirty-four (34) and thirty-five (35), thence along said lot to Island Street, and thence northward along said Island Street to the beginning corner the said part of said lot being seventy-five feet in width and two hundred and sixteen feet in length, more or less.

Said foreclosure will be made by said Trustee, as party of the first part, and the Atlanta National Building & Loan Association, as provided in said deed of trust, on account of default made by the grantors in said deed of trust in the performance of the conditions therein contained.

ARE YOUR PROMISES SACRED?

BLANCHE BAILEY KING.

"Hell is paved with good intentions." This is a hard saying and one we don't care to dwell upon. It is so much pleasanter to think about heaven than hell. But I earnestly wish that everyone who reads this article would sit quietly for a few minutes and recall and write down the good intentions they mean to carry into effect but are putting off for a more "convenient season." The length of the list would frighten them and give them perhaps a faint idea of the harm they are doing. Harm to themselves as well as to others, for we all know that kindly, thoughtful, helpful deeds bring a blessing to the giver as well as the receiver. I have in mind a lovely woman, an invalid, and in very reduced circumstances, to whom a drive in summer, where she can enjoy country sights and sounds, brings new life and renewed strength to bear her sufferings.

She has told me of several ladies who own their comfortable carriages, who promise to take her such pleasant rides when the warm weather comes. "But they don't remember," she said, pathetically. Yet these same friends (?) were never known to forget to buy a ticket in time for the theatre or opera, or the day and hour of an "afternoon tea" or "reception." Such people are helping pave the way to the place it isn't considered polite to mention. I know a little woman who started a little lunch parlor, where for the trifling sum of ten cents she served a cup of delicious tea and a tempting sandwich. She was a cultivated woman, well known in social circles, but like so many of us now-a-days found it necessary to do her share towards keeping up the home. With a little encouragement and thoughtfulness on the part of her friends who urged the undertaking of this enterprise, it might have been successful and brought brightness and thankfulness into a lonely life. To be sure they came enthusiastically once or twice and promised to come often. They "intended" telling others and getting up interest. They told her they would get up little parties and come, and so it went on till with discouragement and heart-sickness from "hope deferred" the dainty cups carefully brought from the old home in England were put away, while if Miss B——'s friends had simply carried out their "good intentions" the little enterprise would have grown to something larger and a brave woman encouraged.

A friend told me a pathetic little story lately. She had been to see an old lady ninety-two years of age, who is confined to her bed from a fall several months ago. She is an unusually bright woman, very fond of seeing her friends, and the lady I refer to was so disappointed because one of those who had promised to come and read and chat had failed to make her appearance. "She forgot, I suppose," said the dear old lady.

Once put off going to see a sick friend from day to day. Each evening I "intended" going to-morrow, but I didn't go. I shall never forget my feelings when I read of her death in the paper. They were far from enviable. That is the saddest part of all when the time comes when it's too late to carry out our good intentions. Too late for the kindly, helpful words we fully intended speaking. Too late for the caress we would give our lives to bestow. Too late for the "promises made but never kept." Do you wonder that poor discouraged souls lose faith in human nature and in us Christians? Carry out your good intentions. Remember "the night cometh when no man can work."

Zanesville, Ohio.

Southern Wool Industry.

It is a fact not generally known that woolen manufacture is carried on quite extensively in the South. In seven southern States there are no less than 88 woolen mills, located as follows: Alabama, 2; Georgia, 5; Kentucky, 18; Mississippi, 1; North Carolina, 13; Tennessee, 25; and Virginia, 24. This industry is growing and expanding all the time, and at no distant day the South may hope to rival other sections of the country in woolen manufacture just as it is now doing in cotton manufacture. There is no good reason why this result can not be reached. Sheep thrive in southern States and require but little attention. The worst enemy here to the sheep is the miserable, worthless dogs, without home or master, that roam at large and live by killing these harmless animals. Rigid shot gun quarantine against this class of canines is the greatest safeguard to the sheep industry. Southern farmers would do well to give more attention to sheep raising, which has been badly neglected in many parts of the South. It is profitable and cheap. There is no doubt but that if proper effort was made the South could grow and manufacture all the wool it consumes. The trend is in that direction, as the steady expansion of the wool industry in this section indicates.—Birmingham News.

EXTRA SESSION.

Rumor That Congress May be Assembled Soon.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Rumors of an extra session of Congress are rife in Washington, and gossip in political circles has it, says a paper of Republican leaning, that a number of prominent members of the Senate and House have suggested to President McKinley that it would be a good idea to call Congress together in extra session on the 9th day of November. Just before the House adjourned, in July, Speaker Reed named the committees. Nearly all of these Republicans agree if their party is to be successful in the election next year it is absolutely necessary that the coming session should be brought to a close at the earliest possible moment. To have Congress remain in activity until July, August, or possibly September of 1898, means that the average Republican who is renominated can not get out in his district to run his campaign, and this is a most important matter to those who will have to run in districts that are close.

The President, according to some of his political friends, wants to have the currency question settled. The belief is general that he will recommend to Congress that the recommendations of the monetary commission shall be adopted, and the anti-gold standard Senators will fight that proposition to the last ditch. There will be the Cuban question to consider, unless the war should end, and the Hawaiian annexation treaty is another momentous matter that will have to be considered.

Ordinarily, the appropriation bills consume from six to seven months before they can be disposed of. Speaker Reed is known to be in favor of an extra session; but he prefers to leave the whole matter to the President.

Weak Lungs

If you have coughed and coughed until the lining membrane of your throat and lungs is inflamed, Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil will soothe, strengthen and probably cure. The cod-liver oil feeds and strengthens the weakened tissues. The glycerine soothes and heals them. The hypophosphites of lime and soda impart tone and vigor. Don't neglect these coughs. One bottle of the Emulsion may do more for you now than ten can do later on. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion.

The armor-plate board has been to Birmingham, and the result will be awaited with interest. We all hope for their selection of Birmingham.

SELMA is a nice old town, and she has some splendid people. She and they have a tender place in our heart, but a little waking up would do her good. And there are others.

The Age-Herald says that "those who claim to be Democrats and abuse Senator Gorman are not fit to touch the hem of his coat." We heartily concur and desire to extend the same remark to those who cast slurs at our Senator. Let the Age-Herald take its own diagnosis home with it.

CAPT. H. C. GRAHAM, of Selma, is a candidate for Secretary of State. He is an old war horse in politics and in the newspaper brigade, and is deserving of something good at the hands of his party. He will make a strong race. The Captain has many friends in Shelby County who will be glad to support him.

The Advertiser got out an extra the other day, and devoted a column and a half the next morning bragging about it. Newspaper enterprise is commendable, but if it is so rare as to be a source of so much self congratulation it is pitiable. One would think it is the only extra ever issued. We have seen daily papers get out three extras in one day and one at midnight and never say anything about it.

The candidates for supreme court justice are dividing on the money question, and are getting down to a scramble for the places. We would like to see dark horses nominated, and all the premature candidates left out entirely. For the sake of common decency let the judiciary be free from politics. It has enough to suffer with incompetency; let it be above the suspicion of dishonor.

The worst feature of the quarantine system is that it imposes upon the small places by unloading the refugees upon them. Travel should be shut off from a town suffering with a disease for the protection of the people at large. Were frost a little longer off there would be danger of an epidemic throughout the whole country.

THAT veteran editor, Chas. A. Dana, of the New York Sun, is dead. He has made newspaperdom much of its history and himself a reputation in his long career. He has been changeable, but always forceable. His unique definition of a newspaper man was, "A boy who sleeps on newspapers and eats ink." He had his enemies and his traducers, but he was a great man.

It is stated that under the workings of the new tariff for four months there is already a deficit of $50,000,000. A tariff measure, enacted ostensibly for the purpose of increasing the revenue, has so far failed as to further deplete the national treasury. It thus proves itself to be prohibitive in its results, and to be effective only in enriching the manufacturers. Of course some little benefit accrues to the workingmen, but the general public is left to suffer. The same old proposition is established: The people who furnished the money to elect McKinley are reaping a rich interest on their investment.

BALL, the good sensible lady writer of the Age-Herald, says the following:

Not until there is an educational test of political suffrage will there be a desire for knowledge from many of the voters of Alabama who can not at present sign their names or read their tickets on election day. This condition of illiteracy demands the immediate and constant attention of Alabama law-makers and politicians. That man who asks office at the hands of his fellow-citizens, and yet fears to take his stand for the universal education of the masses, is the ultimate educational test of suffrage, and is not worthy of the confidence of the voters of Alabama. He should be left at home. In the bosom of his family, until his moral courage equals his greed for office.

We tip our hat to Ball and can freely say to the above, "Them's our sentiments."

The Montgomery Advertiser, with all the positiveness of its nature, has flatly denied the existence of yellow fever in that place, working to protect the town's financial interest to the danger of the surrounding country. A newspaper ought to be less positive when at least grave doubts exist. The result in Montgomery proves conclusively one of two things—their board of physicians and their newspapers are thoroughly incompetent or they are very dishonest. Their action will do the town more harm than they sought to do good. Had they been honest she would have received sympathy; as it is they have the yellow fever and are being censured for trying to conceal it.

THE GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

The editor made a business trip to Montevallo the other day, and while there was captured by Captain Reynolds, the president of the Girls' Industrial School, who showed us his school from kitchen to chapel. We had seen the buildings before, but this time we saw the school in its actual workings; and, to use the Captain's enthusiastic words, "It is the brightest jewel in Alabama's educational coronet." It is the biggest thing already in Alabama in the school line, and its objects, its aims, its possibilities make it the grandest of our institutions.

We were present in the chapel at the opening exercises, and as we looked over the sea of faces it presented a beautiful picture; a reflection of bright intellects seeking knowledge, a mirror of pure souls gathering to themselves the strength, the power that is to make each life a factor in our future. The lady principal, Mrs. Mary C. Babb, is a woman of eminent qualifications for her position, as her management of the girls show. Like clock work they move almost without an audible command, and her duties are performed with a skill equal to her grace in the performance. The exercises were simple, but impressive, devout and pretty.

From here the Captain took us on a tour of inspection, and our interest was enlivened at each turn. Professor Simmons, the only male teacher in the faculty, was instructing a section of his class in mathematics, and we found about thirty-five young ladies taking trigonometry, an increase of 500 per cent over last session: Miss Stallworth, his efficient assistant, was also giving instruction in another branch. Boys have always been supposed to hold the key to the higher mathematical problems, but the girls are proving their capability in this science and will soon be startling the world with demonstrations.

Miss Annie Kennedy, whom we knew in old Bibb, has charge of the department of English. She is an educated, accomplished lady, whose manners and bearing are a lesson in themselves. Miss Fitts, a sister of the attorney-general, is her assistant, whose name is a sufficient guarantee of her ability. Miss Haley has the department of pedagogy and Latin, two important studies which are being efficiently taught.

In the department of typewriting and stenography we found a well-equipped room, presided over by a very competent teacher. This is one of the industrial branches, and a most useful one in this day of fast business life.

In the telegraph office we found Mrs. Florence Hudson, the wife of our old friend, Tom Hudson, the genial newspaper man. She is a bright little woman, an experienced operator, and she is teaching several girls a profitable profession. This is the only school in Alabama connected with the main line of the Western Union, giving it a direct communication with the outside world.

The art department is not thoroughly equipped yet, but the girls are already working hard from all sorts of models. A picture, the work of last year's class, adorns the chapel, and is the largest picture in the State.

Miss Alston has the class in physiology, another of the sciences that girls are just branching into.

The sewing department is divided into two rooms, well equipped, displaying a busy scene. The girls are here taught to make their own dresses and they have already orders for sewing from the outside which adds profit to the interest infused by the ladies in charge. Miss Lucy Leeper, one of Columbiana's students, has charge of the stock room, a very responsible position.

The department of cooking is said to appeal to all the gentlemen visitors, and we found it very attractive. No instruction was being given at the time, but we saw a neatly kept room with all the paraphernalia necessary to put together a palatable and wholesome meal. A list of presents donated to this department showed the interest taken in the science by many business firms.

The department of music, the only self-sustaining one of the school, is very much divided at present, it being necessary to find quarters in adjacent houses on the grounds. More than 150 girls are taking music, and there are five or more teachers. One can not remember all the names of the delightful ladies who are giving instruction to more than 300 girls, but the corps is a fine one, unequalled in the State.

An inspection of the dormitory building was a very interesting feature of our visit. This is presided over by Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Farrington, another evidence of Captain Reynolds's sagacity. Eighty girls are cared for there. The building is a splendid one and fitted with all the modern conveniences for comfort and safety.

There remains much to be done in the way of building, but it will be done.

Captain Reynolds is to be credited with the phenomenal success already attained. With all the help he has had, no other man in the State would have done the work he has done there, nor succeeded as he has. Every cent of money so far expended has been advanced by him so far as the building is concerned, the funds of the State not yet being available. We want to say now that when all the eyes of the commonwealth have seen the greatness of this institution Captain Reynolds's namesake will be written first on the shaft that rears itself in our minds. The State has done well, but it has hesitated. With the glorious possibilities already made apparent, if it should fail in its duty it will have dishonored itself and insulted its brightest heritage, its fair daughters.

What we would praise we must in all honor defend. In this connection we make bold to strike at one of the school's deadliest enemies. He calls himself a man and an Alabamian, and is an officer of the school. The executive board made one great mistake in the selection of a treasurer. This officer should reside at Montevallo for convenience, and he should be thoroughly in accord with the school.

The present treasurer, F. S. Moody, of Tuscaloosa, is by neither of these requisites competent for the position. On account of his local prejudice against Montevallo, a thing too contemptible for a man to indulge in, he is a direct enemy of the school. It takes a broad-minded man to fill public positions with success, and someone having this attribute ought to be selected to take Mr. Moody's place, and he left to nurse his jealousy in a position where it will not interfere with the school's success. He is aided by some other too wary to be caught, but they are all known, and they will not be able to hurt the school in any material way.

The women of Alabama have helped largely to make her brightest history, and the State owes their daughters a debt of gratitude which it can best pay by supporting this school. The man who attempts to strike it a blow is insulting his mother's memory, and he who fails to give it his cordial support is standing still in the path of his daughter's life. We add by way of parenthesis that the man who seeks to use this institution for political purposes is building a tomb for his own political resting place.

This school should and will be the especial pet of Alabama, and her greatest pride. An educated womanhood is an assurance of an intellectual citizenship, that condition indispensable to the future of a State. We may impart information to our youths, but we can not give them the character of perception and moral force that are the mother's peculiar gift. This, together with the preparation for independence, is what this school will bestow upon our girls, and it must be cherished. It will be. It is already an assured success.

DEMOCRATIC HARMONY.

The Baltimore Sun is one of those traitors to Democracy that is always clamoring for party harmony. With the Sun, as with all of its kind, harmony means a submission by everybody else to its way of thinking, to its preference for office. If it don't get this harmony is not accomplished. Senator Gorman, abused and attacked by the Sun, has written a letter to its editor, and we publish the press report of this letter in this issue. It is clothed in the words of patriotic greatness that can emanate only from a man of a superior class. We reproduce it because it contains the true spirit of harmony, and it is a lesson well worth studying by all those people in this State who much remind us of the Sun. The Senator's words are a rebuke to the spirit of petty jealousy and intolerance that takes possession of some people and the exclusion of common sense and good judgment.

There is a large class of people in the party to-day who, having been disappointed in some personal ambition or the failure of some pet measure, are jealous of the success of superior greatness and with these, as with the Sun, harmony can only be attained by the complete submission of every other interest to their own. All such people will do well to read this article and study carefully until they find out what the words of Senator Gorman mean. Of course the Sun will not accede to the Senator's proposition; nor will the people of Maryland in their wisdom displace a man of Gorman's ability, influence and power for the vapors of a soreheaded editor who has not supported anything Democratic in ten years. There is too much wisdom in the party in every section to let it be swallowed up by this class of egotists. Harmony at such a price would be worse than the imaginary chaos the defection of these people would produce. Senator Gorman's proposition will not come to pass; it will only serve to prove the insincerity of the Sun. The conditions in Maryland are a bit in evidence here just now. Gorman's noble words are peculiarly applicable to some of our men, and they are very appropriate to the occasion.

The city of Chattanooga was carried by the Democrats Tuesday, reversing the usual Republican majority.

We ARE puzzled to know when Henry George became a Democrat. It must be very recently. However, we are glad to see a change for the better at any time.

The Age-Herald intimates that the Montgomery doctors don't know the difference between yellow fever and canned salmon; unkind, but too near the truth.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

The escape of Miss Evangelina Cisneros from the Spanish prison at Havana last week has been a subject for several days of congratulation and comment by the American press. Charles D. Becker, of Washington, D. C., who belongs to the New York Journal staff, was her rescuer, and is consequently the hero of this country. He landed her in New York City last Friday, and she appeared at a public reception there on Saturday evening.

We are glad to learn of the big revival meeting at Calera. We hope some of the church members have gotten genuine religion. Some of them needed it, and needed it badly.

Friday is Alabama Day at the Nashville Centennial. It is expected there will be a full attendance of Alabamians, though not so many as would be, but for the existence of yellow fever in various portions of southern Alabama. People are afraid to travel, and it is very difficult to do so, owing to irregularities of trains and strict enforcements of quarantines.

No sign of frost yet, but a gentle, refreshing rain is now falling.

Birmingham is doing her royal best this week in showing the Government Armor Plate Committee the vast resources and advantages of the Magic City. The Republicans may never allow the Government Armor Plate factory planted there. If not, however, there will be sufficient plants located there to make it the greatest city in the South.

How would our young people of the city like a Halloween party? In various parts of the country christian organizations will entertain on Halloween for the benefit of their societies.

Now that court is over our meat market is closed. We will not need anything more to eat until next spring. It is the court folks that must be well fed; us town people never eat anything.

We expect to entertain our young people on Halloween night.

The ladies of this place, both young and old, are requested to meet on Friday evening next at 7.30, at the Central Hotel, for the purpose of organizing a woman's literary society. We hope there will be a full attendance. We expect to compete with the gentlemen's literary society, which has already organized. "Competition is the life of trade," and we hope it will be the life of our social circle this winter.

FERTILIZER LICENSE.

The following will be of interest to a good many of our readers:

HON. I. F. CULVER,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

DEAR SIR:—I have your note of this day, making inquiry about the liability of certain persons for the payment of the license to sell or exchange fertilizers in this State.

I find that Section 139 of the Code is as follows: "Commercial fertilizers must not be sold or exchanged without a license from the Commissioner, authorizing the person making the sale or exchange to deal therein. All sales or exchanges made without such license are void." This Section means that each and every person or firm dealing in fertilizers must take out the license. Traveling salesmen for non-resident dealers constitute the only exception, and this because of the Interstate Commerce feature which attaches to them. No local dealer or non-resident who handles or exchanges fertilizers can escape the payment of this license tax upon the theory that he is the agent for the manufacturer. It is not a tax against the manufacturers alone, but a tax against the dealers as well, and must be paid by each and every dealer who ventures into the fertilizer business.

In this connection allow me to call your attention to Section 4157 of the Criminal Code, which is as follows: "Any person who sells or exchanges fertilizers without having obtained a license from the Commissioner of Agriculture, as provided by law, must, on conviction, be fined not less than one hundred dollars for each offense." If you find any trouble in collecting the license from persons known to be dealing in fertilizers, I suggest that you send the names of such persons or firms to the Solicitor of Circuit in which such business is conducted in order that proceedings may be instituted under the section last cited.

Yours very truly,
WILLIAM C. FITTS,
Attorney-General.

Persistent Coughs

A cough which seems to hang on in spite of all the remedies which you have applied certainly needs energetic and sensible treatment. For twenty-five years that standard preparation of cod-liver oil, has proved its effectiveness in curing the trying affections of the throat and lungs, and this is the reason why: the cod-liver oil, partially digested, strengthens and vitalizes the whole system; the hypophosphites act as a tonic to the mind and nerves, and the glycerine soothes and heals the irritation. Can you think of any combination so effective as this?

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion. See that the man and fish are on the wrapper.

TRUE TO HIS PARTY.

Willing to Sacrifice Himself on the Altar of Democracy.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15.—United States Senator Gorman to-day issued an open letter to Edwin Abell, publisher of the Baltimore Sun, in which he offers to relinquish the leadership of the Democracy in Maryland, provided Mr. Abell will accept it and support the Democratic ticket in the coming State and legislative campaign. He also intimates that he will forego his ambition to succeed himself in the United States Senate if it can be shown that such a step is necessary to Democratic success.

The letter, which is a very long one, reviews the course of the Sun in its opposition to Mr. Gorman, because of his views upon civil service, tariff, and ballot reform measures. To all these charges made against him Mr. Gorman pleads guilty, but quotes the Sun as having admitted that such questions were merely matters of opinion and asserted that every man was free to think as he pleased regarding them. He defended his course in regard to all these questions and concludes with the following proposition:

"And now, Mr. Abell, let us pass to a question concerning which there can be no misunderstanding. These statements and counter-statements, arguments and retorts—all this petty class of protestation and impeachment amount to very little at the best. You have declared your undying devotion to the Democratic party and have said that my leadership, my personal ambitions, my selfish purposes and these only prevent you from restoring your newspaper to the service of the loyal people who originally made it rich and powerful by their patronage, their confidence and their support. You have given Maryland to understand that but for me and 'bossism' you are pleased to attribute to me, you would bring back the Baltimore Sun upon its old moorings and devote it to the exposition of Democratic principles and the confusion and overthrow of Republican rule in this State.

"You have stated in effect, certainly with the intention of being so understood, that you still love the Democratic party and still wish to see it predominant in Maryland, and you thereby involve yourself in a pledge to cast off your Republican affiliations, repudiate your Republican alliances, and labor, heart and soul, for the success of the Democratic party as it will remain after being purged of me.

"If you be sincere in this, the solution of the difficulty is simple enough. If my aspirations, my leadership, my influence constitute the only obstacles to your return to the people who made your newspaper and founded your finances and gave reality to your position and power, I stand ready to remove them. Office is less to me than you suppose. Political leadership is not so necessary to my happiness as you, in your ignorance of my character and my motives, are pleased to say. Strange as it may seem to you I am willing to surrender every prospect of personal promotion, if by so doing I can reunite the Democratic party, restore to its ranks all their pristine strength and harmony, remove the dissensions and animosities that now exist and repair the humiliating spectacle presented by yourself and your way of thinking—the spectacle of the Democratic party betrayed into the hands of the enemy by those whom Democrats have in the past exalted and enriched. I do not undertake to say how much you or any other man may love the Democratic party, but I know how much I love it, and I know I have no personal ambitions I will not sacrifice for its honor and welfare. I know, too, that I have no affiliations, no engagements, no plans of any kind that could by any possibility embarrass me in making this proposed arrangement.

"You may understand this as an overture of surrender on my part—as an admission that the Democratic organization can not hope for further life without your aid and countenance.

"I am prepared for that. I have been misunderstood by you so long and so unreasonably that a little more or less will count for nothing. As a matter of fact, I am satisfied that the people of Maryland have become disgusted with the Republican mal-administration which you did so much to make possible and that they are in the humor to make an end of the experiment. It is not only what has been done, it is also the extravagance and corruption which they see awaiting them in the event of a perpetuation of Republican rule. They feel that every substantial interest in the State is jeopardized, and they are ready and willing to restore to power the Democratic party, which has not hitherto betrayed them and in whose hands they will know their interests to be secure. I know this without a shadow of a doubt. But they want also a restoration of the former harmony of the party. They want to see the old ties restored and the old operations rehabilitated. And I owe them so anxious to feel not only willing but anxious to consummate any wish of theirs, no matter at what cost to me.

"Are you ready and willing and free to meet me on this ground in good faith? In all loyalty, without provisos or reservations on the honor of a gentleman are you at liberty to take charge personally and through your agents of the Democratic campaign for the mayoralty of Baltimore, for the success to that place in the Senate concerning which you have but one desire—that of seeing it filled by a Democrat, whose loyalty to the party is unquestioned and proved and who will undertake to uphold the principles to which you profess unselfish and sincere devotion?

"I am ready to meet you more than half way. Let our fellow citizens judge between us by the measure of our personal acts and loyalty to our religion."

Jeffersonian Tests.

[Age-Herald.]

The peanut and ring politicians of these days need a set-back from the people. Jefferson was the father of American Democracy. He was always sincere and always wise in his advice. His tests for public office were embodied in these questions:

"Is he capable—is he honest?" The questions cover the whole ground. When a candidate for office is capable of filling it properly and is honest, what more can be wanted? Jefferson believed that in a republic the people and their officials should follow simple modes of life. He disliked large landed estates, and favored small farms. To prevent men from accumulating too much wealth, he suggested a graded income tax. He believed in gold and silver as a currency on equal terms.

He always stood for the liberty of the citizen. He would never have favored government by injunction. He was a hater of monarchy, and if he were living now he would interfere in behalf of Cuba. He had no use for insolent and uniformed officials and delighted in calling them down. If our young men and the masses would study the teachings of this great American they would organize for the purification of our politics, and bench tyrants, rings and ring methods and the whole shynock crowd would have to take back seats. Jeffersonian Democracy is what the country needs.

Fruit and Nuts.

Green figs, according to a prominent medical journal, are excellent food. Walnuts give nerve or brain food, muscle, heat and waste. Raisins are stimulating in proportion to their quality. Pine kernels give heat and stay. They serve as a substitute for bread.

Apples supply the higher nerve and muscle food, but do not give stay.

Oranges are refreshing and feeding, but are not good if the liver is out of order.

Dried figs contain nerve and muscle food, heat and waste; but are bad for the liver.

Blanched almonds give the higher nerve or brain and muscle food; no heat or waste.

Green water-grapes are blood purifying (but of little food value); reject pips and skins.

Blue grapes are feeding and blood purifying; too rich for those who suffer from the liver.

Tomatoes. Higher nerve or brain food and waste; no heat; they are thinning and stimulating. Do not swallow skins.

Juicy fruits give more or less the higher nerve or brain, and some few, muscle food and waste; no heat.

Lemons and tomatoes should not be used daily in cold weather; they have a thinning and cooling effect.

Prunes afford the highest nerve or brain food; supply heat and waste, but are not muscle-feeding. They should be avoided by those who suffer from the liver.

The great majority of small, fresh seed fruits are laxative.

All stone fruits are considered to be injurious for those who suffer from the liver, and should be used cautiously.

A Question.

The publisher of a newspaper has one thing to sell and one thing to rent. He has the newspaper to sell and the space of his columns to rent. Can anyone inform us why he should be expected to give away either the one or the other? He can if he so chooses, and he does, as a matter of fact, furnish a great deal of space rent free. But it does not follow that he ought to be expected to do so. It ought to be recognized as a contribution, exactly as would be the giving away of sugar or coffee by a grocer. But, strange to say, it is not looked upon in that light at all; yet everybody knows that the existence of a newspaper depends upon the rent of its space and the sale of the paper, as a merchant's success depends on selling his goods instead of giving them away.—Copy Hook.

HAS LONG OUTLIVED ITS TIME.

The Present Constitution is a Back Number.

TWENTY-THREE YEARS AGO HOUSTON

Showed the Necessity for a Change in the Constitution and it is Needed Now.

[JOHN W. DEBOSE in the Age-Herald.]

The Age-Herald has not so far to go for precept and example in the movement for a new constitution for Alabama. Ten years ago The Age, from it whom descended on one side of the house, published the first editorial demand for a convention. The press in all quarters responded approvingly. The city editor sent his reporters out to interview the leading lawyers of Birmingham. There seemed to be the one opinion only, that the State was entitled to an organic law different from the work of 1875, now oppressing us with its makeshifts and its fabric of prohibitions.

Let us remember that it was an effort conceived in desperation, the attempt to elect Houston in 1874. The Democrats had failed with the gallant and eloquent Herndon in the election of 1872, and failed badly. It was said Herndon met defeat because he abused the Republicans too much, even in that gentlemanly style that was inseparable from his satire; that Herndon had been a Confederate soldier of too good record. The question came into every man's mouth, How can a Democrat be elected if Herndon falls so far below the mark?

Houston was next thought of. It was said the mountaineers knew him in his long service in Congress before the war, and were proud of the honors he had won for the State there. He had been chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means. Houston did not at first thought incline toward the race, but finally entered it. Robert McKee then held the Selma Argus up to the top notch of weekly journalism. Probably the paper had the widest circulation and influence ever held by any one journal in the two kinds of agricultural population of Alabama, the white farmers of the hills and the white planters of the black belt. Since then many planters have abandoned residence on their estates in the prairies and moved their families to the towns and villages. Not so in 1874. They lived as they had lived before the war. Cotton crops gave an income and negro laborers had approximately the old gait and staying qualities. The Argus came regularly every Friday afternoon fresh from the press and fresh in soul-stirring invective against the Republicans, lead nominally by David P. Lewis, their candidate for reelection, but really by certain bosses in every district who could accommodate themselves to dirty work that was Greek to the gentlemanly governor at Montgomery. McKee took this gang on the forked tongue of satire and vehement ridicule through and through his columns ceaselessly and relentlessly. They came to the point of watching for his shadow. He made the Argus wider, then stretched it longer until it was big enough by election day for a bed spread. No line fell into its columns that was not sharp, hot and appropos. While the press did its work Gen. John T. Morgan, then a good horseman, took a little pony and climbed among all the mountain counties. He spoke for Houston day in and day out, talked for Houston among the farmers where he staid all night, and kept this up for weeks without intermission. Riding alone one day to meet an appointment he observed off the road an hundred yards or so the horses of the farmers tied to trees in large numbers about a church. Tying his own pony he walked in, taking a back seat. In a little while one of the leaders of the religious service going on arose and said he perceived General Morgan seated in the congregation and would invite him to come up higher. The General meekly accepted. After the preacher had finished his discourse the General was called on for a talk. He promptly ascended the pulpit, opened the volume of Holy Writ, with whose texts he had always been singularly familiar, chose his own portion, read it and for two hours expounded it to suit Houston.

Houston, a week before the election of 1874, came down in the prairies and made a speech in Marion. I met him on the train going out from Selma and was surprised to hear him say he "really believed he stood a good chance for election." He was almost the only person alive who did think so. These were reflections of the hidden Democratic light that Clanton had revealed and that Bragg was nursing. The legislature made a bold, half doubting strike while the iron was hot. The resolve to get rid of the bastard foisted on the State by an act of Congress, after the people, by consent of the same Congress, had voted on it and refused to have it, came quick and was rushed through. The legislature that came in with Houston was well filled with young men of heroic mould. They demanded a constitutional convention. It assembled September, 1875, and was composed of men different to a degree, from the legislature that called it. The delegates elected from Marengo was Hon. F. S. Lyon, then nearly 76 years old; from Mobile went Hon. Charles C. Langdon, an old and infirm man, a native of New England and a Whig. Messrs. Lyon and Langdon had been very conspicuous and honorable leaders in the earlier times in Alabama. They held positions of almost decisive influence in the constitutional convention of 1875 on their ancient fame. They had both been notable as "compromise" men throughout their distinguished respective careers of public service. I think I am not mistaken when I say Mr. Lyon is the author of the provision forbidding suit against the State, a very important provision, with the end in view. I know he supported it in debate on the floor.

Suffice it to be said the present constitution was never devised for the Alabama that was really not existent in an aspirational sense, until in these later years, ten or a dozen, after 1875. If this present constitution, hung together in a storm, under a leaky roof and set upon a foundation not congenial to the land it rests on, if it suits the Alabama that calls for the restoration of Mobile as a distributive center of her commerce and money; the Alabama that is preparing canals and improved waterways; that is multiplying her rail mileage while the other States rest; that is multiplying cotton mills while Fall river flows by more and more unused; that is tired of State and unprofitable rascality in election returns; that is today busy overhauling the fiscal public accounts of many "favorite sons;" that can show Commodore Howell the things he saw the other day in intelligent amazement--that's all. That kind of a pacified State can't be taken in out of the rain.

But it does not please Alabama, the real Alabama, to live as she does. The majority of real Alabama know that the organic law is superannuated, that it was made by men living in glass houses, as it were, and in the light of facts is not and can not be an adequate law upon which social conditions of 1897 can in nature be equitably adjusted. The people have seen for years and continue to see and appreciate the descending character of the legislature palmed off on them every year. They ought to know and do know that they can not get representative men to take seats in the legislature when seven-eighths of the time they must be in their places is taken up with the swapping of favoring votes over local legislation of the most trivial nature. Every lawyer reflects that a constitution behind the times and below the actual social conditions of the people is a very sorry foundation for an enlightened practice. Lawyers grow less and less certain what law is, when cases go to a supreme court that, in the nature of things and in observance of the cardinal principles of natural, practical right, must look higher than the limits of the organic law for natural equity in its decrees.

Some there are who fail to see the peril of a degraded legislature and the greater peril of a court unrestrained by an impracticable conscience, yet who shrug their shoulders and put on ominous countenances when the only available conservator of our active social forces, a new and up-to-date organic law, is suggested. They are afraid!

YELLOW FEVER NEWS.

The Whole State is Affected by the Epidemic.

Monday's press dispatches give the following indication of the condition existing in Alabama:

Never before in the history of this section has there been so many and such a variety of quarantines as now exist. The appearance of sporadic cases of yellow fever at various points has had the effect of creating a panic in numerous small towns in this State and Mississippi. There is scarcely a railroad station in north Alabama or northern Mississippi now but has its shotgun brigade, which permits no stranger to enter its gates. The result is an almost complete paralysis of railroad traffic. In their excitement and fear a number of places have quarantined against the world, and for an outsider to attempt to enter is to incur the risk of losing his life.

The State quarantine which was put on last night against Selma, prevents anyone from leaving that city for uninfected points in the State, just as has been the case at Montgomery since the outbreak occurred there. Hundreds of people, however, got out of Selma before the fever was officially declared, and many are said to be camping in the woods, while others are occupying negro cabins on farms in Dallas County.

The people of Montgomery are loud in their condemnation of Governor Johnston for leaving his official residence, and then after he got away, refusing to let anybody else from Montgomery go to those places located high and dry in north Alabama, which are willing to receive refugees. The Montgomery Advertiser charges that the Governor has himself violated his own quarantine by coming to Birmingham before he had been ten days out of Montgomery. The Governor has opened his office temporarily at the Alabama National Bank, of which he was, for many years, president, in this city. He says that he is only carrying out the provisions of the State statutes in enforcing the State quarantine against Montgomery and refuses to modify any of the regulations. His action is concurred in by those members of the State Board of Health who reside outside of infected places.

Frost fell over north Alabama last night as far south as Blount Springs, which is located thirty-three miles north of here. This has given rise to the hope that in a very short time a killing frost will occur all over north and middle Alabama.

Today has been the liveliest Sunday Selma has seen since the Wilson raid, at the close of the war. The day opened with a departure of a refugee train for Rome, Ga., with fully a thousand people on board, and the exodus has continued unabated, hundreds going to the country in wagons. Three new cases have developed today.

THE QUEEN BEHIND THE FINGER.

Lillian Bell Cuts Her First Taste of Real Liberty in England.

Miss Lillian Bell, who is narrating her impressions of the Old World and its people for the Ladies' Home Journal, writes from London in the November issue of that magazine: "I have seen the Houses of Parliament and the Tower and Westminster Abbey, and the World's Fair, but the most impressive sight I ever beheld is the upraised hand of a London policeman. I never heard one speak except when spoken to. But let one little blue-coated man raise his forefinger and every vehicle on wheel stops, and stops instantly; stops in obedience to law and order; stops without swearing or gesticulating or abusing; stops with no underhanded trying to get out of line and get by on the other side; just stops, that is the end of it. And why? Because the Queen of England is behind that raised finger. Why, a London policeman has more power than our President. Even the Queen's coachmen obey that forefinger. Understanding how to obey, that makes liberty."

"I am the most flamboyant of Americans, the most hopelessly addicted to my own country, but I must admit that I had my first real taste of liberty in England. I will tell you why. In America nobody obeys anybody. We make our laws, and then most industriously set about studying out a plan by which we may evade them. America is suffering, as all republics must of necessity suffer, from liberty in the hands of the multitude. The multitude are ignorant, and liberty in the hands of the ignorant is always license."

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana, Ala., as second class matter.

A BIT BEHIND.

The editor of the Age-Herald is evidently a newcomer in Alabama; at least he displays a considerable lack of familiarity with our affairs, or rather with our political conditions. Perhaps, though, that want of information causes him to take his present position, or no position at all. At any rate he wants it distinctly understood that he is not discussing politics just now, and is very much disgusted with those who are doing so. His purpose is to wait until the campaign is upon him and then he will say something. The trouble with this promoter of material interests is that he doesn't know us. The campaign is already on and he is not aware of it. The campaign is always on in Alabama, and the man who waits until near election time to chip in will find the field all worked out and himself left at the post.

But the Age-Herald thinks that papers devoting their columns to politics are serving cliques, and that they keep up a din to keep themselves and their ring in power. On one side that is true, but the other side must keep up with the din, else the ring will always be in power. We have some mighty clever politicians, and several in Jefferson County, and if the Age-Herald will continue to devote itself to the material progress of Birmingham those politicians will have a great big ring drawn around the party in that county that will take in the Age-Herald without its knowledge or consent.

The people, too, have much more interest in these things than our brother thinks. They have a peculiar way of looking after their business themselves and leaving the newspapers to keep them informed on political affairs. They expect it of us, and if they don't get it they regard us very coolly. Besides they look in the news columns for business, but if they read editorials they look for political ones, and if there is no politics they don't read editorials.

Now, of course, the Age-Herald has no reference to us country papers, because it distinctly said "journal," but as a common editor we thought we might be allowed to suggest to the journalist of the Age-Herald that he may possibly know more about our customs after awhile. He will certainly learn better than to wait until just before election to turn his attention to politics.

MONTGOMERY wanted strict quarantine until she got the fever; then she wanted it abolished, or what was more unreasonable, modified to suit the convenience of her people. She is hard to please anyhow.

We republish on the outside of this issue an article from the pen of John W. DuBose, who is both a good historian and an able writer. He deals with a live subject, and makes it interesting. The article contains much of valuable history and from it draws some sound conclusions.

Our neighbor, the Advocate, has a new editor now; or at least, it has the old editor back again. Its brief incognito editor did not stay at the helm long enough to answer our request for his political principles, and the request will remain unanswered. We congratulate our neighbor, at any rate, on having an editor who can let himself be known.

POLITICS has become so interwoven with business in this section, and so much of our business success depends upon untangling the political net, that he who would aid in our material progress must keep fully up with the political movements. One even has to watch the political schemes with one eye while he looks for microbes with the other.

THE ADVERTISER, in a very apologetic strain, emphasizes its honesty of purpose in denying the existence of yellow fever there so long. In thus asserting its good intention it throws the responsibility on the physicians; and while we accept the Advertiser's statement as correct, we must believe the other of the two things we could not decide between before—the ignorance of some very prominent doctors.

THE AGE-HERALD gives figures in receipts and disbursements of the Government for the period from August 1 to the middle of October for the past three years. From these we gather some interesting information. The receipts for that period of 1897, under the Dingley tariff, are less by $10,843, 859 than for 1895, under the Wilson tariff; the disbursements are less by $2,948,815, and the deficit is greater by $7,902,054. These figures need no comment; they speak for themselves.

POLITICS AND YELLOW FEVER.

Or, perhaps we should say, yellow fever in politics, for there is little nowadays that does not end in politics. When Mr. Ingalls said, "Purity in politics is an iridescent dream," he very nearly spoke a maxim, for it has gotten to be almost a self-evident proposition that any and all things go in politics. But when incidents connected with an epidemic of disease are converted into political capital it is about time to stop and inquire where we are at.

A so-called citizens' club, headed by Ex-Governor Jones, who was elected and upheld by the people through their loyalty to the Democratic party rather than any sympathy they had with the methods that nominated him, got up a request to the present Governor to modify the quarantine regulations for Montgomery's special benefit, knowing that no man could afford to grant such a request, and when the expected denial came proceeded to use it as political capital. All the circumstances surrounding the lengthy correspondence between the Governor and the Ex-Governor go to prove it a deliberate attempt to entrap the former into a position where he could be shown to be heartless and to make him unpopular.

It is not our purpose to defend Governor Johnston's course; he is not without his faults, and he doubtless knows how to use circumstances for his own advantage, but he is also acting as the law and justice seem to make it his duty. But we feel that some words of censure ought to be spoken of such methods; and we take occasion to express our regret that politics, the science of government, has degenerated into politics, the practice of trickery. It is passing strange that we can not have men announce themselves for office on some high ground and have their opponents meet them like men, instead of striking with low, contemptible methods. While Alabama has some good men in office, while most of her officials are capable and discharge their duties with a high degree of satisfaction, few of them, if any, depend upon clean, pure methods for their promotion. There must be some swapping, some resignation of their real manhood for success. With all of our good officers and clean records we blush to think that we can only name one who holds his position as a pure, free, unsought gift of his people, and there are they who seek to malign him and to use their dirty schemes to besmirch his political character. He was elected years ago when men were sought for ability alone, and his preeminent fitness and absolutely clean methods so endear him to the people as to place him beyond the reach of the politicians. If there is another man holding public office in Alabama who can say he never sought the personal support of his people or did anything in his official career for the especial purpose of holding their support, let him speak and we will apologize for not knowing him.

In very striking contrast to this political wonder is the coterie of political renegades who do not hesitate to use a yellow-fever stricken community for the furtherance of their schemes to defeat the very man who made their preferment possible in a very unsavory deal a few years ago.

We will doubtless be regarded as a demagogue for these expressions, but there are methods that make even a partisan blush. There is a strong cry for harmony, but it will never come so long as politics are so unclean. When ex-governors and governors and judges and daily papers mix up in such low methods the people can not be expected to harmonize. Such politicians have got ten a long way off from Democracy, and until they get back it will be hard to lead men to our party. If these are the methods we are to harmonize upon we beg to be excused.

Free silver, ballot-box stuffing, anything is preferable in politics to yellow fever.

An approximate estimate of the quantity of vacant public lands in the several States and Territories at the close of the year shows that Alabama still has 532,339 acres.

THE SENTINEL says that Columbiana has lost its head and quarantined against Calera. Now, how the Sentinel got that idea we can not imagine, unless it be one of those cases where the hit dog hollers. Nobody here knew that we had quarantined against Calera, because we had not heard that our neighbor had even a suspicious case. If the Sentinel had read the last issue of this paper it would have saved it much trouble over this matter. No, we have not lost our head; we only quarantined against infected places and those receiving refugees, and until Calera comes under this category we will be glad to have her come up and see us any time.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. Gist.

When we announced our intentions of a Halloween party, we at the time did not remember the Baptist meeting would be in progress. We would not for any amount be guilty of interfering with the meeting, hence abandon the idea of Halloween festivities.

The Woman's Literary Society was organized last Friday evening at the Central Hotel, and on next Friday evening, of next week, at 7.30 o'clock will meet at the same place. Owing to the services at the Baptist church this week we abandon any efforts for the literary society at present; but our people can bear in mind that we are organized, and expect to have through the coming season a FIRST CLASS organization. We understand that the young men's debating society, which goes under the guise and name of a literary society, have passed a resolution to invite the ladies to join them. We thought in the beginning they ought to have had hearts and souls enough to extend an invitation to the ladies, if they expect to carry on a purely literary society, but they preferred waiting until they got in harness, got all their officers elected, etc., and now, when they have gotten up some subjects for discussion that demand some good, brilliant intellect, they decide to invite the ladies in and to any who choose to do so. It is alright, and we haven't the slightest objection. We heard—and from a reliable source—that they were afraid if they invited the ladies they would have so much bad behavior they couldn't maintain order. Gracious! We would not trespass within the walls of their domain for double wages. This must indeed be the greatest, most dignified of all organizations. May peace, prosperity, and good will abide with them. If there is any timber in this town capable of misconduct at public gatherings they can't abide with our society. The perpetrator of the first and every violation of good behavior, should there be any, will be shown the door, and may come no more. It will be no place for courtship, frolic, or fun, neither will it be a prayer meeting or an asylum for a "man." Next week we will say more.

People in our section hardly feel like organizing into societies just now, owing to the distress from the terrible yellow fever scourge. Nearly everyone, though we be protected and feel safe ourselves from the grasp of this fearful monster, have friends, relatives, and loved ones who are in the infected regions, and are liable at any hour to be snatched away from all earthly ties. We can scarcely talk or think of anything else. Indeed it seems the great and expensive quarantine system is proving this year to be of little benefit or effect. Like a thief in the night the yellow fever creeps in, unbidden and unwelcome, and hovers over the people in almost every section of the South.

It has occurred to us that our leading politicians of the State are determined upon dragging and trailing the name of our beloved Alabama in the dust of humility and degradation. That Governor Johnston's State quarantine action should be criticised and used as a political tool which will be paraded before the public, discussed and looked upon with disgust all over these United States, is something to bow down with humility any head that possesses an atom of pride or patriotism. When politicians of our State have arrived at the point of this polluted condition we would ask in the name of reason where will it all end? A few more years of this wrangle, rot and tangle in the politics of Alabama and she can no longer stand upon her own footing, and the Government and Congress will have to take her in hand. Oh, ye mighty and brainy men, where are you leading our State to? Not to a place of pride and independence, but to disgrace and helplessness.

Karl Decker and Evangelina Cisneros were greeted at Convention Hall, in Washington, D. C., by 12,000 people. Cissy will no doubt make enough on the American stage to compensate for her imprisonment in Cuba. Probably the New York Journal and Mr. Decker made this feature a part of the scheme, having an eye to their own pockets as well as the noble deed of releasing Miss Cisneros. Her stage life so far is at least very tame and harmless, and most of us would like to see her, so long as she appears with only a smile and a bow, robed in white satin and a long fur wrap.

There was a remote possibility last Monday morning that Mr. Elliott would do a most remarkable lively business for a short time. If Columbiana had opened her doors to refugees the town would have been depopulated in ten hours.

This town had a rare treat on last Saturday. A cow, which was grown, and did good service to Adam and Eve, was butchered and distributed among our people.

Hammond sells Red Apple and Broad Axe tobacco, 72 spits to every chew. Try it. 23sep3m

I am going to close up all my accounts the end of this month. If I owe you anything hand in your bill. J. H. HAMMOND.

A series of meetings is in progress at the Baptist church. The pastor is assisted by Rev. Mr. Dickinson, of Pratt City, who is doing some good work among us.

To heal the broken tissues, to soothe the irritated surfaces, to instantly relieve and to permanently cure is the mission of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. J. E. Seale & Co.

Spoons are out. However, with every cash dollar's worth of goods bought of me I will give you a nice cake of Toilet Soap. Come and see. J. H. HAMMOND.

Messrs. Browne and Longshore attended justice court at Montevallo last Saturday, and came back with only one buggy trace. It is not evidence where they left the other one.

No man or woman can enjoy life or accomplish much in this world while suffering from a torpid liver. DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the pills that cleanse that organ, quickly. J. E. Seale & Co.

NO REFUGEES WANTED.

Citizens Say So in a Public Meeting.

Monday morning Mayor Longshore received from Governor Johnston the following telegram:

OCTOBER 25, 1897.
To Mayor of Columbia:
Are your city and health authorities willing to receive refugees from infected places? Reply.
JOS. F. JOHNSON.

After a consultation with a few citizens the mayor called a meeting of citizens at the courthouse. Quite a number gathered, and the mayor stated that he wanted to know the sentiments of the people so that he might answer the inquiry intelligently.

Dr. Rowe gave his professional opinion that no danger would result to the natives from opening our doors to refugees. Mr. White said that he thought there was too little necessity for a place of refuge to justify removing a quarantine, and as a business matter he did not think we could afford to do it. He was seconded by Judge McMillan, Mr. Page and Mr. Mason.

The following resolution was then offered and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the mayor be instructed to reply to the Governor that the city of Columbiana has already established a rigid quarantine, and prefers to keep it in force until all semblance of danger has passed, or until some urgent necessity presents itself for aiding actual sufferers.

In line with this the mayor replied to the Governor's telegram.

No mail was received here Sunday nor Monday from the north-bound train, both passing through at a rapid speed. No one was allowed to stop here whom the marshal was not fully satisfied with.

Moments are useless if trifled away; and they are dangerously wasted if consumed by delay in cases where One Minute Cough Cure would give immediate relief. J. E. Seale & Co.

Rev. Mr. Sinnott got caught at Calera the other day while the train was running through, and had to foot it home. He ought not to have done it. Makes one think the brethren there were too thoughtless to send him.

Certainly you don't want to suffer with dyspepsia, constipation, sick headache, sallow skin and loss of appetite. You have never tried DeWitt's Little Early Risers for these complaints or you would be cured. They are small pills but great regulators. J. E. Seale & Co.

A telegram was received here Tuesday announcing that Mr. W. A. Walburn, of Johns, Ala., had been killed there the day before. No particulars have been received, but as he was an engineer it is supposed that it was an accident. He was the son-in-law of Mrs. Anchors, of this place, and was well known by most of our citizens.

Running sores, indolent ulcers and similar troubles, even though of many years' standing, may be cured by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It soothes, strengthens and heals. It is the great pile cure. J. E. Seale & Co.

To Subscribers.

We have sent out to our agents lists of all subscriptions due to November 1. We hope our county readers will do us the favor of calling on the agent at their respective places and paying to them by that date. We have not tried to collect the many small amounts due until now, and we trust to have a prompt response. If subscriptions are not paid by that time we shall take it for granted they do not want the paper longer, and will act accordingly. THE CHRONICLE will do its best to give its readers full value for their money the coming year, and will have to collect promptly to do so. We hope to have renewals from all those now expired, and to get many new ones. If you desire to do so and will send us four new subscribers together with $1, we will credit you with a year's subscription, or if you are paid up will give you $1 of the money. In this way you can help us, help the things we are trying to push forward, and get paid for doing it. The coming year will be one of much interest politically, and you ought to help circulate the paper of your political faith if you want to win. Let us have your aid and see how well we can appreciate it.

Small precautions often prevent great mischiefs. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are very small pills in size, but are most effective in preventing the most serious forms of liver and stomach troubles. They cure constipation and headache and regulate the bowels. J. E. Seale & Co.

Lester, Mason & Co. handle all the publications of the American Bible Society, any of which can be purchased at cost.

The "Bicyclist's Best Friend" is a familiar name for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, always ready for emergencies. While a specific for piles, it also instantly relieves and cures cuts, bruises, salt rheum, eczema and all afflictions of the skin. It never fails. J. E. Seale & Co.

Dr. E. B. Teague is assisting in the Baptist meeting this week.

Shelby Siftings.

Mrs. Lizzie Sawyer, accompanied by her two children, of Clanton, are visiting relatives in our town.

Mrs. Chas. McLane and little daughters, after a very pleasant stay of two weeks to her husband's relatives here, returned to their home in Ganadurque last Wednesday.

Mr. William Walker, formerly a popular salesman for Avery & Avery, of this city, now occupying a similar position with the Saginaw Lumber Co., was the guest of Mr. A. H. Avery's family Sunday.

E. C. Parker and a very attractive young lady, whose name is unknown to the writer, were guests to our town Sunday.

W. W. McGowan, the genial and handsomest correspondent of your highly prized paper, or better known as "Pat," of Wilsonville, was in town Monday. While here he made many friends. A warm welcome awaits him should he ever return.

Susceptible, pleasing, and eloquent sermons were delivered at the Methodist church Sunday morning by Rev. H. M. Millstead, and at the Congregational church at night by Rev. A. T. Clarke.

I was informed by a well known gentleman that A. C. Sturdivant, the popular furnace superintendent of the Shelby Iron Company said he will have to bring suit against the reporter of Shelby for error appearing in the last issue of THE CHRONICLE, it appeared that his name was omitted among the names of the gentlemen who constitute the local management in the named position. He says he is the only man in the city of Shelby who wears the title of "Right Honorable." Trusting that Mr. Sturdivant will kindly, but urgently accept my profuse apologies and we thank him very willingly for correcting this mistake and reminding my error; while there are two other gentlemen worthy of all honor, whose names were omitted, not with the least intention of wrong. T. C. Black, our clever locomotive engineer, who holds a lucrative position for a number of years, and J. H. McLane, who has charge of the waterworks which supplies the town with water and which is very essential during the long continued drought.

We learn that a number of Montgomery refugees from the yellow fever are lodging at Shelby Springs.

Mr. Chas. Sparks left Tuesday morning for British, to look after the coal interest for the company.

A grand complimentary concert will be given by the Epworth League at the Methodist church, Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The choir in charge of Mrs. F. B. Finch, organist, will render an outline of sacred music which promises the most perfect melange served to the people of Shelby for many a day. There will be a splendid programme of exquisite singing beside many interesting features appropriate to the occasion. The programme consists of the following:

Song.....by the League
Reading.....Miss Eloise Bell
Recitation, Jesus, Lover of my Soul
Miss Naldo Christian
Song.....by the League
Recitation.....Harvey Clark
Reading.....Miss Flossie Kifer
Song, Duet.....Robert Glenn and Charlie Avery
Recitation.....Miss Ethel Glenn
Recitation.....Miss Bessie Carter Song.....Miss Naldo Christian
All the members and friends of the league and the public generally are cordially invited to attend.

AMICUS.

Cresswell Items.

J. H. Coleman has been very sick for several days, but we are glad to know he is improving. Henry Wallis, of Henry Ellen, is filling his place as section foreman.

Nat Stanley and J. W. O'Bryan were down from Birmingham one day last week bird hunting.

Rev. J. A. Butts filled his regular appointment here on the third Sunday and preached one of his usual good sermons.

The cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Willie Lipsey, of this place, to W. O. Smith, of near Childersburg.

Mrs. C. H. Smith, of Jackson's Gap, came up Monday with her family to attend the bedside of her sick father.

E. E. Wallis visited relatives and friends near Sycamore Saturday last. Tax-Assessor Pitts and Collector Robertson were with us Monday, but business seemed to be dull.

Mrs. J. S. Corley went to Childersburg the early part of last week to visit sick friends.

Rev. J. M. McCord, of Wilsonville, was with us a short while Monday evening. He came here to take the train for Birmingham. It was our first time to meet him, but we hope it will not be the last.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wallis and G. W. Wallis, Jr., attended church at Harpersville Sunday.

Dr. A. J. Massey, of Woodlawn, has been with us a few days last week and this.

CHOCTAW.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jackson, of Tallapoosa, Ga., are spending a while with their brothers and their families.

C. N. Arnold left Tuesday morning for Jacksonville, Ala., to be present at the marriage of his sister, Miss Ida. We feel a peculiar interest in Miss Arnold, and we are glad to know that she is to wed a promising young physician of Pratt City.

W. W. McGowan returned Saturday from a pleasant week's visit to Birmingham.

Rev. J. M. McCord preached his farewell sermons at the Baptist church Sunday morning and night. He has served this church for several years, and to him is due the credit and honor of building the church up to its present high standard of spiritual and financial strength. He severs himself from this people to accept a call in north Alabama. We wish for him much and lasting success in his new field of labor.

Since our last communication J. F. Pope has attached modern burglar alarms to every window and door in his store. These burglar attachments are in very successful operation, making it impossible to break in without sounding the alarm bell.

An evening with Dickens, the novelist, is the program of the S. P. L. League for Friday night.

Messrs. Jay and James Ray came home Friday from Hot Springs, Ark. One month ago these men left our town to secure the benefits of these curative waters for the rheumatism but we are sorry to note that they have experienced no change for the better.

A double funeral occurred here late Friday evening, which was an epoch in the history of our death rate. Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Montgomery were the father and mother who gave little Toby and Lucile, their only children, to the death angel of heaven. These children's sickness was of short duration, however, it was borne with the patience of grown people and accompanied with little or no signs of distress. Diphtheria was the awful disease that put an end to their young lives and brought sadness into this home of parental love. The deaths of these children was only twelve hours apart. The condolence of the entire town goes out for the sorrowing parents in the loss of these little jewels.

Tuesday the mayor and council deemed it expedient for Professor Mathews to close the school for ten days in order that the diphtheria may not terminate into an epidemic. Consequently Professor Mathews suspended the school to await the action of this contagious disease.

Your correspondent spent a very pleasant day Monday in affilating with the clever, good hearted people of Shelby. "Pat" is indebted to Mr. Max Boxer for his kindness in piloting him through the monster iron plant, also for other benevolent features of entertainment. The return compliment is yours at will.

John Pennington is a record maker and a record breaker. He claims to have caught 27 large rats in one trap in one night. Next.

PAT.

"My boy came home from school one day with his hand badly lacerated and bleeding, and suffering great pain," says Mr. E. J. Schall, with Sycamore Bros., Drug Co., St. Louis, Mo. "I dressed the wound, and applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely. All pain ceased, and in a remarkably short time it healed without leaving a scar. For wounds, sprains, swellings and rheumatism I know of no medicine or prescription equal to it. I consider it a household necessity." The 25 and 50-cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

TAKE NOTICE.

We wish to inform those who may owe us anything that we are compelled to close up the accounts this fall, and hereby urge you to come in at once and settle.

Unless we hear from you in a short while we will be forced to place your accounts in the hands of an officer for collection.

We trust you will save us this trouble and expense.

JOHNSTON & WHITE.

Owing to over-crowding and bad ventilation, the air of the schoolroom is often close and impure, and teachers and pupils frequently suffer from lung and throat troubles. To all such we would say, try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For coughs, colds, weak lungs and bronchial troubles no other remedy can compare with it. Says A. C. Freed, Superintendent of Schools, Prairie Depot, Ohio: "Having some knowledge of the efficacy of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I have no hesitation in recommending it to all who suffer from coughs, lung troubles, etc." For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Mrs. Greene Abbott, of Shelby, visited the family of Dr. W. S. DuBose this week.

A Cure for Bilious Colic.

Resource, Screven Co., Ga.—I have been subject to attacks of bilious colic for several years. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is the only sure relief. It acts like a charm. One dose of it gives relief when all other remedies fail.—G. D. SMITH. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

From Lewis and Fournille.

Farmers are busy gathering corn. S. H. Templin, of Beeswax, was at Fournille Sunday attending church. Miss Bessie Nimmo, of Wilsonville was in Lewis last week. So we understand.

Willie Riddle spent Sunday afternoon at Jackson's Mill. Guess he has found an attraction there.

J. L. Gardner, of Cobb, was on Four mile a short while Sunday.

J. E. Jackson went to Sylacauga Friday on business.

J. L. Riddle was in Wilsonville Saturday on business.

G. D. Jackson is suffering with chills every other day.

W. S. Taylor, of Fournille, went to Birmingham Friday to have his engine repaired.

Mrs. S. C. Jackson went to Columbiana Saturday shopping.

W. H. Templin, of Beeswax, was present at the debate Saturday night.

E. S. Kytte, of Jackson's Mill, visited Fournille Sunday, the guest of Miss Ella Farr.

Rev. R. A. Kidd, of Vincent, preached at Fournille Saturday and Sunday; preaching very interesting sermons on each occasion. Brother Kidd is a noble man and an excellent preacher. Every fourth Saturday and Sunday he pleases us with his presence. Long live Brother Kidd.

We learn that Prof. John Farrell will open school at Fournille old schoolhouse next Monday. Success to you, Professor Farrell.

Rev. S. S. Crumpton filled his regular appointment at Antioch, near Fayetteville Saturday and Sunday.

The Lyceum League has changed its night of meeting to Saturday night instead of Friday, as it was thought to be more convenient to its members and meet semi-monthly; next meeting will be November 6. Subject for debate: Resolved, That education is conducive to happiness. New officers elected: President, E. L. Crumpton; vice-president, J. L. Riddle; secretary, W. J. Horsley. Everybody invited to attend.

Wm. Tinney, of Columbiana, visited Fournille Sunday, the guest of Miss Jennie Hadaway.

Our farmers are "blest" with plenty of corn, hogs, molasses, wheat, and 5-cent cotton. Indeed we in a thriving condition?

Public works are starting now generally, and some one-half farmers are speaking of going to follow public works. The general opinion is "stay on the farm." While a farmer is regarded as being (generally so) very common beings they possess "Home, Sweet Home," so what is better?

J. W. Bolin's saw mill is running in full blast, while J. R. Ray & Sons' mill in Lewis doesn't seem so busy.

Bob Black, of Talladega County, was on Fournille Sunday.

Mr. Hadaway and daughter, Miss Alice, spent Saturday and Sunday on Yellow Leaf visiting Mrs. Atkinson.

Success to THE CHRONICLE and all its readers.

ONE-OF-WE.

It Saves the Croupy Children.

Seaview, Va.—We have a splendid sale of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and our customers coming from far and near, speak of it in the highest terms. Many have said that their children would have died of croup if Chamberlain's Cough Remedy had not been given.—KELLAM & OUREN. The 25 and 50-cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

Attention Veterans.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 27, 1897. Circular No. 1.

It has been made known to me, officially, that there is much distress and suffering among our comrades at Mobile, Montgomery, Flomaton, and other places in Alabama, on account of the prevalence of yellow fever and the consequent suspension of business.

Therefore, I call upon each of the camps of this Division to contribute to the relief of this distress.

Contributions by camps or individuals should be sent to Col. Price Williams, Mobile; Col. William Berney, Montgomery; and to the probate judge of Escambia County, and the fact reported to this office. The commander of the Division has no doubt that this appeal will meet a soldierly response from all the veterans of Alabama.

Should it be inconvenient for want of time to call a meeting of any of the camps, the commander requests that collections be made without delay and remitted as above directed.

By command of

F. S. Ferguson,

(Official)

WILLIE J. MEYER,

Acting Adjutant-General.

If you have ever seen a little child in a paroxysm of whooping cough, or if you have been annoyed by a constant tickling in the throat, you can appreciate the value of One Minute Cough Cure, which gives quick relief. J. E. Seale & Co.

SCROFULA.

One of America's most famous physicians says: "Scrofula is external consumption." Scrofulous children are often beautiful children, but they lack nerve force, strong bones, stout muscles and power to resist disease. For delicate children there is no remedy equal to of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. It fills out the skin by putting good flesh beneath it. It makes the cheeks red by making rich blood. It creates an appetite for food and gives the body power enough to digest it. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion

BETTER THAN THE BEST HOTEL.

The Humblest Home is a Million Times Better than the Finest Hotel.

"Home life cements the love of husband and wife; other modes of living often loosen the tie," writes Edward W. Bok in the November Ladies' Home Journal. "Nor does the question of expense excuse the not having of one's own home. A home is not, of necessity, a palace. The humblest cottage is a million times better than the most luxurious hotel ever planned by the hands of man. In the one happiness is probable; in the other it is just possible. We can talk all we choose about married happiness; that it, after all, rests solely between two people, and that it makes no difference where they live. That is very good as a theory. But thousands of instances prove the contrary: that the theory will not work out in practice. Happiness depends upon the growth of the people who are parts of it. People who stop and stagnate are never happy. True happiness thrives on what it feeds upon. Let stagnation enter into two lives, and happiness becomes stagnant and unhealthy. But let our lives be filled with contentment, with domestic pleasure, with that germ of evolution which springs from the hearthstone, and the happiness which springs from those elements is purer, sweeter and more satisfying to our natures, our minds and our souls. A man and wife were made to abide together in inseparable lives, and as new elements come into that union to sweeten and hallow it, the abiding place should be some little place, some corner in this big world which they can call their own, their very own, where everything around them speaks of the husband's energy and the wife's achievement. That is home."

Valuedictory of Mrs. Margaret O'Brien Davis.

The journalistic list is a field offering more to the knight errant in this nineteenth century than ever before. Given a brave heart and a steady arm and a cause that is loved and right, and victory crowns the daring lance and poises above the venturesome shield. In just and tourney the laurels come, and perhaps a wreath to lay at a chosen one's feet, and then is victory indeed recorded. But victory is not all, nor can it be. Even the triumphant knight grows restless of fine bonds upon him—his honors do not pall, but they seem an incident after a time, and he longs for other conquests and newer lists. Amid the blare of trumpets and the clash of arms, in the tilt and the melee there comes to him the thought of a light in a window and a chair by a fireside, and by and by he rides out of the list with his lance swung clear of rest and his visor raised. He is through with the turmoil, his victories are won, his shield scarred but clean, his name and his heraldic device unblemished. He is not missed—there are so many brave knights left to cast or take up gage, and the list of journalism after all, is one in which kindness is the inspiration and courtesy is the law. He leaves behind the honors, but he finds full compensation when his wanderings end in the benediction of the light of home.

With this issue of The Free Lance we ride out of the lists. The Free Lance itself will now be in other and steadier hands and guided by surer poise than ours, so unpracticed. It will not miss us, its purpose is so sure and so great. It will be better for the exchange, and its motto is still "For God and the right."

Editorially speaking we are no longer "we," but in virtue of a certain authority vested in us—by no means akin to Xantippe—we still claim the right to use the plural and possessive pronoun.

To our conferees we beg to send a salutation. At their hands we have met but kindness and courtesy, and we are deeply appreciative. In severing connection with the press of Alabama we look back with pleasure to journalistic jaunts to Cuba's isle and other points, and we bid a regretful farewell, at the same time promising ourselves similar jaunts in the future—such promise being always subject to the good nature, approval and indulgence of "the fourth reason why we did not marry the Honorable Oscar."

How they Differ.

Man is a creature of cast-iron habits; woman adapts herself to circumstances: this is the foundation of the moral difference between them.

A man does not attempt to drive a nail unless he has a hammer; a woman does not hesitate to utilize anything from the heel of a boot to the back of a brush.

A man considers a corkscrew absolutely necessary to open a bottle; a woman attempts to extract the cork with the scissors; if she does not succeed readily, she pushes the cork in the bottle, since the essential thing is to get at the fluid.

Shaving is the only use to which a man puts a razor; a woman employs it for a chiropodist's purposes.

When a man writes, everything must be in apple-pie order; pen, paper and ink must be just so, a profound silence must reign while he accomplishes this important function. A woman gets any sheet of paper, tears it perhaps from a book or portfolio, sharpens a pencil with the scissors, puts the paper on an old atlas, crosses her feet, balances herself on her chair and confides her thoughts to paper, changing from pencil to pen, and vice versa, from time to time, nor does she care if the children romp or the cook comes to speak to her.

A man storms if the blotting paper is not conveniently near; a woman dries the ink by blowing on it, waving the paper in the air, or holding it near a lamp or fire.

A man drops a letter unhesitatingly in the box; a woman rereads the address, assures herself that the envelope is sealed, the stamp secure, and then throws it violently into the box.

A woman ransacks her brain trying to mend a broken object; a man puts it aside and forgets that for which there is no remedy. Which is the superior?—Lippincott's.

"Eggs, like milk, contain in proper proportion all the elements needed to support life," writes Mrs. S. T. Rorer on "The Cooking of Eggs," in the November Ladies' Home Journal. "Being highly concentrated, however, they lack the bulk necessary to keep the excretory organs in perfect condition. Serve with them, then, such food as bread, rice or cereals, but do not serve eggs in any way at the same meal with beef, mutton or fowl. Pork, such as bacon, may, in winter time, be served with eggs. While one pound of eggs is equal in nourishment to one pound of beef, the latter would be borne for a longer time, and would in the end be a much better food. The mineral matter of the egg is small in quantity but rich in quality, and the albumen is in a form most easily digested. We must bear in mind, however, that the egg albumen coagulates at a lower temperature than that in meat, which teaches us at once that to be easily digested eggs must be lightly cooked. A hard-boiled egg, one in which the white is rendered hard, may be digested by a man laboring in the open air, but it is unfit for food for the man who works in an office or shop, or for the person whose digestion is weak or for children of any age."

VIAU'S CORSETS.

LONG WASTED. NO PADDING.

These corsets give a perfect curve to the form, there being no pressure on the chest, as the spring holds the corset in a natural way without any padding. We also make corsets for stout ladies with outside lacing that comes over corset from the back to lower part of the abdomen, so that one can have as much as required. For delicate ladies we have a French Batiste corset with the softest of bones as light as weight as 7 ounces.

PRICE LIST.
Gray, $2.50 up; White, $3 up; Black, $4 up.

NORTHERN MILL OWNERS

Will Visit the South to see Her Great Advantages.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

Northern mill owners are coming South and in a few days a committee from the New England Manufacturers' Association will be in Atlanta for the purpose of investigating the advantages here and looking over the prospect in Georgia.

This is a significant movement and really means that the capitalists of the East are appreciating the advantages which the South offers in the way of an agricultural as well as manufacturing line.

Yesterday the committee was in North Carolina and after inspecting the mills there will come down into Georgia.

It was during the Atlanta Exposition that a union was perfected between the Southern Textile Association and the New England Manufacturers' Association. Then it was determined to hold the fall sessions of the associations together, alternating once in the North and next in the South. The first of the series of meetings has just adjourned.

The New England Manufacturers' Association holds two sessions each year, one in the early spring strictly for the purpose of business and another late in the fall when matters of social nature are indulged in. According to arrangement these fall meetings will be held with the Southern Textile Association, and next year the New England people are coming South.

At a recent convention Mr. T. H.
Martin, secretary of the Textile Association, represented Atlanta. Major J. F. Hanson also took an active part. Southern delegates were cordially received and in addition to the social side of the occasion managed to get in good business licks. It has for a long time been acknowledged that the New England manufacturers were looking Southward, and that the advantages here were such that the old mill centers would have to give away with the development of the South. Cheap labor, the proximity of products, and all other advantages have taught the Eastern manufacturers that the most paying investments are in the South.

For the purpose of investigating the situation here the committee has recently been appointed. Already they have looked through North Carolina, and to-morrow South Carolina will be visited. Later on Georgia will be taken up and a systematic investigation given to the conditions here.

Mr. T. M. Martin will probably return to-day.

TO EXTEND TO MONTGOMERY.

Chattanooga Southern to Extend its Road.

A Chattanooga special to the Constitution says that Henry L. Lamb, of New York, vice-president of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad, who has been in the city for the past two weeks, left yesterday for home. Mr.
Lamb stated before leaving that the company had decided to extend the road to Montgomery at once. The extension will begin at Gadsden and go by way of Anniston. The road at present runs from this city only to Gadsden and is there bottled up. It is the purpose of the management to make connection with the Plant system at Montgomery for a southern connection. The road will be constructed of the heaviest steel rails and will develop a section now remote from railroad connections. Chattanooga will be asked for certain concessions for terminal facilities. Mr. Lamb will return shortly, and in the meantime engineers are to be put to work making the permanent survey.

First Woman Governor.

For ten days a woman has been Governor of Idaho, not as a result of election, but Governor nevertheless, empowered with executive authority and exercising it. This woman is Miss Margaret Reeve, private secretary of Secretary of State Lewis. She acted during the temporary absence of the Governor, and most of the State officials, who had left signed documents in blank for her to use.
Among other things, Miss Reeve issued a requisition for the extradition to Montana, of Dr. Veno, a notorious healer, arrested at Pocatello on a warrant sworn out at Butte.

THE CHRONICLE.

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana, Ala., as second class matter.

OUR 30-DAY OFFER.

On the first page will be found the notice of an offer for THE CHRONICLE one year for 75 cents. In this connection we desire to ask our present readers to call the attention of their friends to the opportunity, and thus give them the advantages of this liberal offer.

The coming year will be one of much interest to all the people. All the State officers are to be elected, and some very important county officers; also the campaign for Congress next fall. In the State campaign the principal issue will be a constitutional convention, together with the election of judges and solicitors. Shelby County will be especially interested in the election of a Probate Judge and Circuit Clerk, and the Democrats will have a hard fight to win.

THE CHRONICLE will do everything in its power for the election of Democrats to the county offices, for the nomination of good men for the circuit and district places, and will endeavor to advance the cause of a new constitution, on the many grounds thereof. It will keep its readers posted on all the political news.

THE CHRONICLE will also give the industrial features of the day, and the local news of the county. In short it will be a paper for all the people to read.

Our agents will be allowed 10 per cent for collections on this proposition, and they are especially urged to push the paper for the next month.

THE entire country extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland on the advent of a male heir. The father has made some history; the mother is a sweet, good lady. The son will be the pride of their union.

DEATH took Henry George out of the mayoralty race in New York. He was a deep thinker, a profound philosopher, a good man. Most people thought him erratic; they bow their heads in the passing of his pure soul from the turmoil of life.

THE Montgomery doctors are a queer lot. They first denied the existence of yellow fever, and then they demanded the arrest of the Advertiser for publishing the list of recoveries. They didn't want the fever, and now they don't want the people to know they are getting well of it.

MUCH useless praise is given the Governor of West Virginia for clinging to his wife through her trial for forgery. He did what any man would do, and he deserves no especial credit for following the common dictates of humanity. There is nothing unusually noble in a man's defense of the woman he marries or in his belief in her innocence. It does not take a hero to protect his own; he would be a common brute not to do so.

THE success of Tammany in the mayoralty election in Greater New York is the success of the regular Democracy, and has been anxiously awaited by the friends of that party. The fight was a three-cornered one, with the George faction as a side issue. Tammany, the regular Republicans and the mugwump element had a hard fight for supremacy, and the winner will hold the reins of a large municipal government. A considerable influence will be felt in the next national election as an indirect result of this victory. Greater New York is starting right. Tammany, with all its bossism, is the organization of the people.

"THE Age-Herald says Alabama ought to have a new constitution. Surely the Advertiser won't kick at this—Tuskegee Reporter." No; the Advertiser favored the proposition last winter. But the movement failed because Governor Johnston was in the executive office. Many people were unwilling to see a convention held that he might influence, and so they fought the movement. He tried his utmost to get the measure through and failed. There will never be a constitutional convention called to meet while he is in office.

Now, here's something we fail to understand. Will the Advertiser please explain why Governor Johnston's occupancy of the executive office caused the proposition for a constitutional convention to fail? How could he have influenced a convention the delegates to whom were to be elected by the people? There may be some good reason for the above assertion, but we can not see it; and in all good faith we ask for an explanation. If Governor Johnston favors a convention he is right. How he could influence it beyond an ordinary degree we can not imagine, except to impugn the motives of the delegates in advance of their election. Without any more light the above proposition resolves itself into the silly spectacle of opposing a good measure for no other reason than that somebody you don't like favors it; else the last legislature had a majority of very weak characters in it. We await more light.

NEW CONSTITUTION NEEDED.

For several years the necessity for a new constitution has been discussed throughout the State. Each trial at a change has met with defeat, from one cause and another, principally we think because the people have not had the question properly presented to them. The necessity grows with the progress of the State, and the coming year another effort will be made to have a convention provided for by the legislature. We believe the most vital interests of the State and its people depend upon the result, and that it is the duty of the press to present the matter to the people in a way that will arouse their interest in it, and to put before them the necessity for the change. It is the purpose of THE CHRONICLE to open up to its readers this question, to give them such information upon it as it may be able to obtain, and to invite a discussion of it through these columns.

Many reasons have been advanced for desiring a new organic law. To begin with the changing conditions attendant upon the natural progress of our various institutions and upon our growth make the old law out of date in many respects. It is not to be supposed that what was good for us in the days of recovery from the war is good for us now when new conditions have arisen from new fields of labor and new methods are made necessary by more varied interests.

The two objections to the present constitution most discussed are the limitation on the tax rate and the consequent inability to provide a satisfactory school system, and the advisability of placing an educational restriction upon the right of suffrage. There is difference of opinion on these as upon the others, but they form a small part of the change needed.

Experience has shown the great necessity for restricting local legislation and of relieving the legislature of the power to charter private institutions giving more time to the consideration of general measures.

Many believe that the counties ought to be granted more powers of local control, simplifying to that extent the machinery of the State, especially in regard to the school system.

There should beyond question be a change in the judiciary establishment that will make courts more easy of access, more conducive to justice, simpler and less expensive.

Experience has suggested other needed changes that can be properly brought out in due time, and yet others would suggest themselves to the convention.

This question should not be discussed in a partisan way, for it affects every man and least of all the politicians. It should not be looked upon as an attempt to abridge any man's rights, but rather to throw a safeguard around the rights of all and to better harmonize the rights of a varied citizenship.

Of these particular reasons we shall have something to say from time to time, and we invite our readers to express their views through these columns, our object being to arouse such an interest in the matter as will call for a settlement of the question during the coming year while other grave measures are out of the way.

A CASE OF ROT.

Of all the feeble, silly attempts at argument perpetrated by a newspaper edited by sensible men the following takes the palm:

While in Honolulu our Senator Morgan spoke a speech—several of them. In fact, the atmosphere has to be very chilly who he doesn't lift up his voice. In one of his speeches he said:

"I reside in Dallas, in Alabama, a State larger than Hawaii and Oahu together, with a population of which the great majority are negroes. They vote just as I do, and they enjoy the same opportunities as I, and are respected by the people amongst whom they live according to their merits."

That statement is decidedly misleading. If he meant to assert that Dallas County is "a State larger than Alabama," he knew better. If he means that a great majority of the population of Alabama are negroes, he knew better, yet only those two constructions can be put on his language. But there's another point. "They vote just as I do," he says of the negroes. How does he vote? He has been almost a generation since he voted in Alabama, so far as we know. Children have probably grown to manhood since he voted in Dallas County, and his assertion that the negroes vote as he does means nothing.

Anyone might clearly see the meaning of the paragraph quoted above, unless, as is the case in the accompanying reply, one attempts to twist the words into no meaning at all. Anyone would understand from the punctuation of the paragraph that the Senator meant to convey the idea that Dallas County is in Alabama, a State larger than, etc., and that the population of that county is very largely composed of negroes. The attempt to twist the meaning is silly in the extreme, and is altogether unworthy of even the bitterest opposition to the author. Even viewed as an attempt to perpetrate a joke, it is sickening. The fact is that the Senator spoke the truth. The negroes of Dallas County have learned to vote as their white friends dictate, and are respected as their conduct merits. When the country at large learns this truth there will be a better feeling toward our conditions, and much of the local dissension will be allayed. But these silly attempts to thwart the efforts of our public representatives will do much to retard the settlement of local differences, as well as to keep the minds of our neighbors aflame with prejudice against our relations with the colored brother.

Such flings at our able representatives can but be the result of petty jealousy, or, what is worse, anger at their inability to control or dictate the actions of these men. However, it is a cause of congratulation that such things clearly indicate the decay of bossism in Alabama politics, and when that is clearly established these fretful elements will come around to the new order of things.

THE president of the University of Alabama is to be congratulated upon his refusal to allow his boys to play foot ball. It is a dangerous and brutal game. The colleges of this country are turning out about as many professional ball players as learned, useful men, and it is time to call a halt. Exercise is needful for students, but they can get enough on their own campus without going about over the country killing each other.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

Owing to a painful misfortune in the shape of a bone in the throat we may be unable to attend the Ladies' Literary Society Friday evening. We trust, however, that there will be a good attendance. There are many worthy gentlemen in Columbiana whom we cordially invite to come out and join us.

The services at the Baptist church last week were well attended and our people enjoyed a rare treat in the series of sermons delivered by Rev. Mr. Dickinson.

Hon. George E. Brewer, of Talladega, is going to run for the judgeship he now holds by appointment. The Talladega people and editors of course feel like whooping up homefolks, but they will, if what we hear be true, find some opposition in this end of the circuit.

We are often impressed with the value of a genuine friend. Recently we had a demonstration of the strongest, most faithful and unswerving friendships, by one who has stood by us for ten years, during dark hours and bright ones, without money or price, purely from good heartedness and unadulterated friendship. And though we often through life meet with turncoats, black sheep, back-biters and traitors, the goodness and purity of our loyal friendships shine out so bright, and tower so high, that small creatures with narrow souls, serpent's tongues, and reptilian lives fall back into utter obscurity from our sight. If we look with an appreciative eye we can always find more of goodness, kindness and sincerity than of treachery and unfaithfulness.

We would rather have yellow fever than a fish bone in our throat. We are often reminded in this world that "whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." We can abide and endure almost any affliction when we clasp the loving hand of our Saviour.

We understand that Brother Dickinson's explanation, upon request, of Baptism and the Lord's Supper, offended some of our good people. We heard the discourse and don't see how anyone who knows anything about Baptist faith could get offended.

Governor Johnston is still living and doing well.

We trust now that yellow jack is nearing its end.

The young woman who acted as Governor of Idaho for several days acquitted herself most creditably.

We dearly love the Presbyterian church, but we don't like their stand against women.

A friend of ours at Washington who saw the little Cisneros says she has short curly hair and is pretty.

A lively stable is a most convenient thing when one wants to catch a train. Mr. Elliott does the largest business in the county. If you want a trout just wire or 'phone to A. M. Elliott.

It isn't becoming for ladies to swear, but we have it to do when we meet the quarantine officers.

The Selma people got a summer outing (rather late). When yellow jack appeared they sped.

DEMOCRATIC VICTORY.

GREATER NEW YORK STARTS RIGHT.

Great Reduction in Republican Votes All along the Line.

From yesterday's reports we gather the following news from the elections held Tuesday, most of which is meagre, though showing Democratic gains and a good chance for victory everywhere:

Tammany's victory in the first election in Greater New York is a sweeping one. The only question remaining to be settled is the one of plurality. The estimated vote of Greater New York for mayor is as follows: Van Wick, 233,752; Low, 146,821; Tracy, 100,998; George, 20,380. Van Wick's plurality, 86,921.

The indications are that the State of New York was carried by the Republicans by a decreased majority though the latest bulletin says the Democrats elected all State officers.

The result in Ohio is in much doubt both sides claiming a victory, but if the Republicans win it will be by a very narrow margin.

A light vote all over the State of Virginia, and less interest manifested by the Republicans than by the Democrats. The majority of the Democratic State ticket is very large, and they will have two-thirds of the legislature.

Indications are that Maryland has gone Democratic and that Gorman will succeed himself.

In Kentucky it is evident that the Democrats have won.

The Democrats made a gain of four senators in New Jersey.

Providence, R. I., elected a Democratic mayor by quite a large majority.

Of course Pennsylvania and Massachusetts went Republican.

Nebraska elected her fusion silver ticket by a handsome majority.

CHARITY.

We need charity in all the vicissitudes of life. We need it in order to be in harmony with the great world about us. Charity is the essence of the Golden Rule which should be the guide of every noble life, yet how often we excuse ourselves and say this one or that one is not worthy of my love or esteem because while I have been trying to live true to my Master, even Christ and to him, he has gone astray and entered into evil ways, hence it is no fault of mine. Yet we must remember that he is our brother and perhaps it is only a word from us which he needs to bring him back. "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." If we would only have more charity we would not forget that our weaker brother needs our help and that although we may think we are able to stand, yet when the real trials come, we may fall.

Charity was one of the characteristics of Christ. It gives us thoughtfulness for one another and habits of smiling, greeting and forbearing. It is this above all else that makes a home "a building of God, a house not made with hands." What rare power to awake power in our friends. George Eliot puts it: "There are instances in which, if they love us, we are conscious of having a sort of baptism and consecration; they bind us over to rectitude and purity by their pure belief about us, and our sins become the worst kind of sacrilege, which tears down the invisible altar of trust." We must have charity if we expect to dwell together in our future home where all is peace and love, hence let us not only seek to live pure, holy lives ourselves but try to help others.—MAYD SHEPHERD.

ADMITTED

READ RULE XV.

"Articles that are in any way dangerous or offensive, also patent medicines, nostrums, and empirical preparations, whose ingredients are concealed, will not be admitted to the Exposition."

Why was Ayer's Sarsaparilla admitted? Because it is not a patent medicine, not a nostrum, nor a secret preparation, not dangerous, not an experiment, and because it is all that a family medicine should be.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHLOP, Conway, Ark.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

CONFERENCES POSTPONED.

Quarantine Regulations Cause a Change in Dates.

The conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, that are to be presided over by Bishop Keener, have been postponed as follows:

The North Alabama Conference, which meets at Florence, will convene December 1.

The Alabama Conference on December 15.

The Florida Conference on January 5, 1895.

This has been made necessary by quarantine restrictions now existing, which would prohibit many members from attending. Another reason is the existence of fever in the home of the Bishop, his granddaughter having been a victim of the disease at Ocean Springs.

The Alabama Synod has also been postponed to the 7th of December.

The Baptist State Convention has also been postponed.

If you have ever seen a little child in a paroxysm of whooping cough, or if you have been annoyed by a constant tickling in the throat, you can appreciate the value of One Minute Cough Cure, which gives quick relief. J. E. Seale & Co.

Marriages for October.

The following marriage licenses were issued by the judge of probate during the month of October:

White—W. M. Connell to Harriett Vanderslice; A. B. Cooper to Sallie Farrell; John H. Minor to Lula Jane Evans; Charley Romine to Nancy Louella Gunn; J. C. Liddicoat to Maylene A. Ingram; W. E. The "Bicyclist's Best Friend" is a familiar name for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, always ready for emergencies. While a specific for piles, it also instantly relieves and cures cuts, bruises, salt rheum, eczema and all affections of the skin. It never fails. J. E. Seale & Co.

Col. J. P. Adams, foreman of the painter's gang on the A. G. S. railroad, has a force of men engaged in painting the new water tank at this place this week. The Colonel is a genial, whole-souled fellow, and a fine specimen of a man, being six feet two and one-half inches in height and weighing over 200 pounds.—Collinsville Clipper.

Small precautions often prevent great mischiefs. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are very small pills in size, but are most effective in preventing the most serious forms of liver and stomach troubles. They cure constipation and headache and regulate the bowels. J. E. Seale & Co.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., druggists.

A nice rain fell here last Sunday evening and night, which was greatly needed, as the water in the wells and streams were getting very low.

Emmit Ray and wife, of Cresswell, visited the family of J. M. Payton, of this place, last Saturday and Sunday.

Joel Falkner, of this place, shipped a carload of stoneware to Birmingham last week.

The yellow fever has not struck Sterrett yet and is not likely to, as Montevallo Murmurs.

The Sunny Southland has not moved its plant to this place, notwithstanding the editor of the Montevallo News has offered to raise the 'blind $10.'

The unoccupied dwelling house of Dr. Trammel, in this place, was destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning last, and it required hard work to save the house belonging to Colonel Vest, now occupied by F. F. Crowe, and the beautiful residence of Mr. Vandergrift. It was the work of some villain, who if caught, will have a very warm time of it.

Our mail service has been very irregular and uncertain; in fact the only certain thing about it is its uncertainty.

Hon. A. P. Longshore, W. B. Brown, and J. T. Leeper, of Columbiana; E. H. Dryer, of Talladega, and E. A. Powers, of Bolling, Ala., were visitors to our town.

Mr. Mike Fulgham, who lives near Randolph, and who was 82 years of age, was run over by a pair of horses attached to a wagon, and died from the injuries sustained within about two hours time.

Robert Killingsworth, who resides in east Bibb, about six miles south of Montevallo was injured by being caught between the side of his mill house and a thrashing machine which was drawn against the house by a belt which someone was trying to put on the thrashing machine, but which caught on a set screw on the shafting and caused the belt to wind around the shafting, thus pulling the machine against Mr. Killingsworth, and crushing his body against the house. Mr. Killingsworth lingered in great pain for two days and died from his injuries.

There will be no court for Bibb County at present; Judge Moore has decided not to hold same, on account of the large number of sick people in and near Centerville, and because the Centerville people do not desire to have visitors during the prevalence of yellow fever. We think it a wise move on the part of Judge Moore.

Dr. D. L. Wilkinson has bought a beautiful lot in town, and will build a handsome house on it.

It is reported that Dr. J. W. Pratt will form one of the party with A. P. Howison in his advance on Klondike. Hope he will send us a few 10 pound nuggets, as we need them in our business.

The school building at Six Mile, Bibb County, was burned to the ground about 11 o'clock last Saturday night.

A dust laying rain fell here Sunday evening and night, and is still attending to business.

Col. R. L. Rice, of the Blocton News Herald, was in the city for a few days last week.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gans Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war, and I have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50-cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co. Druggists.

Saginaw Drop Shots.

Mrs. A. M. Piper has been quite sick for the past ten days with tonsillitis, but is able to be up again.

J. B. Adams, of Longview, lost a cooper's shop and contents, with material for about 900 lime barrels, on last Monday night by fire.

Will Walker, a clerk in the S. L. Co's. store, is confined to his room with sickness.

E. H. Wingate is down the road again, visiting relatives.

A. M. Piper has moved into his new house on his land near John Nabors's place.

Married, at the residence of the bride's father, near Campranch church, by Rev. F. A. Vann, Mr. Wiley Foshee, of Chilton County, to Miss Ella Pardue, of Shelby County. Mr. Foshee certainly has won a prize to be proud of. Miss Ella is a christian lady who will be missed at Campranch church. Our best wishes go with them.

Crops about all gathered here.

PETE.

A pain in the chest is nature's warning that pneumonia is threatening. Dampen a piece of flannel with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bind over the seat of pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, and prompt relief will follow. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co. Druggists.

Sterrett Stirrings.

A nice rain fell here last Sunday evening and night, which was greatly needed, as the water in the wells and streams were getting very low.

Emmit Ray and wife, of Cresswell, visited the family of J. M. Payton, of this place, last Saturday and Sunday.

Joel Falkner, of this place, shipped a carload of stoneware to Birmingham last week.

The yellow fever has not struck Sterrett yet and is not likely to, as jack frost came around three mornings last week.

Miss Sallie Donaldson, of Eastaboga, came down last Saturday and is stopping with T. B. Falkner's family of this place. We presume she is looking after the school interest of this place. Miss Sallie is a good teacher and we wish her great success.

A. C. Wilder, of Vandiver, attended church service here last Saturday night, in company with Miss Alice Kinnett, of Bessemer.

Supreme court of beat 15, was in session here last Saturday.

The Central of Georgia railroad is doing a lot of transportation over this part of their line, and there seems to be considerable travel over the road notwithstanding the yellow fever scare.

Croup Quickly Cured.

Mountain Glen, Ark.—Our children were suffering with croup when we received a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It afforded almost instant relief.—F. A. Thornton. This celebrated remedy is for sale by J. E. Seale & Co. Druggists.

Shelby Stirrings.

The backbone of the great drouth has at last been broken; and we have been blessed with the long wished for and much needed rain this week.

Mrs. H. W. Nelson and two children accompanied by her niece, Miss Lesser, of Columbiana, were pleasant guests here last Wednesday.

A party composed of J. E. Seale and Miss Anna McMillan, C. E. Greek and Miss Katherine Ross, of Columbiana were attractive visitors to our city last Tuesday.

G. W. Crossett went to Birmingham Monday to complete the prevailing styles in assortment for the company's store.

E. T. Witherby, the genial secretary of Shelby Iron Co., spent the latter part of last week in Anniston with President T. G. Bush.

The many friends of Mrs. J. F. McLane will regret to learn of her illness, and all join in wishing for her a speedy recovery.

The Bethlehem school at Spring Creek opened Monday, with Miss Katharine Owen as principal. Miss Owen is an accomplished and very competent young lady, and is conscientious in the performance of her duty. We extend her our best wishes.

The friends of Miss Nannie Horton will be pained to hear of her very serious sickness with typhoid fever at her home near Good Hope.

C. C. Dillrose was a visitor, on insurance business, to our town last Wednesday.

E. C. Parker and Miss Anna McMillan were charming guests of A. M. Carter's family last Wednesday.

Miss Jessie Carter, our social favorite, was the delighted guest of friends at Columbiana last Thursday, returning Friday, accompanied by Mr. Henry Parker.

It is quite an acquisition to our community, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Bristow, of Talladega Springs, came up last week to reside. They are now occupying the residence of W. G. Parker near the Methodist church. Sunday night an accession was made to this new home of the fortunate family and the very much pleased parents are exceedingly happy with a fine girl. Felicitations are due.

W. E. Merrell is engaged in erecting a magazine and a barn on his premises. Shelby continues to improve slowly but steadily.

It was with the profoundest sorrow that the many friends in this place of John B. Whitney, of Eldred, N. Y., heard of his death; who has been summoned from labor on earth to rest in heaven on the 19th. The news came by telegram to his uncle, Rev. A. T. Clark. Mr. Whitney spent last winter and a part of the summer here, to secure the benefit of this climate. Consumption was the awful disease that put an end to his young life. He was a true, kind-hearted, christian young man, and has many friends who tender the bereaved relatives here their heart-felt sympathy.

The musical and dramatic recital given last Thursday evening at the Methodist church by the Epworth League was well patronized and greatly enjoyed by those present. The selections were very creditably rendered by the young people. Miss Eloise Bell, our brilliant elocutionist, a young lady of character and dignity and many accomplishments, with a vivacity and charm which are unusually pleasant, read a paper full of historical research on "The Brakeman is coming to Church," in which she placed the coming brakeman in a very pleasing light.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

What Dunn Had to say Last Week of Conditions.

The corn movement was smaller, though exports fell only 300,000 bushels below last year's and the price advanced but slightly.

The fall of cotton to 6 cents for spot and 5.88 for January, making the price the lowest since March 14, 1895, and not half a cent above the lowest for nearly a half century, is partly due to embarrassments caused by the fever, but also indicates the prevailing belief that the quantity to come forward is large. For two months more cotton has come into sight than from the greatest crop ever grown, in spite of delays caused by quarantines, but the unfavorable conditions about the time of maturity render it less likely than usual that the top crop will be satisfactory, so that receipts may drop off earlier than usual. On the other hand, it is to be noted that extensive labor troubles threaten the manufacture in England, while the lowest price ever known here for print cloths reflects a heavy accumulated stock of other goods as well. The increase in production by the mills has been over 40 per cent in ten years, far beyond the increase in population, and they consumed almost as much cotton in the last crop year, with materially diminished demand for goods, as in the most prosperous year heretofore.

The buying of iron and steel products, though smaller than of late, continues to keep works well engaged ahead, and induces others to resume operations. Both buyers and manufacturers find it prudent to limit engagements ahead, and the period of adjustment will make the industry safer for some time to come. There is great pressure for speedy deliveries, but in bars and wire, some abatement of demand with slightly lower prices for wire nails. Tin is a little weaker and copper at 11 cents for lake and competition of home producers lowers tin plates to 310. The coke output is larger 149,553 tons weekly, but anthracite coal is weaker, being offered here at $4.05, against $4.35 named in circular.

Failures for the week have been 219 in the United States against 270 last year, and 25 in Canada against 49 last year.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—In response to numerous inquiries on the subject, the number of appointments of colored persons in the government during the periods from March 4 last to October 15, are ascertained to have been 179, carrying salaries amounting to $120,399 per year. Of these appointments four were made under the state department, seventy-two in the treasury, eighteen in the interior, ten in the department of agriculture, eight in the navy, fourteen in the postoffice department and fifty-three in the Government printing office.

The number appointed during the same period in 1890 was ninety-six, carrying annual salaries amounting to $75,690.

The promotions during the period from March 4, 1897, to October 4, number 125, carrying salaries aggregating $85,740.

The number promoted during the same period in 1890 was twenty, with salaries amounting to $17,830.

THE REAL ISSUE.

Words of Wisdom by a Lady of Bright Ability.

[Ball in the Age-Herald.]

In the approaching political campaign, it behooves the citizens of Alabama to force the men who ask office at their hands to take an unequivocal position upon the burning question of the hour, the need of Alabama, for a newer and broader constitution. The man who is content with the present appalling illiteracy of the white people of the State, should be permitted to spend the residue of his days in the retirement of private life. A politician who prefers the votes of men who make their mark in lieu of writing their names and who cannot read the ballots they cast to placing within the reach of the children of the State absolutely free schools, should be consigned to shades of oblivion by a people who desire to take their rightful rank in the steady march of advancement. Alabama with its present constitution and its present illiteracy is a constant reproach to those men and women within her borders who have aspirations beyond the holding of petty offices. The average office seeker of Alabama has been the greatest burden the good old State has had to bear. Every reform, every suggestion of helpful change has been defeated in the past by men who craved the votes of an illiterate constituency. Though these same selfish Lilliputian politicians, with their abbreviated mental capacity, the aspiring, progressive citizens of Alabama have been kept with their hands tied by law-made for more than a quarter of a century ago. Free schools, absolutely free schools and the education of the masses must be one of the principal planks in the next political platform of Alabama.

Mothers, Take Recreation.

One reason why wives and mothers break down so early and grow prematurely old is that they do not take proper amusement. They do not turn aside often enough from the dry, hard duties of life and spend a half day or more in pleasant recreation. And this, in many cases, is by no means from necessity though very many mothers will persuade themselves it is. More time is wasted in "idle industry" than nature needs for healthful recreation. The mother who will spend days and weeks over elaborate embroidered skirts for her children, or in decorating a dark parlor which never sees the light, except when a chance visitor drops in, might certainly improve her mind and heart and body to better advantage by a little excursion with her children, or a visit to some dear friend, or any relaxation that would give a glow to her cheek and spirit.

How much brighter those women look and how much more intelligent their conversation who do occasionally indulge in their little excursions from home. Though there are idle, frivolous women who carry to excess this practice, it is none the less the duty of the good mother to avoid the opposite extreme. She owes it to her children not to stay too constantly under the old roof tree until her mind is narrowed down to its simple bounds and she forgets there is a world beyond. Be warned in time and do not reiterate over and over again the old objection, "Oh, I can not be spared, can not get ready," but go energetically to work to set your machinery in motion, so it can run for a day or two without you, and then with the consciousness that you are performing a duty you owe yourself and family set out on your trip with a prayer for God's blessing on it and the dear ones left behind. Remember that you can better spare time for it now than years from the end of your life for want of it. You are neglecting no duty while you are absent. The work you might do then is not your duty.—Farm and Home.

The Iron and Coal Trades Review, a London publication of note, prints a letter from one of the leading English iron masters wherein is the statement that it must be admitted by English iron men that Bessemer pig iron can be made in the United States at ten to fifteen shillings less than the cost of the same kind of iron in England. The writer says he knows of cases where the labor cost on a ton of billets and nails in the United States is 25 to 35 per cent less than the lowest he ever heard of in England, although the rate of wage paid in the United States is quite materially higher. The advantage is with this country, and the English are recognizing the fact, although they as yet have found no suggestion of a way of preventing a loss of their old time supremacy in this field of industry.

medicine and the best in use to put a horse in prime condition. Price 25 cents per package.

JUST THE SIZE OF IT.

What two Gold-Standard Papers say About It.

The New York Sun, which has gone over to the Republican party, has the following to say in regard to the recent elections, and the part the National Democrats took in it:

"Kentucky having been carried by the Democratic party on the Chicago platform, the Courier-Journal, of Louisville, whose brilliant fight against the Bryanite transformation of the Democratic party will long be remembered, yesterday surrendered and announced that it is again to be Democratic, with a little disgust, perhaps, and a little remonstrance against the party decrees, but opposition, never! The National Democratic party of so-called Democrats will soon lose even its name.

"The Republican party, the party of public credit and conservatism, and the Democratic party, of radicalism and revolution, whose limits are unforeseen and unforeseeable, divide all serious political sentiments in the United States. Differences of opinion must be expressed through one or the other of these organizations, and the debates of other parties, or candidates without parties, will rank in public importance with the prize speaking in colleges and schools. A man must be a Republican or a Democrat; and a Democrat is a Bryanite.

"Mugwumps, cuckoos, stuffed prophets, unifying forces, and their like,
take notice!"

Commenting on the Sun's article, the New York Post, an independent newspaper, but a believer in the gold standard, says:

"We do not know so much about the Courier-Journal's fight having been a 'brilliant' one. In our opinion it was a demonstration of public treachery and Democratic folly.
There was nothing brilliant about the Indianapolis movement of last year, or about its authors and prophets and apostles. The only honest and consistent men who broke away from the Democracy because of the Chicago platform went into the Republican party. Those who refused to do that and contented themselves with pretending to be Democrats and to represent the Democratic party, were mountebanks and humbugs.
They polled nothing but a crank vote, and succeeded only in making themselves ridiculous.

"We quite agree with the Sun, however, when it proclaims the disappearance, in Kentucky, at least, of this absurd and pestiferous faction, and we heartily congratulate Kentucky upon so hazy a consummation. There has not been in the whole history of American politics so offensive and deplorable a chapter as that which records the impudent pretensions and abominable mischief-making of these so-called 'National Democrats.' They have been national nuisances and charlatans, and all right-minded men will rejoice when they are snubbed and discredited and set aside."

CHANDLER'S VIEWS.

Senator William E. Chandler referring in a letter to a Washington paper to the duty of Republican bimetalists says:

"Since my letters to the Post of August 12 and 25 two important events have happened. (1) the elections of November 2, and (2) the English refusal to now promise to reopen the India mints to the coinage of silver as an inducement to international bimetalism.

"As to the elections, they prove with reasonable clearness that if the Republican party permanently acquiesces in 'the existing gold standard' and gives up the struggle for bimetalism, that party will be defeated in the Congressional elections of 1898 and in the Presidential election of 1900. The silver monometallists will then take possession of all branches of the national Government, and a free coinage bill, with silver made the tender for all debts, public and private, domestic and foreign, will pass both houses of Congress and be signed by President Bryan."

We let our timber timber rot, and buy fencing; we throw away our ashes and grease and buy soap; we raise dogs and buy hogs; we let our manure go to waste, we raise weeds and buy vegetables; we catch five cent fish with four-dollar rods; we build schoolhouses and send our children off to be educated; and last, we send our boys out with a forty-dollar gun and a ten dollar dog to hunt ten cent birds. Yes times are hard.--Oreonta Democrat.

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana, Ala., as second class matter.

THE Advertiser seriously objects to Ex-Gov. Col. Thos. G. Jones being called "Mister." Well, there are few people entitled to be called "Mister" these days, but we are sorry to learn that the ex-governor is not one of them.

God made gold and silver and man made money of it. And God made water and fire, and man made steam of it. Do you see? Gold and silver are no more money than fire and water is steam.—Columbian.

God made horses and jackasses and man made mules out of them; therefore a mule is not a horse or a jackass.—Advertiser.

The Advertiser ought to know.

For the protection of our brethren of the press who may meet one A. M. True, we desire to say that while at Centerville we made him an agent for our job department, and are out just a small amount on the deal, that gentleman having collected for some work done for the good people there and walked off with the money in his pocket. We did not know Mr. True personally, but he had made his home in Calera for awhile, where he was favorably known. Of course, he may have forgotten to remit us this collection, but for fear his bad memory might injure some other brother we give the facts.

A STAFF correspondent in Sunday's Age-Herald, writing up the Montevallo School for Girls, makes a considerable error in regard to the origin of the building. The facts are that Gen. C. M. Shelly built the house, being employed by the citizens of the town, who gave it to the Presbyterian Church. It passed into the possession of the Cumberland Presbyterians, who sold it to Howard Griggs. From him the town of Montevallo purchased it and donated it as a part of their bid for the present school. In some other respects the article in question was not strictly correct, and in its intirety gives a poor idea of the school. Some of the school girls could have beaten it.

ALL of Mr. Cleveland's acts show him to be a man of that class commonly called "bullheaded." Recently he signed a petition for liquor license at the Princeton Inn, and the Presbyterian Church has been censuring him for it. He says of their criticism:

I don't care if all the synods and presbyteries in this country were to offer an adverse decision, it would be no good reason why I should alter my opinions.

That is just like Mr. Cleveland. He regards nobody's opinion as worth the noticing, and nobody's advice as worth the following. He is in all things sufficiently wise unto his own counsel, and he knows all about every subject presented to his consideration. If the Presbyterian Church has as much trouble with him as the Democratic party had we pity it. The only way for him and the church to agree is for the church to turn over to him the making of its tenets and their enforcements.

We are just wondering if The Advertiser has read the more recent editorial in the New York Journal, in which it says:

It is the part of Democrats everywhere now to cooperate with the majority in their own party, in order that it may become the majority party. The national policy will be fixed in 1900. The local policy is to be determined by those who represent the local majority. Out of harmony, harmony achieved by self-sacrifice and self-abnegation in each State and Congressional district, national harmony and national victory will spring.

There is a common meeting ground for all real Democrats. That there are men masquerading as Democrats who by calling, conviction and affiliation are wholly incapable of Democratic sentiments the Journal knows. But they are shy and their following inconsiderable. The majority of the people in this nation are Democrats, and for the majority there will be found a point of complete union.

The above is complete proof that The Advertiser twisted The Journal's meaning some days ago, a proceeding it is well versed in. The above is good practical advice.

SINCE the yellow fever has about died out, and the quarantine has been raised, and things are assuming their normal condition, we take occasion to remark that all this fuss about Governor Johnston's course is very silly. We do not say so as a defender of the Governor, not being at all interested in his political success or defeat; but we noticed that no town kicked so long as the quarantine did not interfere with her in any way, but so soon as it began to affect her she jumped over the traces in wildest madness. It seems to us from a disinterested standpoint that the Governor was only executing the law as he saw it, and the real cause of all the trouble was the unfortunate fact that the yellow fever was among us. Placing the blame on that reasonable ground will eliminate all the unpleasant feeling toward officials. Unless for the purpose of political capital there is no good cause for censure, and that is, to say the least of it, a very poor cause.

SOME OF THE REASONS.

Speaking of a new constitution one usually hears the tax rate mentioned. This is one of the points of the subject that is of the most vital interest. Many persons insist that the limitation placed upon the tax rate is too low for the good of the school system especially. We are inclined to the opinion that with the proper execution of the law in the matter of assessments the present limitation is high enough. The legislature may now fix the tax rate at 75 cents on $100, but for a great many years it has not gone above 55. There is no doubt but that an increase of 20 cents at this time together with an assessment of the full value of all property, would double the income of the State revenue, which would afford ample funds for all governmental purposes and an increased school appropriation. Every community in the State ought to be provided with a good school for not less than five months in the year, and the children need nine months of instruction. The new constitution ought to confer upon the counties the power to create school districts and to levy a special tax where the people desire it for the maintenance of longer and better schools. With a proper adjustment of all the regulations the present rate is sufficient, but this adjustment should be made for the benefit of the boys and girls who have already the laudable desire for an education, and for the protection of those who have been trained to indifference by careless and thoughtless parents.

A diversity of opinion exists with reference to an educational qualification for voting. None have a real desire to shut off the good but ignorant white people from their right of suffrage, but we are confronted with a terrible condition that can not be regulated by any penal code. When the white people of a certain section of this State found it necessary for the protection of their homes and honor to defend them against a vicious and ignorant citizenship they unconsciously acquired a power that was later to be used against each other. The prime cause still exists, and the secondary condition grows all too rapidly. The only solution is an elimination of the purchasable and vicious element by educational disfranchisement. It is suggested that the honest but unlearned white citizen be protected by an exception in favor of the old soldier and by a time of probation for the younger men. This may prove the solution of the problem. We are willing to trust the wisdom of any set of delegates who might be selected to make the proper discrimination between an honest lack of knowledge and wanton ignorance. Anything is preferable to the present barter and trade in human rights. When an ignorant, careless man sells his own right he sells the right of some good citizen with it; and when to protect the virtuous citizenship it is necessary to destroy the vote of one of these enemies to good government the way is paved to steal the vote of some honest man.

It is the time to study these questions in a nonpartisan spirit and with the sole view of placing our citizenship and its government upon a higher plane. No attention should be paid to the voice of the demagogue or the braying of the political ass. Virtue and intelligence must rule this country regardless of partisanship, or we must remain at the bottom of the list in point of respectability.

Our gold-standard friends are very much given to making rash statements that are calculated to mislead the uninformed. As a case in point, we notice The Southern Home, of Livingston, makes the emphatic statement that Judge Van Wyck, the recently elected mayor of Greater New York, was a sound-money candidate, and that Mr. Bryan declined to assist him in his campaign. The facts are that Judge Van Wyck heartily supported Mr. Bryan and the Chicago platform last year, and Mr. Bryan did not decline to assist him in his recent campaign. After consultation with Chairman Jones it was decided not to inject the silver issue into the local campaign, and there was no specific declaration on that point. For the same reason Mr. Bryan was not called upon to go into the campaign. It would look much more like fair fighting if the gold-standard papers would give their readers the facts and let them judge of the coloring.

THE New York World shows that it will only be necessary for the Democrats to retain the three States of New York, New Jersey, and Kentucky in order to win in the next election. Now the question is, Will they be able to retain them? There will probably be no trouble about Kentucky, but the other two are always doubtful of late. In New York if Tammany does her duty she can swing the State into line, but New Jersey is very doubtful. The signs are at least hopeful for gains elsewhere, and we have no fears that the Democrats will win in 1900 on practically the same platform as they had in 1896.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

NOW.

If you have a kind word say it;
Throbbing hearts soon sink to rest.
If you owe a kindness, pay it;
Life's sun hurries to the West.

Can you do a kind deed? Do it.
From despair a soul to save;
Bless each day as you pass through it,
Marching onward to the grave.

If some grand thing for to-morrow
You are dreaming, do it now;
From the future do not borrow;
Frost soon gathers on the brow.

Speak thy word, perform thy duty;
Night is coming deep with rest;
Stars will gleam in fadeless beauty.
Grasses whisper o'er thy breast.

Days for deeds are few, my brother;
Then to-day fulfill thy vow.
If you mean to help another,
Do not dream it—do it now.

—Glasgow Christian.

It seems that our town is immaculate and needs no more. We asked a lady friend, at a little social gathering, if they had ever organized a W. C. T. U. at this place. She jestingly replied: "We are good enough here; with all our church influences we have little time or need for a W. C. T. U." In eight years work with that organization we have never found but about four women in this county who took an active interest in it. It's another case of "horns;" but that case was settled long ago. At the State convention in Selma a few years ago our beloved friend, Mrs. C. J. Hildreth, of the New Decatur Advertiser, being a delegate from her local W. C. T. U., was placed on various committees, and she determined to make a strenuous effort for a suffrage plank. Well, the convention was frightened within one-tenth of an inch of their lives, whereupon Mrs. Hildreth arose and begged everybody to look at her good and see with their own eyes that she had no horns. We have no intention of trying to organize a union here at present, unless someone should take us in with a sweet mouthful of taffy and coax and beg us as they did to get us to organize a literary society. We organized with better talent than was possessed by these who led us to the door and then fled. When we get ready for public criticism pay your honest dime and come to hear us.

How would it suit the churches to have their prayer meetings each week all on the same evening? Wouldn't they be better attended and do more good? There is only one evening in the week now, aside from prayer meetings, and that belongs to the young men's debating society. No one wishes to have an evening and invite even half a dozen friends, for those friends will likely not wish to slight their prayer meeting. We make the suggestion not knowing whether it will suit even the pastors or not. Probably it requires four evenings in the week to keep the moral standard of the town at its proper height.

WOMEN IN THE CHURCHES.

A Presbyterian synod at Charlotte N. C., recently decided that a woman, even though a missionary, could not in a church relate her experience or sum up the results of her work before the people whose money she had spent. She must keep silent in the churches. So St. Paul had said, and so the synod decreed.

Whether the injunction of the Great Apostle is applicable to the present age of the world and to all cases, is indeed a matter of doubt; but whether it be or not the women of the Presbyterian denomination and of all other denominations are not by any means uninfluential and powerless in the churches. Among women there is rare usefulness and devotion to the cause of the Master, and if any church were deprived of their services, its history would be brief, its career valueless. In Sunday school, in deeds of charity, in the stated meetings of the church, in its various societies, in every branch of its work in fact, except that of speech, woman is ever present and ever helpful. In most of the churches the filling of the pews on Sunday chiefly rests with her. It was not so in the earlier and sterner ages of the church—in monastic times, in the days of the reformation; but it is becoming so now-a-days. This will not always be the case.

The steady, quiet influence of woman is one of the most powerful of this world's forces, and in the long run this influence will bring men back to the churches. It holds them there now in a passive sense. They support the churches even if they do not participate in the services on Sunday. Where their money goes, and where their wives and children go, they, too, will go after a while. The non-attendance of men is more a matter of personal laziness and comfort seeking than anything else, and it will occur to them after awhile that they have important duties to perform on Sundays as well as on week days. In the meanwhile it is fortunate for Christianity, to which we are indebted for civilization and good government and law and order and security, that the women remain true and loyal to the churches, even when they must remain silent in them.—Age-Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Gist will receive on Friday evening next from 7 to 10 p. m. We will make no pretensions at elaborate entertaining, but hope to enjoy many evening calls from our friends.

the Woman's Literary Society, which has been at a standstill on account of afflictions in different families, will meet at the Central Hotel. Let all who have been requested to meet with us attend. Don't forget the time.

SENATOR WALCOTT has explained why the Monetary Commission failed in its mission. He said that when everything was going along nicely and it seemed as if the British Cabinet would go as far as had been promised, reopening the Indian mints and consenting to a conference, the press of Great Britain and the bankers of London criticised the Cabinet so severely that it was compelled to take a course contrary to what the Commission had expected.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Quite a number of our gentlemen attended court at Birmingham the part of the week.

LOAN EFFECTED.

Gov. Johnston Has Arranged to Pay the Teachers' Pensions to be Paid.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 15.—It is announced at the capital that Governor Johnston has arranged to borrow, for the purpose of paying off the State teachers, the sum of $103,000, and that all the teachers will be paid before the end of the present month.

The Governor effected the loan, it is stated, at the remarkably low rate of 4 per cent, considering that the loan is for only sixty days. One of the principal arguments used against Governor Johnston in his campaign for the nomination was that he being a free-silver man could not get any favors from the Wall street financiers when the State needed them. It has been a long time since the State has been able to make a similar loan at anything like so advantageous a figure.

The receipts at the treasury will also likely enable the Auditor to send out the Confederate pension warrants about the last of the month.

A pain in the chest is nature's warning that pneumonia is threatened. Bannan's Piece of Candy with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and his over the seat of pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, and prompt relief will follow. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co. Druggists.

Lester, Mason & Co. have shipped a little over 1,059 bales of cotton this season. This is now 100 bales above last year's entire shipments, and is above the shipments of any past season. The shipments of the town will amount now to something near 1,300 bales.

The "Bicyclist's Best Friend" is a familiar name for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, always ready for emergencies. While a specific for piles, it also instantly relieves and cures cuts, bruises, salt rheum, eczema and all affections of the skin. It never fails. J. E. Seale & Co.

A certain class of immoral conduct within the corporate limits is being discussed by the citizens. If it exists as reported it is the duty of the city government to take steps to have it suppressed. If there is a prohibitive law in the city code it ought to be enforced, and if not the council ought to pass one.

Small precautions often prevent great mischiefs. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are very small pills in size, but are most effective in preventing the most serious forms of liver and stomach troubles. They cure constipation and headache and regulate the bowels. J. E. Seale & Co.

Sterrett Stirrings.

T. M. Goodwin, of Oxmoor, is visiting relatives and friends in this place. We learn that he will return to his home in a day or two. Come again, Tom, we are always glad to see your familiar face.

Dr. J. J. DuBose and wife left last Sunday for a visit among relatives.

We are sorry to learn that little Minnie Payton is quite sick. Hope she may have an early recovery.

We are glad to see W. J. Falkner, of Pleasant Valley neighborhood, so much improved from a serious hurt that he got in a fall a few weeks ago.

J. W. Perry, of Oxmoor, visited his brother, J. W. Perry, of this place, last week, returning home Monday.

Mrs. Emily Goodwin, of Bessemer, and her granddaughter, Miss Johnson, returned home Monday, after a few days pleasant visit among relatives.

We are informed that Horace Hammond, of Columbiana, has purchased the homestead and storehouse at this place formerly owned by T. H. Baxley, of Tyler, Tex., and that J. W. Moore, of Weldon, will move into the residence in a few days, and also will occupy the storehouse with a stock of goods at an early day.

Cotton continues to come in, and is selling below zero some degrees. We notice one young man, Henry A. Gill carrying a bale of cotton home several miles away from the railroad, where he can take care of it till prices get better.

Will Baugh had a nice mule killed by an engine on the C. & G. about half a mile west of Sterrett last Sunday night. The mule was appraised at $55.

Shelby Siftings.

Your correspondent has been so busy during the day and attending socials at night he failed to report from here last week.

Mrs. A. R. McGiboney, of Goodwater, was visiting our town last week, to look after her business matters.

Mrs. W. S. DuBose, of Columbiana, visited friends here last Thursday.

Mr. Chas. McLane tendered the heart of his sick mother with a visit, and returned to Saginaw last week, leaving his mother much improved.

It is a genuine pleasure to welcome among us accomplished friends like Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Warner, of Chattanooga, who are the guests of Rev. A. T. Clarke.

Prof. E. C. Franklin, of Poplar Springs, Miss., came to join his winsome wife and dear little son, who have been on a visit to her father's family, D. C. Glenn. Our former professor is the recipient of much social attention.

One of our attractive young ladies is going to be married soon, and she believes that nobody knows but she and her fellow. I shall respectfully beg the kind readers to tell no one should they know anything about it.

Burglars visited our town again last Sunday night. This time the tonorial parlor of our genial young barber, G. W. McClellan, was looted. They took about everything in sight. Provided these sneak thieves consented to dwell in our vicinity we feel obliged to introduce these delegates to E. F. Vest, proprietor of the palace at Columbiana. They ought to be taken out of the dress circle and put into the pit, where they belong.

David Rushion, colored, was found dead in his garden Sunday evening. The jury decided he fell dead from internal troubles.

Rev. T. M. Wilson, who has served the congregation of the Methodist church very acceptably for the last three years, preached his last sermon here Sunday morning. He brought with him Rev. S. M. Hosmer, presiding elder of this district who delivered a most interesting, impressive, and eloquent sermon at night. The text was: "Rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for great is your reward in heaven." It is an instinct in our nature to follow the track of a few leaders, because it is always easier to follow the opinions of others than to reason and judge for ourselves.

Last Thursday evening the handsome home of Capt. and Mrs. J. P. Christian was the scene of one of the most enjoyable social affairs held in this section for many a day. Clad in a costume of loveliness the beautiful daughter of the hostess, Miss Naldo, received her guests with her usual gracious manner, and made each feel that they were there to have a pleasant time. Very delightful music was rendered by Miss Jessie Carter. The happy friends have used many adjectives descriptive of the pleasures of the occasion.

Mrs. M. M. Calahan, of Lynchburg, Va., who is visiting her son at Columbiana, was a pleasant guest to our city last Friday.

Our furnace will go in blast next Monday.

The young people of the Christian Endeavor are arranging a very delightful concert for next Thursday evening. The outline is unusually attractive, and embraces a number of our best vocalists. Every number on the programme will be rendered in a manner quite incomparable, showing a thorough conception of the several difficult compositions, besides a most careful training on the part of each member of the society soloists. "His Fortune" is the beautiful play which will be given next Thursday in the schoolroom of the Case Institute. The programme is as follows:

Reading.....A. H. Avery
Recitation.....Miss Agnes Avery
Jeanette.....Miss Jessie Carter
Gypsy fortune teller.....Miss Lucia Witherby Gypsy maiden.....Miss Bessie Carter Gypsy youth.....Charlie Avery Gypsies.....Miss Naldo Christian,
Miss Eloise Black, Miss Maggie Owen,
Willie Avery, John Avery, Edwin Witherby Soldiers.....Thomas Black, Will Avery, Theodore Sparks, Paul Clark, James Walker Picket.....Paul Clark
Courier.....Harvey Clark
Admission free, and everybody is cordially invited to attend.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Yes, they say that they are ripe—pussums.

Miss Katie Bradley was a pleasant Sunday visitor.

Messrs. Amos Daniel and J. H. Weldon were visitors to Columbiana Monday.

Mrs. A. P. Bradley, nee Miss Ellen Daniels, after an extended visit to relatives has returned to Selma.

Mrs. Alice Porter, of Talladega, is the guest of numerous relatives in town.

Ex-Editor C. C. DuBose and Dr. W. A. Lovett, of your city, were in town a few hours last week.

Hons. Leeper, Beavers and lady passed through town Sunday afternoon as if it were a flag station.

What the ground did for the countryman as he stepped from the moving passenger train Sunday evening, was "more than a plenty."

Rev. A. E. Burns delivered excellent sermons from the Baptist pulpit Sunday morning and evening. His 11 o'clock text was, "We are all laboring together with God." The evening text was a continuation of the morning text.

Wedding and Christmas bells calculated to harmonize in the very near future.

Dr. S. M. Hosmer delivered a splendid sermon to a large congregation at the Methodist church Friday evening from the text, "Rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for great is your reward." In conclusion of the service he and the pastor administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Our farmers have finally realized the virtue in the exhortation to grow more eatables and less cotton, consequently they have taken to wheat raising, making cotton a side product of agriculture.

One of our young men attended "services divine" in Columbiana Sunday afternoon. We surmise from his early arrival Monday morning, that he pronounced his benediction rather late.

After "Grandma" had read the last issue of THE CHRONICLE editorials, we fancied that we could hear her exclaim in the language of the slang singer, "THE CHRONICLE is a good many while I thought it was only a few."

The city school has increased to an attendance of 80 pupils. In order to accommodate all, it was necessary to purchase new furniture, which was placed on the premises Saturday.

This is the season of the year when merchants are necessarily compelled to gather up their delinquent customers and cast them into outer darkness.

Miss Bessie Nimmo left our town several days since for a visit to Oxmoor and Birmingham relatives.

An impromptu programme will be inaugurated at the S. P. L. League Friday night. Everybody come and speak from the "muscles of your minds."

Poll Stinson went over to Birmingham Monday on a prospective trip.

Capt. J. L. Walthall, whose headquarters is Birmingham, was on our streets several times last week, buying cotton, also looking after the interest of his new enterprise, located in Birmingham.

Neatness in Girls.

Neatness is a good thing for a girl, and if she does not learn it when she is young she never will. It takes a great deal more neatness to make a girl look well than it does to make a boy look passable. Not because a boy, to start with, is better looking than a girl, but his clothes are of a different sort, not so many colors in them; and people don't expect a boy to look so pretty as a girl. A girl that is not neatly dressed is called a slob, and no one likes to look at her. Her face may be pretty, and her eyes bright, but if there is a spot of dirt on her cheek, and her fingers' ends are black with ink, and her shoes are not laced or buttoned up, and her collar is not buttoned, and her skirt is torn, she can not be liked. Learn to be neat, and when you have learned it it will take care of itself.—Young Folks.

Croup Quickly Cured.

Mountain Glen, Ark.—Our children were suffering with croup when we received a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It afforded almost instant relief.—F. A. Thornton. This celebrated remedy is for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., Druggists.

General Debility and Loss of Flesh

Scott's Emulsion has been the standard remedy for nearly a quarter of a century. Physicians readily admit that they obtain results from it that they cannot get from any other flesh-forming food.

There are many other preparations on the market that pretend to do what does, but they fail to perform it. The pure Norwegian Cod-liver Oil made into a delightful cream, skillfully blended with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, which are such valuable tonics, makes this preparation an ideal one and checks the wasting tendency, and the patient almost immediately commences to put on flesh and gain a strength which surprises them.

Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion. See that the man and fish are on the wrapper. 50c. and $1.00, all druggists. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

Mortgage Sale.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by William Kirkpatrick and his wife, Sarah Kirkpatrick, to Ada T. McCreary, dated the 7th day of April, 1887, and recorded in mortgage book, Volume 43, Record of Mortgages, pages 217-220, on the 10th day of April, 1887, in the office of the Probate Judge of Shelby County, Alabama, will be sold at auction in front of the Court House, floor of said county, on the 18th day of December, 1887, at 12 o'clock, the following described real property situated in Shelby County, Alabama, to-wit:

Tracts of NW 1/4 of NE 1/4 and SW 1/4 of NE 1/4, SW 1/4 of SE 1/4 of NE 1/4, also all that part of SE 1/4 which is on the Northwest side of Cahaba Valley Road, and which measures fifty-six and five-tenths acres (56 5/10) and a part of NE 1/4 of SE 1/4, all in Section 21, Township 19, Range 2 W., located between Cahaba Valley Road and Creek, containing seven and half acres, more or less, described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the intersection point of Cahaba Valley Road and East line of Section 31, Township 19, Range 2 W., thence South 35 deg. 45 min. West, eight hundred and twenty feet, thence S. 45 deg. East, nine hundred feet to the intersection with Creek, thence up the Creek to its intersection with East line of Section 31, Township 19, Range 2 W., thence follow Section line to Thomas B. Miller's line, then follow said Miller's line to Cahaba Valley Road, all together one hundred and forty-four and five-tenths acres.

AN UNNATURAL FATHER.
Commits a Horrible Crime while Drunk.
"Marshall W. F. Bryant, of Childersburg, came up with Henry E. Culp, whom he brought here and lodged in the county jail on a charge of a dastardly assault upon his six teen year old daughter.
"Culp is a man past forty. Saturday night he went to his home, about half a mile from Childersburg, in a high state of intoxication, and with uplifted knife, forced his daughter to submit to his hellish designs. The mother and daughter were too much excited to raise any alarm at the moment, and besides he threatened them with death if they screamed. After accomplishing his purpose he fell asleep and they swore out a warrant which caused his arrest. The marshal stated that there was intense excitement and a lynching would probably have followed if the prisoner had been kept there much longer."—Hot Blast.

Manual Labor and Professions.
From the Philadelphia Times.
The tendency of young men in this country to embark in the learned professions with no especial aptitude for anything except to avoid manual labor, is constantly on the increase. It is greatly to be deplored, for to such failure is the almost inevitable result. The trouble with these young men is that they do not understand the dignity of manual labor. They do not realize that honor and fortune may be more readily realized outside of these so-called learned professions than in them, and that it is just as honorable to swing a hammer or to hold a plow as it is to make a speech or amputate a limb.

THE MISSING WORD.
The Atlanta Constitution's New Contest—Clubbing Rates.

The Weekly Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., has announced its sixteenth consecutive missing word contest, commencing on the 1st of November and closing on the 1st of January, a period of about two months.
The book containing the missing word has been sealed up and placed in the hands of W. A. Henphill, the president and business manager of the company. It is a standard publication and has probably been widely read throughout the South.
The amount offered in prizes is 10 per cent of the subscriptions received from contestants; there are about 16,000 subscribers existing with The Constitution during November and December, and should all of these renew, the sum will be about $1,600 to be divided. In addition to whatever the 10 per cent will make The Constitution offers $100 cash to go to the first six correct guesses; $50 for the first correct guess received and $10 each for the next five that are correct, provided these are received before December 1. If only one person should name this missing word he would have a good sum.

In its first missing word contest The Constitution paid the whole amount to one successful contestant, Mr. M. L. Britain, $1,000.00; it may be that only one person will name it this time; the period of the year commences exactly with Mr. Britain's contest, and we understand he will not be allowed to guess any more, and should only one man get the word right this time it would disbar him from guessing thereafter.

This is the sentence:
"Once given the passion for — that one of the precious metals will be most in demand which is cheapest."

The readers of our paper who subscribe jointly to it and The Weekly Constitution have free access into the sixth contest, just opened; and it may be that some of them will get the amount to be distributed on the 1st of January.

The only condition of the contest is that every guesser must be a subscriber; and taking advantage of The Constitution's offer we present this opportunity to all who wish to subscribe to both papers. Every person should have his county paper and one great general newspaper; and The Weekly Constitution, with a circulation of 150,000, occupies the unique distinction of being the greatest American weekly newspaper.

By special arrangement with The Weekly Constitution, that great paper and THE CHRONICLE can be obtained for one year at almost the price of one paper, the price of the two being only $1.50. Not only that, but under our arrangement with The Weekly Constitution every person who takes advantage of this clubbing proposition, subscribing for both papers, will be entitled to a guess at the missing word. All clubbing subscriptions should be sent to this paper with each subscriber's guess and the name and address of each subscriber will be forwarded by us to The Weekly Constitution.

Captain Falkner Returns.
Capt. J. M. Falkner returned last night from Birmingham. The purpose of his visit to Birmingham was to look after the 28 damage suits pending before the federal courts against the Louisville and Nashville railroad, the outgrowth of the Cahaba river wreck which occurred Sunday morning, December 27, 1896.
He succeeded in effecting a compromise in 16 of the 28 suits, and will probably effect a compromise in several more.—Journal.

The negro postmaster of Hogansville, Georgia, who has become the centre of attention because the people of the town refused to do business with him, and who asserted that he had been shot at by unknown persons and wounded, is accused now of shamming. It is said he scratched his arm and shot a hole through the wall of his house, but that he refused to let anyone examine the wound. The sympathy that has been expressed for him on account of the alleged persecution is rapidly disappearing.—Register.

Governor Johnston has received official notification that the management of the Tennessee Centennial Exposition has awarded a gold medal to Alabama for her agricultural exhibit. The medal will be forwarded to the Governor and will be displayed as a trophy, either in the executive office or that of the Commissioner of Agriculture.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war, and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera, morbus, dysentery and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50-cent sizes for sale by J. E. The Hicks 1898 Almanac and Paper.
We are informed that the 1898 Almanac of Prof. F. R. Hicks is now ready, and judging from its past history it will not become weak in finding its way into homes and offices all over America. It is much larger and finer than any previous issue. It contains 116 pages, is splendidly printed and illustrated on fine book paper, having the finest portrait ever given of Professor Hicks. It can no longer be denied that the publications of Professor Hicks have become a necessity to the family and commercial life of this country. His Journal, "Word and Work," aside from its current, weather and astronomical facts, is taken rank with the best literary, scientific and family magazines of the age. Do not believe hearsay and reports. See the Hicks Almanac and paper for yourself. You will then know why they are so popular. The one editors of the millions, and privileged safeguards to society and human life. It is a matter of simple record that Professor Hicks has foretold for many years all great storms, floods, droughts and famines, even the recent terrible drought over all the country. The Almanac alone is 25 cents a copy. The paper, sent to you with the Almanac as a premium, is 25¢ a year with the Almanac as a premium. Send to Nine Months of McKinleyism.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

The recent elections in the West, where all the political symptoms are important as having a bearing on future campaigns, show two things very conclusively. One is that the bolting element, which paraded under the name of "National Democracy," has become too feeble to survive until another campaign. The other is that the middle-of-the-road Populists are decreasing in numbers almost as rapidly as the bolters.

Both tendencies are natural, inevitable indeed, and they move along with another tendency, which may be described as the drift of disgruntled and dissatisfied Republicans toward the Democratic party on account of the renewed allegiance of that party to its old-time principles, as well as on account of the failure of the Republican party to fulfill its pre-election promises.

A very good illustration, bearing directly on the gradual drift toward Democracy, is given in a story current in this neighborhood. It seems that a young man, who has been deeply immersed in scientific studies, or what pass for such, recently remarked to an acquaintance that it was one of the fundamental laws of science that no two things can be exactly alike—somewhere and somehow there must be a difference. "But I know two things that are exactly alike in every particular," remarked the acquaintance. "Impossible!" protested the scientist. "Why, you'll admit it yourself," responded the acquaintance. "What are they?" inquired the scientist. "Cleveland adversity and McKinley prosperity."

The demonstration was as perfect as it was unexpected. There is no point of difference whatever between Cleveland adversity and McKinley prosperity, and the student of science might have scored a point if he had said that they were not two things at all, but one and the same thing. Now, the people perceive these facts very plainly, and, just as they struck at Clevelandism in 1896, so they will strike at McKinleyism in 1900.

Not one single pledge of prosperity made by the Republicans has been fulfilled. We may take the first, or we may take the latest—the result is the same. The latest of which we have any sure record was Mr. McKinley's declaration on the 4th of March last that the treasury was to have sufficient revenue "without delay, hindrance, or postponement." The reason these words sound so fine is because they are Mr. McKinley's own. "Without delay, hindrance, or postponement"—and yet the deficit in revenue for the fiscal year to date is $44,000,000! And it is hinted by some of the faithful that no true patriot need be disappointed if the deficit reaches $50,000,000 by the end of January—nearly one year after the date of McKinley's sonorous pledge that the Republicans would provide sufficient revenue "without delay, hindrance, or postponement."

But this is not all, not even a beginning of the failure of the Republican pledges to materialize. We were to have a revival of business as the result of the Dingley tariff law, but the only sign of revival comes as the result of short wheat crops abroad. Mr. McKinley was to promote international bimetalism. Instead of that he has demonstrated the futility of the scheme, for which he deserves the thanks of honest men everywhere.

He was to open the mills to labor, but we find, nearly nine months after his inauguration, that the vast cotton mills of New England have come upon the worst period in their history. Their condition is called "a crisis," and they are preparing to reduce wages all along the line from salaried officials to the back boys.

In the South the actual conditions are no better than they were during the worst days of Clevelandism. Cotton is 5 cents a pound, and that fact means a good deal so far as our trade is concerned. In view of all these things, how can the Republicans hope to receive the indorsement of the people in another national election?

The bolting Democrats (those who really believe in a Democratic system) are returning to the party because they can not stomach the legislative and administrative results of McKinleyism and Hannaism. The Populists are returning to the party because the party has returned to genuine Democratic principles, and thousands of Republicans will vote to rebuke their own party, which has not lived up to a single one of its campaign promises.

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana, Ala., as second class matter.

RETURNS thanks for the goodness and mercy of the Lord.

WHEN Mr. Aldrich got the patronage of this district he got an elephant. An appointment makes two enemies and one friend.

THE Dingley tariff has so far failed to produce sufficient revenue by about $50,000,000. The leading question is, Where is the administration at?

THE Age-Herald wants dollar gas. We want dollar whisky.—Montevallo News.

We don't know whether the brother speaks for himself or for his town. In either case he certainly forgot for the moment where he lives. We are sure Montevallo doesn't want any at all, and the young brother doesn't need it.

It was left for a Chicago court to make a decision in favor of the working man. A railroad conductor was given a verdict for damages caused by keeping him out of work by blacklisting. If this decision is sustained by the higher court it will be one correct recognition of the rights of the laborer against the corporations. The decisions have all been one way so far.

For a complete answer to the criticisms of the Advocate last week we respectfully refer to the proceedings of that Republican meeting at Calera last week, published elsewhere. No comment is necessary; the self-evident dissatisfaction speaks for itself. However, if Mr. Aldrich is a consistent Republican we can not understand why our Populist brother supports him. Perhaps that will appear later.

This week we print the news, and leave off our editorials. A country editor has a hard time. When he has no news he writes things that somebody disagrees with; when he has news he gets cussed for not saying anything. Anyhow he is expected to run the universe and his paper at the same time. We are trying to do both, of course; if we fail we hope to give both a little shaking up.

This is the day of thanks. The people may not feel that they have been blessed as a nation nor as a people, and yet we can find something to be thankful for, some cause to celebrate the day. The South has had a hard time, with its low-priced cotton, its scarcity of money, its yellow fever, but it might have been worse. Let us eat a hearty dinner, the best we can get, and be thankful for it, letting it represent our measure of good things; let our gratitude fill our hearts.

BUT add to the above that the New York Journal, the leading silver paper of the United States, agrees that the road to success, next year and in 1900, lies in eliminating the silver question entirely from the canvass of those years and adhering to the old issue of tariff for revenue only, opposition to syndicates, trade combinations and monopolies and to paternalism as seen in the course of the Republican party.—Entaw Mirror.

All of which is a repetition of the Advertiser's twisting of what the New York's Journal's did say. The Journal has never said a word about eliminating the silver issue. What it did say was that the majority of the party should rule, a very good hint to those dissenters who think their little minority is a big majority.

THE CHRONICLE, replying to the article quoted elsewhere from the Sentinel, takes the responsibility of nominating J. L. Peters for circuit judge, notwithstanding the refusal of that gentleman to enter the race. We have been looking for just such a man, and having found him we are going to run him, with the help of his other friends in this county. This circuit, all circuits, need a judge that owes no favors because he has asked none. Of his fitness we have spoken, sufficiently for the present, in our news columns. His qualifications are known to all his admirers in Shelby County, they will be presented in due time to the other counties. We make this announcement on our own responsibility, and are ready for the help of our friends to make it win.

SPEAKING of an article in the New York Post, the Mobile Register has to say:

This is the sort of ripping up the back the South gets from the New York Post because of Senator Morgan's attitude on the Hawaiian question. The South, unfortunately, is held responsible for Morgan.

Fortunately the South is represented by Morgan and a few more like him who give some tone to their section, some sort of stamina to their country. Fortunately, too, no one is compelled to pay attention to such ranting, scurrilous papers as the Post, and no one does it except for a text to hit a man over the back when other excuses fail. We are surprised at the Register for quoting a paper that doesn't know the war is over. The opinions of such bloody shirt wavers are not a credit even when merely quoted.

ALDRICH FOR GOVERNOR.

Turned Down by the Republicans, Will be the Populist Candidate.

From the Age-Herald we gather some interesting political news:

The political situation is affording some lightning-like changes in the proposed plans of the anti-Democrats. The latest gossip is that Hon. W. F. Aldrich will head the Populist party in the coming gubernatorial contest.

Some time ago the name of Representative Howard, of Fort Payne, was prominently mentioned by the leading Populists. He is no longer being considered, and former Congressman Aldrich, of the Fourth district, it is claimed, is being groomed for the race.

Prominent Republicans have become more or less interested in the matter. Many of them now concede that Representative Howard would not accept the nomination for Governor. He is very anxious to be returned to Congress from the Seventh district, and will use his every endeavor to secure the Populist nomination there.

It is becoming generally conceded among the Republicans that W. F. Aldrich is to be the standardbearer of the Populists in the coming August election.

Aldrich's successor as the Populist Congressional candidate from the Fourth district will be Stephen Noble, of Anniston.

REPUBLICANS TALK.

A prominent Republican yesterday evening said such was the programme now being arranged.

"It is a fact," said he, "that Noble will consent to make the race, he will hold such a tight string around his purse that the truly loyal will be greatly disappointed if they should expect him to turn it loose."

Appropos to the announcement that Aldrich will run for Governor is a set of resolutions adopted at a recent meeting of the Fourth district Congressional committee.

Last Thursday the committee met in Calera. It was decided to call a district convention to meet at Calera Tuesday, March 8, 1898. This convention is called for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress.

At the Calera meeting the following resolutions condemning Mr. Aldrich were unanimously adopted. Commissioner Wilson acted as chairman pro tem of the meeting:

Resolved, That, whereas this, the Fourth Congressional district of Alabama, did, over the opposition of all elements, control the organization of the Republican party in the district and did, over such opposition, elect and instruct two delegates to vote for the nomination of Major McKinley at the national convention held at St. Louis, and, whereas, said delegates did vote and work for the nomination of Major McKinley, and, whereas, the Republican organizations of this district seem to be powerless and utterly ignored by President McKinley's administration, in so far as the patronage of the district is concerned; said patronage being exclusively controlled by the Populists, and the appointments made are almost exclusively from the ranks of the Populist party; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we enter this protest against the appointment of any except Republicans, and we most earnestly desire that the Republicans of the country will not hold the Republican party of this district responsible for the appointments of any except Republicans, either in this district or in the State.

Resolved, That W. F. Aldrich, who is now contesting a seat in Congress from this, the Fourth Congressional district of Alabama, was the nominee of the Populist party, and is not recognized by the Republican organization or by the Republican party of the district as a Republican, but is well known as a free-silver Populist; therefore, be it Resolved, That we greatly deprecate the fact that through some unknown influence the present Republican administration is permitting the said W. F. Aldrich to control the various appointments made in this district in the interest of the Populist party and to the detriment of the Republican party and the friends of the administration.

Resolved, That, whereas the colored element in this district and the State compose a large majority of the votes cast for the Republican party in all elections held; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the colored element is entitled to due consideration in the dispensation of patronage under a Republican administration, and should not be relegated to menial places alone, and but few of them, as is the condition which now exists, and so far as this district is concerned, they have had no appointments to any positions.

SHELBY IRON COMPANY.

Interview with its President Elicits Encouraging News.

Capt. T. G. Bush, president of the Shelby Iron Co., came over from Shelby Friday last to take the Southern train to Anniston. A representative of THE CHRONICLE met him at the depot, and found him in fairly good spirits over the prospects for the future operations of his furnace. He said that while they still had some iron on hand they were short on some numbers, and felt justified in starting up one furnace. This he thinks they will be able to keep going for the future.

The iron made by this company is a fine grade of charcoal iron, and is used almost exclusively in the manufacture of car wheels. There has been for some time little call for new equipments by the railroads, and in consequence there has been little sale for this class of iron. Some improvements are in view now, and the demand will be better. The price is quite low, but with economical management the company will be able to hold its own. Captain Bush is a careful and capable manager, and under his direction the company will be able to keep moving. Many people will find employment who are glad to get it, and while not much money will float around as in the flush days, much comfort will accrue to the operatives. The commissary system will necessarily be in vogue for some time.

Certainly you don't want to suffer with dyspepsia, constipation, sick headache, sallow skin and loss of appetite. You have never tried DeWitt's Little Early Risers for these complaints or you would be cured. They are small pills but great regulators. J. E. Seale & Co.

Our 75 cent offer is nearly out. Very few have taken advantage of it, and we naturally conclude that those who do not do so do not want the paper. After the 1st of December we shall cut our subscription list accordingly, and hope those who desire to renew will do so before that time. All our agents are requested to report at that time.

SHELBY'S CANDIDATE.

Will not Enter the Race, but the County will Run Him.

The Shelby Sentinel last week contained the following card:

EDITOR SENTINEL:—If Joseph L. Peters, of Columbiana, would consent to enter the contest for the Democratic nomination for circuit judge of this circuit, he would find many ardent friends in this portion of the circuit.

CALERA.

Referring to this the Sentinel said editorially:

A communication appearing elsewhere suggesting Mr. J. L. Peters for circuit judge meets with the hearty endorsement of The Sentinel. Mr. Peters is a lawyer of ability and a gentleman of unimpeachable integrity—and would hold the scales of justice with an impartial hand. The Sentinel believes he would be a strong candidate before the people if he would consent to enter the race. We have not heard of any candidate as yet from Shelby for judicial honors but we have heard of aspirants for this position in Talladega and Calhoun. It seems to The Sentinel that it is about time for Shelby to put in her claim, and we hope Mr. Peters may see his way clear to bear Shelby's banner in this contest.

A representative of THE CHRONICLE, impressed with the idea of Mr. Peters becoming a candidate for this position, called on him and asked for an expression on this subject.

He had not yet read the above article, but when told about it he smiled in acknowledgement of the compliment paid him therein. After some discussion of the matter he gave us this reply, in substance:

"I will not enter into the race for this position, and am in no sense a candidate. I do not believe in positions of this kind being sought after by any man; but on the contrary I think the people who are interested should settle upon a candidate after an impartial consideration of his fitness. No matter how much I should like to occupy the judicial bench I could never get my consent to ask any man's support for it, or even to announce myself a candidate. Consequently I could not, as The Sentinel suggests, enter the race. I regard the position as one of honor and trust and grave responsibilities, and one which no man has the right to degrade by making a personal effort to obtain. You may return my thanks to those who did me the honor to suggest my name in this connection, and say to them that I cannot consent to enter the race."

Mr. Peters would not even give his consent for his name to be used by his friends, standing firmly upon his belief that this is one office that should seek the man.

Mr. Peters is a man of the highest integrity and of firm convictions. He is a lawyer of more than twenty years' practice, having been admitted to the bar in 1876. His knowledge of the law, acquired by all those years of practice and study, is such as would make him a successful judge. His rigid sense of propriety would especially fit him for the place. His record for Democracy is the very best, and he has done some good work for his party. A man of unassuming disposition, only his closest friends know his real worth. Of a sympathetic nature, he leans strongly toward the interests of the people. His reply given above is the very best evidence of his fitness for the position referred to. Men with these views are badly needed upon the bench in Alabama, and Shelby County will offer his name for the nomination.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co., druggists.

ALDRICH GETS THE COLD SHOULDER.

Meeting of the Republican Executive Committee of Shelby County.

On Tuesday last there was a meeting of the Republican executive committee held here pursuant to a call by the chairman.

From what we could learn the action of the committee was not very favorable to Mr. W. F. Aldrich. It seems that he attempted to have a general mass convention of Republicans called to take such steps for the coming campaign as might appear for the best. Some of the most prominent local Republicans did not agree with this idea, but insisted that a regular convention should be called to which delegates should be elected in the regular way. This latter idea prevailed, and the chairman was instructed to call the convention at an early day.

Mr. Aldrich's idea was to have a mass meeting and decide upon cooperation, his intention clearly being to fuse with the Populists on the same old basis. Other leaders thought the question of fusion a secondary consideration, and insisted on doing business in the straight old way.

In an interview with a prominent and life-long Republican who was present at the meeting THE CHRONICLE was given the idea that the meeting's action was not at all favorable to Mr. Aldrich. The gentleman said:

"The Republicans are still open to propositions for fusion, but I can assure you that in future they will expect and have the big end of the deal. It is time really that the people were lining up. Populism has about run its course, and it is high time we were having some straight politics. We have given aid to the Populists for some time, and so far have received but little consideration at their hands. We have decided that in future the party that gets our aid must recognize its value; or, in other words, we intend to do the dictating."

Speaking further, the gentleman said: "I am getting tired of the old nonsensical cry of fraud. They all commit it when they have an opportunity, and I want to see the people lined up on principles and drop into the Republican or Democratic party as they believe in their respective tenets."

Another white Republican expressed about the same ideas, and was even more outspoken in his dissatisfaction at Mr. Aldrich's course.

A prominent colored Republican assured the reporter that they would run a straight Republican ticket next year; that they realized that they had been used as tools by the Populists, and they proposed to assert their claims in future campaigns.

From another gentleman present it was learned that Mr. Aldrich wanted the Republicans present to resolve themselves into a convention and settle the policy of the party then and there. This would have carried but for the arrival of J. D. Hardy, who proposed the calling of a regular convention on the proper basis of representation. Mr. Hardy's motion prevailed. Had it not been for his advice some warm discussion, accompanied by documentary evidence, would have ensued; and when the convention meets there will be some hot shot poured into the political body of the present boss.

Hon. G. B. Deans, chairman of the State Populist committee, was present but not in the meeting. As one of the Republicans put it, he was figuring on the outside. It was a very Republican meeting.

The "Bicycleist's Best Friend" is a familiar name for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, always ready for emergencies. While a specific for piles, it also instantly relieves and cures cuts, bruises, salt rheum, eczema and all affections of the skin. It never fails. J. E. Seale & Co.

Max Boxer is now registered at the dining parlor of Mrs. Bettie Averyt, he, after the dainty refreshments visits regularly this famous eatery thrice daily.

Dr. W. A. Lovett, master of the tooth plyers, is quartered in our city.

When the wells are dry we know the worth of water.

Quite a large party of our venerable citizens were present at the number 1 furnace, which was illuminated by Walter, the bright little son of Capt. J. P. Christian, Monday night at 7 o'clock.

The members and friends of the Baptist church enjoyed a season of pleasure Sunday evening at their immersion of a new member. The little daughter of Mr. Wm. Keith was deeply engaged with the holy water, Rev. C. W. O'Hara, officiated.

The human family is a funeral procession marching toward the grave. These reflections are brought upon us by the death of Mrs. J. H. Johnson, which sad event happened Monday morning after a long, long, serious illness. Her last sickness was prolonged and painful, but her faith was amply sufficient, and with implicit trust she finished the journey. The family ties were strong. Mother feels that the dearest one is gone, the husband has lost his best companion, and the two little children will miss mother's love, sympathy and advice. We earnestly deplore this sad death, and we tender to the bereaved parents, husband and children our heartfelt sympathy.

Thursday evening the Congregational church will be brilliant with light, radiant with beauty and fragrant with many flowers. There will be the concert given by the Christian Endeavor. There will be several songs rendered by a male chorus of a few members. Misses Lucia Witherby and Jessie Carter will sing, so will Mr. Cleveland Witherby; while Mrs. J. K. Lanning will be heard upon the piano. They are brilliant performers so the best judges say, so there is certainly a positive treat ahead of all lovers of music. Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. All invited to be out.

Montevallo Murmurs.

Mr. William Walker, president of the Shelby County Bank, was in the city Monday, paid a visit to the Industrial School, and was charmed of course.

W. H. Daniels, of Birmingham, and Mr. Lenoir, of Selma, were also here Monday.

H. C. Fancher will take the roof off of his Honeycutt building on Southside and add a second story and two rooms below.

D. C. Savage, of this place, is on a visit to Clanton, in attendance on circuit court.

Our town needs a small system of waterworks. It would be a good investment; we have all the water you want, but we want it so we will not have to break our backs and ruin our constitution and by-laws twisting it out of a deep well.

Two gentlemen of the colored persuasion are engaged in digging on the corner lot owned by H. C. & W. B. Reynolds. Looks like they are digging a foundation for a two-story brick house.

Mr. Wilkinson, of Prattville, is here on a visit.

Mr. James Ozley has moved into the Carleton House on Southside.

Chickens, eggs, butter, and turkeys are legal tender at this place, no matter if they are a little tough.

Capt. T. S. Plowman, member of Congress from Fourth district, and Colonel Wadsworth, of Wadsworth, both of whom are trustees of the Industrial School, were in town the 17th and 18th instant, and were welcome visitors.

The Industrial School has had a great many visitors within the past few weeks. It is a wonderful institution; no one can form any conception of the work being done without paying it a visit. The fact is, there are a great many people who reside right here in Montevallo who do not realize what this school is or means. While they feel the deepest interest in it and would do almost anything to help it along they have never entered its doors to see what progress has been made, or the advantages which accrue to the pupils who are in attendance. There are now in attendance 335 of the brightest, sweetest girls to be found in Alabama, and they are still coming. The dressmaking department, which is under the management of Mrs. Nelson, has 225 in attendance, and is a regular beehive of industry; the cooking department has about 200 pupils; music, 236; art, 200. It would take too much time and occupy too much of your valuable space to enter into a full statement of all that is being done in this the greatest of all of Alabama's schools. Everyone who has paid it a visit speaks of it in the most enthusiastic terms. Come and see it.

Cotton is coming in with a rush, so much so that the agent was obliged to have it unloaded on the ground at the depot and then load it on the cars as soon as same was furnished. We have had a regular car famine, but things are better now.

Mr. Carr, of Roanoke, Va., is building a residence on Southside. Clint DeShazo and Col. J. B. Randall will commence to build within a short while.

Mr. Robinson and Mr. Barginner, of Belle Ellen, and Col. W. M. Bethea, of Birmingham, were in town this week.

W. S. Cary, Bob Killough and others are out on the Warrior river on a camp hunt (?). They will be absent about two weeks.

Colonel Vest, High Sheriff, was in town for a short time this week.

The Montevallo Coal and Transportation Co.'s mines are running on full time.

Felix Dotson, our tonsorial artist, was arrested under two warrants sworn out by Dan Shortridge charging the said Felix with carrying a sealed weepin and using obscure language in the presence of a lady of color (all colored). Felix made his bonds and will be up to the Captain's office this week to settle with an outraged State.

Colonel Graham, of Calera, called to see some of his friends in town this week. He did not have time to see them all or he would be here now with both arms shaken off close to the shoulders; suppose that's why he left.

Mr. Burgess Little, of the Shelby County Bank, has about lost his eyesight, caused by trying to look at all of our good-looking girls at one time. He has been repeatedly warned not to do so, but persisted. Hope that this may be sufficient warning to the other young men around town.

Walter Brown, of Selma, a native of Montevallo, is in town.

Lost, strayed, or stolen. A liberal reward will be paid to anyone furnishing information as to one of our lawyers, described as follows: About 5 feet 10 inches high, red-headed, knock-kneed, lantern-jawed, and about 35 years of age. Left home to go on a camp hunt, or something; had 3 shotguns, 2 winchester rifles, 4 revolvers, 2 bowie knives, 8 bound dogs, 2 tons of gunpowder, 7 barrels of buckshot, and one jug of er-er molasses or something. Supposed to have gone in direction of Warrior river. Head him, somebody!

Mortgage Sale.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by William Kirkpatrick and his wife, Sarah Kirkpatrick, to Ada T. McGuire, dated the 7th day of April, 1897, and recorded in mortgage book, Volume 43, Record of Mortgages, pages 217-220, on the 10th day of April, 1897, in the office of the Probate Judge of Shelby County, Alabama, will be sold at auction in front of the Courthouse door of said county, on the 18th day of December, 1897, at 12 m., the following described real property situated in Shelby County, Alabama, to-wit:

East 1/2 of NW 1/4 of NE 1/4, and SW 1/4 of NE 1/4, SW 1/4 of SE 1/4 of NE 1/4, also all that part of SE 1/4 which is on the Northwest side of Cahaba Valley Road, and which measures fifty-six and five-tenths acres (56-1/10) and a part of NE 1/4 of SE 1/4, all in Section 31, Township 19, S. Range 2 W., located between Cahaba Valley Road and Creek, containing seven and half acres, more or less, described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the intersection point of Cahaba Valley Road and East line of Section 31, Township 19, S. Range 2 W., thence South 38 deg. 45 min. West, eight hundred and twenty feet, thence S. 45 deg. East, nine hundred feet to the intersection with Creek, thence up the Creek to its intersection with East line of Section 31, Township 19, S. Range 2 W., thence follow Section line to Thomas B. Miller's line then follow said Miller's line to Cahaba Valley Road, all together one hundred and forty-four and five-tenths acres.

FRANK MILLER AND JESSE B. MILLER, Assignees of said Mortgage.

L. C. DICKEY, Attorney.

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 29.—Special.—In a quiet way the silver issue has become a very prominent factor in the local Democratic campaign in Jefferson County. There is not a pronounced gold candidate for any office. The sole gold man in the field has identified himself with the Bimetallic League of Jefferson County. A bimetallic club has been organized at Bessemer, and will be followed, it is believed, by similar organizations, auxiliary to the central club at Birmingham, in every town of any importance in the county. The former gold men appear to be very indifferent to the campaign, and will figure only as voters. There are no new candidates in the list, a roster appearing to have been made out several weeks ago. The policy of the dominant faction of the Democracy in this county seems to be to inject the silver issue into the campaign and to admit all to the primary who will agree to abide the result and support the nominees. Populists and Palmer and Buckner men will, it is thought, both be invited to come in on these terms. It is believed that no few gold men will keep hands off so far as the primaries are concerned. A feature of the situation is the interest some former prominent Populists are taking in the Democratic campaign. They are cheek by jowl with their former enemies and work with them in perfect harmony.

THE MISSING WORD.

The Atlanta Constitution's New Contest—Clubbing Rates.

The Weekly Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., has announced its sixth consecutive missing word contest, commencing on the 1st of November and closing on the 1st of January, a period of about two months.

The book containing the missing word has been sent out and placed in the hands of W. A. Hemphill, the president and business manager of the company. It is a standard publication and has probably been widely read throughout the South.

The amount offered in prizes is 10 per cent of the subscriptions received from contestants; there are about 16,000 subscribers expiring with The Constitution during November and December, and should all of these renew, the sum will be about $1,600 to be divided. In addition to whatever the 10 per cent will make The Constitution offers $100 cash to go to the first six correct guesses; $50 for the first correct guess received and $10 each for the next five that are correct, provided these are received before December 1. If only one person should name this missing word he would have a good sum.

In its first missing word contest The Constitution paid the whole amount to one successful contestant, Mr. M. L. Britain, $1,033.50; it may be that only one person will name it this time; the period of the year compares exactly with Mr. Britain's contest, and we understand he will not be allowed to guess any more, and should only one man get the word right this time it would disbar him from guessing thereafter.

This is the sentence: "Once given the passion for—that one of the precious metals will be most in demand which is cheapest."

The readers of our paper who subscribe jointly to it and The Weekly Constitution have free access into the sixth contest, just opened; and it may be that some of them will get the amount to be distributed on the 1st of January.

The only condition of the contest is that every guesser must be a subscriber; and taking advantage of The Constitution's offer we present this opportunity to all who wish to subscribe to both papers. Every person should have his county paper and one great general newspaper; and The Weekly Constitution, with a circulation of 150,000, occupies the unique distinction of being the greatest American weekly newspaper.

By special arrangement with The Weekly Constitution, that great paper and THE CHRONICLE can be obtained for one year at almost the price of one paper, the price of the two being only $1.50. Not only that, but under our arrangement with The Weekly Constitution who takes advantage of this clubbing proposition, subscribing for both papers, will be entitled to a guess at the missing word. All clubbing subscriptions should be sent to this paper with each subscriber's guess at the missing word plainly written. The guess and the name and address of each subscriber will be forwarded by us to The Weekly Constitution.

The two Silver Leaders Meet and Hold a Conference.

MEMPHIS, TENN., November 29.—A special to the Commercial-Appeal from Louisville says: W. J. Bryan and Chairman Jones met in conference at the Galt House to-day upward of fifty of the most prominent Democrats. The conference was secret and the proceedings were not divulged, but was followed by an open session and a general discussion of the situation.

The principal object of the secret conference was to arrange for the carrying on with renewed vigor of the silver fight in this State. It was decided not to invite the gold Democrats back into the party, but they will be welcomed, and as far as possible the fight amongst them will be dropped. They are to be ignored, in other words. The fight is to be made squarely on the issues of 1896 and against the Republican party.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war, and I have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50-cent sizes for sale by J. E. Seale & Co. Druggists.

The Hicks 1898 Almanac and Paper.

We are informed that the 1898 Almanac of Prof. T. R. Hicks is now ready, and judging from its past history it will not be many weeks in finding its way into homes and offices all over America. It is much larger and finer than any previous issue. It contains 140 pages, splendidly printed and illustrated on fine book paper, having the finest portrait ever given of Professor Hicks. It can no longer be denied that the publications of Professor Hicks have become a necessity to the family and commercial life of this country. His journal, "Word and Works," aside from its storm, weather and astronomical features, has taken rank with the best literary, scientific and family magazines of the age. Do not believe hearsay and reports. See the Hicks Almanac and paper for yourself. You will then know why they are so popular. They are educators of the millions, and unrivaled safeguards to property and human life. It is matter of simple record that Professor Hicks has been for many years all great storms, floods, droughts and tornadoes, even the recent terrible drought over all the country. The Almanac alone is 25 cents a copy. The paper is $1.00 a year with the Almanac a premium. Send to Final Settlement.

STATE OF ALABAMA. Probate Court, 9th Shelby County. (day of November, 1897.)

Estate of James M. Johnson, deceased. This day came C. W. O'Hara, as administrator of the estate of James M. Johnson, deceased, and filed his account, vouchers, receipts and statement for a final settlement of the same. It is ordered that the 23rd day of November, 1897, be appointed a day for making such settlement, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same if they think proper.

D. R. McILLAN, Judge of Probate.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MOTHERS.

WE ARE ASSERTING IN THE COURTS OUR RIGHT TO THE EXCLUSIVE USE OF THE WORD "CASTORIA," AND "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," AS OUR TRADE MARK.

I, DR. SAMUEL PITCHER, of Hyannis, Massachusetts, was the originator of "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," the same that has borne and does now bear the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on every wrapper. This is the original "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," which has been used in the homes of the Mothers of America for over thirty years. LOOK CAREFULLY at the wrapper and see that it is the kind you have always bought and has the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the wrapper. No one has authority from me to use my name except The Centaur Company of which Chas. H. Fletcher is President.

A GREAT MAGAZINE OFFER!

The regular subscription price of "DEMOREST'S MAGAZINE," "JUDGE'S LIBRARY," and "FUNNY PICTURES" is $3.30.

"DEMOREST'S MAGAZINE" is by far the best family magazine published; there is none of our monthlies in which the beautiful and the useful, pleasure and profit, fashion, literature are so fully presented as in Demorest's. There is, in fact, no publication pretending to a similar set-up and purpose which can compare with it. Every number contains a free pattern coupon.

"JUDGE'S LIBRARY" is a monthly magazine of fun, filled with illustrations in caricature and replete with wit and humor. Its contributors are the best of American wits and illustrators.

"FUNNY PICTURES" is another humorous monthly; there is a laugh in every line of it. All three of these magazines are handsomely gotten up. You should not miss this chance to secure them.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Secretary Bliss reports a probable increase in the cost of pensions for next year of $5,000,000 to $7,000,000, though the cost this year is above $140,000,000. Nearly a third of a century after the close of the war he finds 200,000 pension claims awaiting action—a number greater than the largest army actually put into battle during the war. So much for reckless, demagogic legislation, seeking votes with the most demoralizing of bribes—a pension bait.—World.

It is premature to place in nomination Governor Johnston, Mr. Bankhead, Mr. Stallings, Mr. Clayton, or Mr. Anybody else as Senator Morgan's successor. If Senator Morgan lives and desires to be returned to the Senate the people will send him. No man in Alabama can defeat him. When Senator Morgan is out of the way, then the people of Alabama can turn their eyes toward Anniston. This city has a citizen who will very probably be the successor in the Senate to General Morgan.—Hot Blast.

The farmers who are looking forward to hard times next year are the farmers who have made "very little corn," and depended on their cotton crop to pay their "store account" for supplies for the year, and on the merchants to "advance them enough to make a crop" next year. Their cotton will not pay for the supplies they used this year, they have no supplies of their own making for next year, they can not get credit for the supplies they need—many of them will be obliged to abandon their small farms and work for wages, as they did three or four years ago.—Charleston, (S. C.) News and Courier.

The Lansing (Mich.) Journal, one of the ablest and most uncompromising gold advocates in the far West, which went off after those two old ducks, Palmer and Buckner, has followed the example of the Louisville Courier-Journal and has returned to the Democratic fold. It was disheartened over the result of the recent elections and had to choose between going boldly over to the Republican party and returning to the Democratic party. It preferred to be a humble follower in a good cause than a leader in a bad cause. The bolting organs must all return sooner or later or land in the Republican party.—Montgomery Journal.

Governor Johnston has our hearty indorsement in his investigation into the detail expenses of the State. We hope he will not stop at details, but will carry the policy through all the State's expenses. We need a "stingy" Governor, and a good veto axe kept handy around his desk will save the taxpayers of the State many a day's sweat and dollar wasted. It is very well for fellows who share the pie or shirk the payment to call Johnston penurious and stingy in his administration, but to those who foot the bill it is the highest compliment to be paid him. We all know Joe Johnston will not save to the detriment of the State for he knows when to cut and where to be liberal, but he is on the right track in looking after the little leaks as well as the big and we hope he will stop all of them before he gets through.—Talladega News-Reporter.

One of the bolting Democratic newspapers published in New York has kindly undertaken to show the Democratic party the way to victory in 1900. There are few, if any, indications that the Democracy, the party that piled up in 1896 the largest vote it has ever polled and the largest, with one exception, ever polled by any party, is looking to any of the bolting organs for counsel, guidance, or direction. The position of the regular Democrats toward the bolters, as we see it defined in their organs, is one of considerable charity. They are quite willing that all the lost sheep should return to the fold, and, like those which "little Bo-Peep" lost, should come back wearing their tails in the proper place. But they do not propose to offer any special inducements in the way of provender, and they insist on the right of the majority to dictate policies and nominate candidates. There is room for the wanderers in the back part of the fold, and the regulars are willing for them to occupy it during good behavior.

But this independent attitude of the Democratic party does not discourage the organs of the bolters. They are used to snubs and other disagreeable attentions and appear to enjoy the offering of advice that is not called for and sure to be scornfully rejected.—Washington Post.

FREE SILVER'S CAUSE IS GAINING.

Representative Hartman says the South and the West are More Devoted to It than Ever.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Representative Hartman, of Montana, has been one of the active promoters of the free silver propaganda. He said to-day: "I presume it has been ascertained to the satisfaction of everybody that international bimetalism involving the consent of Great Britain, is an iridescent dream. As a consuming and creditor nation she, of course, is interested in taking our products at the very lowest price at which she can obtain them. Even her admiration for this country will scarcely convince her that she ought not deliberately to throw away the great advantage she now enjoys.

The advocates of bimetalism will submit to no compromise of the principles for which they contend. Men who are casting about for schemes "to do something for silver," or "for a larger use of silver," or to advance the market price of silver do not understand the first principles of the money question, or else they are endeavoring to compromise away the essence of it for their own selfish purposes."

Asked if he anticipated any financial legislation to pass Congress next session, Mr. Hartman replied:

"The House will pass a financial measure of some kind probably. I mean it will pass whatever measure it is told to pass. It will be directed to pass a measure reflecting in substance the plan of the Indianapolis Business Men's Gold Convention, which has been made by adoption the policy of the Republican administration. It will have three main provisions:

"First, the perpetual maintenance of the gold standard; second, the retirement of the greenbacks and treasury notes; third, the transfer to the banks of the right to issue all paper money used by the people.

"We bimetalists think if this scheme is carried out the industrial and financial slavery of the American people will be complete."

Mr. Hartman asserted that the South and West are more uncompromisingly for silver than ever.

THE SYNOD OF ALABAMA

Will Meet in Tuscaloosa Tuesday, December 7.

The Presbyterian Synod of Alabama will meet at Tuscaloosa, December 7. It has 76 ministers and 186 churches. There should therefore be 272 representatives in attendance. Each minister is entitled to a seat, and each church has the constitutional right to send one lay representative. This meeting will be of unusual interest, as it will celebrate the 250th anniversary of the adoption of the Westminster Confession of Faith. The Synod is composed of these Presbyterians, and has 12,000 communicants, 1,070 being received last year. It contributed last year $111,735 to all purposes, $62,400 of this amount being for foreign missions, $5,329 for home missions, and $5,744 for education. It has an Ophan's Home at Talladega and one State evangelist in the field.

Miss Allie Hughes, Norfolk, Va., was frightfully burned on the face and neck. Pain was instantly relieved by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which healed the injury without leaving a scar. It is the famous pile remedy. J. E. Seale & Co.

Cotton declined to 5.81, the lowest point in many years, with scarcely any indications of speculative effort. More has come into sight this month than during the same time in 1894 for the largest crop ever raised, while takings by Northern and Southern spinners have been smaller, and print cloths and some other staple goods are at lowest quotations ever known. In such conditions weakness is natural, although extreme estimates of yield are not by some entirely credited. The demand for goods from the South is larger since the removal of embargoes, and recent reductions in prices have stimulated larger transactions by dealers, but stocks held by the mills are still heavy. With 1,961,000 pieces of print cloths on hand, against 2,212,000 a year ago, and only 216,000 pieces two years ago, the output of 2,000,000 beyond consumption last year has been a heavy load ever since.—Dun's Review.

Valuable to Women.

Especially valuable to women is Brown's Iron Bitters. Backache vanishes, headache disappears, strength takes the place of weakness, and the glow of health readily comes to the pallid cheek when this wonderful remedy is taken. For sickly children or overworked men it has no equal. No home should be without this famous remedy. Brown's Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

From Lewis and Fourmile.

Your correspondent has been so busy during the day in the schoolroom and preparing lessons at night he has failed to report from these parts lately.

D. W. McKinnon, of Tallapoosa County, was in this region Monday selling patent medicines.

We are blest with two splendid schools in our community known as "The Fourmile" under the management of Prof. Jno. B. Farrell; the other "The Center" under the tutelage of Prof. S. S. Crumpton, these teachers are both very capable of their positions, besides they are christian gentlemen, and we readily express our appreciation of same.

Union Gill, of near Sterrett is attending the Center school.

Prof. Lee Hill, of Nelson Switch, was on Fourmile Sunday shaking hands with his many friends.

R. E. L. Russel, of Fayetteville, has moved into the Jackson residence, though Mr. Jackson hasn't moved yet but will soon move to Sylacauga. Mr. Jackson was a good neighbor, and we hope to find Mr. Russel truly as good.

The Lyceum League met Saturday night and was greatly enjoyed by all present. The debate was, Resolved, The Indians have a greater right to America than the white people, and after a lively debate an impartial decision was rendered in favor of the negative. The next meeting will be Saturday night week; everybody invited to attend. Resolved, The colonization of the negro would be a benefit to the United States.

Miss Alma Jackson, Fourmile's sweetest belle, has been suffering with a bone felon on her finger, but we are glad to note that she is much improved.

Fourmile was visited by a very sad death Saturday morning, when Mrs. Geo. Powell was called to her eternal home to await the great morning when the dead in Christ shall rise. Her sickness was of long duration and her death was not unexpected; for several days she had been delirious, from which she never overcame. She leaves a husband and infant babe to mourn her loss. The subject of this sketch was quite young in years and her married life was of only 2 years, as she was only about 20 years of age. She had lived since the early part of life in the cause of her Lord; so the great loss of this earth is heaven's eternal gain. The bereaved have our sympathy.

Texas fever will surely soon be raging among our young men, one especially, as letters are getting to be numerous again going and coming from Texas.

Our farmers are all about done gathering. And after a careful estimation have decided there has been more wheat sown than ever known before on Fourmile.

There will be a singing at the residence of J. C. Lyon next Saturday evening. Everybody come.

Water has certainly gotten to be an object; wells mostly all dry. Water is so scarce in Lewis can't run the machinery regular. While a crowd of men were cleaning out the large well in Lewis one of them got over balanced, falling about 20 feet into mud and water, completely burying himself by force of gravitation. The patient seems to be doing very well, and it has been decided he was worse scared than hurt.

W. J. Weldon, of Wilsonville, was in this community Friday on business.

W. W. McGowan, of Wilsonville, was on Fourmile Tuesday.

The farmers are about done gathering their crops. Some are going ahead sowing their wheat. That's a good step, for our farmers to raise more corn and wheat and less 5-cent cotton. J. F. Crane is in very bad health, and has been for some time.

J. R. Adams spent week before last in Georgia, returning home Saturday, to the delight of his friends, especially his best girl.

J. R. A., you should inform your girl when you are going to pass; she is getting tired trying to hide behind a cotton stalk to keep you from seeing her old flabby bonnet.

W. A. Wilder and M. J. Cooper were in your city one day last week on business.

Married, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mr. M. J. Cooper to Miss Lucy A. Nivens, officiated by P. N. Gilbert. We wish them a large and happy life. Mrs. Nivens has another son-in-law.

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, Editor and Publisher.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana, Ala., as second class matter.

WELL, it is time for the howling law and order people of the North to come down and attend to the negroes. Three of them lynched one of their own race the other day.

MR. R. B. KELLY, of Calhoun, is a candidate for chancellor of this division. Mr. Kelly is a lawyer of ability and long practice and has had some experience in holding court. He will make the race on his merit, and will find a good strong support in this end of the division.

A METHODIST minister up in Huntsville the other day turned a female revivalist out of his church although she was drawing good crowds and the reports say she was doing much good. Another case where bigotry and intolerance retards the cause of Christianity.

People who think the main object in life cannot understand what the gold Democrats really hope to accomplish by holding out for the recognition of their principles—Register.

People who recognize their principles to be directly against the interests of the people in every respect can not understand why they hang on to them after they have been deserted by their party. It is easy, however, to see what they hope to accomplish. They hope to accomplish the defeat of the Democratic party, but they have fooled the people for the last time.

A correspondent of the Shelby Sentinel last week suggests J. L. Peters, Esq., of this city, as a suitable man for circuit judge. Mr. Peters is well qualified and the Advocate believes would make an impartial judge, but as he does not belong to the ring he stands very little chance of securing the nomination, however popular he may be with the masses.—Peoples' Advocate.

The very reason why he should be nominated, and the very reason why THE CHRONICLE is offering his name. We do not know who the ring is, but the fact that Mr. Peters is not a politician and that he refuses to enter into a canvass makes him peculiarly the proper man for the place.

The Home has strenuously advocated a constitutional convention and a new constitution for Alabama for the past several years, and is not now by any means recanting in the cause, but we do insist that the people take a timely look ahead and take due care in the selection of men for that important duty.—Mountain Home.

A very good idea, but let us first elect a legislature that will call the constitutional convention, and then we can begin to look about for the men to send to the convention. One thing at a time, brother; and let us by all means take up the first thing first. The Home's remarks would apply better to the coming selection of State and county officials.

THE CHRONICLE probably quoted Mr. Peters a trifle too strongly last week. He did not intend to cast any reflections on any candidate who is seeking the circuit judgeship, allowing everyone to view the matter as far as he sees proper. His general idea that this office should seek the man, however, is correct, and in connection with his fitness and ability THE CHRONICLE desires to emphasize this view as making him the proper man to elect to this place. Shelby County is entitled to consideration in this matter, and we offer Mr. Peters as her candidate. So far we do so on our own responsibility, believing him to be a good man and a capable one.

The operations of the Dingley tariff is piling up a deficit that is becoming alarming. It has in five months reached a figure double the size of the largest yearly deficit of the last administration, and the end is not yet in sight. Some remedy must be applied by the coming Congress. The party in power can not retrace their steps and amend the tariff. This will not be permitted by their masters, who furnished the money for their success. They can not retrench on expenditures. That would arouse the anger of the pensioners. The only alternative is a bond issue, and a bond issue it will be. The administration has already intimated it. More bonds, more debt; then a Democratic victory.

The Washington correspondent of the Montgomery Journal sends the following paragraph to that paper:

The friends of Hon. W. E. Aldrich deny that he will be a candidate for Governor, and it is said that he is in favor of nominating a gold Democrat and have the Populist and Republican conventions endorse him.

Worse and worse. The endorsement of Aldrich by the Populists was bad enough, but that he should want his Populist friends to support a gold Democrat! Too thin. Only a little bid for the gold-bug bidders. Of course the Populist leaders would support a gold-bug in preference to the Democratic candidate, but they have sense enough not to ask their people to do it. No, indeed, the Journal's correspondent is a very cowardly youth to be caught with such a bait as this.

A MUCH NEEDED CHANGE.

Speaking of the change of Alabama's Constitution and of the particular features in which changes are needed, the judicial system has come in for its share of notice. When one looks at the system in vogue at present as regards the filling of the judicial positions and the general administration of justice one can easily see many needed changes.

Some suggestion is offered as to a change in the entire system, and several plans differing from the present establishment are being offered. Among these is the plan of making each county a separate judicial district, with its own distinct court of law and equity combined, doing away with circuits and chancery divisions. No doubt this would simplify and cheapen the process of the law.

But leaving out of the question this idea there is one change in the present system very much to be desired, if not absolutely necessary to the interests of litigants and the just and equitable execution of the law. We refer to the present method of electing the judges of the circuit, chancery and supreme judges, and we lay down the proposition that these officers should be taken out of the category of elective positions. If the present system of courts is to continue there is every reason why the judges should be appointed and for a long term of years, if not for life or good behavior.

The present contest for chief justice of the supreme court is a good illustration of the general condition that is prevailing in the judicial campaign. Two men of learning and ability are making a hot fight for the place and each is bartering his political influence for aid in his race. It is even being attempted to make their respective views on the financial question an issue between them, a question with which the position they seek will have nothing to do.

In our own observation we have known a judge on the bench during the trial of a case call a leisure attorney up to the stand and talk with him on the subject of his candidacy.

There are canvasses going on now in this State in which men have been asked and have promised to support candidates for a judgeship whom they consider incompetent because of his supposed ability to aid some personal friend for another position.

In the canvass one attorney favors the successful candidate and another opposes him; it is not in the course of human nature for that judge's action to be unbiased as between his friend and his opponent.

Neither of the conditions mentioned is conducive to the proper dispensation of justice, and these conditions will exist as long as the judges are elected. They will receive nominations by intrigues, swapping and by personal, political and judicial favors and elected by the great body of the people whose rights they are to pass upon.

The only remedy is such a change of the whole judicial fabric as will fill these places by appointment. If the appointment of the Federal judiciary has worked well the same conditions will apply to the State. These places are already far removed from the people in that the canvassing is all done among the legal profession, and they are expected to arrange the details in their respective counties. It will be far better to remove it still farther from them and put it beyond any possibility of influence.

The question of Democratic harmony is still causing some of our exchanges very much worry. This is altogether unnecessary. The Democratic party is exceedingly harmonious at present. In this State it will hold its convention as usual, nominate its candidates, adopt its platform, and go forth to a successful campaign, harmonious throughout. Its organization is intact, its members just as loyal and bent upon success as ever before in its history. There are, it is true, a few people who left it last year who are too stiff-necked to come back acknowledging their error and who are making a great row about harmony just for an excuse to creep into the fold. There may be a few who will not come back, but they will not count. They will go over to the conglomerated enemy and kick themselves to political death. They will not be missed nor mourned after; the party will be better off without them. The great national party will go right along very harmoniously to the reaffirmation of its last declaration of principles, perhaps to the renomination of its recent candidate, and with the continual and effectual education of the people on the great issues it will elect its ticket. Don't let the lack of harmony worry you; it doesn't exist except in the imagination of those who are out and don't know how to get back.

An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was as a basis for the formula of Brown's Purifiers. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy have been a constant reminder to the people of its value.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

The little editor over in Georgia who wrote a silly and disgusting preamble about Mrs. Henrotten and her husband has disgraced his paper and State, and cast another reflection upon the South. Mrs. Henrotten was to preside at the convention of Georgia Women's Clubs, recently held at Rome, and a little upstart of an editor wrote such an insulting affair that she telegraphed an excuse, thus the convention was deprived of the presence of this famous woman. Some men of the South reduced themselves to a very small statue a few years ago by throwing rotten eggs at Mrs. Lease; while we are not of her politics and admit it was a mistake for her to come South on a political lecture trip. Mrs. Lease is a talented, able woman, and none can bring aught against her as a lady, or worthy the manner in which she was treated. This base and degraded rebuff just tendered to Mrs. Henrotten, whose national reputation is a shining light and boon to the women of our country, is adding nothing but disgrace to our much boasted "Southern men's chivalry." If the higher element in journalism would come out in open combat and denunciation of such acts as above mentioned, it would be a relief long looked for in vain.

We return thanks to Mrs. T. S. Plowman, wife of Congressman Plowman, for copies of prospectus of the Highland City Book Club, which society is composed of Talladega's most talented and cultured women. We only hope that the members of our literary reading circle may be induced to emulate the example of the flourishing society of Talladega.

One of our exchanges has this brilliant editorial: "Mark Hanna needs fumigating." Bright man.

Very few people in Columbiana believe in evening receptions. Next time will try an afternoon tea.

Bab says the cartwheel hat introduced by the Duchesse of Marlboro is destined to be popular. It is a round black hat, three feet in diameter, adorned with one long plume at the left side.

Now is the time most mothers are beset by the little ones to write to St. Nicholas and tell him what is wanted for Christmas. Lady Cook insists that it is wrong to impress the children that there is reality in this imaginary Santa Claus. She thinks that when the little heads grow a bit wiser and learn that they have been duped by such a hoax the parents and others who fooled them are very much depreciated in their estimation and their confidence in their veracity is terribly shaken. Whether Lady Cook's views are correct we will not pretend to say; but, whether it is wrong or not, we remember it as the happiest delusion of our life, when father took us on his knee and span great long yarns about St. Nicholas, telling us of his reindeer turnout and of his eyes being great large moons that gave sufficient light for him to travel by. We can not remember any time in life thinking less of that dear good father for those bright, happy hours of expectancy.

As the Christmas festivities are approaching, would it not afford us more happiness than any other deed we can do to seek out some desolate, needy person, each of us, and by some little gift or kind remembrance cheer, brighten, make happier those hearts? Not only are the little ones to be remembered at these festivities but the aged, the needy and the afflicted. Too often we only remember those of our friends who really need nothing. Let us look around us and be sure that first we are going to send a ray of sunlight, a morsel of comfort to those who most need it, and will best appreciate it.

Application to Sell Land.

STATE OF ALABAMA, Probate Court, 24th SHELBY COUNTY, 1 day of November, 1897. Estate of Mary A. Cooper, deceased. To Mary A. West, Minnie F. Cooper, Rubie A. Cooper, Gene R. Cooper, and Thompson H. Cooper, all of New Boston, Tex., and Carrie E. Cooper, of Dallas Springs, Tex.: This day came W. W. West, as executor of said estate, and filed his application in due form and under oath praying for an order of sale of certain lands described therein and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of paying debts and for distribution, upon the ground that there is no personal property and that the said lands can not be equitably divided without a sale. It is ordered that the 6th day of January, 1898, be appointed a day for hearing such application, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same if they think proper.

Watch Repairing

The undersigned announces to the citizens of Columbiana and surrounding country that he has opened a watch repairing shop in Hall's drug store. Having 30 years experience in the business I am prepared to do all kinds of repairing in watches, clocks, and jewelry in the best workmanship, under guarantee, on short notice. Complicated work a specialty. Please give me a call. Respectfully, W. C. BERGER.

How to Cure Efficacious Colic

I suffered for weeks with colic and pains in my stomach caused by biliousness and had to take medicine all the time until I used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which cured me. I have since recommended it to a good many people. Mrs. F. BUTLER, Fairhaven, Conn. Persons who are subject to bilious colic can ward off the attack by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms appear. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co.

Misses Looney and Stone spent from Thursday till Sunday at Miss Looney's home near Fayetteville.

I will have the biggest stock of Christmas goods ever before offered in Coontown. J. H. HAMMOND.

The Populist executive committee met here Saturday, but owing to the slim attendance they adjourned to meet again on the 11th instant.

The Columbiana Mercantile Co. will pay 12 to 15 cents for frying chickens, and 18 to 20 cents for old hens.

An entertainment is in course of preparation by the young men for the holiday, the programme for which will be published in due time.

Mrs. W. M. Calahan, who has been in a very serious condition for several days past, is improving and will, it is hoped, soon be entirely recovered.

Mrs. Stark, Pleasant Ridge, O., says, "After two doctors gave me my boy up to die I saved him from croup by using One Minute Cough Cure." It is the quickest and most certain remedy for coughs, colds, and all throat and lung troubles. J. E. Seale & Co.

Mr. John Greene and family have moved to Falkville. Mr. Greene moved here two years ago. He and his family have made many friends while here, who regret to have them leave, but wish them much success in their new home.

Mrs. M. B. Ford, Ruddells, Ill., suffered for eight years from dyspepsia and chronic constipation, and was finally cured by using DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills for all stomach and liver troubles. J. E. Seale & Co.

The many friends of Miss Guelma Greene regret losing her from our midst. She left Tuesday for Falkville, where she will reside. Miss Guelma is a young lady of superior character and will win friends wherever she goes.

J. A. Perkins, of Antiquity, O., was for thirty years needlessly tortured by physicians for the cure of eczema. He was quickly cured by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, the famous healing ointment for piles and skin diseases. J. E. Seale & Co.

The last round of the tax collector and assessor will close next week, the last four appointments being as follows: Wilsonville, Monday, December 7; Columbiana, Tuesday, December 7; Spring Creek, Wednesday, December 8; Shelby, Thursday, December 9.

Prosperity comes quickest to the man whose liver is in good condition. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are famous little pills for constipation, biliousness, indigestion, and all stomach and liver troubles. J. E. Seale & Co.

Thanksgiving Cyster Supper

The grand "thanksgiving fete," given under the auspices of the V. Y. M. & C. C., in honor of the young ladies of Vincent, was an event that will ever be indelibly impressed upon the minds of those who had the pleasure of attending.

The invitations were issued several days prior to the occasion, and each recipient was in a flutter of excitement and expectancy until the auspicious moment arrived. The doors of the hospitable home of Mrs. J. S. Pitts, on East Highlands, were cordially thrown open for the entertainment of the guests. All was a scene of brilliancy and gaiety; the rooms were ablaze with bright and beautiful decorations, with drooping ferns and flowers.

Promptly at 7.30 o'clock the guests began to arrive. Mrs. J. S. Pitts, aided by Mrs. W. H. Kidd, proved charming hostesses, and did all in their power for the pleasure of those present, and everything went as merry as a marriage bell. When supper was announced the couples filed slowly down the hall to the spacious dining room. The table was indeed a vision of loveliness. In the center was a pyramid of fruit, while on every side were arranged beautifully designed cakes, vases of flowers, and baskets of confectioneries. When they had all taken their places at the table the writer never viewed a lovelier group of young people. The debonair faces of the young men beamed with pleasure and delight, and reminded one of the knights of old as each gallantly assayed his dues to his fair companion. The young ladies were becomingly and tastefully arrayed in evening attire, and presented a spectacle of grace and beauty. If their lives are but as bright as their faces they will be fair enough.

The couples were in the following order: E. D. Stokrin and Miss Mollie Kidd, J. Coleman and Miss Bessie Vincent, Bob Kidd and Miss Minnie Pelham, T. E. Elliott and Miss Sadie Vincent, J. Samuels and Miss Mattie Kidd, T. W. Elliott and Miss Birdie Vincent, T. C. Elliott and Miss Lillie Davis, Edwin McGraw and Miss Alice Bibeey, W. E. Kidd and Miss Gussie Lyde, T. B. Davis and Miss Driskell Vincent, W. J. Donnell and Miss Rosa Lyde, Marion Vincent and Miss Ethel Kidd, Hal Fullinwider and Miss Zoda Davis, Edgar Kidd and Miss Mattie Chancellor, Sam Donnell, Tom Kidd, Dr. J. L. Penn, and J. M. Kidd stags.

Their appetites having been appeased they again assembled in the parlor, where music and mirth ruled the hours, and only too soon "the hours glided away on rosy pinions, dropping their sands of gold," and the hour of dispersing drew near. So each smilingly bade adieu to the hostess and went to their respective homes to dream of the "day of festivities."

NAPOLÉON

It is easy to catch a cold and just as easy to get rid of it if you commence early to use One Minute Cough Cure. It cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, pneumonia, and all throat and lung troubles. It is pleasant to take, safe to use, and sure to cure. J. E. Seale & Co.

Our 75-cent offer has expired, and there are still a good many subscriptions due. We intend getting our list on a strictly cash in advance basis, and hope all will favor us with a remittance at an early day. We are in the market for anything that will swell the pantry, and if you haven't the money you may send in your good eatables.

Mrs. Mary Bird, Harrisburg, Pa., says, "My child is worth millions to me; yet I would have lost her by croup had I not invested twenty-five cents in a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." It cures coughs, colds, and all throat and lung troubles. J. E. Seale & Co.

J. H. Hammond & Co. have opened business at Sterrett, in this county, where they will sell a variety of goods for cash or barter.

Mr. N. N. Osturn, well known at Woodstock, Mich., was troubled with a lame back. He was persuaded to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It gave him relief in one night. This remedy is also famous for its cure of rheumatism. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co.

At the recent term of the county court there were a greater number of convictions than usual. For some time it has been very hard to convict offenders from one cause and another, and it is a source of congratulation that some improvement is being shown. It is still noticeable that it is almost impossible to convict in the whisky cases.

The 3-year-old boy of J. A. Johnson, of Lynn Center, Ill., is subject to attacks of croup. Mr. Johnson says he is satisfied that the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, during a severe attack, saved his little boy's life. He is in the drug business, a member of the firm of Johnson Bros., of that place; and they handle a great many patent medicines for throat and lung diseases. He had all these to choose from, and skilled physicians ready to respond to his call, but selected this remedy for use in his own family at a time when his child's life was in danger, because he knew it to be superior to any other, and famous the country over for its cure of croup. Mr. Johnson says this is the best selling cough medicine they handle, and that it gives complete satisfaction in all cases. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Mrs. J. W. Robinson accompanied Mrs. Hutchings on her return from Kentucky.

Miss Morris, of Walker County, is visiting Mrs. Morgan Fowler.

H. L. Sanders paid Anniston a visit Thursday.

J. M. Brown now preserves the peace and dignity of our town, E. Williamson, our former marshal, having resigned.

The fruit tree venders were here Friday delivering their goods.

J. W. Bolin, the big lumber man, went to Atlanta Sunday on business.

Rev. W. I. Simnott preached a thanksgiving sermon at the Presbyterian church. Those who were not present said by their actions that they had nothing for which to return thanks.

One of the city aldermen was arrested last week for violating one of the city laws—riding on the sidewalks. C. H. Butler, of Childersburg, was in town a few hours Friday afternoon.

We notice that Wilsonville is being represented in the correspondence columns of the Mountain Home. The writer made his first and last appearance four weeks ago.

Several of our young men and young ladies are engaging passage for "a trip to New York" Thursday night. They will go via Shelby; don't you see?

The pupils of the public school enjoyed a holiday Thursday.

Miss Mollie Parrish, after a two months' contribution to the social realms of our town, returned to her home in Warrior Friday, accompanied by her brother, Rev. Sam and wife. From Warrior Rev. Parrish goes to the North Alabama Conference to be disposed of by the bishop's mallet. The people entertain faint hopes of his return; however we would gladly welcome him back into the Methodist pastorate for several more conference years.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson have broken up housekeeping and moved back to Mrs. Deasler's.

George McGowen paid Childersburg a business visit Saturday.

Rev. Woodward, a young ministerial student of Howard College, supplied Rev. Burns's Sunday appointment, discoursing very impressive sermons both morning and night.

Tom Glass had the misfortune Wednesday to lose his house, wagon and corn by fire. Nothing was saved but one suit of clothes apiece. The people came to his rescue with lumber, food and raiment.

J. F. Pope received a telegram Sunday calling him to Atlanta on commercial business of importance.

J. W. Millstead went to Birmingham Sunday with a warrant for the arrest of Charley Barrow, who contracted a debt with J. F. Pope in the spring. Seeing that he could not meet his obligation he sold mortgaged property and absconded. Charley is said to be a descendant and relative of Rube Burrow, the notorious outlaw who was killed in Jefferson County five years ago.

J. C. Jackson & Sons are getting themselves in readiness to consolidate their lumber mill and planer. Seven cars of steel rails are standing on the sidetrack with which to construct a private logging road 6 miles long. The grading has already begun. The road will tap one of the finest bodies of timber in the State and furnish constant sawing for fifteen years.

The startling cry of fire was echoed from Holland & O'Hara's steam gin last Wednesday morning about 11 o'clock. Fortunately there were several farmers loitering on the streets when the alarm was sounded. Everybody hurriedly secured buckets of water and rushed with breathless fate to the scene of the commotion.

An entrance to the fire was made through volumes of smoke. The fire was slowly feeding upon the lubricating oils of the running gear, holding most of the cotton in reserve for its Thanksgiving desert, however, this feast was overthrown with shower baths of aqueous fluid. Matches were the vehicle that transmitted the fire to the cotton. Elias Weaver drove his wagon of cotton under the suction pipe, the suction was immediately turned on from upstairs and Mr. Weaver's coat, which was spread upon the cotton, went "up the spout," soon it was poured into the regulating trough to be "swiped" by the sprocket belt, which mangled and maltreated it so, that it contrasted with Jacob's coat in the fact that it was now a coat of many pieces instead of many colors. The supposition is current that the coat during its tour of the second story deposited matches, which were in time ignited by the friction of the machinery. The damage to the cotton was of small consequence and work was soon resumed.

Quite a caravan of our young American pleasure seekers chartered vehicles and indulged in the Christian Endeavor entertainment at Shelby Thursday night. The play "Gypsies Warning" was beautifully staged and portrayed a vivid and true conception of the towns artists. Not a chestnut or objectionable feature could we detect in either play or player, save its shortness, however this was most becomingly atoned for by Mr. Avery's introducing an informal reception of one hour that we might meet the heroes and heroines of the evening. We most heartily thank the young people of Shelby for their exertions in our behalf. Rest assured that so long as you appear on a home stage under the auspices of such a society with such a serio-comic christian sentiment, we will ever appear as your appreciative auditors. Thanks, again, Shelby, for entertaining us in such an elegant manner.

Let everybody get a good quotation from some author and come to the S. P. L. League Friday night. The program is as follows:

Vocal duet.....Misses Rosa Graham and Laura Weldon

Original story.....Miss Cora Smith

Reading.....Miss Blossom Deasler

Story related.....Dr. Boyer

Voting for quotation laureate, League Music.....Society Soloist.

Invitation cards are out announcing the Jackson-Weldon wedding. Mr. Justin C. Jackson and Miss Mattie A. Weldon at Wilsonville, Alabama, will be married at high noon, Wednesday, December 8. Should the schedule of the north bound train be changed the time of the ceremony will be changed to twenty minutes before its arrival. Everybody invited.

PAT.

Montevallo Murmurs.

Thanksgiving was more generally observed by the people of Montevallo than ever before. Mr. Turkey Gobbler was on hand and took a leading part in the performance of this duty, notwithstanding the fact that he could see nothing to be thankful for, nor where the fun came in. We had numerous visitors on that day; some came to see friends in town; some to see daughters in the Industrial School and some with the vain hope that they would see some who wasn't related, but to whom they wanted to be related, but it was no go; the rules was not suspended worth a cent.

Two young gentlemen, or rather should have been such, arrived in town and registered at the St. George. Mr. Wall, the proprietor, having occasion to examine his register, found one name more than he needed in his business, and calling on the young men who were present, invited the one who placed the name there to erase it in the shortest possible order or take the consequences; it was done. The obnoxious name was that of the negro driver, Colonel Wall then notified the gentleman that if they had any whisky on hand, that drinking it would not be allowed in his house.

Burgess Little's eyes are improving, he has one of them in a sling, and proposes to only use one eye at a time until further notice.

Rev. M. P. Reynolds was called to the pastorate of the Baptist church in this place.

Rev. P. L. Abernathy left on Monday for annual Conference.

Miss Veta King, daughter of the late Fannie V. King, arrived here yesterday from Guatemala, where she has been on a visit to relatives. She will enter the Industrial School. Her mother was one of Montevallo's best friends, and took a deep interest in the location of the school here. Her untimely death was greatly deplored here. She had a warm place in the hearts of all persons who admire a good, pure and lovely character.

Burr Nabors and J. F. Hawkins visited homefolks here on Thanksgiving day. Both of the above named gentlemen were from Birmingham.

Shelby County Bank has the prettiest sign ever seen in this or any other town; it is the work of Frank Vest, of Birmingham, a Montevallo kid. It is the most beautiful sign we ever saw, and it reflects credit on Mr. Vest as an artist of great merit.

D. W. Shivers is absent on a visit to his plantations in Hale County.

We had a gully washing rain Sunday night; hope it will be repeated in a short time.

We learn that Felix Dotson, who was seized of using obscene language in the presence of a colored lady, in our town, was convicted and fined $1. Cussing comes rather high up your way. Why, the last time I was up your way I heard a fellow cuss $4 worth, and he wasn't fined a cent. How is that for high, spose he was homefolks and had some privileges.

Capt. Dolph Banks, of Cleveland, Tenn., is on a visit to his brother, M. C. Banks, of this city.

L. N. Bowden spent last week in Birmingham.

Mrs. F. W. Rogan visited her sister, Mrs. R. S. Allen, in Birmingham last week.

S. A. Curry, J. A. Moore, E. F. Seales, and Zeke Eldings, of Concord, were in town Saturday, as was J. T. Wilson and C. C. Walker, of New Briarfield.

The Governor and Board of Trustees of the Girls' Industrial School will hold a meeting here next Friday.

Judge J. J. Banks, of Birmingham, will deliver a lecture to one of the young ladies' clubs Friday night next. James Milner, of Birmingham, is in the city.

President Reynolds is off on a trip to Tuskegee.

Dr. J. W. Pratt has done fit out for Klondike.

The Pratt Academy, of Six Mile, has been rebuilt. It was burned two months ago. Shows commendable enterprise for the Six Mile People.

"The worst cold I ever had in my life was cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes W. H. Norton, of Sutter Creek, Cal. "This cold left me with a cough and I was expectorating all the time. The Remedy cured me, and I want all of my friends when troubled with a cold or cough to use it, for it will do them good." Sold by J. E. Seale & Co.

Shelby Siftings.

A light shower has been sifting through our community Sunday.

W. M. Johnson, of Montgomery, visited his brother, J. H. Johnson.

Miss Isla Avery, our social favorite, who for several days past has been visiting her parents and many friends, returned to Blount Springs Monday, accompanied by her little sister, Annie. It is with regret that they see them leave. Miss Isla has promised to return Christmas.

It must be an attraction in our town. We are so erudite that William Walker, of Saginaw, stately pays this city a visit every month. He was the guest of his uncle, A. H. Avery.

A magic lantern exhibition will be given for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Society, under the auspices of the C. E., at the Congregational church next Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock. Excursion to New York, Boston, and other large cities. A round trip ticket for ten cents. A large attendance is promised, and the L. A. S. will receive a substantial addition to its treasury.

On Thanksgiving morning a very interesting, impressive, and eloquent sermon was delivered from the Congregational pulpit by Rev. A. T. Clarke to a large and appreciative congregation. The text: "For the Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks, of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills."

A very beautiful crowd of Columbiana witnessed our play, "The Fortune," last Thursday evening.

A party composed of noble sons and fair daughters of Wilsonville were present to our drama Thursday evening.

"Pat," of Wilsonville, was intoxicated with pleasure at our social last Thursday evening.

Paul Clarke returned from a trip to the river the day before Thanksgiving with a brace of ducks and two geese, weighing 16 pounds. If anybody can beat this the invincible will be rewarded by the reporter of Shelby.

Your correspondent, together with the elite of Shelby, royally enjoyed the Thanksgiving, the blessings of immunity, liberty, and integrity. Amicus is indebted to the family of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Avery for their politeness, generous hospitality, and other philanthropical features of entertainment. He therefore seizes the opportunity to express to them his profound gratitude.

We are cheerful to state that Mrs. J. F. McLane, "mater superior," who has been seriously ill for four weeks, is now able to discharge the duties of her millinery establishment.

J. M. Kifer, master carpenter of the S. L. Co., met with a painful accident last Wednesday night, falling from a scaffold at the furnace, and receiving spinal injuries. We are pleased to learn that he is improving.

Ray Christian, one of our intelligent young men, who is now in Birmingham, observed Thanksgiving here. We were exceedingly glad to have him with us—one of the belles especially.

The cantata, "His Fortune," given by the C. E. Society last Thursday evening, was a rare treat to lovers of music who honored the occasion with their presence. The decorations with flavor of green fields and the aroma of verdant trees were the most exquisite taste, evidencing the artistic tendencies of the members who lent much assistance to Miss Flossie Kifer in preparing for the event. Miss Agnes Avery, in her inimitable style, read a humorous and satirical extract. It was, "The Little Hatchet Story," and judging from the sound of joy from the participants was certainly appreciated. When the curtain rose we found Miss Jessie Carter, as Jeanette, sitting on a fallen trunk of a tree, who sang a solo with such a sadly effect that her lover, Cleveland Witherby, as Jeanot, responded he must go to seek the battlefield, but will remain true to his lovely bride. Under some master's guidance Miss Jessie has acquired that deep and thorough knowledge of the art which characterizes her composition. The purity and charm of melody, vivid warmth and tone coloring, together with the originality of harmonic changes, gives her an individuality, and commands for her a dignified place among the composers of the day. Miss Lucia Witherby acted the role of the Gypsy fortune teller. Miss Lucia is no less an elocutionist than a brilliant musician, and unites with these accomplishments intellectual and social graces of the highest order. Miss Jessie Carter, as Gypsy maiden, was bewitchingly beautiful, and her toilette dreams of loveliness. Charlie Avery was the Gypsy youth. Both rendered Allegro Vivace. They passed their merry days and sang their tuneful lays. They did themselves proud, and entertained each other royally.

POPULIST PLATFORM OUTLINED

By the Organization Committee of the Middle-of-the-Roaders.

St. Louis, Nov. 24.—After an all night session, the National Organization Committee, representing the Middle-of-the-Road faction of the Populist party, convened to-day behind closed doors. This afternoon Abe Sternberger, of Kansas, gave out the following resolutions as having been unanimously adopted by the committee:

Considering the importance of active and aggressive work to the end of lining up all reform forces for future campaigns, we, the national organization committee of the People's Party, hereby call a meeting of said committee at the Laclede Hotel, St. Louis, for January 12, 1898. To the end of restoring perfect harmony in the ranks of the party and of effecting a more compact organization, we respectfully invite the national committee of the Peoples' Party to act with us in conference on the above date, appealing to their patriotic sense of duty to aid us in restoring to its once splendid estate our party organization.

Feeling it due to the masses of the Peoples' Party to outline the objects of this call, we submit the following: We recommend the holding of a national nominating convention on the first Wednesday in April, 1898.

We recommend the holding of State conventions, at which delegates to the national convention shall be chosen, on the third Wednesday in March, 1898.

We recommend that the nominations of Congressmen be delayed until after the holding of the national convention.

We recommend that the platform on which the contest for 1898 and 1900 be waged should embody the following propositions:

First—Absolute paper money, based on every commodity and resource of the nation, full legal tender and receivable for all dues by the United States.

Second—Free coinage of silver at the present legal ratio; the coin debts of the United States payable in either at the option of the Government.

Third—All money to be issued by the Government and to be paid out direct to the people for services rendered, or to be loaned them at a low rate of interest on safe security and without the intervention of private banks, provided that the volume of the currency shall not exceed $50 per capita.

Fourth—Government ownership and operation of railroads, telegraphs and telephone lines.

Fifth—Opposition to alien ownership and of holding land for speculative purposes.

Sixth—Opposition to court made law.

Seventh—Opposition to trusts.

Eighth—We especially recommend the initiative and referendum and the imperative mandate.

Milton Park, the chairman of the committee, said he believed the address embodied the platform upon which the people of the United States would stand and give hearty support.

At the meeting to be held next January in St. Louis, Mr. Park said that he believed there would be many prominent Populists from all sections of the country. Whether or not the national committee would attend, he said he did not know, but even if it did not, his committee would go on and make its own nomination for President in 1900.

JEFFERSON COUNTY MEETING.

The following from the Age-Herald shows the drift in Jefferson County, and carries out the idea expressed above:

A meeting of the county executive committee of the Populist party was held in the office of Chairman John T. Shugart, on Third avenue, yesterday.

Many of the leading Populists of the county were present.

A resolution was unanimously passed indorsing an independent State and county ticket on the middle-of-the-road platform, which precludes fusion with any party or faction.

The St. Louis and Nashville conventions were also indorsed, and other matters pertaining to the party organization discussed.

John T. Shugart tendered his resignation as chairman of the committee. Dr. G. B. Crowe, who is treasurer of the national middle-of-the-road committee, was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Shugart was then elected secretary.

The following prominent members of the State committee arrived in the city at noon and met with the county committee at 1.30 o'clock: Chairman G. B. Deans, of Calera; Albert T. Goodwyn, of Elmore County, and Sam Adams, of Bibb County.

Chairman Deans, of the State committee, said yesterday afternoon:

"I will probably call a meeting of the State committee in this city about the latter part of December or the first part of January to consider matters pertinent to the policy of our organization."

"The Populists of Alabama are stronger to-day than ever before, and we will begin a systematic organization of every precinct in the State."

The Birmingham Ledger has the following to say about the prospective candidacy of Mr. Aldrich for Governor:

The papers over in the Fourth district have about agreed among themselves that W. F. Aldrich will be the Republican and Populist candidate for Governor next year.

Mr. Aldrich is a gentleman of wealth and ability, but whose politics are not very clearly defined. It was generally supposed that he was a Republican, but last year he was nominated for Congress by the Populists and only supported by a part of the Republicans.

Alabama has a welcome for all such men as Mr. Aldrich and has protected his interests as he grew rich. When Mr. Aldrich decides to ask Alabama to make him her Governor she will ask him his politics. She will ask him his views on the future conduct of affairs in State matters.

In the Democratic party the fair question to ask a man is, whether he has voted the ticket nominated in the past, and whether he intends to do so in the future. A promise for the future makes up for the past.

If Mr. Aldrich throws his banner to the breeze he will of course be asked many questions, and no doubt will put out a platform on which he will make the contest. Of course he will be fully equal to the occasion when it presents itself.

Additional gossip is that the Republican Congress will seat Mr. Aldrich in Mr. Plowman's stead and thus give him a send-off in the campaign. He does not need the salary as campaign material, but he does need the help of the Republican party to make any kind of a battle at all.

This leaves Dr. Mosely out of the consideration altogether, but it does bring to mind that Mr. Reed, speaker of the House, may not be willing to seat Mr. Aldrich over his friend, Mosely.

This is the first view of the other side of the campaign and is subject to change as are all political movements.

Tetter, Salt-Rheum and Eczema.

The intense itching and smarting, incident to these diseases, is instantly allayed by applying Chamberlain's Eye and Skin Ointment. Many very bad cases have been permanently cured by it. It is equally efficient for itching piles and a favorite remedy for sore nipples, chapped hands, chilblains, frost bites and chronic sore eyes. 25 cts. per box.

Dr. Cady's Condition Powders, are just what a horse needs when in bad condition. Tonic, blood purifier and vermifuge. They are not food but medicine and the best in use to put a horse in prime condition. Price 25 cents per package.

THE REAL CAUSE.

Lack of Business Methods in our Federal Administrations.

A correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution has the following pertinent remarks to make:

Washington, December 3.—Benjamin Harrison wrote a very interesting book about "This Country of Ours," but he did not tell the whole truth.

He ought to have stated the fact that we have had but few Presidents and legislators honest enough to be courageous, or courageous enough to be honest.

Benjamin Harrison has had his career, and he would have lost nothing by telling the whole truth. On the contrary, if the whole truth were told by such a man; by one who has been prominent in both the legislative and executive branches of the Government it would have had great weight with the people.

The full truth about "This Country of Ours" is that the people have almost no voice in their own government, although they think they are running it. Moreover, inasmuch as the Government is in the hands of the rich and the great, in the pomp and pride of their worldly estate, the people are being robbed right and left, and before their very eyes.

It was neither the Wilson bill, the McKinley bill, nor the Dingley bill that brought about business conditions which have made the common people suffer. True, all national legislation has its effect upon business, but there is much back of that.

Do you know of any business man in any city or village who would pay a salary of $2,000 per annum to a book-keeper when he could get a man perfectly capable to perform the work for $600 per annum?

Is there a business man in any city or village who would pay an annual salary of $5,000 for the services of a man who would be willing to work for $2,000 and do the work just as well? Can you imagine such an absurdity could exist?

Well, that is what "This Country of Ours" is doing all the time. The people are being overtaxed and therefore robbed by reason of the fact that many of their public servants are paid more than double what would be necessary to pay for an economical administration of Federal affairs.

Senators and Representatives pass appropriation bills, and Presidents sign those bills, for the disbursement of hundreds of millions of dollars annually, because the alleged statesmen and chief executives are not honest enough to be courageous, or courageous enough to be honest.

For example, there are 20,000 post-offices in the money order and Presidential classes. The salaries of those offices run from $600 per annum to $6,000, and they are sought after vigorously by men who could not earn so much money in their usual avocations.

Men who are not dabbling in politics, but are attending to their own business and prospering, are not office-seekers. They are doing well enough. There are very few men who seek the higher offices for the honor of having and holding prominent positions. The bulk of the office-seekers are men who want office because there is more money in it for them than in their natural avocations.

It is demonstrable that the 20,000 post-offices of the money order and Presidential classes pay an average of $1,000 each. It is also demonstrable that, as an average, these post-offices could be administered for half that amount of money. If you give away simply as a gracious gift $500 per annum to 20,000 political workers you are giving away a total of $10,000,000 every year on the post-offices alone.

During the past ten years the people have been taxed to pay out $1,000,000,000 unnecessarily for the salaries of postmasters.

And yet the people wonder why the Government is poor and has been obliged to issue bonds and go in debt in order to pay its running expenses.

But that is not all; it is only a sample. There are assistant postmasters, superintendents, chiefs of divisions, and heads of bureaus who receive double the amount of money for which their services or the services of men just as good could be obtained.

Take one isolated case. There is a man to-day working for $900 per annum in one of the departments in Washington who is glad to hold his position at that salary, because he could not earn that much money outside of the Government service. And yet he drew $2,000 per annum as a chief of division during the Cleveland administration, because he had political influence to secure him the fat place. He has been reduced to a $900 clerkship and is very glad that he was not thrown out on the world to earn a living. It is needless to humiliate him by mentioning his name. There are others; very many others.

The Farmers' Alliance folks and Populists, and the howlers for all sorts of financial reform, are wasting their ammunition and deluding themselves, as well as the people of this Republic.

All national political platforms contain fervid declarations about a Government "economically administered," but they are merely catch phrases to deceive the people. They mean nothing, absolutely nothing, to the political leaders.

It can be demonstrated by citation from the blue book that we are paying at least $100,000,000 annually for the services of Federal officers more than would be paid and should be paid if the Government were "economically administered."

A GOOD FISH TALE.

Comes from our Neighboring Town Below.

A Montevallo correspondent to the Montgomery Journal says:

Messrs. W. B. Reynolds and W. S. Cary, two inveterate fishermen, report the most remarkable fish story ever heard here. While on Cahaba river a few days ago fishing for channel cat they pulled in what proved to be the Siamese twins in the fish family.

They were two three pound catfish joined together by a ligament running from the gills of each fish. The union was perfect and complete. The ligament was about a quarter of an inch in diameter, pliable, and seemed to bear the arteries of blood vessels from one fish to the other. When it reached the fish's gills it sprang out and seemed to unite with every part of the gill in the mouth. The union was so firm that both fish were captured when only one was caught. Realizing what a freak of nature they had, great care was taken to preserve them alive so they could be put on exhibition. Unfortunately, however, when about half way home the horses became unmanageable and ran up the side of a cliff, turned the wagon over and the fish were thrown down a precipice, striking a stone were torn apart. They brought the remains on into town however, and were seen by many parties who can vouch for the truthfulness of the story.

Miss Allie Hughes, Norfolk, Va., was frightfully burned on the face and neck. Pain was instantly relieved by Doan's Witch Hazel Salve, which healed the injury without leaving a scar. It is the famous pile remedy. J. E. Seale & Co.

CURRENCY REFORM.

Southern Bankers to Meet in Atlanta December 15.

ATLANTA, GA., November 29.—At a meeting of the Atlanta Clearing-house Association to-day, Mr. Frank Hawkins, president, a resolution was unanimously adopted calling a meeting of the bankers throughout the South to assemble in Atlanta on December 15, to consider the question of currency reform. Every bank in Atlanta was represented and the meeting unanimously adopted resolutions offered by Mr. George R. Desansure, which are in substance as follows:

"That the time has arrived for the South to demand of Congress better banking facilities under a just and equitable law. That the United States should retire from the banking business, and the whole system of national finances be readjusted on such a sound and scientific basis as will give each section of our common country a circulating medium adequate to its business and based upon its commercial assets. That note holders and general creditors should be protected under federal laws and that the measure of value should be so definitely and permanently settled as to make all our currency, paper and specie, good in any part of the world. That there should be no discrimination between State and national banks, the former having the same privileges of note issue as the latter, but under federal supervision."

Invitations to the Atlanta meeting were sent out to-day to every Southern bank.

Valuable to Women.

Especially valuable to women is Brown's Iron Bitters. Backache vanishes, headache disappears, strength takes the place of weakness, and the glow of health readily comes to the pallid cheek when this wonderful remedy is taken. For sickly children or overworked men it has no equal. No home should be without this famous remedy. Brown's Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

FARMERS SHOULD ORGANIZE.

Commissioner of Agriculture Says So in an Address.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., December 5.—Hon. I. F. Culver, Commissioner of Agriculture of Alabama, has issued the following important address:

"To the Farmers and Land Owners of Alabama—Some years ago there was in Alabama a live, working agricultural society, which was of great benefit to the farmers of the State during its existence; the reasons for its failure to continue this good work are familiar to every citizen of the State and need not be enumerated here. There is hardly a State in the Union that has not a well organized agricultural society, ever looking to the advancement of the agricultural interests, and I am now of the opinion that it is time for Alabama farmers to take this subject in hand and give it that careful study which it so much deserves. The object of this letter is to give some reasons why the Alabama farmers and land owners should organize themselves together in a society of this kind, and I ask the careful consideration of every citizen who has an interest in agriculture.

"For several years we have been forced to sell our cotton at a price lower than the cost of production, and it is clear to every person that our subsistence cannot come from this crop; if we persist in this suicidal policy we will soon be in a state of bankruptcy. Do not the lessons of the past teach us that we cannot accomplish anything without organization and cooperation. If so, then why not organize the State Agricultural Society? Together we can discuss these matters and come to some wise solution; separately we can do nothing, and will continue in the path trodden for so long a time. If we can organize the farmers and land owners we feel sure that we can be of great assistance to them; we can discuss the best methods of improving the soils with reference to individual counties and precincts; we can find out which of our lands are best adapted to certain crops, thereby increasing the yield with decreased acreage. The time is at hand when the farmer must stop planting his best land in cotton to the neglect of all other crops; he must give more attention to the cereals, grasses, vegetables and fruits. We must improve our homes and our public roads; we must educate our children, but unless we diversify our crops and raise something of what we eat at home we cannot hope to accomplish any of these things. By organization we can come together at stated intervals and compare notes, so to speak, and relate our experiences for the benefit of others; if one man has made a success of a certain crop, he can tell us how that we may also meet with success. In fact, we can make of ourselves what we will if we enter into this work with the determination to better our conditions.

"To accomplish these things and many more not mentioned, we invite the hearty cooperation of not only every farmer in the State, but every person, be he lawyer, merchant, physician or editor, if he owns land and is interested in the greatest of all subjects—agriculture.

"We recognize in the press the power to push this matter to a successful completion, and we respectfully call upon them to assist us by giving publicity to all articles upon the subject and urging their farmers not to neglect the matter, but to give it careful consideration.

"We want five or six representative men from each county in the State to meet us at the capital in Montgomery on Wednesday, the 12th day of January, 1898, for the purpose of organizing the State society, and perfecting plans for the organization of counties and precincts. We will ask the probate judges of each county to assist in the selection of these delegates. Let us come here as men looking only to the betterment of the farmers, ignoring political opinions, and we will achieve a great victory. Very respectfully,

I. F. CULVER,
"Commissioner of Agriculture."

How to Cure Bilious Colic.

I suffered for weeks with colic and pains in my stomach caused by biliousness and had to take medicine all the time until I used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which cured me. I have since recommended it to a good many people.—Mrs. E. BITLER, Fairhaven, Conn. Persons who are subject to bilious colic can ward off the attack by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms appear. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co.

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana Ala., as second class matter.

It is hard for the English to get pleased. They don't like the Republicans because of protection; they don't like the Democrats because of silver. Sorry we don't suit.

A circuit judge should know the law in the first place; in the second place, he should be impartial, which no man will be who scrambles for the place. Both of these requirements Shelby's candidate possesses in a high degree.

THE Advertiser gives evidence that it will oppose a constitutional convention because Johnston is Governor. We are very much afraid that if the present occupant of the executive chair remains in office the Advertiser will leave Montgomery. Poor old grandma; she is getting right silly.

THE Montgomery Journal intimates that a movement is on foot to change the ownership of the Advertiser and place Major Screws in full control. It was a sad day for him, for the paper, and for the party when he lost control. It is devoutly to be hoped that this good thing will be consummated.

WHEN the President has to devote the whole of his message, on that particular question, to figuring out some scheme to keep the gold standard intact one is inclined to regard it as a shaky system. Its advocates try to make us believe that it is self-supporting, and yet the President shows how difficult and costly it is to keep up the parity at present. We are inclined to think McKinley is striving to uphold a policy he does not believe in.

GOVERNOR O'Fallon, of Virginia, recommends that a fine of from $200 to $1,000 be assessed against the city or county in his State wherein a lynching occurs. There is no doubt of the fact that a very small proportion of the population of any community favors resort to mob law, yet owing to the nature of the case it seems impossible to bring the members of the mob to justice. It is thought, however, that if the whole people be made responsible in a pecuniary way self-interest will come into play to stop that which can not now be reached by the ordinary process of law. The plan is worth a trial.—Register

The idea at once suggests itself whether it will not be cheaper for the county to pay a fine of even $1,000 than to pay for the long and often fruitless trials of the criminal. We are inclined to the opinion that the real trouble lies in that direction, and that until it is demonstrated that crime will be swiftly and adequately punished no scheme will prevent lynching.

THE Scientific American for last week prints an interesting comparison of the New York and London fire systems, which makes a very favorable showing in favor of the former. It is seen in many lines that the new world is far ahead of the old in point of progress. One might moralize at much length as to the real cause thereof, whether it is the liberty of our people and the advantages consequent upon Democratic tendencies that infuse the people with a spirit of progress, or whether some other great cause exists; but the fact remains that we are far ahead of the old world in many things. But one thing we lack yet—the impartial and speedy administration of justice and law. In this we are far behind, and it behooves us to catch up if we would hold our ascendancy.

WILL not the State press of Alabama help to secure a State convention of the probate judges and county commissioners of the State in Anniston at an early date to consider the question of securing better roads? The press of the State can afford to do no better work than to help in an effort to secure good roads, and if the commissioners of Alabama will come to Anniston and see the roads in Calhoun and learn of the workings of the road law in this county it will most assuredly do great good in securing better roads in this State.—Hot Blast.

We have written on good roads since we were a boy, so to speak, and given all sorts of reasons for improving the public highways; but the same old mud holes and gulleys remain in the country roads. Every man you meet agrees with you that we ought to have better roads, and they all agree that the best way to get them is by taxation, and yet no action is taken by any of them. The people mend up their old wagons, pull their mules to death, and all these things, while the legislators and public officials whose business it is to improve the roads roll logs in the political new ground and forget all about the roads. The Hot Blast has got hold of a good idea, but we very much fear the brother will have to hold on to it by himself. You can get all the newspaper help you want in these things, but the newspapers are too poor to do anything but talk, and nobody pays any attention to them. We have already come to the conclusion that the people do not want any better roads.

CONGRESS AND THE PRESIDENT.

The Congress of the United States convened Monday and listened to the reading of the President's message. Existing conditions had created considerable interest in advance as to what the President would say in his message to that body. That document was rather lengthy and touched on many subjects, dealing with none very specifically. His utterances are much in line with Republican views, but he deals largely with existing conditions without offering any definite plan of remedying the defects.

He acknowledges the evils of the present financial system without suggesting a better one, except that he dwells on the necessity of retiring the greenbacks. This he deems to be necessary in order to stop the drain on the gold reserve, while at the same time he avers the difficulty and cost of keeping up the parity between our various forms of money. He thus virtually admits the vicious tendencies of the gold standard, and yet to perpetuate it he recommends a further contraction of the currency. He shows how the Government is expected to pay in gold and yet that she can only procure gold with bonds. His currency arguments will make good campaign material for the silver people. It is a tacit admission in a back-hand way of all they claim.

The President steers clear of the condition of the national treasury, only hinting at it where he predicts a sufficient revenue in the future. He also suggests the advisability of reducing expenses.

Nearly half of the message is devoted to the Cuban question only to advise delay.

Other questions are lightly dealt with, and altogether the document is very weak and disappointing.

The Congress will find much to deal with this session, and there are as many different views as there are subjects. Indications already point to the harmonious attitude of the Democrats, and as they are never so great as when in the minority we look for them to make a showing. Republicans seem to realize the delicacy of their position and will doubtless move slowly.

WAR between the Republicans in Congress has already begun, Chairman Walker, of the banking and currency committee having fit and vanquished Speaker Reed. Let the good work go on.

Sterrett Stirrings.

Roden Falkner, of this place, made a business trip to Sylacauga last Saturday.

Ed Gill, of Blountsville, arrived at this place last Saturday. We are informed that he is looking after a school at this place. He is said to be a good teacher and proposes to teach a first-grade school. We hope he will succeed in making a school and make it profitable to himself and patrons.

Mrs. Ada Goodwin, of Bessemer, has been visiting her father, T. B. Falkner, of this place, returning home last Saturday.

Miss Mollie Cosper and her brother, of Bessemer, visited the family of Elias Cosper, of this place, last week, returning home last Friday.

S. C. Perry, of this place, made a business trip to Leeds and Birmingham last Thursday.

We have had a nice rain the latter part of last week that was greatly appreciated.

Died, at the residence of his son, J. T. Baugh, of this place, Mr. Johnathan Baugh, at 10 a. m. Thursday, December 2, aged 84 or 85 years. Mr. Baugh has been in bad health nearly two years, he has borne his affliction with great patience. His death was not unexpected. His relatives have the sympathy of all who know them. His remains were laid to rest in the Mt. Tabor church cemetery last Friday.

A. B. Allen, of the firm of Allen Lumbar Co. of this place, died at his home at Leeds last Thursday night. His remains were laid to rest last Saturday in the cemetery at Vandiver, where he has two children buried. He leaves a wife and several children and a host of friends to mourn his demise.

R. F. Falkner, of Leeds, visited relatives in this city Saturday.

Calvin Falkner visited relatives and friends at Leeds Saturday and Sunday.

T. M. Goodwin, of Oxmoor, arrived at this place last Monday evening to the great satisfaction of his many friends.

J. W. Moore, of Weldon, contemplated moving his family to Sterrett at an early day.

G. M. Bilbrey, who has been at Blocton the past two months, returned home last week.

Old Father Larkin Vandiver departed this life last Sunday about 11.30 a. m. at the residence of Jobe Falkner, of this place. He had been in bad health a long time and was upwards of 80 years of age, and his death was not unexpected. His mortal body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Vandiver. He left one son and three daughters, all married, and numerous grandchildren and friends to mourn his departure. Peace to his ashes.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

Slowly but surely even the South is grasping the idea that women can no longer be choked down to their former state of inferiority and bondage. Indeed, the South's excuse for its position has long been that she is too good and must not meddle with State or ministerial affairs. She could own property, pay heavy taxes, abide by the laws, be yanked up in the courts, endure prosecutions and persecutions, pay fines, go to jails and penitentiaries, and must do all these things with the good grace and fortitude of strong and mighty men; but to stand in the pulpit in the name of Jesus Christ, and to slip a piece of paper in the ballot box was disgrace and ruin to pure, delicate, fragile, little woman; but the barriers are breaking and giving away. Some of the most conservative and prejudiced of men are conceding their former inconsistency. We have heard of an old and highly respectable gentleman, who is a minister of the gospel, making a statement some days ago that he had watched women's prayers with deep interest, and no longer felt fear or apprehension at the results. He felt confident they were competent to engineer any affairs in life; and man may no longer have fears for their movements, except it be a fear that woman will excel him. And not only one but many are fast coming to the same conclusion. The women of the South are about as much to blame as the men for their condition and position in political and ministerial affairs. Our positive personal knowledge of the opinions and convictions of some of the leading and most influential women of Alabama bears out the pure and unvarnished truth that they would fain have a right to the ballot, and right to social equality, and believe it fair to demand the same moral standard of man that is required of woman. But, alas! they stand hesitating, faint, and trembling, without moral courage to face their honest convictions, and stem the tide of public opinion. Well, dear friends, the time is fast coming when public opinion will be with you, and not against you, and you may hasten the day by bravely standing by your honest convictions. We would stand by these if the gallows faced us for doing so.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will give a Christmas supper at the residence of Mrs. W. B. Browne on the evening of December 27. We trust there will be a large attendance from adjoining towns as well as home people. This will be the crowning event of our Christmas festivities, and those wanting a rare treat are cordially invited.

In a kind and cheering letter we have received from Rev. A. T. Clarke, he has this to say:

As to woman preachers, others besides Mrs. Booth have, in our time, proven themselves to be "worthy ministers of our Lord Jesus Christ." The Baptists in Kansas a few weeks ago, ordained and installed a woman as pastor of a church. Her preaching has been attended by such demonstrations of spiritual power that no council of rational men could refuse to recognize her fitness for that service. I believe it was the fourth case of that kind among our Baptist brethren in the United States. In the communion of believers with which I am especially connected, such cases now number about forty, three-fourths of whom are ordained pastors. The first woman who sought this recognition (in 1872) was refused for several years. You will note the change which has been going on. We are rapidly approaching a time when the question will be, not "What is the Sex?" but "What is the Message?" Then it will be admitted that the apostle Paul, in writing to the Ephesians and to the Corinthians, laid no law of perpetual silence on women. Paul must be interpreted in harmony with the prophet Joel (2:28) and Peter (Acts 2:16-18), or we must abandon the commonly accepted view of Biblical inspiration. For the meaning of "prophesying" see 1st Cor. 14:3. See, also, Acts 21:9.

It is easy to catch a cold and just as easy to get rid of it if you commence early to use One Minute Cough Cure. It cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, pneumonia, and all throat and lung troubles. It is pleasant to take, safe to use, and sure to cure. J. E. Seale & Co.

Mortgage Sale.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by William Kirkpatrick and his wife, Sarah Kirkpatrick, to Adair T. McGuire, dated the 7th day of April, 1897, and recorded in mortgage book, Volume 48, Record of Mortgages, pages 217-220, on the 10th day of April, 1897, in the office of the Probate Judge of Shelby County, Alabama, will be sold at auction in front of the Courthouse door of said county, on the 18th day of December, 1897, at 12 m., the following described real property situated in Shelby County, Alabama, to-wit:

East 1/2 of NW 1/4 of NE 1/4 and SW 1/4 of NE 1/4, SW 1/4 of SE 1/4 of NE 1/4, also all that part of SE 1/4 which is on the Northwest side of Cahaba Valley Road, and which measures fifty-six and five-tenths acres (56.5-10) and a part of NE 1/4 of SE 1/4, all in Section 19, Township 19, S. Range 2 W., located between Cahaba Valley Road and Creek, containing seven and half acres, more or less, described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the intersection point of Cahaba Valley Road and East line of Section 31, Township 19 S., Range 2 W., thence South 31° 10' 00" E., 45 min. West, eight hundred and twenty feet, thence S. 45 deg. East, nine hundred feet to the intersection with Creek, thence up the Creek to its intersection with East line of Section 31, Township 19 S., Range 2 W., thence follow Section B. Miller's line to Cahaba Valley Road, all together one hundred and forty-four and five-tenths acres.

FRANK MILLER AND JESSIE B. MILLER, Assignees of said Mortgage. L. C. DICKEY, Attorney.

Notice of Attachment.

REFEES M. DESHAZO, AS Executor of the Will of John Caldwell, deceased, vs. J. A. Acton. Whereas Rufus M. Deshazo, as executor of the will of John Caldwell, deceased, as plaintiff in said cause, has obtained an attachment out of this court, issued on the 9th day of November, 1897, against the estate of the said J. A. Acton, as defendant, which attachment has been levied on the following described real estate, to-wit: Part of the east half of the northwest quarter and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter and the west half of the northeast quarter and the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 18, all in township 19, range 2 west, situated in Jefferson County, Ala.; also by writ of garnishment served upon A. C. Acton to answer as to indebtedness to the said J. A. Acton; and whereas it appears that the said J. A. Acton, defendant as aforesaid, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama and resides in the State of Texas, but whose particular place of residence is unknown to plaintiff; Now, therefore, the said J. A. Acton, who ever he may reside, is hereby notified of said attachment and the levy thereof as aforesaid. Witness my hand this 4th day of December, 1897.

Application to Sell Land.

STATE OF ALABAMA, Probate Court, 24th SHELBY COUNTY. (day of November, 1897. Estate of Mary A. Cooper, deceased.

To Mary A. West, Minnie F. Cooper, Rubie A. Cooper, Gene B. Cooper, and Thompson H. Cooper, all of New Boston, Tex., and Carrie E. Cooper, of Dolby Springs, Tex.:

This day came W. W. West, as executor of said estate, and filed his application in due form and under oath praying for an order of sale of certain lands described therein and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of paying debts and for distribution, upon the ground that there is no personal property and that the said lands can not be equitably divided without a sale. It is ordered that the 30th day of January, 1898, be appointed a day for hearing such application, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same if they think proper.

Notice to Nonresidents.

BROWNE & LEEPER vs. THOS. J. POPE SONS & CO. ALA.

Whereas Browne & Leeper as plaintiffs in said cause has obtained an attachment out of this court, issued on the 23rd day of October, 1897, against the estate of the said Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co., as defendants, which attachment has been levied on the following described personal property of the said defendants, to-wit: Seventy-five tons of pig iron, at Biardfield, Bibb County, Ala.; and whereas it appears that the said Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co., defendants as aforesaid, are nonresidents of the State of Alabama, and resides in the City of New York; Now, therefore, the said Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co., wherever they may reside, are hereby notified of said attachment and the levy thereof as aforesaid. Witness my hand this 7th day of December, 1897.

Are You Weak?

Weakness manifests itself in the loss of ambition and aching bones. The blood is watery; the tissues are wasting—the door is being opened for disease. A bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters taken in time will restore your strength, soothe your nerves, make your blood rich and red. Do you more good than an expensive special course of medicine. Brown's Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Brown's Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Brown's Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Meeting of the Board of Trustees Last Friday.

Last Friday a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Girls' Industrial School was held at Montevallo. The CHRONICLE, not being informed of the time, failed to have a representative there; therefore we must content our readers with the following account of the meeting taken from the Montgomery Advertiser, followed by a short article from our regular correspondent:

MONTVALLO, Dec. 6.—Friday was a busy day at the Girls' Industrial School. All the trustees but three put in an early appearance, and after joining in the impressive opening ceremony, spent the day in the transaction of important business and inspecting the workings of the school. It is gratifying to the people of Montevallo, and particularly to President Reynolds, that the board heartily and unanimously endorsed all that had been done in the way of improvements, and renewed their expressions of interest and enthusiasm in behalf of the school. One could hardly "rub up against" the enthusiastic president without imbuing this spirit, of which he is full and continually bubbling over. No one, so fully as he, seemed to realize the possibilities of the simple act creating the school. No other than he, perhaps, could, so sagaciously, readily and dexterously have unfolded those possibilities and developed the realizations as they exist today. Always a busy, energetic man, and being in a position to drop or shift his personal affairs, all his admirable capabilities have been concentrated on the one idea of firmly establishing this school; of revolutionizing, universalizing and perfecting the education of the young women of Alabama, and, too, upon the democratic theory of "the greatest good to the greatest number." No chieftain could more pardonably boast of his achievements than he, yet one is struck with the modesty and grace with which he carries his honors, and tells of the progress and development of his school.

It was apparent at close of last session, that the school had attracted wide-spread attention, and that its limited accommodations would be insufficient for the needs of the second session. Realizing the necessity, President Reynolds, combining the attributes of legislation, board of trustees, architect and builder, fired by his own zeal and encouraged by all friends of the institution trusting to the future to the future to demonstrate the emergency and necessity, planned, devised, and builded out by his own means, when other was lacking, until he had more than doubled the capacity of school room, and had the building ready and equipped for a brilliant opening the 4th of October.

"We have a bright, ambitious set of girls this year as were ever assembled in Alabama," says President Reynolds. No one would gainsay it who witnessed the inspiring reception of the Governor and co-trustees Friday morning as they filed on the rostrum. Three hundred and thirty-five girls rose as one, clapping their hands in welcome, their faces fairly beaming with intelligence.

The usual devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Dr. Eager. Then, under the magical management of the presiding teacher, the classes filed out with perfect precision and clock work regularity to the successive departments, without confusion or hindrance. There are no drones nor stumbling blocks nor clogs; every girl seems to realize that she is here for a purpose, and is making the best of her opportunities.

One of the most gratifying features of the school is the spirit of harmony, concord and amity manifested by the pupils. No extravagance in dress or otherwise is prescribed or attempted. A uniform dress is prescribed for Sundays and all public occasions. Here will be found daughters of farmers, preachers, bankers, judges, doctors, lawyers, merchants; in fact, representing parents of nearly every walk of life. Yet you look in vain for any mark of distinction. There is no waving crest to proclaim rank, no badge to devote servility; no prejudices of caste, no scowls of pride, nor timid cowering or embarrassment of poverty. The democracy evidenced by Col. Bloch, on occasion of his visit to the North Carolina school, has its demonstration here also. Pupils of protestant faith are required to attend services at the church of their choice, while those whose belief is not represented by a congregation in town, are invited to meet together and hold their accustomed service.

The facilities of the school have been much enlarged and improved. Additional teachers have been secured in the various departments; twelve new pianos have been added to those in the music rooms; thirteen new sewing machines, a half dozen new typewriters, and a number of new telegraph instruments. By the way this is the only school in the country in direct telegraphic touch with the outside world. No department is more attractive than the dressmaking, in which 225 girls are being instructed. The girls in this department carried last month, besides making their own uniforms, $130.50. This paper would be too lengthy if it followed your reporter through all the departments.

The meeting of the Board of Trustees for the Girls' Industrial School held at this place on last Friday, was notwithstanding the rain, a very pleasant and harmonious one. Governor Johnston, the president of the board, and Hon. John O. Turner, Superintendent of Education of Alabama, made delightful and elegant speeches to the school.

The whole school was called together to meet the distinguished gentlemen who composed the board, together with many visitors from different parts of the State. It was an occasion of great pleasure to all who met these gentlemen. After the opening exercises the school proceeded with its usual business; and each department was visited and the work being done was examined, after which a fine photograph of the group, embracing the Governor and Trustees, was taken by Mr. Russell, of Oxford.

The members present were, Governor Johnston, president of the board; Hon. F. S. Moody, treasurer; John McQueen, Secretary; Rev. George D. Eager, of Montgomery; Judge H. Austil, of Mobile; John O. Turner, Superintendent of Education, Montgomery; Hon. W. W. Wadsworth, of Wadsworth; Hon. W. R. Dortch, of Gadsden; Judge A. H. Alston, of Clayton, and Hon. Virgil Bouldin, of Scottsboro. The members all expressed themselves as being delighted with the progress and success of the school, and will use their best efforts to foster and develop the same. Everything that has been done by the president met the hearty approval of all. During the meeting of the board, a resolution was offered and unanimously thanking and accepting the donation made by President Reynolds of the money voted to him by the Trustees at the last meeting at Montgomery, to reimburse him for money lost belonging to the school, which he had placed in the Commercial Bank of Selma, which was lost by the failure of said bank, and made good to the students by President Reynolds out of his private funds.

Dinner was served to the board of trustees at the Dormitory, which was fully enjoyed, they say that they will hold all of their meetings at Montevallo in the future, especially when they can have such dinners as was furnished them on this occasion; J. D. Farrington has charge, and did the honors in a thorough and graceful manner.

Hon. N. A. Graham, of Calera, was present and met many friends among the Board of Trustees. Hon. Cecil Browne, S. H. Chardy, Wm. Leak and Mr. Link, of Talladega; Dr. Barbour, of Birmingham, and Henry Jones were in attendance on the Trustees' meeting.

The day was fittingly closed by one of the most interesting lectures ever delivered in Montevallo. Judge James J. Banks, of the Birmingham circuit, delivered a lecture on Mexico, which, from start to finish, was closely followed, by every one of the vast audience who had assembled in the Chapel to hear him; to say that it was fully enjoyed is to feebly express the pleasure derived from it; the description of Mexican life, the City of Mexico, his journey to the Crater of the Volcano in Mexico, the bull fights, the Plaza and society of the Mexican people was listened to with unfeigned pleasure and interest. It was a memorable event in the history of Montevallo.

Judge Alston remained in town until Sunday evening, the guest of President Reynolds and Dr. Wilkinson.

Over $190 was earned by the young ladies in the dress-making department of the school during the month of November, and there are now orders from different parts of the State to have work done.

Mrs. E. W. North, of Birmingham, Mr. Edward North, of Cincinnati, Ohio, Dr. Fred Davis, student in Birmingham Medical College, S. B. Gibson, secretary Girls Industrial School, Mr. C. W. Cary and Mrs. Cary, came down from Birmingham on Tuesday morning.

Mr. S. P. Gibson says he is papa now. It is a fine girl.

Miss Mary Kroell, of this place, is on a visit to friends in Centerville, and will be one of the bride's maids at the marriage of Miss Lavella Fuller and Dr. Logan, which happy event will take place on the 8th inst. Mr. Burges Little will be next to the best man in the ceremony.

Mrs. W. B. Reynolds is on a visit to Faunsdale, to attend the marriage of her sister, Miss Minnie Walker to Mr. Geo. McKee, of Faunsdale.

Rev. P. L. Abernathy has been returned to this place by North Alabama Conference.

Messrs. McConaughy and Bowen will open a new livery and sale stable at this place about the 1st day of January next.

Mr. E. D. Reynolds and lady and Col. S. J. Morgan, of Blocton, was in town Sunday, spent the day, and returned in the evening.

Mr. Brasher Nelson, of Columbiana, and Dr. J. H. Gunn, of Calera, were in the city Tuesday.

JACKSON-WELDON NUPTIALS.

Marriage at Wilsonville Yesterday of a Prominent Couple.

The climax of one of the grandest social events the quaint and aristocratic little city of Wilsonville ever witnessed was consummated on yesterday, when Mr. J. C. Jackson, Jr., long recognized as the leader of the best circle of that place and Miss Mattie Weldon, than whom there is none more charming and winsome, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. The many friends and well-wishers of the contracting parties had filled the Baptist church, in which they were to be married, to its fullest capacity some minutes before the hour for the ceremony. Silence reigned supreme and everyone was seemingly imbued with the idea of the grandeur and solemnity of such an occasion, when suddenly, as if sung by some far-off angel, were heard pealing forth the strains of the Bridal March, executed by Miss Cockrell, and after a lapse of only a few seconds entered Mr. Kyle with Miss Georgia Pope, Mr. J. W. Weldon with Miss Laura Weldon, who slowly ascended the aisle on either side the church and stationed themselves immediately to the right and left of the position in which the bride and groom were to appear. Following entered the groom on the right and the bride on the left, who were joined at the front of the altar and were met by Rev. Mr. Burns, who in a most solemn, striking and eloquent manner performed the ceremony.

The beauty of the bride and her attendants, all arrayed in costumes of green, were greatly enhanced by the exquisite decorations of the church, of green also, as they stood before the altar of sincerity, with the light of a lamp casting a mellowed glow over all, brought into bold relief the exquisite charms of each, and formed a picture too grand for human description.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple were driven to the depot, where they left for a ten days visit to friends and relatives of Tallapoosa, Ga.

Mr. Jackson, of the firm of J. C. Jackson & Sons, is a young man of exceptional qualifications. Miss Weldon is the daughter of R. G. Weldon, a successful business man, thus bringing into relation two of the prominent business families of the county.

THE CHRONICLE joins with their many friends in wishing them a life of happiness and prosperity.

Harpersville Echoes.

Mrs. Mary Hatcher, of Sylacauga, is visiting G. W. Wheeler's family.

A. M. Jones, who moved from here two years ago to Childersburg, has moved back to his farm.

L. J. Carden is making arrangements to move near Birmingham.

M. M. Robertson went over to the United States court at Birmingham Monday to consult with Judge Bruce in regard to the John Bearden whisky case. Mr. Robertson was on Bearden's bond; and it is reported that Bearden has skipped the country.

Mr. Christie, of near Alpine, has bought the Wheat farm and will move to it at an early day.

Last Sunday was a dark, drizzly, gloomy day; but then we don't expect every day to be bright and sunny, and therefore we are not prone to murmur.

Mr. Matthews, the renowned horse trader of Tennessee, was in town a day or two last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell are visiting their son, Barney, at Pratt City this week.

Tuesday was taxpaying and assessing day, and quite a number of our farmers were in town.

Mr. Tumlin, of Anniston, is still with us and some of the boys are very anxious to know his business.

Our merchants are selling sardines at five cents a can or two for a dime. "Jemmy whilkins, how cheap!"

There was a new passenger train put on the C. & W. road last Sunday. Trains pass Vincent at 10 o'clock in the morning going to Birmingham, and comes back at 6 in the evening.

Every dwelling house in and around Harpersville is now occupied, and the cry is for more houses.

Charley Burrough left here a few days ago and is now in Oklahoma Territory, and some of the merchants are singing that old familiar song, "A charge to keep I have."

The following is the honor roll of the Harpersville Elm Hill Academy for the third month, ending December 3, 1897:

Seventh grade—Oliver Caldwell, Stella Posey, Edward Bradley.

Sixth grade—Walter Wheeler.

Fourth grade—Dodie Posey, Hugh Walball, Stella Rowe, Clifton Borum, Nona Rowe.

First grade—Autie Hanna, Sallie Wright.

The following programme will be carried out by the patrons and pupils of the Harpersville school on Thursday, December 23, 1897, beginning at 7 o'clock. Everybody is invited to attend and enjoy a feast of reason and fun. Reserved seats for patrons.

Services at the Baptist church next Sunday morning and night by Rev. A. E. Burns, of Huntsville.

The tax collector and assessor's farewell tour brought many farmers to town Monday.

One of the most unique and enjoyable programs at all was served by the Leaguers Friday evening at the Academy. Miss Cora Smith's original essay, "Only a Joke," was well rendered and contained all the sentimental elements of reality. At the second roll call everybody responded with a quotation from their favorite author, after which, secret votes were cast for the laureate of the evening and "Pat" was elected as such, whereupon he was presented with a written "palm of victory" which contained a voucher from St. Valentine, assuring the laureate that he would remember him on February 14 by mailing him a costly (one cent) prize that would portray his beautiful physiognomy in radiant caricature. Dr. Boyer's story didn't quite mature, however, it is reboked for the next meeting. The crowning topic on the program for two weeks hence will be, "A quaint and curious search party" to be participated in by the entire League.

The Southbound passenger train is scheduled to arrive here at 2:50 o'clock p. m. The Northbound remains "as it were."

In scanning the appointments of the North Alabama Conference in Tuesday's Age-Herald, we noticed the name of Rev. J. B. Francis as the preacher for the Wilsonville circuit. Rev. S. J. Parrish, our former pastor, goes to Wylam circuit.

Tuesday morning nine male and female mendicants canvassed the town for temporal sympathies. The situation is getting to be appalling. The guests figuring conspicuously in the Jackson-Weldon nuptials, from afar, arrived Tuesday at 12:21.

The following is the honor roll of Wilsonville High School for November 1897:

Fourth grade—Sammie Taylor.

Fifth grade—Willie Irwin, Leon Pope, Bessie Nivin, Helen Boyer.

Sixth grade—Chas. Nivin.

Seventh grade—Rosa Graham.

Eighth grade—Purdie Holland, Purdie Pope, T. V. Neal.

To secure a place on the honor roll, the pupil must make at least 90 per cent on each subject, and record of deportment be good.

JUSTICE FIELD.

He Lacked a few Days of Serving Forty-four Years.

Justice Field's retirement from the supreme court, of which he gave official notice to the President last April, took place to-day. There was no formality attendant upon it. The justice was not present in the courtroom, and as he had not sat with the court on any day since the opening day of the term the proceedings did not differ in any respect from those of ordinary days.

It had been supposed that the general transfer of the seats of the associate justices, which always occurs when the senior associate retires, would take place, but even this formality was postponed until Monday next. On that day Justice Harlan, who now becomes the senior associate, will change his seat from the left to the right side of the chief justice, taking the seat vacated by Mr. Field, and Justice Gray will become Chief Justice Fuller's neighbor on the left. All the other justices will move up one chair nearer the chief.

If Justice Field's term had continued until next Tuesday he would have had forty-four years of continuous service. Under the law he will draw full salary until his death.

SOME PERTINENT REMARKS.

Apropos of a New Constitution for Alabama.

We clip the following from Sunday's Age-Herald:

I favor the calling of a constitutional convention, but I do not think the question should be put to the people in such a way as to cause apprehension in their minds that unlimited or enlarged power of local taxation for educational or other purposes will be lodged with the cities, towns, counties, or school districts of the State. Indeed, it should not be one of the objects of a constitutional convention to do away with wise limitations upon the power of local taxation, and regulations which secure uniformity in the subjects and rate of taxation throughout the State. The question of education is, of course, one of prime importance to the people of a State, showing such a large percentage of illiteracy as Alabama, and should be considered in the convention, and some change in the organic law effected whereby our school system may be extended equally to all the school children of every community in the State; but this does not necessarily imply increased power of local taxation. If that is insisted on by the advocates of a convention they will be defeated. The people fear to entrust local authorities with increased powers of taxation. There is a higher and better reason for calling a constitutional convention than the one suggested, and one which is intimately connected with the cause of education.

The people of Alabama need, above all things else, freedom from the menace of negro suffrage. We are not a free people, and can not be free until that question is eliminated from our politics. The people are afraid to divide, to differ with one another, so long as this question abides. We are supposed to live under a government whose moving spirit is popular discussion, and the power of public opinion. But we are afraid of discussion, and that great engine, public opinion, which acts so freely in democratic societies elsewhere than in the South, with us is but a mean, poor, and crippled thing, timid and nervous and shrinking, and continually in default in the service of the people. Until this is changed; until the intelligent and progressive people of Alabama shall feel free to think and act on public questions and all matters affecting the public welfare as they choose; until there is opportunity for free and unhampered discussion and an open field for the development and operation of public opinion, the people of Alabama need not and can not hope to be free, to be the equal of those States not so restricted.

We are behind the procession industrially, educationally, and in almost every other respect, and will continue so until we shall have a new constitution such as Mississippi or South Carolina has adopted, so framed as to free us from real and imaginary dangers of unlimited negro suffrage. If you agitate the call for a convention upon this idea you may succeed; but in my judgment you will never succeed upon the idea of having a convention mainly, or at all, to make provision for unlimited or increased powers of local taxation.

Consumption

Will SCOTT'S EMULSION cure consumption? Yes and no. Will it cure every case? No. What cases will it cure then? Those in their earlier stages, especially in young people. We make no exaggerated claims, but we have positive evidence that the early use of

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda in these cases results in a positive cure to a large number. In advanced cases, however, where a cure is impossible, this well-known remedy should be relied upon to prolong life surprisingly.

COLUMBIANA, SHELBY COUNTY, ALABAMA, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1897.

NO. 52.

APPROPRIATION BILL PASSED

HOUSE REPUBLICANS VOTE EXPENDITURE OF $141,263,880.

DINGLEY DEFENDS THE TARIFF ACT.

He Declares in a Speech That Next Year Will Show a Surplus of Something Like $10,000,000.

A Washington special says: The house at Friday's session passed the appropriation bill without amendment and adjourned until Monday.

The amendments offered by the democrats to correct alleged existing abuses were all ruled out on the point of order that they were new legislation. As passed the bill carried $141,263,880.

The debate covered a wide range. It touched not only the question of our pension policy, but that of civil service reform and the receipts and expenditures of the treasury under the Dingley law. On the latter question Mr. Dingley made an important statement, in which he expressed the opinion that the receipts would equal the expenditures before the close of the present fiscal year and predicted a surplus of $10,000,000 next year.

At the opening of the session it was agreed that when the house adjourned it be to meet on Monday.

On motion of Mr. Foss, republican of Illinois, Saturday, December 18th, was set apart for paying tribute to the memory of the late E. D. Cooke, of Illinois.

The house then resumed the consideration of the pension appropriation bill, which was debated Thursday.

Mr. Sullivan, democrat, of Mississippi, in support of an argument against the payment of pensions to those who were wealthy and did not need them, quoted at length from an article recently written by General H. V. Boynton, whose testimony against abuses in the present system, he said, was entitled to respectful consideration by the other side.

Messrs. Carmack, Gaines and Sims, democrats, of Tennessee, spoke briefly in favor of retrenchment in pension expenditures.

Mr. Dingley contended that the maximum pension expenditure was reached in 1893, when the pension payments reached $198,000,000. In 1894 they fell to $141,000,000; 1895, $141,009,000; 1896, $139,000,000, and in 1897, $141,000,000. If the expenditures for pensions during the next fiscal year should be $148,000,000, as had been estimated, the increase, Mr. Dingley said, would not be due to new legislation, but to more rapid administration of the present laws. It would, therefore, involve no additional expense in the end.

He said the secretary of the treasury and the president were confident the receipts next year would exceed the expenditures.

Mr. Dingley said the estimated deficit for the present year, not counting the money obtained and to be obtained from the Pacific railways, was $28,000,000. The anticipatory importations had placed in the treasury before July 1st $38,000,000. Those importations had reduced the deficit last year from $56,000,000 to $18,000,000.

Mr. Dingley figured out a surplus of exactly $10,000,000 for the coming fiscal year. He described the steady manner in which the revenue had been increasing at the rate of one or two millions a month. Although December was generally a bad month for importations, he said that if the increase for the first nine days of this month were continued, the receipts this month would increase from $25,000,000 in November to $27,000,000 in December.

When he predicted that the effect of the anticipatory revenues would all be overcome during this fiscal year and that after May or June, 1898, the revenues would exceed the expenditures, the republican side broke into repeated cheers.

Mr. Allen, democrat, of Mississippi, concluded the general debate with a humorous speech.

The bill was then reported to the house and passed.

STEEL MEN CONSIDER POOL.

They Hold a Meeting in New York, But Are Reticent.

A meeting of the representatives of nearly all the steel companies in the United States was held Friday in New York city, at which the harmonizing of their interests and the division of the territory are said to have been the chief subjects of discussion.

Among those present were President Stackhouse, of the Cambria Iron Company; Linderman, of the Bethlehem Iron Company; Fellow, of the Pennsylvania and Maryland Steel Company, and Secretary Kenney, of the Bessemer Steel Company.

None of those who were present at the meeting would discuss the matter.

O'BRIEN FORCED TO QUIT.

Lieutenant's Resignation From the Army Was Not Voluntary.

Colonel H. C. Cook, of the Fifth United States Infantry, in an interview with a newspaper man, said that Lieutenant Michael J. O'Brien's resignation from the army was not voluntary on his part, but was requested by the war department, and that the officer was given his choice of resigning or submitting to a court-martial.

THREE WERE IMPLICATED

In the Horrible Murder of Mrs. Brown and Her Children.

A special from Wesson, Miss., says: Late Thursday afternoon the negro who murdered the family of Brown Smith was captured by the posse, carried to Monticello, the county seat of Lawrence county, and at 7 o'clock was carried back to the scene of his crime, where he was fully identified by the little girl.

Another special to The New Orleans Picayune from Wesson, Miss., says: "Your correspondent has just interviewed one of the most prominent men in this section, who left the scene of the massacre of the Brown Smith family Friday morning. The accused negro, Charley Lewis, is being tried before Justice D. T. Holmes; he has given testimony implicating two other negroes—Will Powell and Andy Smith, who are now in custody.

"My informant is positive that the recent lynching at Monroe will be imitated, making it public, and each negro will be made to carry pine knots to burn the other.

"The trial is being conducted in a lawful manner. The committee has charge of the prisoners and will not permit them to be sent to any jail. During the trial Lewis broke down and confessed, saying: 'It's mighty hard for me to suffer for what somebody else has done.

"Upon being allowed to talk further, he said: 'Get Will Powell and Andrew Smith.'

"Lewis is a mulatto about twenty-three years old, and married. It is believed that a general clean-up will be made in that section of the country, and that a number of negroes will be lynched."

CALL TO VETERANS.

People of Georgia Asked to Assist in Making Reunion a Success.

The work of arranging for the reunion of all Confederate survivors to be held in Atlanta, Ga., in July, next year, has been begun in earnest. All of the committee have been appointed and as the details are now over the work will progress rapidly. General C. A. Evans has issued the following communication to the public:

"To the Confederates of Georgia and Their Friends:

"The organization of the reunion association of Georgia, with its necessary officers, general executive committee, and sub-committees has been secured and the work for the reunion of the Confederate veterans in 1898 has commenced with that enthusiasm and organized effort which will make the occasion memorable.

"I now make appeal to the people of Georgia to unite heartily in showing that great consideration which I know they feel for the men who so willingly made the offering of life on the call of patriotic duty. The occasion will bring together for probably the last time in Georgia the Confederate survivors of the entire country, north and south, and the scene will be the most impressive that the eyes of our sons and daughters ever beheld.

The co-operation already tendered from all parts of the state to the city of Atlanta is most gratifying in its assurance that the hospitable arrangements now in progress will be in some degree worthy of the Confederate survivors who are to be our guests, and in order to make our work effective I beg all officers of camps and districts, all Sons and Daughters of Confederates, and all citizens to organize without delay in every place, so as to be put in communication with the executive committee in Atlanta.

"CLEMENT A. EVANS, 'President Georgia Reunion Association."

HAD KILLED NINE.

Nisbet, the Multi-Murderer, Swung Into Eternity.

Henry Nisbet, colored, was hanged at Irwinville, Ga., Friday, for the murder of Jim Arlington, another negro, at Fitzgerald last spring.

Nisbet, according to reports, is a most desperate character. After he murdered Arrington an attempt was made to lynch him by the negroes and he was nearly cut to pieces. He was given a pistol by one of his friends; however, and in the fight he killed two of his assailants and wounded three others.

Nisbet has slain nine men in his career of crime and wounded and crippled as many more. All his victims were of his own race, which he always declared he abhorred.

ROCK HILL IS EXCITED.

A Case of Small Pox Develops in South Carolina Town.

A Columbia dispatch states that a case of small pox has developed in Rock Hill, where there are 450 young women from all over the state attending Winthrop college, and considerable anxiety is felt.

A twelve-year-old son of J. B. Johnson returned to Rock Hill some days ago from Atlanta, where he had been for treatment to his eyes, and a day or two later became ill with smallpox.

The board of health and city council have ordered that every person in the town be vaccinated.

RECEIVER IN STEINAU CASE.

Whisky Dealer's Affairs to Be Wound Up By Court.

At Atlanta, Ga., Friday afternoon, Judge J. H. Lumpkin granted a permanent receiver for L. Steinau. The case had been on trial for a week in the superior court and had been very warmly contested.

Although a receiver was appointed the validity of the mortgages of the Capital City bank, of Julius L. Brown and Mrs. Martha Semmons was recognized by the court.

MILLER MADE MORE MILES

AND WON THE GREAT SIX-DAY BICYCLE RACE AT NEW YORK.

GETS GOOD MONEY FOR HIS EFFORT

Over One Hundred Thousand People, First and Last, Witnessed the Struggle of Endurance.

One of the greatest crowds that ever filled Madison Square Garden, New York, were collected within its walls Saturday night. It had surged into the vast ring to see C. W. Miller, of Chicago, cross the tape winner of the great six-day bicycle race with a record of 2,093 miles in 142 hours.

From start to finish the race was the most interesting ever witnessed.

Thousands upon thousands had poured into the place day after day and night after night until it is safe to say that from first to last 100,000 people saw the remarkable contest. The race was a success from every point of view, from the sportsman's standpoint and from the business man's standpoint. The gate receipts will easily reach $60,000, leaving the management a good profit.

The following is the final score for the 142 hours:

Miller	2,093.4
Rice	2,026.5
Schinner	2,000.7
Hale	1,920.2
Waller	1,883.1
Pierce	1,828.0
Golden	1,778.0
Gannon	1,760.0
Enterman	1,753.7
Elkes	1,660.7
Kinz	1,616.8
Julius	1,503.5
Beacon	1,350.8
Johnson	1,279.4
Grey	1,229.0
Riviere	1,746.7
Moore	1,495.4

Best previous record 1,910 miles 8 laps, by Hale.

As a reward for their week of pain and torture in covering hundreds of miles a wheel, Miller will get $1,500, aside from presents from wheel and tire concerns; $1,300 of this is the winner's share of the purse, and $200 more goes for breaking the record.

Joe Rice's share of the purse will be $800 and Schinner will get $500; Teddy Hale will receive $350 and Waller $150. Pierce gets $200, Golden $150, Gannon $125, Enterman and Riviere $100 and Elkes $75.

All the riders who covered more than 1,350 miles will receive a prize, probably $50 apiece.

The managers of the contest now admit what has been alleged since the second day of the race—that the track was short. Sunday, surveyors went over the course, and although it was officially announced that the riders had not traveled a full mile for every nine laps, just how short each "mile" was has not been given out.

When Miller finished winner of the race 2,093 miles had been checked up to his credit. From what can be learned, it is believed the track was something like 200 feet short to the mile, and, therefore, the actual distance traveled was about 2,014.

BAD FOR ANNEXATION.

Ex-Senator Dubois Declares Hawaiians Are Against It.

Former Senator Dubois, who has just reached home, after extended visit to Japan, China and Hawaii, says the United States will not annex these islands against the bitter opposition of the natives.

He says there are no less than 1,200 male Americans on the island over twenty-one years of age, and nearly half of them are opposed to annexation, while nearly all the balance of the population are against it. Said Mr. Dubois:

"Nothing but the support of the United States government keeps the present oligarchy, misnamed a republic, in power. They could not sustain themselves a day if the United States should withdraw its support. It will require a large armed force constantly to maintain any government the United States may establish there. The natives will never consent to the destruction of their national life."

TO INVESTIGATE SMALLPOX.

Governor Ellerbe, of South Carolina, Names Committee of Doctors.

A dispatch from Columbia, S. C., says: Governor Ellerbe has appointed a commission composed of Dr. Babcock, superintendent of the insane asylum; Rev. Dr. Evans and Dr. Strother Pope, to visit Rock Hill and thoroughly investigate the smallpox situation there in connection with Winthrop college. The parents of the hundreds of girls there have been making it warn for the authorities.

Superintendent of Education Mayfield views from Rock Hill that every precaution is being taken to prevent the disease spreading to the college.

SUN SPOTS VISIBLE.

Solar Disturbances on Big Scale are Announced.

A dispatch from Geneva, N. Y., says: Professor William R. Brooks, of Smith observatory, reports the observation of a great group of sun spots approaching the center of the sun's disc.

The group is visible to the naked eye through smoked glass.

Measurements made by Professor Brooks show this vast solar disturbance to be 100,000 miles in length.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS MEETS.

The Senate—Thursday.

In the senate today Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, presented a petition signed by 21,250 native Hawaiians, protesting against the annexation of Hawaii.

Mr. McBride, of Oregon, secured the passage of a resolution asking the secretary of war for such information concerning the needs of the Alaskan miners in the Yukon valley as he might have in his possession. The senate began the consideration of private pension bills under the special order. During the hour allowed forty-five bills were passed, the majority of them being for increases to pensions now received. The bill providing for the taking of the census of 1900 will be taken up Monday. Adjourned till Monday.

The House.

The house today entered upon the consideration of pension appropriation bills and stirred up a debate that promises to continue for several days. Private John Allen, of Mississippi, who led the assault in a speech characteristic of his humor, attacked the system. It was admitted on both sides of the house that the $140,000, carried by the bill for pensions would not cover the expenditures.

The contest of Crowe against Representative Underwood, in the Ninth Alabama district, will be called for Dec. 15. The case of W. F. Aldrich, of the Fourth Alabama district, who has entered a contest for this seat, now held by T. S. Plowman, has been set for hearing before the elections committee No. 1 on Dec. 17.

The House—Friday.

At the opening of the session of the house today it was agreed that when the house adjourned today it be to meet on Monday. On motion of Mr. Foss (rep., Ills.), Saturday, December 18, was set apart for paying tribute to the memory of the late E. D. Cooke of Illinois.

The house then resumed the consideration of the pension appropriation bill which was debated yesterday, and after a spirited debate passed without amendment. The amendments offered by the democrats to correct alleged existing abuses were all ruled out on the point of order that they were new legislation. As passed, the bill carried $141,263,880. Mr. Hitt, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, asked unanimous consent for the passage of the bill reported by his committee to prohibit the killing of fur seals. He explained the necessity for the immediate passage of the act owing to the diplomatic negotiations now pending. The house then adjourned till Monday.

The Senate—Monday.

Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, made an effort in the senate today to secure an immediate vote on his immigration bill, which is practically the same measure passed by the Fifty-fourth congress and vetoed by President Cleveland.

Mr. Davis called up the bill prohibiting the killing of fur seals in the Northern Pacific ocean, but upon suggestion of Mr. Pettigrew who desired to make some amendments to it, the measure went over until tomorrow.

A bill was passed for a public building at Durham, N. C., to cost $125,000. Mr. Pettigrew called up the bill to permit settlers the right to make second homestead entries. Each person would be entitled to acquire 160 acres of land. The bill was passed. Mr. Butler, of South Carolina, spoke at length on amendments he had offered to the bill, providing for a postal savings bank system. The immigration bill was called up by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, and a vote asked for immediately. Objection was offered for a special passage, and the time for a final vote was fixed for January 17.

A resolution calling for a statement from the civil service commission was presented and agreed to. The senate then adjourned.

The House.

Excepting the reporting of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, which is to be considered tomorrow, the house did no business today.

By unanimous consent a resolution was passed to print 2,000 copies of the testimony of the civil service commission before the appropriations committee for the use of the house. Mr. Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriations, secured unanimous consent for passing an urgent deficiency bill, which, he explained, carried but three items—$5,000 for the construction of a building at the naval academy, $30,000 for the payment of temporary employees of the house and senate, and $175,000 for the payment of the mileage of senators and representatives.

CLEVELAND COMES SOUTH.

Ex-President Visits His Old Haunts on a Duck Hunt.

Ex-President Grover Cleveland, accompanied by Gen. Anson G. McKook and Captain Evans and Captain Lamberton, of the United States navy, arrived in Georgetown, S. C., early Saturday morning as guests of Gen. E. P. Alexander.

They were immediately conveyed to South Island on the government steamer Wistaria. Their sport will probably last several weeks.

The Palmto club and the citizens of Georgetown have dispatched a messenger to the party tendering them a banquet.

The Mexicans received W. J. Bryan and party at Monterey Saturday with great honor.

WHEAT CROP IN INDIA.

A VERY PLAIN STATEMENT ABOUT PRICES.

Any Simpleton Should Be Able to See at a Glance that a Decline in Silver Means a Decline in Wheat—Crop Shortage Explained.

(By A. J. Warner.)

In 1891, at a convention of the American Bimetallic League, held at Washington, Moreton Frewin, the distinguished English bimetalist, called attention to the close relations between silver and wheat in India and its effect on the price of American wheat.

He showed that for a long time an ounce of silver in India, converted into rupees, had been the equivalent of a bushel of wheat, including transportation to European markets, and especially had this been the case since the opening of the Suez canal.

He showed that, under conditions then existing, as the gold price of bullion silver went down in the American market the gold price of wheat would go down in India, and consequently in the European markets, necessarily carrying down with it the price of wheat in this country. This was then strictly true and easily explained.

If an ounce of silver would pay for a bushel of wheat in India and lay it down in Liverpool, it is plain that if the ounce of silver could be bought in America for 60 cents in gold, then 60 cents in gold would pay for the bushel of wheat in India, including its transportation to Europe, which would mean 40 to 50 cent wheat in this country as long as India had wheat to export.

Nothing could be plainer than that. Bimetalists, therefore, called the attention of the American farmer to this fact and showed him the consequences of Indian competition under such conditions.

But it must be remembered that two things were necessary to produce this result.

First, the purchaser of wheat in India must be able to convert bullion silver at will into rupees with which to pay for wheat. This was the condition then, and continued so till June, 1893.

Second, India must have wheat to export. This India had for many years in succession, and will doubtless have again. But for two years past her crop of wheat, on account of drought, has been short.

TANNER BECOMES A DEMOCRAT.

Gov. Tanner, of Illinois, is getting to be a pretty good Democrat. Thusly he calls down Chicago's gold standard newspaper trust, in a speech delivered before the Commercial club:

"Does the press of Chicago truthfully represent the public opinion of Chicago? That is the question to which I ask leave to direct your thoughts for a few moments this evening.

"I do not believe that it does, and on this subject I ask leave to say a few words, the utterance of which appears to me to be a painful public duty which circumstances have forced upon me, and which I should be a coward to shirk, whatever may be the reception given them.

"The organization of the Chicago press is essentially that of a trust, as the word 'trust' is commonly understood. The proprietors of the leading daily newspapers of this city, with the exception of the Inter Ocean, are members of a corporation which meets once a week; for what purpose? It may have other ends to subserve in this weekly meeting, but its chief object is to determine the policy of the papers which belong to the combination, what treatment they will jointly and severally accord to all public measures and to all public men. Its deliberations are in the nature of those of the star chamber, whose name in English history is the symbol of tyranny and of infamy. The man who fails to do its bidding is slated for slaughter.

"In what particular does a newspaper trust differ in its aims, principles, or methods from any other trust? And yet these pretended opponents of trusts and monopolies have organized themselves into the most gigantic monopoly, the most dangerous trust, of the present age. Of all known trusts, this is the most venal and corrupt. The newspaper trust of the city of Chicago has been and is for sale, for an adequate pecuniary consideration, upon every question that has come before the Chicago common council or the legislature of Illinois.

"There is not a promoter in Chicago who does not know that in the incipency of every scheme for the enriching of individuals at the expense of the public at large his first step must be to see the newspaper trust, and that if he fails to make terms with it he must expect its opposition; his proposition will be assailed by it from start to finish.

"If these statements are untrue, I am amenable to the criminal law of libel, and liable also to the civil courts for damages. What I have said, I have said deliberately, after full reflection, and with the possible consequences before my eyes.

"I invite prosecution. I challenge the newspaper trust to meet me in the courts."

We love Tanner much for the enemies he has made. His speech is the greatest hit ever made by him.

Stories of poor farmers who got rich on dollar wheat will cut a big figure in the campaign literature of this fall and next year, but like many of the tales from the arctic gold fields, they will not bear investigation.

DEMOCRATIC PULPIT.

Are you organizing your congressional district?

Is there a precinct club in your vicinity? If not, start one.

The silver banner floats prouder than ever before.

Providence is always on the right side in politics.

There are three hundred and seventeen Democratic clubs in Iowa.

The congressional campaigns of 1898 will begin January 1.

Is your ward well organized?

Next year we will cross the Red Sea and take congress. In 1900 the walls of Jericho will fall and the hosts of Democracy will take control.

After an exhaustive test of dinner plates all over the country, the armor-plate board has now returned to Washington, and we may soon expect to hear a report on the assay value of the various brands of champagne.

To the extent that men grow apart, the tyrant and the anarchist are called into existence. In that country where one man has every opportunity to rise, while another, and probably a better man, has only opportunity to fall, such crimes as those perpetrated by Canovas and Golli are to be expected.

Prosperity will be secure and universal when none are so rich as to be able to buy others, and none are so poor as to be compelled to sell themselves.

Dick Bland favors paper money. This reminds us that all kinds of money are redeemable in the products of labor.

Extensive robberies have been discovered in the United States treasury. It will require six months of time and the expenditure of $25,000 to count the 100,000,000 bright silver dollars. The robbers probably have not secured one-tenth of the amount it will take to count what are left. But the count must always be understood to be absolutely correct.

Organize for the congressional campaign.

When one has waked up to the idea that the world needs to be made better and goes to work to help do it, he discovers a joy that no selfish pleasure can begin to equal.

When wages fall—as they do when the purchasing power is reduced, whether the money paid is less, the same, or even more—then production is discouraged for want of purchasers. Not only the employees but the employers and merchants have got to suffer it before long. Yet the tendency of the commercial system is to a continual reduction of purchasing power, at any rate in comparison with production—and still there are thousands of business folk who think that society is quite good enough for them.

George H. Shibley, author of "The Money Question," will stand for congress in the first Illinois. He is the sort of a man that we want to see in congress. He will carry the First, too.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: "Uncle Sam pays $30,000 a year for the transportation of silver coin to points where it is needed. This government has done a great deal for silver, but it was powerless to stay the decline." Please be more specific. Do you refer to the decline in silver bullion or silver coin?

Whatever failings may be imputed to Senator Hanna it cannot be charged that he lacks that audacity which is vulgarly but expressively known as "gall." To preach prosperity to a throng of steel workers, coal miners and railroad men who have been out of work and starving for six months requires a considerable exercise of nerve. Yet Mr. Hanna accomplished the feat at Bellaire and got out of town without being mobbed. When it is added that he vigorously denounced the immigration laws to an audience almost wholly composed of foreigners it will be seen that he is not lacking in assurance, though most people will be disposed to doubt his political sagacity.

Cloud Burst with High Winds Houses and Trees Blown Down in Mobile and Vicinity.

Early Monday morning a cloud burst, with high winds, visited Mobile and vicinity, doing considerable damage and greatly alarming the inhabitants. The rainfall in less than an hour was 1.92-100 inches. The house of William Collins, in Texas street, was carried from its foundations. In Magnolia cemetery the wind twisted trees in two near the ground and leveled scores of headstones. Five miles out on Fulton road, the barn of County Commissioner William Holcombe was carried 200 hundred yards and the corn scattered half a mile.

At Maysville, a suburb, two wooden churches were blown down and seven cabins destroyed. Beyond Eslavas creek, the house of John H. Jackson was completely destroyed. Several barns in the same neighborhood were blown down.

The authorities of San Francisco have decided to refuse permits for any more prize fights. This dispenses of the Grillo-Lavigne, Haykins Connolly and the Smith-Kelly matches.

STAMPED FROM DAWSON.

Terrible News by Steamer From Dyea. Fighting Their Way Over Mountains.

By steamer Topeka, from Dyea, news is received that a thousand ill-provisioned men stampeded from Dawson during the past month, and, impelled by fears of famine, are madly fighting their way over the mountains.

The Indian mail carrier who brings this report left the Yukon fully ten days after the Dawson party. He says the vanguard of the terror-stricken army are following less than a week behind. He declares that fully 25 per cent of the stampeding army will never live to see the horrors of their flight north.

The only bright view of the situation is that the army creeping past Dyea and Skagway has been greatly improved, and within a month will be in excellent condition. Dyea parties, headed by Governor Fulmer, propose to go to the relief of the hungry at Dawson. They will make the United States government an offer to deliver 50,000 pounds of provisions within fifty days after the time of starting for Dawson for the sum of $75,000. They already have 50,000 pounds of provisions cased at Lake Bennett, which they will take in over the Chilkoot pass this winter. Governor Fulmer will go south by the next steamer to lay his proposition before the secretary of war by wire. It is stated that material for the proposed railway over Takai pass has already been shipped from the east.</

Our columns are still open to the discussion of a constitutional convention, and we would be glad to hear from anyone on this or other subjects of interest.

The sympathy of the entire country goes out to the President in the loss of his mother, who died Sunday morning. In these times of sorrow sympathy takes the place of all other feelings, whether it be for friend or foe.

LITTLE Joe Wheeler introduces more bills and gets fewer of them passed than any man in Congress. The writer has seen upwards of one hundred of them printed in one night and never heard of one of them afterwards.

The Republicans are fuming under the restrictions of the civil service. If they will do away with it they will have done one good thing. It is of this origin, and, like many of their schemes, is a great humbug. Every administration makes a farce of its enforcement.

The Eastern manufacturers read the President's message and immediately made a ten per cent cut in wages. The difference between McKinley prosperity and Cleveland adversity is the difference between tweedle-dum and tweedle-dee.

ABOUT the only difference between McKinley's message and those of Cleveland lies in the fact that the latter had the backbone to say what he thought and make recommendations accordingly, while the former said what his bosses thought and made no recommendations at all.

Has anybody heard of or from ex-Adm. Stevenson since the row? He must be prowling in the woods hunting for Hill—Advertiser.

He will be heard from when another Democratic nomination is made, as he was last year, faithfully supporting the ticket; and that is more than can be said of Hill or the Advertiser.

THE CHRONICLE will announce candidates for the small sum of $5. The paper will be expected to fight the battles of the party in the coming campaign, and we very properly expect some support in doing it. This is one of the ways to aid the paper. There are various other ways. The better the aid, the more effective the service will be.

The Montgomery Journal says that the fight between Justices McCallan and Coleman is a contest full of exciting interest. It strikes us as a scramble full of contemptible indecency. No man is fit for chief justice, nor for any other judicial office, who makes a scramble for it. We would like to see both these gentlemen laid aside.

The Huntsville Tribune and the Montgomery Advertiser want to know how many papers in the State favor an educational qualification. The present editor of THE CHRONICLE declared himself on this question several years ago before either of the above papers or any others in Alabama had the nerve to even venture an opinion. We are still declaring—in favor of it.

The Democrats of the national House have outlined their policy. In caucus they decided to stand as a unit against the President's currency recommendations, against all attempts to extend the privileges of national banks, in favor of the recognition of the belligerency of Cuba, and in favor of a just and wise bankruptcy law. Thus united they will make themselves felt in the House, though in the minority.

AFTER trying an all-home print for a few months we find it necessary to go back to the ready-print outside. We confess that we do not like it, but it is a purely business matter. We have arranged to give our readers the best service obtainable. On our outside will be found the proceedings of Congress, the latest State news, a synopsis of the Sunday school lesson, and a large amount of miscellaneous matter of interest. We will continue to print the county news, and altogether will give the very best paper it is possible to make under the circumstances.

We reprint a special from Washington to the Age-Herald to the effect that Aldrich has been turned down by the President for his too liberal reward of the Populists in this district. This has been expected for some time. Mr. Aldrich is a poor politician as well as a poor statesman. He first bolted his own party convention, and then after securing the recognition of the administration he ignored his party people and played the Populists with the office bait. The idea he goes on in this district is that he will buy the Populists with offices and the negro Republicans with a little money, but that plan doesn't seem to suit the bosses. However, they were a little late in throwing him down. He has about dished out all the district offices, and his Republican friends are left howling for pie when indeed there is no pie.

AS TO THE REMEDY.

The amount of money per capita in the country is now to be $24.15. Only once in our history has the amount been as large, namely in 1891, when it was $24.15. There is apparently enough money for all practical purposes. The only question is how to get it generally distributed. The Populists who claim that there is not enough money, advocate the issue of practically an unlimited amount of greenbacks. We do not think this would remedy the matter. Under present conditions the money goes to certain centers and does not readily come out again. This would not be remedied by issuing more money. It would serve only to pile up more money in the bank reserves of the East, endangering at the same time the stability of our finance. The country needs a reform of the banking system, so that the currency will be flexible, that is to say, issue at times of need. Under the present system there is no inducement for increase of circulation in certain localities. The tendency is the other way. The Populists have apparently a just complaint. They are mistaken only as to the remedy. Mobile Register.

The Register is inclined to a very reasonable view of the subject under discussion, especially from its standpoint; we are inclined to acknowledge the wisdom of the above proposition except as to the remedy. In this we beg to differ with both the Register and the Populists.

It must be admitted, however, that there must be a slight increase in the volume of our currency to keep pace with the increase of population. This alone would demand an annual increase of something like $50,000,000, to say nothing of the ever-varying commercial conditions.

The Register certainly is correct when it declares that the trouble is in the drift of the money toward certain centers, nor do we disagree to any great extent with its proposition that the increased issue of money would not remedy this evil. We must contend that the volume could be so far increased that these centers would find it a burden on their hands, and for their own relief would invest it in business enterprises rather than in financial speculation.

We conceive the correct theory to be that the trouble lies more in the present and past administration of financial affairs by the Treasury department than in any fault with existing law. The decision of the Treasury officials that our coin obligations must be paid in gold and that even the silver dollar is redeemable in gold has produced and maintains the great incentive for the accumulation of those obligations in the hands of the money holders, enabling them as it does to deplete the gold reserve and to force the continuous issue of interest-bearing bonds. Herein lies their source of profit, and hence their systematic trading on these lines. The Treasury has thus become a veritable mart of trade for them to the exclusion of the legitimate lines of investment and the consequent stagnation of business away from the so-called money centers.

Thus far we even concur in the President's remarks contained in his recent message. At this point, however, the real Democratic idea parts company with both the Republican and Populist theories as to the best remedy. We do not at the moment of the recognition of the enforced gold redemption as advanced by both Cleveland and McKinley. Nowhere does the law say gold when it speaks of coin redemption, and only as the recent administration was pleased to so construe it has it become the established custom. The first demand for coin redemption met by a tender of silver would break a link in the endless chain, and the entire system of drainage would go to pieces. This once accomplished, the incentive for local contraction would be gone, and the money now so employed would be forced to seek a legitimate investment. We believe it only needs a different construction and a corresponding enforcement of existing law to bring about this result; but this will not be accomplished until there is an administration of the finances under the Democratic idea. The demand for free coinage of silver carries with it this theory, without which free coinage would avail little.

The recognition of both gold and silver as money of final redemption, with a Treasury official who will use his discretion in the payment of either or both as the occasion demands, will produce the general distribution spoken of by the Register above as the thing needed to relieve the local congestion of the currency.

TWO OF A KIND.

The Republican campaign orators and Jingoes of a year ago denounced Mr. Cleveland's Cuban policy from every stump in the country and drew glowing pictures of peace, prosperity and plenty in the island under McKinley's administration. They are left dry by the President's message. Mr. McKinley, by the day he entered the White House, took up Mr. Cleveland's Cuban policy just where he had left off, even to the extent of retaining Genl-General Lee, Mr. Cleveland's appointee, in office. Since then he has followed precisely in the tracks of his wise predecessor, so doing he has shown wisdom, but in so doing he has lost his late campaign spell-binders in an awkward attitude—Birmingham News.

In this, as in most of his policies so far made public, McKinley has followed the course adopted by Cleveland. If Cleveland's policies were wise and productive of good to the people, McKinley's will be also; for barring the new tariff there has been no change in any particular, and the indications are that there will be none. Cleveland's policy pleased the very people that helped to elect McKinley, and while the Republican platform promised many changes it was known by the favored few that they would never be made. As the News points out above the Cuban policy of extreme conservatism, bordering on conservatism, remains the same; so also does the President's message indicate that the same lines will be pursued on the currency.

There will be the same bond issues, the same discrimination in the payment of demand obligations in gold, the same endless chain running into and out of the Treasury. The only difference will be the high-tariff protection of the manufacturer, which will increase the deficit begun by the previous administration. The result will be a continuation of the depression among the poorer and middle classes, and a consequent further proof of the unwise policy set in order by Cleveland and continued by McKinley. Condemn the one, and you must condemn the other; defend the one, and you must praise the other.

WHAT THEY WILL DO.

From two paragraphs published elsewhere from the Montgomery Advertiser may be gathered one or two thoughts of some interest. In the first is given the idea some of the Gold Democrats have of the figure they will cut in the coming campaign. As outlined by the speaker they are to go into the primaries and help their friends get nominations, but will not go into the Congressional primaries, knowing that the silver idea will prevail. His idea that Democrats are only bound by primaries they participate in has been advanced by the old-time independents, but was never accepted even by the then Gold Democrats who afterwards bolted. Every Democrat is bound by his party convention, whether he participates in the primaries or not, and if he does not expect to abide each and every convention in turn he is not entitled to participate in any. In fact he is not a Democrat if he refuses to abide the party action, this latter rule having long since been in force and upheld for years by those same people who are now without the party lines. There is no objection to any of these people participating in the party primaries, but they will be expected to "go the whole hog or none." Of course a man can vote for whom he pleases, but he can not be a State Democrat and a national something else. If this is the feeling of the Sound Money Democrats in this State they had best stay on the outside, where men with such ideas belong, or go into the Populist or Republican primaries, where they have a habit of loing as each one pleases.

The second paragraph referred to is really amusing. Of course General Harrison will not run for Governor this time or any other in the coming generation. He is not an idiot by any means, and he knows that with the brand of treason on his brow it will be much more congenial to hold on to his seat as railroad attorney than to offer himself a certain sacrifice to the reward awaiting all the unfaithful. It is much too early to be speaking of any first get back on the band wagon and listen awhile to the music.

A SPECIAL FROM WASHINGTON TO THE AGE-HERALD CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING:

H. C. Reynolds, of Monteville, president of the Girls' Industrial School, is here to push his grant for 25,000 acres of public lands for the benefit of his school. The bill, which failed at the last Congress, was introduced into the Senate yesterday by Senator Morgan and into the House by Mr. Plowman to-day. The history of this bill has been partially given our readers before. Mr. Aldrich had promised to push it through at the short session of the last Congress, and received some consideration at the hands of those who were interested in the school. He utterly failed to make good his promise, never making any effort to do so. There is opposition to the measure from a quarter which has some weight with the majority and Speaker Reed is opposed to it. It will pass the Senate again, but we are sorry to say we know of no cause for hoping it will pass the House until that body is Democratic. We hope to see it pass the next Congress, but it would be an agreeable surprise if it passes this one.

TWO ITEMS OF INTEREST

Straws Show which way the Wind Blows.

[Montgomery Advertiser.] It is not yet known what the Sound Money Democrats are going to do. One of the leaders was asked a day or so ago: "Are you going to let the primaries of the Bryan ticket go this year?" He answered: "I do not know. I have not yet decided what I shall do, but my inclination is to make no fight in the election, and gain the primaries to help my friends get the offices they are seeking. I do not feel that going in the primaries for State and county offices or participating in that election will bind me in the Congressional or Presidential election. I am in favor of separating the two. If I go in the State primaries I will bind myself to support the nominees of those primaries, and if I do not go to the Congressional primaries, as a matter of course, I am not bound by them. I am clearly of the opinion that in a general election a fair position by them, the only one that will be fair to the people, is to understand I believe all our people will go in the State primaries."

Apologues of this talk of going in the primaries there has been a great deal of gossip about running General George P. Harrison, of Opelika, for Governor. Inquiry of his most intimate friends has developed the information that the General does not care to enter the race and much prefers the pursuit of the practice of his profession, which he has found much more profitable than politics. It is not believed by them that under the present conditions the General could be induced to enter the race. Perhaps in 1900, with a united party, he may consent to enter the field, and there are many who think that an announcement of his candidacy will be almost equal to securing him the position. Certain it is that General Harrison does not care to go in next year, and it can be very safely said that he will not do so. Whether or not there will be any opposition to the present ticket next year remains yet to be determined.

It is easy to catch a cold and just as easy to get rid of it. If you commence early to use One Minute Cough Cure, it cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, pneumonia, and all throat and lung troubles. It is pleasant to take, safe to use, and sure to cure. J. E. Seale & Co.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. GIST.

THE ORDINATION OF MRS. BALLINGTON BOOTH.

If any woman in America has proved that she is worthy of ordination to the gospel ministry, that woman is Mrs. Ballington Booth. Such was evidently the opinion of all who were present at Carnegie Music Hall on Monday evening last, November 22, 1897. The great auditorium was thronged. Mrs. Booth was ordained by the Volunteers of America, according to their forms and with their special service, although representatives of other Christian bodies took part in the exercises. Ordaining prayers were made by Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong, of the Evangelical Alliance, and by Rev. Dr. Amory H. Bradford, of the First Congregational church, Montclair, N. J., while Rev. Dr. David Gregg wrote a letter in which he said that "Mrs. Booth's ordination was of the order of the Volunteers of America." The actual ordination service was that of the Volunteers of America, and was conducted by Commander Ballington Booth, assisted by Brigadier-General Fielding and Colonels Hallamond, Merrill, DeBarrett, and Gardner. Chauncey M. Depew acted as chairman of the meeting, and made an interesting speech, in which he said:

"Some people can be reached only by intense and devotional ceremonial, others by didactic sermons, and still others by noise. I have sympathy for the people who can be reached only by noise, for it takes a bass drum to stir the gray matter in some brains. I believe in uniforms. There is something about a uniform that lifts a man up and inspires him with self-respect. The Volunteers are doing a good work. I believe it is not only God's work, but the work of our country."

However the opinion generally held concerning the regularity or expediency of the ordination of women, we are persuaded that there will be little difference of opinion concerning the wisdom of the action which recognized Mrs. Booth as a worthy minister of our Lord Jesus Christ.—Outlook.

W. F. ALDRICH CALLED DOWN.

Gave too Much Patronage to Populists—His Contested Election Case Moved Up.

Special to the Age-Herald. Washington, Dec. 11.—It has just developed that at the request of Col. W. F. Aldrich, President McKinley, previous to his departure for Canton, advised W. F. Aldrich, who has been the official dispenser of patronage for the Fourth district, that his services were no longer required as such. This action was taken, it is said, because nearly all of Aldrich's appointments were Populists who voted for Bryan and Wallcut.

The date for the hearing of the contested election case of Aldrich vs. Plowman before the election committee has been changed from December 21 to December 17. WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Hon. Cecil Brown, of Talladega, who will act as counsel to Representative Plowman in the contested election case of Aldrich vs. Plowman, is in town, and District Attorney Vaughan has left his office in charge of an assistant and is expected to return today to represent his friend Aldrich before the election committee. Friday, both Aldrich and Plowman express confidence that the committee and the House will decide in their favor, but the majority of opinions among members of both parties seems to be that Plowman will be allowed to retain his seat. Mr. Aldrich denies that he has been removed as dispenser of patronage for the Fourth district, but would not say that Col. Youngblood had not advised his removal.

CASTORIA.

The Alabama Bryce Insane Hospital.

TUSCALOOSA, Dec. 7, 1897.

For a number of years we have been in the habit of making Christmas an occasion of enjoyment for our patients. They have learned to look forward to it with a great deal of interest. It is very pleasing to note how they appreciate remembrances from friends or relatives or from anybody in the outside world. A shut-in life is very tedious at best. When one is left out, in the largest or smallest way, from home, the omission is keenly felt. We again, therefore, send this notice to all interested in us, reminding them of the approaching occasion. Anything in the way of wearing apparel, money, books, pictures, illustrated papers, fruits, candies, confections, etc., would prove suitable. You know best the taste and wishes of your relative, friend or acquaintance anything specially sent will be distributed as directed. There is a large number, some most deserving, who have no homes and no friends to look to. Anything sent in a general way will find a cordial acceptance. Can you not call the attention of some other person, who will be interested, to this notice? Respectfully, J. T. SEARCY, M. D., Superintendent.

What is Scott's Emulsion?

It is a strengthening food and tonic, remarkable in its flesh-forming properties. It contains Cod-Liver Oil emulsified or partially digested, combined with the well-known and highly prized Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, so that their potency is materially increased.

What Will It Do?

It will arrest loss of flesh and restore to a normal condition the infant, the child and the adult. It will enrich the blood of the anemic; will stop the cough, heal the irritation of the throat and lungs, and cure incipient consumption. We make this statement because the experience of twenty-five years has proven it in tens of thousands of cases. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion, 50c. and $1.00, all druggists. Notice of Attachment.

Refers to the Will of John Caldwell, deceased. Circuit Court of Shelby County, Ala.

J. A. ACTON.
Whereas Rufus M. Deshazo, as executor of the will of John Caldwell, deceased, as plaintiff in said cause, has obtained an attachment out of this court, issued on the 24th day of November, 1897, against the estate of the said J. A. Acton, as defendant, which attachment has been levied on the following described real estate of the said defendant, to-wit: Part of the east half of the northwest quarter and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter and the west half of the northeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 18, and in township 11 range 2 west, situated in Jefferson County, Ala.; also by will of said attachment served on the said J. A. Acton, to answer as to indebtedness to the said J. A. Acton; and whereas it appears that the said J. A. Acton, defendant as aforesaid, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama and resides in the State of Texas, but whose particular place of residence is unknown to plaintiff; Now, therefore, the said J. A. Acton, where-ever he may reside, is hereby notified of said attachment and is hereby required to appear and answer the same on or before the 14th day of December, 1897.

Application to Sell Land.

STATE OF ALABAMA: Probate Court, 24th Shelby County. 1 day of November, 1897. Estate of Mary A. Cooper, deceased.
To Mary A. West, Minnie F. Cooper, Rabie A. Cooper, George B. Cooper, and Thompson H. Cooper, all of New Boston, Tex., and Garie E. Cooper, of Dolly Springs, Tex.:
This day came W. W. West, as executor of said estate, and filed his application in due form and under oath praying for an order of sale of certain lands and interests therein and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of paying debts and for distribution upon the ground that there is no person known to him and belonging to said estate, and that the said lands can not be equitably divided without a sale. It is ordered that the 10th day of January, 1898, be appointed a day for hearing said application, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same if they think proper.
D. R. McALLAN, Judge of Probate.

Notice to Nonresidents.

BROWNE & LEEPER v. Shelby County, Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co. (Plaintiffs vs. Defendants).
Whereas Browne & Leeper, as plaintiffs in said cause, has obtained an attachment out of this court, issued on the 22nd day of October, 1897, against the estate of the said Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co., as defendants, which attachment has been levied on the following described personal property of said defendants, to-wit: Twenty-five tons of pig iron, at Brimfield, Bibb County, Ala.; and whereas it appears that the said Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co., defendants as aforesaid, are nonresidents of the State of Alabama, and resides in the City of New York; Now, therefore, the said Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co., wherever they may reside, are hereby notified of said attachment and the levy thereof as aforesaid.
Witness my hand this 7th day of December, 1897.

Revival of Old Jewelry.
The old style jewelry is coming into fashion again. Women are haunting the old curio shops, trying to find the beautiful old cameos like those worn by their mothers and grandmothers years ago. The old-fashioned setting is rarely changed, the quaintly carved and twisted gold being considered extremely beautiful. The old brooches and rings are especially sought for, and bring remarkably prices when found.

Origin of "Blue Blood."
The origin of the term "blue blood" is most suggestive. After the black Moors were driven out of Spain the aristocracy of Spain was held to consist of those who traced their lineage back to the time before the Moorish conquest. These people were whiter than those who had been mixed with Moorish blood.

MADE FLOUR FOR TROOPS.

Old Mill in Cumberland Gap Which Did Service in the Civil War.

There is standing at Cumberland Gap, just across the State line from Middleboro, Ky., an historic old mill, which during the civil war ground the breadstuffs for thousands of Confederate and Federal soldiers.

The mill is located at the foot of the famous Pinnacle mountain on the south side. It has an overshot wheel of the old-fashioned kind about the same size and almost a duplicate of the noted waterwheel which attracts so much attention near the entrance to the Tennessee centennial. The mill was built by John Locke, who came from North Carolina about 1806. The stones which formed the foundation of the structure were hauled from the old north state at a cost of $150. Locke operated it successfully for many years, and after he had accumulated a small fortune he built a four mill just above it. He also erected a carding factory and an upright saw mill. All the machinery was run by the famous cave spring of the Pinnacle mountain, which gushes out of King Solomon's cave 300 feet above the level of the valley.

It comes from the mountain side a veritable torrent, foaming, hissing, seething, carrying huge boulders before it and cutting a channel through the everlasting rocks in its mad rush to the valley below. This torrent, according to the estimate of mechanical engineers, would furnish 100 horse power, and although old man Locke harnessed only a part of the turbulent stream to his wheels he secured sufficient power to operate the machinery for many years. At his death a few years prior to the war John C. Newby bought the plant and he owned it when the war broke out. He furnished the Confederacy with thousands of bushels of meal and hundreds of barrels of flour ground by these old mills, and when the Federal army took possession of the Gap the same burrs made breadstuffs for Uncle Sam's men. When the Confederates began storming the Gap prior to the Federal forces evacuating Gen. George Morgan ordered the mills to be fired, as he did not wish them to remain in operation and give succor to the Confederacy. Accordingly a squad of men was detailed to do the work. They had just set fire to the flouring mill when the Confederate batteries from the adjacent mountains opened fire on the Federal works. The squad lost no time in getting under cover, and as the wind blew the flames away from the corn mill it was saved. It has not been in operation for several years and may never grind again.

THE FARM AND GARDEN.

ITEMS OF INTEREST ON AGRICULTURAL TOPICS.

Buckwheat and Corn—Stunting Pigs Before Birth—Growing Beet Seed—The Eumelan Grape—Etc., Etc.

BUCKWHEAT AND CORN.

From my experience in growing buckwheat it is a bad crop to precede corn, as not only does the buckwheat come up thick as a weed, but the land seems unfavorably affected for the crop. If I were growing buckwheat, I would always seed if possible to clover with the buckwheat, and I would sow both crimson and common clover, so as to have two chances for a stand.—Waldo F. Brown.

STUNTING PIGS BEFORE BIRTH.

It is not so generally appreciated as it should be that the breeding sow while she is bearing her young needs just the kind of nutrition that the growing pig will require. Sows fed heavily on corn fatten, and bring thin, stunted pigs, with very little ability to care for themselves. Such pigs will never do so well as those whose dams were fed milk and wheat bran with some kind of roots while bearing their young. These will have good digestion and will grow rapidly, while the stunted pig will never fully recover from the improper nutrition it received before it was farrowed.

GROWING BEET SEED.

Beet seed is so easily grown that it is almost very cheap. Yet we believe in farmers growing their own beet seed, provided they will grow the best. It is not the beet that produces the most seed that is best for planting. If beets, or any other roots for that matter, are planted so early in spring that they grow tough and stringy roots, such roots will produce a great amount of seed, but it will produce if sown at any time plants that are like its parent. It is thus that roots degenerate into something like their original wild condition. A moderate-sized root grown quickly after mid-summer, and in very rich ground, will be tender and good until late in the spring. Such a root will not produce as much seed as a tough, stringy one, but its seed will bring much more satisfactory crops.

THE EUMELAN GRAPE.

Almost everybody at times becomes tired of the very musky grapes which are the principal varieties offered on the market. The old-fashioned Clinton grape, which was the product by cultivation of the wild frost grape, is entirely free from this objection. But the Clinton did not ripen until late, and was commonly allowed to hang until frost had blackened the grape leaves. To those who have grown and liked the Clinton grape, the Eumelan can be safely commended. It has a clear, sweet juice, is black in color, and ripens as early as the Delaware. It has a blue bloom, in this resembling the red grapes, from which it was originated. The only reason why it is not much more widely known is that it is difficult to propagate. The wood is very hard and will not root except in hot-houses where bottom heat can be applied. But we have frequently layered this variety to secure specimens to give to friends. Most of the nurseries now send grape vines so cheaply that it is not worth while to layer bearing vines, as it undoubtedly does injure the vine and delay ripening of the fruit to grow layers from it.—Boston Cultivator.

PEAR BLIGHT.

The following on treatment for pear blight is incorporated in the report of the New Jersey State Horticultural Society: First, aim to put the tree in a condition to render it the least liable to attack. This means to so manure and cultivate that the tree will not grow rapidly. Thus, the more a tree is fed the worse it will fare when attacked by the blight. Trees that are highly fertilized with nitrogenous manures are especially liable to blight. In short, overstimulation with manures is to be avoided. Good tillage in the same way, while it makes a tree bear, also tends to increase the susceptibility to blight. Anything that retards the growth is beneficial so far as the disease is concerned. The orchardist must stimulate by manures and cultivate sufficiently to give a good crop and shun that which will do more. Soil and situation will determine largely whether soil or cultivated may be best to resist the blight.

The second method is the extermination of the blight germs, which seems to be the only direct remedy. This is done by cutting out and burning all blighted portions of the trees. Every tree of the pome family, including the apple, pear, quince, crab, mountain ash, service berry and hawthorn, should be treated in the same manner. Particular attention should be paid to the active blight of late autumn, cutting it out and burning the branches before spring arrives. It is important to cut out the blight whenever seen, but all should be removed before the next growing season begins.

To put the treatment in small compass, all blight should be removed as soon as seen while the trees are growing. A thorough inspection needs to be made in the late fall for any branches showing blight. After these are cut out a sharp outlook should be kept for the disease in the orchard the next spring. In connection with pruning and burning the trees should not be stimulated beyond what is required for a fair growth of wood and the production of a profitable crop.

THE PURSLANE TREE.

We have heard farmers who wished to be very emphatic without being profane in condemning something declare "it was madder than pusley," or purslane, which is indeed a nuisance in cultivated fields. How would they like the purslane tree, which belongs to the same family as our well-known weed and the familiar flower portulaca, but which grows to the height of ten or twelve feet, with a trunk one foot in diameter? They have it in New South Wales, in the botanical gardens, and the Agricultural Gazette is quite enthusiastic over it as a fodder plant for the arid regions, or great Australian desert, where other plants will not thrive, and recommends its trial for the following reasons:

It may be readily propagated, rooting readily from cuttings, and even from solitary leaves, during the greater part of the year. It has no thorns or prickles, nor any objectionable characteristics that I know of. Like many succulents, it attains its greatest luxuriance in hot, dry weather. Stock are fond of it, its succulent leaves providing both food and water for them; it is reputed to be moderately nutritious.

If it develops as many seeds as the common garden purslane, and is as ready to spread not only in hot, dry soil, but into all other, and is as difficult to exterminate, we fancy they will find those characteristics very objectionable, and they will wish it had been left in its native land of South Africa. The rapid spread of such weeds as the thistle and the daisy, introduced from foreign countries, makes us a little shy of such experiments even though the new plant may have much to recommend it in certain localities.

And the experience of Massachusetts with the gypsy moth and other sections with the San Jose scale leads us to urge caution upon the botanical gardens and experiment stations against introducing anything which may prove an addition to our already long list of weed and insect pests.—American Cultivator.

AMMONIA IN PLANT CULTURE.

While the ordinary kerosene emulsion and solution of copper have proved an immense boon to the cultivation of fruits and trees in the open air, Meehan's Monthly is authority for the statement that they are usually objectionable to the small amateur flower grower, to whom something clean and easily applied to small plants is a greater advantage. For these the various insecticides and fungicides for sale by the florists offer some good recommendation. Where these are not to be had it is said that a wash of ammonia is effective. As the ammonia bottle is now one of the supplies of every well-ordered household it may be put into use readily. All these articles, however, require some little care in their first application. One should always try a little at first on some plants that are of no considerable value before risking them on a wholesale way. For instance, the scale on orange leaves and the leaves of oleanders, or the leaves of some similar plant affected with any kind of insect, can be tried first. If no injury follows, then it may be applied on a somewhat more extensive scale. A few plants and a brush to paint with, a considerable quantity can be gone over in a short time.

FARM AND GARDEN NOTES.

Wear an ill-fitting collar, and then imagine how the horse likes to wear one.
Cabbage may remain out without danger of injury from frost after beets, carrots and turnips should be stored for the winter.
If you want horse radish to use before the frost is out of the ground in the spring, dig it and pack away in sand or soil where it will not freeze.
If you have bean poles standing in the ground pull them up and store somewhere under shelter. If they are worth using they are worth caring for.

It is said that the hydrangea, when grown out of doors, presents a decided tendency to give blue flowers instead of the pinkish-purple-white usually found on it.

An Eastern gardener pulls up the poles that have any beans on them when frost comes, and puts them away, vines and all, where frost cannot get them, and in this way is able to keep the beans fresh for some time.

Roots will keep nice and crisp till late in the spring if pitted. Those intended for use by the family through the winter may be put in barrels or boxes. Pack them as closely as possible and fill all the spaces with fine sand or earth.

A new gladiolus, recently exhibited by J. L. Childs, is Canary Bird, and is reported to be the best yellow sort yet obtained. It is very slightly tinged with red deep down in the throat, where it is hardly recognizable. The flowers are of excellent size, also.

Even the wild flowers are subject to curious variations brought about by hybridization. A plant of Lobelia cardinalis—a plant famous for its intense red—was recently found at Wynne-wood, Pa., which had pale pink bloom. Pure white flower spikes have sometimes been found.

No two flocks can be fed alike, and no two feeders can feed alike. Because our way of feeding gives us success, it is no guarantee that it will give our neighbor success. Every little detail counts for much. After all, it is not so much the food as it is the whole method of handling.

The ornamental varieties of asparagus need an abundance of nutriment while making their growth after such a period, which may be two months or more, the plants should be repotted in very rich soil; then, as they are growing, supply well with water and once or twice a week give liquid manure.

London purple is set down upon by Professor Stedman as follows: "I would not advise any one to use London purple, for the reason that it is the refuse of different dye stuffs, and its character varies. If you use it this year and are successful, and try it again next year, you might ruin your trees, because you might get it of different strength."

No Pity For Pirates in China.

They make short work of pirates in China. In July last a vessel in charge of Chung Kwei, the son of a wealthy merchant of Singapore, while on its way to Canton, was seized and run aground by pirates and looted of its full cargo of silks and money. The Canton authorities immediately sent a gunboat down the river, and the pirates, twenty in number, were captured. They were taken in triumph to San Ling, near Canton, and were condemned by a military tribunal and beheaded in the course of a few hours.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR DECEMBER 19.

Lesson Text: "John's Message About Sin and Salvation." I John 1, 5 to 11, 6—Golden Text: I John 1, 9—Lesson Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

5. "This then is the message which we have heard of Him and declare unto you, that God is light and in Him is no darkness at all." John wrote his gospel that we might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and believing have life in Him (John xx, 31). He wrote this epistle that we who believe might know that we have eternal life, be full of joy and not sin (Chapters 1, 18; 4, 1; 1, 1). Knowing Jesus personally, having heard and seen and looked upon and handled Him, he declares Him as the Word of Life, that we, too, may not follow Him to have eternal life.

6. "If we say that we have fellowship with Him and walk in darkness, we lie and do not love Him, and the Father will not cleanse us from all sin." Light shines, discover, deny, deny, for light is of God. Not only did Jesus Christ say, "I am the light of the world," but He also said to His own, "Ye are the light of the world; let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Math v, 14, 16). If we walk with God, we cannot but walk in the light, but walking with God implies at least two things—viz., humility, such as is not natural to us, and perfect agreement with God about everything (Eph v, 8; margin: Amos ix, 9).

7. "But if we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." There are those who conclude from the previous verse that all sin, root and branch, is removed from their beings, but such a thought is contrary to the teaching of Scripture, and surely the Holy Spirit in placing the statement of this verse just where He does is to correct any such false teaching. While we are in these mortal bodies the flesh or old nature remains in us and lusteth against the Spirit, but the Spirit is also in us as children of God by faith in Christ Jesus and keeps us from the things which otherwise we might do (Gal. v, 17, R. V.).

8. "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." While in the mortal body always delivered as we do for Jesus sake—i.e., the death of the flesh or sinful nature (I Cor. ii, 11), if we sin against God, as all are liable to do, here is our comfort, that instant confession of sin brings instant forgiveness through the blood of Christ, and then we must go on more watchfully and prayerfully.

9. "If we say that we have not sinned, we make Him a liar, and His word is not in us." John is writing to those who are children of God by faith in Christ Jesus, for only such have received Christ as their Lord (John i, 12). Others are children of the devil even though they may be very religious, according to our Lord in John viii, 44.

10. "My little children, these things write unto you that ye sin not, and if any man sin we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous." Our message orders day by day are to sin not, but we are redeemed by the blood of Christ, that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit (Rom. viii, 4). Surely God has made full provision for us to live this life which He would have us live to His glory by our advocate or paraclete with Him, Jesus Christ the righteous, and by our paraclete, the Holy Spirit; yet so weak are we and often so unwatchful that notwithstanding the abundant provision we grieve both Father, Son and Spirit.

11. "And He is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." Propitiation here signifies atonement, reconciliation, sacrifice, and that provided by God through Christ is sufficient for all the world. There is no forgiveness of sins apart from Him and His great work, but in and through Him there is sufficient for all who will accept Him, even for every soul on earth if they will come. How shall they come if they do not hear? We do know that we know Him if we keep His commandments." Not faultless conformity, for there is none such on earth, nor ever was, except in Christ, but a hearty acceptance of and willing submission to His whole revealed will. He Himself said, "He that hath My commandments and keepeth them shall not sin." (John vi, 12).

12. "But who keepeth His word, in him verily is the love of God perfected, whereby he knoweth that he abideth in Him." When we receive letters from those whom we love, we treasure them and read them many times, and live on them. A message from a loved one is a treasure to us, and we would not indicate much love to the writer. How, then, can those who love to love God, who are not for His word?

13. "He that loveth his abode in Him, ought himself also to walk, even as He walked." He said that, "The Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father." But also said of a letter, "Father has sent Me, so send I you," and "He that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me" (John vi, 57; 21). Now He is here wholly for God, and we are to love Him, and we are to love God, always pleasing God. "There is no other way for us, and we must be willing to renounce self, deny self, die daily unto self that His life may be made manifest in us, or else prove ourselves unworthy of His name, and less than helpers."

SWEET CHRISTMAS TIME.

The good old man will plot and plan
Like any great commander,
Or swim deep seas—the young to please—
As did the brave Leander.
Not a pack of jumping-jacks
Adorn his ample shoulders,
But hats and boots and stylish suits
Astonish all beholders.
O Christmas bells, your music tells A tale of joy and gladness—
Of festive peace, of sweet increase—
And not a tale of sadness;
For even Poverty lifts up
Her thousand, thousand voices,
And for this time, this one bright time
Of goodly cheer, rejoice!

SMALL PERTATERS' CHRISTMAS PARTY.

By MARGARET EYTINGE.

It was about nine o'clock on Christmas Eve. Small Pertaters was standing on one leg, with the other twisted around it, looking into one of the windows of Purcell's large bakery. He could smell the mince pies, that, fresh from the oven a short time before, had just been placed in it.
"They smell bully good," he said, giving a great sniff. "I wished I had one."
But he might as well, poor little fellow, have wished for the moon (he would have stood as good a chance of getting it), for not one cent was there, either in the ragged pockets of his ragged trousers, or the ragged pockets of his ragged coat. (This coat had once been the spring overcoat of some one twice as big as Small Pertaters, and it was worn to a fringe all around the bottom from trailing on the ground.)
"I'd rather," said Small Pertaters, "have one of them nor any thin' else. They're meat an' vegetables an' candy an' cake all to wunst, they is. An' how brown their kivers is. I never seen sich werry brown kivers on a pie afore."
At this moment a gentleman and a lovely fair-haired little girl, followed by a small white dog, went into the shop, stayed there a short time, and coming out again, hastened up the avenue. Small Pertaters gazed after them.
"Her hair was jist like shiny gold," he said. "S'pect she has mince pie every day of her life. But it's no use me standin' here. It makes me hunger an' hunger lookin' at them pies. I'll go home an' eat my supper; an' I tain't every boy what's got a soup-bone, with a lot of marrer in it an' a hunk of gristle an' meat a-hangin' to it, an' a fresh biscuit, an' a cole biled pertater, in his coat tail pocket."
And, turning quickly from the window, he spied the small white dog which had been following the gentleman and the golden haired child sniffing at the same coat-tail pocket.
"Jimmy Jinks!" said Small Pertaters; "if that hog of a dog ain't a-tryin' to look my bone. An' I s'pect he has more soup bones nor what he knows what to do with where he lives, for he's a nobby dog, he is. Git out, you swell pup."
And the "swell pup," starting to get out, discovered that he had lost his master and mistress, and ran to and fro, with nose to the snow-covered pavement, eagerly seeking a trail of them, for five or ten minutes. Then, giving up in despair, he seated himself before the boy, who stood watching him, and shaking his muddy little paws, looked up into his face in the most beseeching manner.
"It's too bad," said Small Pertaters, patting his head with a very dirty hand. "Guess they must have got on to a car, ole feller; an' the best thing you kin do is to come home with me, an' we'll look for 'em to-morrer."

"THEY SMELL BULLY GOOD," HE SAID.

And, as though he understood his new friend perfectly, the dog trotted after him as he went a few blocks down the avenue, and turned, first into Thirteenth street, and then into Gansevoort street. Here the boy strode quickly along, whistling cheerily, his hands in what was left of his trousers pockets, until he stumbled over something that was lying on the sidewalk. Stopping to see what it was, he found a brown hen, with her legs sticking up straight and stiff.
"It's got shut out of its lodgin's," said he, "an' it's froze. But p'r'ps tain't a hull goner. I'll git it loose an' take it home with me, anyhow."
So he searched about until he found a stone, with which he broke the ice around the hen, and, setting it free, with the loss of a few feathers, he went on again, carrying it with him, the dog still following. But he had only gone a block farther, when he heard a pitiful mewing come from an ash-barrel that stood before a tenement house, and, peeping in, he saw a black and white kitten sitting on the ashes.

"Pears to me I'm bound to have a parter to-night," said Small Pertaters. "Here's another young friend a-waitin' to come home with me. All right, pussy; here goes." And he lifted her out of the barrel, and stowed her away inside of his big coat. "There's nothin' mean 'bout me, 'specially round Christmas times."
And in another minute or two he and his three guests had arrived at the end of the street, and the end of their journey. They had reached Small Pertaters' home—"sweet, sweet home," indeed, in one sense of the word; for what do you think it was? An old molasses cask lying upon its side on the wharf, near the river. Getting down on his hands and knees, Small Pertaters, by the aid of a street lamp that stood near by, took a survey of the inside of the cask, and finding no intruder there, crawled in, laid down the hen and kitten, and then went back for the dog, who lingered at the entrance.
"Come in, ole feller," said he coaxingly.
But the dog suddenly turned tail,

"MERRY CHRISTMAS, SMALL PERTATERS."

and was making off, when Small Pertaters sprang out and flourished the bone before his nose. The temptation was too much. Master Dog joined the party in the molasses cask; and, when the supper was served, Small Pertaters gave him the larger part of the meat and gristle, and, spreading the marrow as well as he could—for it was hard and cold—on the biscuit, he fed half of it to the kitten, keeping the other half and the cold potato for himself. As for the hen, she lay on her back as stiff as ever.
"Guess she must be froze all through," said Small Pertaters; and then, with a sigh, he murmured: "I ain't so werry full as I might be. Wished—I tain't had—one—of—them—mince—an'—fat—fast asleep, the cat and dog snuggled up, one each side of him.
Bright and early Christmas morning a gentleman and a lovely little girl called upon the owner of the bakery into the window of which Small Pertaters had been looking the night before.
"Did you see anything of a little white dog, after we left your shop last night?" they both asked, in the same breath.
"No; I did not, I am sorry to say," was the answer.
The tears started to the child's eyes.
"Don't cry, dear," said her papa. "We haven't half looked for him yet. We'll find the policeman who was on this beat at the time we lost him, and very likely he can tell us something about him. If he can't, I'll advertise in all the papers to-morrow."
But, fortunately, the policeman, whom they soon found, remembered seeing a small white dog trotting after a boy, between 9 and 10 o'clock the night before.
"The boy was Small Pertaters," he said, "and that's the reason I didn't ask anything about the dog. He's an honest, good-hearted little chap, though he is a regular street-boy, with no friends except such as he makes in the street. They call him 'Small Pertaters' 'cause he's no bigger than a boy of 6 or 7, though he must be 9 or 10. But, small as he is, he can beat and boy I ever saw at climbing and jumping. And, as I was saying, when I saw the dog with him I didn't give it a second thought."
"Where does he live?" asked the child, eagerly.
"Most anywhere, I guess, Miss," answered the policeman. "He ain't got no reglar home."

struggling hen hugged close to his breast. And after they reached the gentleman's house it wasn't long before the unexpected visitor had had a warm bath and a warm breakfast, and only a little longer before he found himself dressed in new clothes from head to foot.
And the next day a bright-faced, neat-looking lad tackled a paper, on which was printed the words "To Let," on the big molasses cask that lay on the wharf, and then, stepping backward a few steps, he made a flying leap over it, and ran away from his old street life forever.
Leather Unlucky at Christmas.
Christmas being the period in which gifts are numerous it seems rather curious that it should be thought unlucky to bring shoes or leather articles into the house at this period, but such things are forbidden in an English county. In another it is counted unlucky to bring any holly into the house before Christmas Eve, and in London it must all be burned on Twelfth Day morning.

IT LETS THE CAT OUT.

LONDON TIMES SHOWS INDIA'S SECRET.

A Gold Standard Without Gold Helps Competition with a Country That Has Both—But for Famine There Our Farmers Would Be in Dreadful Distress.

Speaking of the inability of the English government to join in a movement for the restoration of bimetalism, the London Times says:

"In a long state paper the Indian government puts forth the reasons for its reluctance, and avers that the India currency experiment has reached a point when it will become a phenomenal success. An exchange rate of 14 4d per rupee has already been touched, and will soon be permanently established; the rupee will cease to fluctuate and the desideratum, a gold standard without gold, will appear. The Indian government goes further, and alleges that the reopening of its mints with France and the United States at a bimetallic rate of 15 1/2 to 1 would be ruin to India, since a 2s rupee would kill exports and render our dependency unable to compete with the markets of the world."

We wish that every gold standard man in America might read and ponder over the statements contained in that brief extract.

The East Indian silver rupee, we are told, is now practically at about 16 pence, and that the "great desideratum, a gold standard without gold," is near at hand in that country. No matter if the people are starving by millions—no matter if they are struggling in the toils of a money famine as well as a food famine—so long as they have the gold standard they are all right.

But hold on a moment. "A gold standard without gold"—how can that be? Have we not been told ten million times that gold is the true standard, because its value is intrinsic? What becomes of the "intrinsic value" idea in the presence of a gold-standard without gold?

What does a "gold standard without gold" mean? What is it, anyway? Of course, we know what it means. It is simply that the rupee has become stationary at about 16 pence in gold.

But what has made it so? If it be a fact, which we doubt, it is simply the result of closing the Indian mint to the coinage of rupees.

They are not redeemable in gold, and even if they were nominally there is no gold for the purpose. Their value has gone up as a result of their scarcity, that is all, and this scarcity is the result of an arbitrary official act—in short, law. But the gold men insist that the law is powerless to affect value. It therefore behooves them to explain the anomalous position of the rupee.

But we are informed that the rupee has touched 16 pence, and will soon be permanently established. But suppose it continues to get scarcer and scarcer; what assurance have we that it will not rise above 16 pence, and thus destroy the gold standard upon the basis of a 16-penny silver rupee?

Why, they answer, the East Indian government will pay out rupees at 16 pence in exchange for gold. In other words, that government will keep the rupee down below its normal commercial value by selling it for less.

Great financiering that would be for a government heavily in debt. But suppose it should do so preposterous a thing. It would be flying into the teeth of another pet theory of the goldite, that the value of silver is purely "commercial."

It is said that a "dear" rupee will ruin the export trade of India. If a "dear" rupee will ruin the export trade of that country, it follows inexorably that a "cheap" rupee must foster and stimulate it. This is exactly what the silver men in the United States have steadily claimed and what the gold men have just as steadily denied.

Upon this point we will now simply remind our gold idolaters that the "export trade" referred to is one that has been built up very largely at the expense of gold standard countries, and particularly at the expense of the United States.

It is a rather late day, though, for the government of that country to begin to whimper about its export trade. As has been sufficiently shown in other articles, by the closing of the Indian mint, which forced the rupee artificially above the level of the coins of other silver-using countries, the export trade of India to those countries received a terrible blow.

In fact, it was almost ruined. In trade with China, Japan, the Straits and other silver countries India is now at a great disadvantage, by reason of the rising value of the rupee. But as that rupee is still away below par in gold, which is 24 pence, she has a corresponding advantage in trade with gold standard countries. Still, upon the whole, the government of India plants itself upon narrow ground.

The restoration of the par value of the rupee would, it is true, deprive that country of a bounty on exports to those doing business upon a gold basis. But this bounty is already lessened by the rise of the rupee, and the more it rises the smaller the bounty becomes.

On the other hand, though, it would deprive silver-using countries of a like bounty over her, so that as a matter of commerce it is doubtful if India would lose anything.

It is to be gravely feared that the money-lender has got in his deadly work on the government of that country.

SHUT A DEFICIT.

The Dingley tariff for deficit keeps right on in its merry work, and the returns for October leave a neat little balance of about $10,000,000 on the wrong side of the ledger. An analysis of the receipts and expenditures of the United States shows that the total receipts for the month of October were $24,391,415, and the expenditures $33,701,512, making the excess of expenditures over receipts for the month $9,310,097, and for the four months of the present fiscal year $38,009,010. The receipts for customs during October amounted to $9,713,494, as compared with $11,105,493 for October, 1896, and the receipts from internal revenue sources $13,514,872, a gain of $251,716 over October last year. For a measure which was passed with the avowed purpose of furnishing sufficient revenue to meet the expenses of the government, the Dingley tariff is certainly falling far behind the expectations of its promoters, and unless some unexpected change for the better takes place, the contingency anticipated by Senator Aldrich will face the Republic in aid. This contingency will be the settled fact of a deficiency of revenue, chargeable to republican legislation, which will result in the downfall of the party responsible.—Chicago Dispatch.

DEMOCRATIC SHOTS.

Ipava Independent: "The gold circulation of the United States is fifty million dollars more than it was a year ago, and the total increase is nearly a million. There will be no bond issues to protect the gold reserve during this administration."

The gold circulation of the United States is nothing of the sort. There is no more gold in circulation now than there was three years ago. Gold will not circulate. If put in circulation it soon finds its way into the banks, where it remains idle only as a "reserve." Gold is not the money of the common people of this country, and never was. Silver and paper currency is the money of trade and commerce in this country, and will continue to remain so.

Exchange: "The treasury department estimates that the population of the United States is increasing 2,000,000 a year."

With an increase of 2,000,000 in population annually the volume of money should be increased to keep pace with it. Bank checks and bank credits will not do all the work, but they will help. An increase of $40,000,000 annually in the money volume would be about the thing.

"I am well pleased with the result of the election," is the remark credited to President McKinley the day after the Ohio slump. No man has stronger reason than President McKinley to be pleased with the Ohio result. If it shall turn out that Boss Hanna has been overthrown and defeated for senator the president will have cause for pious joy. When McKinley became indebted to Hanna for his nomination and election he hung a millstone about his neck. The overthrow of Hanna's power and the snapping of the bonds he has twined around the administration would be the best thing that could happen to President McKinley. The continuation of Hanna's mastership will be his destruction.

In suggesting the mounting of Gatling guns at the approaches of the new Chicago postoffice building, or making provisions for mounting them, General Nelson A. Miles displays what may be called an un-American disposition and makes it evident that he has been unduly affected by what he has seen of militarism in Europe. The general seems to have been deeply impressed by the sight of this great display of force, of fortifications, soldiers and arms, and to have come home with the idea that this display is proper and necessary in our country. In that particular he is mistaken. He has allowed his imagination to become distorted by the pomp and circumstance of war.

It is of no consequence that the voice of the auctioneer could not be heard at the Union Pacific sale. The $58,065,748.40 talks loudly. There would have been larger and louder figures if other bidders had not been shut out by the administration.

Bond Issue in the Near Future.

St. Louis Republic: At the present monthly rate of excess of expenditures over receipts, it is evident that the treasury deficit before the end of the year will be so heavy that some unusual means will have to be adopted to meet the requirements. Only one of two ways is open. Senator Allison has pointed out one of them. This is to take from the appropriations for river and harbor improvement and coast defenses a sufficient sum to balance the deficit. It is hardly probable that the administration would care to establish so unpopular a precedent. The only other recourse is a bond issue. That it will be taken there is scarcely any room for doubt.

Unpopularity of the Mugwump.

New York Journal: Experience enables us at least to appreciate the popular sentiment of Athens when Aristides was banished because the people got tired of hearing him called "the just." Aristides was the great mugwump of his time. Common people do not like the holler-than-thou attitude. They will not vote for the man who stands in the market place and thanks God that he is not as other men are. After awhile their sympathies go to the publican, and they put his name on their ticket in preference to that of the pharisee.

It is not always wise to tell all one knows, but it is well to know all one tells.

ALABAMA NEWS ITEMS.

Happenings of a Week Throughout Our Commonwealth.

Oakman's Election.

The municipal election took place Monday and T. W. Sardin was elected mayor over W. W. Worthington, by 21 votes.

Reported Killing.

A report has reached Montgomery that William Hall, overseer, shot Bolling Holt across the river Saturday. Both are white.

Large Assignment.

J. H. Martin, a merchant of Harpersville, has made an assignment. His assets are placed at $60,000 and his liabilities at $30,000.

A Uniformed Burglar.

At the instigation of Night Captain Weir, of the Birmingham police force, Officer Thomas Rollo has been arrested, charged with burglary and grand larceny.

Joseph A. Brinsley, formerly a clerk in the postoffice at Opelika, was convicted at Montgomery of embezzlement. It was shown that he abstracted money from letters passing through the office.

Taken by Force.

The body of Joseph Lake, shipped to Heflin, from Butte, Mont., was held at the former place for transportation charges. The family of the deceased finally took the remains by force and later on arranged matters.

Prosperous Baldwin.

Prominent people are buying land in Baldwin county. Judge Tuttle, of Chicago, who presided at the Lutegert trial and Opie P. Reed, the humorist, have purchased farms near Loxley. They will build shortly.

Seized by Revenue Officers.

H. LeGrand, tinner and hardware dealer at Athens, had his entire stock seized by United States revenue officers this week. He has been making worms for "wild cats" and other distilleries without license. The entire proceeds, it is thought, will scarcely pay the enormous license, penalty and costs.

Arrested for Embezzlement.

Albert Grimble, the well known white mail carrier of Montgomery, has been arrested, charged with embezzlement. Of late a suspiciously large number of letters and packages have been lost on Grimble's route, and Postmaster Buckley reported the fact. Inspectors Rosson and Barney were put to work on the case and decoy letters did the work.

Three Killed and Many Injured.

Late Saturday afternoon the boiler of the pole-road engine of the Bar Creek Mill company, in Monroe county, exploded, killing Jack Clipper, Monroe Sullivan and an unknown man and wounding fourteen others, one of whom has since died.

The cause of the explosion cannot be definitely determined, but it is supposed the water became low in the boiler.

A Rich Haul.

One of the richest hauls ever made by revenue officers in Madison county was made last week by Deputy collector John L. Logwood, Deputy United States Marshals Lanier and McIntire and two special deputies. Three large stills, 18,000 gallons of beer and many other things going to complete distilling outfits were captured and destroyed near Plevne, twenty miles north of Huntsville.

Will Talk Quarantine.

A conference was held at Mobile at the call of Gov. Johnston looking to the holding of a quarantine convention of South Atlantic and Gulf states, for the better protection of the people from the invasion of disease and from the spread of the same. The meeting was suggested by State Health Officer Saunders, and was attended by representatives of several states. Representation was fixed at five members, appointed by the governor of each state, one delegate from each municipality and one from each railway system and water transportation company in the states are to be invited. They will meet in the near future and ask congress to hold off legislation until the question can be discussed.

Preparing for the Agricultural Convention.

Major Culver, commissioner of agriculture, is devoting a good deal of his time to the success of the state convention of farmers, which is to assemble at Montgomery during next month. The commissioner feels very confident that the assembly can be a great service to those who attend, as well as to the farming interests of the state generally. He believes it will have a material effect in reducing the cotton acreage of the state. He expects that at the meeting a farmers' state association will be organized, which will ramify into branch county and neighborhood associations, and in this way all of the farmers will be reached.

For Sensible Farming.

The farmers in Dallas county have never been so busy in the winter months as now. The largest oat crop in years has been sown and is up and looking splendidly. Some of the farmers on the stiff lands are making preparations to get in the best possible shape in the spring a large corn crop. There is evidently a determination on the part of the farmers of Dallas to make the cotton crop of next year altogether of secondary consideration and the spirit is rapidly spreading over this section of the South.

SPANIARDS ANGRY.

Generals Engineering a Protest Against the President's Message.

A special from Biarree, France, says: Mail advices received from Madrid (telegrams and telephone messages on this subject being forbidden) say the Spanish military journals, especially the most important, the Correspondencia Militar, declare that twenty generals have come to an agreement to engineer a protest against President McKinley's message to congress, which is considered insulting to the Spanish army. It is added that a certain marshal was asked to co-operate, but merely replied that he would consider the matter. General Weyler answered a similar request, saying he desired in the first place to learn the opinion of certain personages, the law not allowing military men to send a collective petition to the minister for war.

Political circles are much excited at rumors of a manifesto to the country, which is said to be in course of preparation.

GEORGIA LEGISLATURE.

Resume of Work Done by That Body During the Past Session.

The state legislature expired by limitation at midnight Thursday. The principal business during the session was to provide a new penal system to take the place of the old lease system.

While convicts will still be hired out under the new system, it looks ultimately to the entire breaking up of hiring convicts to civilians and to their employment by the state.

The passage of a resolution calling upon senators and congressmen to support an amendment making United States senators elective by the people at large was the principal expression in national issues.

The legislature also declared in favor of a national quarantine.

The anti-football bill was passed by the legislature, but fell through under gubernatorial veto.

Very little active legislation reached a final passage.

JAPAN'S HAWAIIAN POLICY.

No Objection to Annexation, But Will Protect Japanese Interests.

The steamer Doric, which arrived at San Francisco from Japan Friday morning, brought the following news:

It is reported that as the cabinet found that the absolute protest against Hawaiian annexation was of no avail, it concluded that it would be advisable to yield a point, and, while not objecting to annexation itself, to make an effort to insure the protection of Japanese interests. The United States government will be asked to guarantee that the annexation of Hawaii shall not interfere with the advantage hitherto possessed by Japan in the islands. This will constitute the scope of Japan's policy, even should congress approve of annexation.

FOUR MURDERED IN ARKANSAS.

An Aged Farmer, His Wife and Two Sons Killed by Robbers.

A special from Russellville, Ark., gives details of a terrible murder near Clinton, in Van Buren county. An aged farmer named Patterson lived on Culpepper mountain. With him lived his wife and six sons, one of whom was married and had a small family. While the entire household was seated at the supper table two white men, wearing masks and heavily armed, suddenly sprang into the dining room and leveling their weapons at the heads of the assembled family, commanded them to remain quiet and commenced shooting, when a general fight ensued. When the desperate battle ended, it was found that the old farmer, his wife and two of the sons had been killed. Robbery was the intent of the murderers.

Big Gain in Exports and Imports.

The exports of domestic merchandise during November last amounted to $114,608,301, a gain of nearly $7,000,000, as compared with November, 1896.

The imports of merchandise were $52,352,331, of which over 50 per cent was free of duty. The gain for the month in the imports of dutiable merchandise was over $5,300,000.

The exports of silver during November amounted to $4,979,277, and the imports $1,544,305. For the nine months the exports of silver amounted to $52,551,963 and the imports $11,017,012.

ALABAMA'S PRIDE.

The Girls' Industrial School at Montevallo Doing a Great Work.

The Girls' Industrial School at Montevallo, under the guidance of Capt. H. C. Reynolds, is doing the greatest work of any school in the South. Pupils in the dress-making department are actually making money, besides carrying on their studies. Over 325 pupils are enrolled and there is still room for a few more. We learn fifty-eight dollars pays all expenses from the 1st of January. This is one of the few state institutions where the people get the direct benefit from appropriations. The rich, the poor, the high and the low, all patronize it and are satisfied. Captain Reynolds has just returned from Washington, where he has been for some time working in the interest of a land appropriation for the school.

Dollar and a Half Wheat.

At Chicago, Geo. B. French, the recognized agent of the Leiter interest in wheat, says in regard to the wheat situation: "I will say that I think that speculators are watching the local conditions and entirely ignoring the legitimate position. As soon as the deficiency of supplies and the urgency of the demand becomes more apparent, I will not be a bit surprised to see May wheat at $1.50."

CHRISTMAS WEDDINGS

Marriages in the Holiday Season.

DOUGLASS-ANDERSON.

Married at the residence of J. L. Anderson, Esq., who lives near Cresswell, on the 15th instant, Mr. Geo. M. Douglass to Miss Virginia Anderson, Rev. W. L. Sinnott officiating. Both parties are well known in their community, and received many congratulations on the happy occasion.

RICHARDSON PAGE.

Married at the residence of the bride's father on December 16, Mr. Walter W. Richardson to Miss Addie Page, Rev. W. L. Sinnott performing the marriage rites. The groom is a well-known young man of this vicinity, and the bride is the daughter of Mr. J. H. Page, one of Columbiana's successful business men. Quite a number of friends witnessed the nuptials, and also attended a pleasant reception the next day at the home of the groom's father.

How to Cure Eilious Colic.

I suffered for weeks with colic and pains in my stomach caused by biliousness and had to take medicine all the time until I used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which cured me. I have since recommended it to a good many people. Mrs. E. BURRILL, Fairhaven, Conn. Persons who are afflicted with bilious colic can ward off the attack by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms appear. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co.

To Subscribers.

As there will be no paper published next week, we take occasion to again call attention to our determination to place all subscriptions on a cash basis after January 1. If any do not get their paper week after next they may know that their time has expired, and in future this will be our policy. We shall regret to lose any subscribers, but no newspaper can be run successfully otherwise, and with an established rule it will work no hardship on any. You will have two weeks within which to hand in your renewals, and we hope to have them. If you haven't the money we are in the market for eatables, and if you can't pay a year ahead you can pay six months or three.

The 3-year-old boy of J. A. Johnson.

of Lynn Center, Ill., is subject to attacks of croup. Mr. Johnson says he is satisfied that the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, during a severe attack, saved his little 3-year-old boy. He is in the drug business, a member of the firm of Johnson Bros., of that place, and they handle a great many patent medicines for throat and lung diseases. He had all these to choose from, and skilled physicians ready to respond to his call, but selected this remedy for use in his own family at a time when his child's life was in danger, because he knew it to be superior to any other, and famous the country over for its cure of croup. Mr. Johnson says this is the best selling cough medicine they handle, and that it gives splendid satisfaction in all cases. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co.

Mr. Gordon DuBose, the gnat banker of our city.

attended the convention of Southern bankers at Atlanta last week. He reports a pleasant time and an interesting session. While the attendance was rather slim and principally from Georgia, Mr. DuBose thinks the action of the convention voices the sentiment of most of the bankers of the South. Mr. DuBose, we note from the press reports of the meeting, gave expression of his views to the assemblage and took a lively interest in the meeting.

"The worst cold I ever had in my life."

was cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes W. H. Norton, of Sater Creek, Cal. "This cold left me with a cough and I was coughing all the time. The Remedy cured me, and I want all of my friends when troubled with a cold or cough to use it, for it will do them good." Sold by J. E. Seale & Co.

J. L. Peters attended the Baptist State Convention at East Lake last week.

and reports a very interesting meeting. The Whitsitt matter was laid on the table after a lengthy discussion.

Miss Allie Hughes, Norfolk, Va., was frightfully burned on the face and neck. Pain was instantly relieved by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which healed the injury without leaving a scar. It is the famous pile remedy. J. E. Seale & Co.

At the October term of the commissioners' court an order was granted for a new polling place in Beat 10. It will be precinct No. 2 of that beat and it will be located at Cresswell on the Central of Georgia Railway.

Mr. N. N. Osburn, well known at Woodstock, Mich., was troubled with a lame back. He was persuaded to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It gave him relief in one night. This remedy is also famous for its cure of rheumatism. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co.

The firm of Johnston & White, who recently dissolved partnership, made an assignment last week to W. R. A. Milner for the benefit of their creditors. The liabilities are put down at $1,900 and the assets at $15,500. These gentlemen made an assignment a year ago, but by agreement of their creditors continued business for the purpose of collecting. Some weeks ago Mr. White retired from the firm and this latter assignment is for the purpose of winding up the business.

J. A. Perkins, of Antiquity, O., was for thirty years needlessly tortured by physicians for the cure of eczema. He was quickly cured by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, the famous healing salve for piles and skin diseases. J. E. Seale & Co.

Wilsonville Waifs.

We are having plenty of damp bad weather since the rainy season set in. The Literary last Friday night was quite a success. All present seemed to enjoy themselves, in participating and listening to others. The society meets again Friday night, December 31.

J. C. Jackson and wife returned from the wedding tour Monday eve, and are stopping for the present at R. G. Weldon's. They expect to begin housekeeping the early part of the year 1899. We hope their bark may ever glide as smoothly as at present.

Mrs. A. L. Jackson, who has been absent from home for several months, returned Monday eve. We could not help but rejoice with her husband to see her and her little daughter return.

Dr. Boyer was called to Pratt City last Saturday morning to see Prof. W. H. Hutchings, who has been confined to his bed for more than a year. We were sorry to hear this morning that the doctor had been unable to recover. The doctor informed us that smallpox is plentiful in Pratt City and Birmingham.

Miss Bessie Cockrell will spend the holidays with her mother, who lives in Bessemer.

Henry Jackson came up to the post-office Sunday all day in his new suit, which was so becoming to him that his friends did not recognize him.

There will be a Christmas tree and oyster supper at the schoolhouse Friday night, December 24. The tree will be free, but there will be a gate fee into the supper, the proceeds for the payment of the new desks in the schoolhouse. We cordially invite everyone to come, and we promise you a pleasant time, as it will be under the management of Miss Georgia Pope, and we know of the past that it can not fail under her management.

Our popular salesman and friend, John W. Mills, is on the sick list. Anticipation of the oyster supper is the cause of his sickness. Hold on, John, it is not long until Friday night, and then you can get something to eat.

No other news, I will close, with wishing the editor and all the readers of THE CHRONICLE a very Merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Prosperity comes quickest to the man whose liver is in good condition. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are famous little pills for constipation, biliousness, indigestion, and all stomach and liver troubles. J. E. Seale & Co.

Cresswell Items.

A. G. Ross, of Jasper, was with us a short while last week. He is thinking of locating at this place or Vincent.

B. E. Wallis went over to Sylacauga Sunday to see to making arrangements about entering the Agricultural School.

Mrs. J. H. Coleman visited at Iron-dale a few days last week and is now on a visit to Jackson's Gap.

Mrs. Sarah Machen, of Sycamore, who has been visiting with Mrs. E. C. Bates at this place for several weeks, has been very sick for some days and expected to die, but we are glad to note she is improving somewhat at this writing. She had a severe case of pneumonia as pronounced by Dr. E. P. Chandler, the attending physician.

J. W. Spradley, Sr., has been on the sick list several days.

Several new families are moving into the community for another year. We hope they will be of more benefit to us than some we have had for the past year.

Arrangements are being made for a Christmas tree at the schoolhouse Friday night. Let all lend a helping hand and make it a success.

Rev. J. A. Butts filled his regular appointment here last Sunday. The congregation was small owing to the inclemency of the weather, but his sermon was of his usual kind, able and instructive.

Married at the residence of the bride's father on Wednesday, the 15th instant at 11:30 o'clock, Miss Virginia Anderson to G. M. Douglass, Rev. W. L. Sinnott officiating. The contracting parties are well and favorably known in this community, and their many friends wish for them a long and prosperous life. The happy couple left for Sylacauga Wednesday evening, the former home of Mr. Douglass, thence to Talladega to visit several days.

L. S. Cooper had the misfortune to get his residence and about half of his household goods burnt up Saturday night. We are unfortunates as to how the fire originated.

E. M. Cosper returned a few days ago from Bibb County, where he had been at work on the new railroad.

W. A. Machen, of Sycamore, was over last week on account of the sickness of his mother as stated above.

E. G. Whitley and family, W. S. Hanna and family, E. V. Whitley and family left last Thursday for Texas. They were accompanied as far as Mrs. J. A. Anderson.

Several new buildings are going up in the community.

The school is preparing for an entertainment at the residence of J. M. Glaze Thursday night.

On last Monday evening about dark a man, with wife and two small children, who gave his name as Brandon, living in the neighborhood above Vincent, was climbing up to the residence of G. W. Wallis, along the side of the railroad where there is a cut ten or twelve feet deep, and in going through a gate he struck one of the wires with his head, and the drunk began jerking and fighting the drunk, which caused him to run the wagon backwards, backing it off onto the railroad, completely turning wagon and horse over, with wife, children, and some household goods in the wagon. The woman and children were helped out of the wagon. Fortunately they had sustained no particular injuries. The horse was left in a ditch lying on his back, and help was summoned to get him out, but before help arrived a freight train came along and he helped himself up. He was with his wife and children, and they are all well together. Tuesday morning and went on his way rejoicing.

L. S. Bradford, an old and respected gentleman, died at his residence a few miles below here, Sunday night at 9 o'clock. He was buried in the family cemetery Monday at 2 o'clock. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

CHOCTAW.

It is easy to catch a cold and just as easy to get rid of it, if you commence early to use One Minute Cough Cure. It cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, pneumonia, and all throat and lung troubles. It is pleasant to take, safe to use, and sure to cure. J. E. Seale & Co.

Are You Weak?

Weakness manifests itself in the loss of ambition and aching bones. The blood is weak, the nerves are wasting, the door is being opened for disease. A bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters taken in time will restore your strength, soothe your nerves, make your blood rich and red, and in a more healthful and pleasant manner than any other medicine in private circulation. Brown's Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

Harpersville Echoes.

A merry Christmas and a happy New Year to all.

Winter is here, are you ready for it? W. L. Bass, of Columbiana, visited Harpersville last week.

Our school will vacate Thursday for the holidays.

Dr. Nelson has at last built him that long, much needed want: a smokehouse.

R. H. Gill, who moved from here last winter to near Yellowford, has moved back near here to his old home. Glad to have you back Mr. Gill.

Mr. Cooley, of Georgia, is looking at our lands with a view of buying. He will probably locate near here, where he can patronize our school.

P. T. Ray, of Wilsonville, has opened up his coal yard near here and is giving employment to a good many hands.

Professor Spinks has a debate in his school every Friday evening by his pupils; the subject last Friday for discussion was, "Resolved that marriage is not a failure." The judges after hearing both sides decided in favor of the negative. The debates are quite interesting and Mr. Spinks would be glad if all of the patrons would attend, and anyone else who may feel so disposed to do so.

We really think that Congress would do a more charitable act in donating the public lands to the public schools of this county than to the Montevallo Industrial School for Girls. Not that we have any thing against the Montevallo School; we are proud of it and wish it God speed but it strikes us that enough money has already been paid for Normal Schools, Agricultural Schools and Industrial schools until there is no more paid towards preparatory schools.

G. W. Thompson made Columbiana a business trip Monday.

Rev. Mr. Howard, of East Lake, filled Rev. Mr. Giles' appointment at the Baptist church Sunday.

The last quarterly meeting of this circuit for another year will be held here Saturday and Sunday next, December 23 and 24.

Talk about this being a poor county when the writer of these echoes made 11 bales of cotton on 12 acres of land, 35 bushels of corn and 40 bushels of oats per acre. G. W. Downs made 26 bales from 27 acres, and a great many of our farmers have made 10 and 11 bales of cotton to the acre and enough corn to do them. This talk of going to Texas to hunt a better farming country is all a farce. "Alabama, here we rest." Alabama is the best State of them all.

T. J. Martin made an assignment last week for the benefit of his creditors, and named E. Y. Caldwell as his assignee. Mr. Martin had been in the mercantile business here for 32 years, and is known far and wide for his generosity, kind heartedness, and long indulgence. He was never known to refuse to help a person who was in need, and for another year will be held here Saturday and Sunday next, December 23 and 24.

Mr. Martin broke himself up by indulging and accommodating other people. We are indeed truly sorry of his misfortune, but hope he will be on his feet again, so to speak, in a short time. His liabilities were $30,000 and assets $62,000.

Shelby Siftings.

Mrs. A. R. McElroy, after spending several weeks with relatives and friends here, left last Tuesday for her home in Galt.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Robertson, of Columbiana, were pleasant guests to our town last Tuesday.

Miss Alma J. Warrior, one of the most delightful young women of that section, as delightful as she is charming and attractive, is the guest of A. H. Avery and family.

My friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Lanning will be pleased to learn that their little daughter is quite ill.

Mr. W. H. Bell, who observes Christmas at Marion Junction.

We are sure that it will be something new and stylish, elegant and awfully expensive, and the free with twelve shoots on it at the Congregational church on Christmas Eve.

There will be union prayer meetings here, beginning on the Monday next in next month and alternating at the different churches. The programme will be announced in the next Siftings.

Quite a number of charming visitors will arrive in the city from now until holiday festivities begin. The lovely and beautiful residents, in a ship shape to care for the comedy group.

One of the young ladies of West High is deeply disappointed at the failure of her friend to come recently, and will be gratified that he will be here after Christmas.

It affords us great pleasure to read that the young man, whose work is very commendable, it opens up a new world to us and somehow gives us an introduction to the masters of his sphere of thought that puts us in a position to get the very best there is in it. The editor possesses a thorough medical equipment with which to handle the most scientific exactness and mechanical ingenuity are admirable.

Mrs. J. F. McLane has vacated her millinery establishment and taken charge of the Danmore Hotel. Mrs. McLane has experience and unlimited facilities.

The young people of the Epworth League held their semi-annual meeting at the Methodist church Friday night last, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: A. H. Avery, president; A. B. Carr, vice-president; Max Boxer, secretary; Miss Annie Wade, treasurer, and Miss Jessie Carter, organist.

Misses Bessie Carrier and Flossie Kifer were elected second and third vice-presidents.

Beeswax Crock.

J. R. Edwards, of Wilsonville, was down a short while Monday evening.

Mrs. R. L. Heaton, who has been sick for several weeks is greatly improved.

Little Willie Pitts is very sick with fever at the home of his grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. George Crumpton, at Chapel Sunday.

Prof. Lee Hill has a very flourishing school at the Wright schoolhouse.

Died, on last Friday morning, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Carr. They have our heartfelt sympathy in this, their sad bereavement.

Miss Sid Browning will visit the family of her uncle, H. B. Browning, near Calera, soon.

Caring for the Teeth.
Do not eat, or do not feed your children on, white bread, which is deficient in phosphates, and causes the teeth to crumble. A little hard food requiring thorough mastication should be taken at every meal. The teeth should be brushed both night and morning. Avoid sweets. Drink at least two quarts of water a day—a glass the first thing in the morning, another the last thing before going to bed, the remaining quantity between meals. Consult a good dentist about every six months.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Strange Death of Three Brothers.
At Clermont, in France, three brothers named Mose, all over 80 years old, have just died on alternate days in a very strange manner. The first was found Monday in a cellar half eaten by rats. The second was found Wednesday in a stable under a heap of potatoes, and the eldest, living at Flavac, was discovered two days later dead under his bed.

It is a rare man who commends; men like to tell how it should have been done.

Some thoughtful soul-proposers to bring the Chicago cable lines to terms by showering pennies upon the conductors until they cry for quarter—or quarters. We feel sure that Mr. Yerkes will watch this attempt to overwhelm his railway with money with great interest. If the present cars prove inadequate to haul the coppers away probably additional cars will be put on.

Three of the most valuable products of the mine have been found in Alaska—gold, petroleum and coal. All of these minerals are found there in abundance. The purchase of Alaska was regarded somewhat as acquiring "a pig in a poke" at a pretty stiff price, but the pig is turning out to be a very promising prospect.

What is Tetterino?
It is a fragrant, unctuous ointment of great cooling and healing power. It is good for Tetter, Ringworm, Eczema and all roughness of the skin. It stops itching at once and if persistently used will positively cure even the worst of chronic cases. 50 cents at a drug store or by mail from J. T. Shopshire, Savannah, Ga.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

NO. 2.

SWEET CHRISTMAS TIME.

Oh Christmas chime! O Christmas time!
The sweetest and the brightest;
When hearts beat high and pulses fly,
And childhood's steps are lightest;
When ruddy cheeks are ruddiest,
And red lips like a cherry.
O Christmas cheer! O Christmas cheer!
So sparkling and so merry!

Oh Santa Claus--with ample cause,
For children all adore him-- While they're asleep, takes many a peep
At trundle-beds before him;
And then he laughs--not in his sleeve,
For that is full, believe it,
Of Christmas toys, for girls and boys,
And could not well receive it.

—Mrs. M. A. Kiddler.

By MARGARET EYTINGE.

It was about nine o'clock on Christmas Eve. Small Pertaters was standing on one leg, with the other twisted around it, looking into one of the windows of Purcell's large bakery. He could smell the mince pies, that, fresh from the oven a short time before, had just been placed in it.

"They smells bully good," he said, giving a great sniff. "I wished I had one."

But he might as well, poor little fellow, have wished for the moon (he would have stood as good a chance of getting it), for not one cent was there, either in the ragged pockets of his ragged trousers, or the ragged pockets of his ragged coat. (This coat had once been the spring overcoat of some one twice as big as Small Pertaters, and it was worn to a fringe all around the bottom from trailing on the ground.)

"I'd rather," said Small Pertaters, "have one of them nor any thin' else. They're meat an' vegetables an' candy an' cake all to vunst, they is. An' how brown their kivers is. I never seen sich werry brown kivers on a pie afore."

At this moment a gentleman and a lovely fair-haired little girl, followed by a small white dog, went into the shop, stayed there a short time, and coming out again, hastened up the avenue. Small Pertaters gazed after them.

"Her hair was just like shiny gold," he said. "S'pect she has mince pie every day of her life. But it's no use me standin' here. It makes me hunger an' hunger lookin' at them pies. I'll go home an' eat my supper; an' 'tain't every boy what's got a soun-bone, with a lot of maver in it an' a hunk of gristle an' meat a-hangin' to it, an' a fresh biscuit, an' a cole biled pertater, in his coat tail pocket."

And, turning quickly from the window, he spied the small white dog which had been following the gentleman and the golden haired child sniffing at the same coat-tail pocket.

"Jimmy Jinks!" said Small Pertaters; "if that hog of a dog ain't a-tryin' to look my bone. An' I s'pect he has more soup bones nor what he knows what to do with where he lives, for he's a nobby dog, he is. Git out, you swell pup."

And the "swell pup," starting to get out, discovered that he had lost his master and mistress, and ran to and fro, with nose to the snow-covered pavement, eagerly seeking a trail of them, for five or ten minutes. Then, giving up in despair, he seated himself before the boy, who stood watching him, and shaking his muddy little paws, looked up into his face in the most beseeching manner.

"It's too bad," said Small Pertaters, patting his head with a very dirty hand. "Guess they must have got on to a ear, ole feller; an' the best thing you kin do is to come home with me, an' we'll look for 'em to-morrow."

"Did you see anything of a little white dog, after we left your shop last night?" they both asked, in the same breath.

"No; I did not, I am sorry to say," was the answer.

The tears started to the child's eyes.

"Don't cry, dear," said her papa. "We haven't half looked for him yet. We'll find the policeman who was no this beat at the time we lost him, and very likely he can tell us something about him. If he can't, I'll advertise in all the papers to-morrow."

But, fortunately, the policeman, whom they soon found, remembered seeing a small white dog trotting after a boy, between 9 and 10 o'clock the night before.

He went on again, carrying it with him, the dog still following. But he had only gone a block farther, when he heard a pitiful mewling come from an ash-barrel that stood before a tenement house, and, peeping in, he saw a black and white kitten sitting on the ashes.

"Pears to me I'm bound to have a party ter-night," said Small Pertaters. "Here's another young friend a-waitin' to come home with me. All right, pussy; here goes." And he lifted her out of the barrel, and stowed her away inside of his big coat. "There's nothin' mean 'bout me, 'specially round Christmas times."

And in another minute or two he and his three guests had arrived at the end of the street, and the end of their journey. They had reached Small Pertaters' home--"sweet, sweet home," indeed, in one sense of the word; for what do you think it was? An old molasses cask lying upon its side on the wharf, near the river. Getting down on his hands and knees, Small Pertaters, by the aid of a street lamp that stood near by, took a survey of the inside of the cask, and finding no intruder there, crawled in, laid down the hen and kitten, and then went back for the dog, who lingered at the entrance.

"Come in, ole feller," said he coaxingly.

But the dog suddenly turned tail, and was making off, when Small Pertaters sprung out and flourished the bone before his nose. The temptation was too much. Master Dog joined the party in the molasses cask; and, when the supper was served, Small Pertaters gave him the larger part of the meat and gristle, and, spreading the marrow as well as he could--for it was hard and cold--on the biscuit, he fed half of it to the kitten, keeping the other half and the cole potato for himself. As for the hen, she lay on her back as stiff as ever.

"Guess she must be froze all through," said Small Pertaters; and then, with a sigh, he murmured: "I ain't so werry full as I might be. Wished--I--had--one--of--them--mince--" and fell fast asleep, the cat and dog snuggled up, one each side of him.

Bright and early Christmas morning a gentleman and a lovely little girl called upon the owner of the bakery into the window of which Small Pertaters had been looking the night before.

"Did you see anything of a little white dog, after we left your shop last night?" they both asked, in the same breath.

"No; I did not, I am sorry to say," was the answer.

The tears started to the child's eyes.

"Don't cry, dear," said her papa. "We haven't half looked for him yet. We'll find the policeman who was no this beat at the time we lost him, and very likely he can tell us something about him. If he can't, I'll advertise in all the papers to-morrow."

But, fortunately, the policeman, whom they soon found, remembered seeing a small white dog trotting after a boy, between 9 and 10 o'clock the night before.

"The boy was Small Pertaters," he said, "and that's the reason I didn't ask anything about the dog. He's an honest, good-hearted little chap, though he is a regular street-boy, with no friends except such as he makes in the street. They call him 'Small Pertaters' 'cause he's no bigger than a boy of 6 or 7, though he must be 9 or 10. But, small as he is, he can beat and buy I ever saw at climbing and jumping. And, as I was saying, when I saw the dog with him I didn't give it a second thought."

"Where does he live?" asked the child, eagerly.

"Most anywhere, I guess, Miss," answered the policeman. "He ain't got no reg'lar home."

"And you can't tell us where to find him?" said the gentleman. "My little girl's Christmas won't be a very merry one unless she gets some tidings of her pet."

"Well, sir, you might make a try for it. Go along the north side of Gansvoort street till you come to the river; Small Pertaters has a sleeping place somewhere in that neighborhood, and maybe you'll meet him coming over to the avenue a looking for his breakfast."

So, leaving many thanks and a silver dollar for the officer's baby son behind them, the child and her father started off again, and, reaching Gansvoort street, turned into it, walking slowly along and watching both sides of the way, when, just as they arrived at the last corner, they met another policeman.

"Small Pertaters?" said he, in answer to a question of Mr. Mitchell's (that was the name of the little girl's father). "I guess you'll find him at home."

"And is his home near?" asked Dolly (that was the name of the little girl herself).

"Right over there," replied the policeman. But, as there was no house where he pointed, the gentleman began to laugh. "Do you see that molasses cask?" said he. "Well, that's Small Pertaters' home."

"What a queer home!" said Dolly; and, running across the street, she stooped and looked into the cask. There lay the poor boy, a piece of carpet wrapped around him, fast asleep. On his breast sat the kitten winking her face, and from his side, with a joyful bark, bounded a little white dog to greet his beloved mistress. The bark awoke the sleeping boy. He rubbed his eyes with his knuckles, opened them, saw a lovely face looking in at him, heard a sweet voice call "Merry Christmas, Small Pertaters," and scrambled, winking and blinking, out into the sunlight.

"Jimmy Jinks! if I didn't think you was one of them Christmas angels, fast," he said, with a curious mixture of shyness and boldness. "Then I 'membered 'twas you I seen last night comin' out of a mince pie--I mean a baker shop. An' I foun' your little dorg, an' I picked up a kitten an' a froze chickin'. Jimmy Jenks! if she ain't melted," he exclaimed, as the hen came slowly walking out of the cask. "An' I went halves with my supper an' had a regular Christmas party."

"I'm ever so much obliged to you," and they are not redeemable in gold, and even if they were nominally there is no gold for the purpose. Their value has gone up as a result of their scarcity, that is all, and this scarcity is the result of an arbitrary official act--in short, law. But the gold men insist that the law is powerless to affect value. It therefore behooves them to explain the anomalous position of the rupee.

But we are informed that the rupee has touched 16 pence, and will soon be permanently established. But suppose it continues to get scarcer and scarcer, what assurance have we that it will not rise above 16 pence, and thus destroy the gold standard upon the basis of a 16-penny silver rupee?

Why, they answer, the East Indian government will pay out rupees at 16 pence in exchange for gold. In other words, that government will keep the rupee down below its normal commercial value by selling it for less.

Great financiering that would be for a government heavily in debt. But suppose it should do so preposterous a thing. It would be flying into the teeth of another pet theory of the gold ite, that the value of silver is purely "commercial."

It is said that a "dear" rupee will ruin the export trade of India. If a "dear" rupee will ruin the export trade of that country, it follows inexorably that a "cheap" rupee must foster and stimulate it. This is exactly what the silver men in the United States have steadily claimed and what the gold men have just as steadily denied.

Upon this point we will now simply remind our gold idolaters that the "export trade" referred to is one that has been built up very largely at the expense of gold standard countries, and particularly at the expense of the United States.

It is a rather late day, though, for the government of that country to begin to whimper about its export trade. As has been sufficiently shown in other articles, by the closing of the Indian mint, which forced the rupee artificially above the level of the coins of other silver-using countries, the export trade of India to those countries received a terrible blow.

In fact, it was almost ruined. In trade with China, Japan, the Straits and other silver countries India is now at a great disadvantage, by reason of the rising value of the rupee. But as that rupee is still away below par in gold, which is 24 pence, she has a corresponding advantage in trade with gold standard countries. Still, upon the whole, the government of India plants itself upon narrow ground.

The restoration of the par value of the rupee would, it is true, deprive that country of a bounty on exports to those doing business upon a gold basis. But this bounty is already lessened by the rise of the rupee, and the more it rises the smaller the bounty becomes.

On the other hand, though, it would deprive silver-using countries of a like bounty over her, so that as a matter of commerce it is doubtful if India would lose anything.

It is to be gravely feared that the money-lender has got in his deadly work on the government of that country.

Still a Deficit.

IT LETS THE CAT OUT.

LONDON TIMES SHOWS INDIA'S SECRET.

A Gold Standard Without Gold Helps Competition with a Country That Has Both--But for Finance There Our Farmers Would Be in Dreadful Distress.

Speaking of the inability of the English government to join in a movement for the restoration of bimetalism, the London Times says:

"In a long state paper the Indian government puts forth the reasons for its reluctance, and avers that the India currency experiment has reached a point when it will become a phenomenal success. An exchange rate of 13 4d per rupee has already been touched, and will soon be permanently established; the rupee will cease to fluctuate and the desideratum, a gold standard without gold, will appear. The Indian government goes further, and alleges that the reopening of its mints with France and the United States at a bimetallic rate of 15 1/2 to 1 would be ruin to India, since a 2s rupee would kill exports and render our dependency unable to compete with the markets of the world."

We wish that every gold standard man in America might read and ponder over the statements contained in that brief extract.

The East Indian silver rupee, we are told, is now practically at about 16 pence, and that the "great desideratum, a gold standard without gold," is near at hand in that country. No matter if the people are starving by millions--no matter if they are struggling in the toils of a money famine as well as a food famine--so long as they have the gold standard they are all right.

But hold on a moment. "A gold standard without gold"--how can that be? Have we not been told ten million times that gold is the true standard, because its value is intrinsic? What becomes of the "intrinsic value" idea in the presence of a gold-standard without gold?

What does a "gold standard without gold" mean? What is it, anyway? Of course, we know what it means. It is simply the result of closing the Indian mint to the coinage of rupees.

They are not redeemable in gold, and even if they were nominally there is no gold for the purpose. Their value has gone up as a result of their scarcity, that is all, and this scarcity is the result of an arbitrary official act--in short, law. But the gold men insist that the law is powerless to affect value. It therefore behooves them to explain the anomalous position of the rupee.

It is to be gravely feared that the money-lender has got in his deadly work on the government of that country.

Still a Deficit.

The Dingley tariff for deficit keeps right on in its merry work, and the returns for October leave a neat little balance of about $10,000,000 on the wrong side of the ledger. An analysis of the receipts and expenditures of the United States shows that the total receipts for the month of October were $24,391,415, and the expenditures $33,701,512, making the excess of expenditures over receipts for the month $9,310,097, and for the four months of the present fiscal year $38,000,010. The receipts for customs during October amounted to $9,713,494, as compared with $11,105,493 for October, 1896, and the receipts from internal revenue sources $13,614,872, a gain of $251,710 over October last year. For a measure which was passed with the avowed purpose of furnishing sufficient revenue to meet the expenses of the government, the Dingley tariff is certainly falling far behind the expectations of its promoters, and unless some unexpected change for the better takes place, the contingency anticipated by Senator Aldrich will face the Republican party. This contingency will be the settled fact of a deficiency of revenue, chargeable to republican legislation, which will result in the downfall of the party responsible.--Chicago Dispatch.

Spokane Independent: "The gold circulation of the United States is fifty million dollars more than it was a year ago, and the total increase is nearly a million. There will be no bond issues to protect the gold reserve during this administration."

The gold circulation of the United States is nothing of the sort. There is no more gold in circulation now than there was three years ago. Gold will not circulate. If put in circulation it soon finds its way into the banks, where it remains idle only as a "reserve." Gold is not the money of the common people of this country, and never was. Silver and paper currency is the money of trade and commerce in this country, and will continue to remain so.

Exchange: "The treasury department estimates that the population of the United States is increasing 2,000,000 a year."

With an increase of 2,000,000 in population annually the volume of money should be increased to keep pace with it. Bank checks and bank credits will not do all the work, but they will help. An increase of $40,000,000 annually in the money volume would be about the thing.

"I am well pleased with the result of the election," is the remark credited to President McKinley the day after the Ohio slump. No man has stronger reason than President McKinley to be pleased with the Ohio result. If it shall turn out that Boss Hanna has been overthrown and defeated for senator the president will have cause for rictus joy. When McKinley became indebted to Hanna for his nomination and election he hung a millstone about his neck. The overthrow of Hanna's power and the snapping of the bonds he has twined around the administration would be the best thing that could happen to President McKinley. The continuation of Hanna's mastership will be his destruction.

In suggesting the mounting of Gatling guns at the approaches of the new Chicago postoffice building, or making provisions for mounting them, General Nelson A. Miles displays what may be called an un-American disposition and makes it evident that he has been unduly affected by what he has seen of militarism in Europe. The general seems to have been deeply impressed by the sight of this great display of force, of fortifications, soldiers and arms, and to have come home with the idea that this display is proper and necessary in our country. In that particular he is mistaken. He has allowed his imagination to become distorted by the pomp and circumstance of war.

It is of no consequence that the voice of the auctioneer could not be heard at the Union Pacific sale. The $58,065,748.40 talks loudly. There would have been larger and louder figures if other bidders had not been shut out by the administration.

Bond Issue in the Near Future.

St. Louis Republic: At the present monthly rate of excess of expenditures over receipts, it is evident that the treasury deficit before the end of the year will be so heavy that some unusual means will have to be adopted to meet the requirements. Only one of two ways is open. Senator Allison has pointed out one of them. This is to take from the appropriations for river and harbor improvement and coast defenses a sufficient sum to balance the deficit. It is hardly probable that the administration would care to establish so unpopular a precedent. The only other recourse is a bond issue. That it will be taken there is scarcely any room for doubt.

Unpopularity of the Mugwump.

New York Journal: Experience enables us at least to appreciate the popular sentiment of Athens when Aristides was banished because the people got tired of hearing him called "the just." Aristides was the great mugwump of his time. Common people do not like the holler-than-thou attitude. They will not vote for the man who stands in the market place and thanks God that he is not as other men are. After awhile their sympathies go to the publican, and they put his name on their ticket in preference to that of the pharisee.

It is not always wise to tell all one knows, but it is well to know all one tells.

ALABAMA NEWS ITEMS.

Happenings of a Week Throughout Our Commonwealth.

Oakman's Election.

The municipal election took place Monday and T. W. Sardin was elected mayor over W. W. Worthington, by 21 votes.

Reported Killing.

A report has reached Montgomery that William Hall, overseer, shot Bolling Holt across the river Saturday. Both are white.

Large Assignment.

J. H. Martin, a merchant of Harpersville, has made an assignment. His assets are placed at $60,000 and his liabilities at $30,000.

A Uniformed Burglar.

At the instigation of Night Captain Weir, of the Birmingham police force, Officer Thomas Rollo has been arrested, charged with burglary and grand larceny.

Joseph A. Brinsley, formerly a clerk in the postoffice at Opelika, was convicted at Montgomery of embezzlement. It was shown that he abstracted money from letters passing through the office.

Taken by Force.

The body of Joseph Lake, shipped to Heflin, from Butte, Mont., was held at the former place for transportation charges. The family of the deceased finally took the remains by force and later on arranged matters.

Prosperous Baldwin.

Prominent people are buying land in Baldwin county. Judge Tuttle, of Chicago, who presided at the Lutegert trial and Opie P. Reed the humorist, have purchased farms near Loxley. They will build shortly.

Seized by Revenue Officers.

H. LeGrand, tinner and hardware dealer at Athens, had his entire stock seized by United States revenue officers this week. He has been making worms for "wild cats" and other distilleries without license. The entire proceeds, it is thought, will scarcely pay the enormous license, penalty and costs.

Arrested for Embezzlement.

Albert Grimble, the well known white mail carrier of Montgomery, has been arrested, charged with embezzlement. Of late a suspiciously large number of letters and packages have been lost on Grimble's route, and Postmaster Buckley reported the fact. Inspectors Rosson and Barney were put to work on the case and decoy letters did the work.

Three Killed and Many Injured.

Late Saturday afternoon the boiler of the pole-road engine of the Bar Creek Mill company, in Monroe county, exploded, killing Jack Clippner, Monroe Sullivan and an unknown man and wounding fourteen others, one of whom has since died.

The cause of the explosion cannot be definitely determined, but it is supposed the water became low in the boiler.

A Rich Haul.

One of the richest hauls ever made by revenue officers in Madison county was made last week by Deputy Collector John L. Logwood, Deputy United States Marshals Lanier and McIntire and two special deputies. Three large stills, 18,000 gallons of beer and many other things going to complete distilling outfits were captured and destroyed near Plevne, twenty miles north of Huntsville.

Will Talk Quarantine.

A conference was held at Mobile at the call of Gov. Johnston looking to the holding of a quarantine convention of South Atlantic and Gulf states, for the better protection of the people from the invasion of disease and from the spread of the same. The meeting was suggested by State Health Officer Saunders, and was attended by representatives of several states. Representation was fixed at five members, appointed by the governor of each state, one delegate from each municipality and one from each railway system and water transportation company in the states are to be invited. They will meet in the near future and ask congress to hold off legislation until the question can be discussed.

Preparing for the Agricultural Convention.

Major Culver, commissioner of agriculture, is devoting a good deal of his time to the success of the state convention of farmers, which is to assemble at Montgomery during next month. The commissioner feels very confident that the assembly can be a great service to those who attend, as well as to the farming interests of the state generally. He believes it will have a material effect in reducing the cotton acreage of the state. He expects that at the meeting a farmers' state association will be organized, which will ramify into branch county and neighborhood associations, and in this way all of the farmers will be reached.

For Sensible Farming.

The farmers in Dallas county have never been so busy in the winter months as now. The largest oat crop in years has been sown and is up and looking splendidly. Some of the farmers on the stiff lands are making preparations to get in the best possible shape in the spring a large corn crop. There is evidently a determination on the part of the farmers of Dallas to make the cotton crop of next year altogether of second day consideration and the spirit is rapidly spreading over this section of the South.

Dollar and a Half Wheat.

At Chicago, Geo. B. French, the recognized agent of the Leiter interest in wheat, says in regard to the wheat situation: "I will say that I think that speculators are watching the local conditions and entirely ignoring the legitimate position. As soon as the deficiency of supplies and the urgency of the demand becomes more apparent, I will not be a bit surprised to see May wheat at $1.50."

SPANIARDS ANGRY.

Generals Engineering a Protest Against the President's Message.

A special from Biarritz, France, says: Mail advices received from Madrid (telegrams and telephone messages on this subject being forbidden) say the Spanish military journals, especially La Militaire, declare that twenty generals have come to an agreement to engineer a protest against President McKinley's message to congress, which is considered insulting to the Spanish army. It is added that a certain marshal was asked to co-operate, but merely replied that he would consider the matter. General Weyler answered a similar request, saying he desired in the first place to learn the opinion of certain personages, the law not allowing military men to send a collective petition to the minister for war.

Political circles are much excited at rumors of a manifesto to the country, which is said to be in course of preparation.

GEORGIA LEGISLATURE.

Resume of Work Done by That Body During the Past Session.

The state legislature expired by limitation at midnight Thursday. The principal business during the session was to provide a new penal system to take the place of the old lease system.

While convicts will still be hired out under the new system, it looks ultimately to the entire breaking up of hiring convicts to civilians and to their employment by the state.

The passage of a resolution calling upon senators and congressmen to support an amendment making United States senators elective by the people at large was the principal expression in national issues.

The legislature also declared in favor of a national quarantine.

The anti-football bill was passed by the legislature, but fell through under gubernatorial veto.

Very little active legislation reached a final passage.

JAPAN'S HAWAIIAN POLICY.

No Objection to Annexation, But Will Protect Japanese Interests.

The steamer Doric, which arrived at San Francisco from Japan Friday morning, brought the following news: It is reported that as the cabinet found that the absolute protest against Hawaiian annexation was of no avail, it concluded that it would be advisable to yield a point, and, while not objecting to annexation itself, to make an effort to insure the protection of Japanese interests. The United States government will be asked to guarantee that the annexation of Hawaii shall not interfere with the advantage hitherto possessed by Japan in the islands. This will constitute the scope of Japan's policy, even should congress approve of annexation.

FOUR MURDERED IN ARKANSAS.

An Aged Farmer, His Wife and Two Sons Killed by Robbers.

A special from Russellville, Ark., gives details of a terrible murder near Clinton, in Van Buren county. An aged farmer named Patterson lived on Culpepper mountain. With him lived his wife and six sons, one of whom was married and had a small family. While the entire household was seated at the supper table two white men, wearing masks and heavily armed, suddenly sprang into the dining room and leveling their weapons at the heads of the assembled family commanded them to remain quiet and commenced shooting, when a general fight ensued. When the desperate battle ended, it was found that the old farmer, his wife and two of the sons had been killed. Robbery was the intent of the murderers.

Big Gain in Exports and Imports.

The exports of domestic merchandise during November last amounted to $114,608,301, a gain of nearly $7,000,000, as compared with November, 1896.

The imports of merchandise were $52,352,331, of which over 50 per cent, was free of duty. The gain for the month in the imports of dutiable merchandise was over $5,300,000.

The exports of silver during November amounted to $4,979,277, and the imports $1,544,305. For the nine months the exports of silver amounted to $52,551,963 and the imports $11,017,012.

ALABAMA'S PRIDE.

The Girls' Industrial School at Montevallo Doing a Great Work.

The Girls' Industrial School at Montevallo, under the guidance of Capt. H. C. Reynolds, is doing the greatest work of any school in the South. Pupils in the dress-making department are actually making money, besides carrying on their studies. Over 325 pupils are enrolled and there is still room for a few more. We learn fifty-eight dollars pays all expenses from the 1st of January. This is one of the few state institutions where the people get the direct benefit from appropriations. The rich, the poor, the high and the low, all patronize it and are satisfied. Captain Reynolds has just returned from Washington, where he has been for some time working in the interest of a land appropriation for the school.

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana, Ala., as second class matter.

THE Montevallo News and its new editor have discovered that certain boys in that town go about at night peeping in at the school girls. A horrible set of boys Montevallo must have, and the News must be scarce of news when it gives publicity to such conduct.

A VAST amount of litigation has arisen in this county, and the people need the very best of judges on the bench, judges who know the law and will administer it impartially and conscientiously. Such an one we offer in the person of J. L. Peters as a candidate for circuit judge of this circuit.

SENATOR Chandler is out in a letter declaring that the course of the administration on the currency, if persisted in will disorganize and ultimately defeat the party. The Senator is correct. The same policy disrupted and defeated the Democratic party, and the Republicans will find it the same boomerang.

SENATOR Gallinger said in the Senate the other day that he had never heard it charged that the work of Robert Porter, as Superintendent of the Census, was performed extravagantly. Mr. Gallinger evidently did not keep his eyes open. From our own personal observation of a part of this work we could tell the Senator that it was highly extravagant, and from the standpoint of correctness a miserable farce. The Census office under Mr. Porter was about as rotten a hole as ever existed.

APPROPOS of a better road system, it might be better to use more judgment in the administration of the present one. Overseers usually wait until just before the grand jury sits and hurry over the road, dumping a little dirt in the low places and knocking off a few bumps. On other occasions they are worked during a rainy season when to disturb them is to make them worse. Altogether the public highways in this country are a nuisance and a laughing stock for those who have ever seen a good road or a properly kept street.

EDITOR GIST, OF THE COLUMBIANA CHRONICLE, says that he declared for an educational qualification for voters several years ago, before the Montgomery Advertiser or the Huntsville Tribune, or any other paper in Alabama had the nerve to venture an opinion. If Brother Gist will peruse the files of the News he will find that this paper has been advocating such a qualification and the elimination of the ignorant negro vote ever since its first issue in March 1888—Birmingham News.

Though our declaration was made before this date we accord the News all credit for its position, and would like to see a few more expressions of this kind.

THE COLUMBIANA CHRONICLE is after Congressman Wheeler with a sharp stick. It says: "Little Joe Wheeler introduces more bills and gets fewer of them passed than any man in Congress. The writer has seen upwards of 100 of them printed in one night and never heard of one, nor after." But THE CHRONICLE is bound to admit that General Wheeler is one of the best workers in Congress from the South, and that he watches Alabama's interests very closely and never misses an opportunity to put in "a solid lick" for his district and State—Birmingham News.

Of course, everybody knows and admits that, and his licks go further than his bills.

IN order to make the gold standard a success the Secretary of the Treasury has hit upon and offered a scheme as revolutionary as any of the Populist demands have ever been. He proposes an increase of national bank note circulation, to be secured, not by bonds, but by the general assets of the banks and the guarantee of the Government. We can not yet see any more good reason or safety in the Government guaranteeing bank issues than any other private assets. Land or agricultural products or any staple product would impress one as being as good assets for Government guarantee as the commercial assets of the banks. Mr. Gage seems to be trying to bolster up a financial scheme which he realizes can not stand alone.

THE bankers' convention which met in Atlanta last week, among other things, declared in favor of issuing notes on commercial assets. The Constitution call this a long step forward. It is somewhat in advance of the Democratic idea, which has been characterized as flat money. When the bankers, whose experience with and observation of the needs of the people makes their utterances worthy of consideration, declare the great need of the people for more money the need must exist; and then when they settle down on commercial assets as a basis for circulation it is little short of a revolution for these experienced financiers.

WITH this issue THE CHRONICLE begins a new volume, its thirteenth. As the years have slipped by it has plodded along in its path of straight Democracy, fighting for its convictions, giving the news, and lending its efforts to the upbuilding of the county and the towns. It is entitled to better support than it receives at the hands of the people, but we are not complaining. On this birthday we have no new leaves to turn over, no good resolutions to form; the same straight course will be pursued, and if we fail to please it will be due to no new ideas, no fault of ours. We wish all our readers a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. Leaving regrets behind us, we hope for glorious successes for all in the future.

A MATTER OF BUSINESS.

An exchange asks, Should a newspaper ask or accept money or pay as a consideration of its support of a candidate? That depends. If it does not know him to be a good man and a competent one it should not support him at all. If it can conscientiously support him as a general rule it should be paid for doing so. If it is not worth anything it should not be sought or expected. It is purely a business matter, and the newspaper which devotes its time to making candidates without any reward is doing a great deal of work for nothing. It might as well advertise a merchant's business for nothing. A newspaper may support good measures, contend for its party policies, express its own sentiments and such things for the sake of good government, and ought to do so; but when it comes to supporting individuals for office it is a business proposition and worth its value, whatever that may be. There are newspaper men in this State, grown gray in service, spent their lives in making candidates, made enemies and lost money in building up other men's fortunes, and are now poor and almost upon charity who could not command the aid of the men they helped to make. Theirs is the fault; they ought to have gotten their pay in advance. When the newspapers learn this lesson and put it into practice they will have established their independence and respect with the politicians, who at present accept all the free service they can get and fling it aside when done with it. We have learned our lesson from experience and observation. When we feel disposed we shall support candidates gratuitously, but as a rule it will be a matter of business on a cash basis. As to the measures we support they will be such as conform to our own ideas and we shall be influenced therein by nothing but the declarations of our party; as to men, they must first prove themselves worthy and pay for what advertising they want at our hands. We offer this plan for the consideration of those of our brethren who are confronted with the question quoted above. This should be the rule, and the exceptions would then feel more highly complimented. If this rule should be more generally adopted the newspapers would be more generally looked upon with respect and would come nearer making a living for their owners. So long as we hold to this mistaken idea of honor and work for nothing, so long will we be the cat-paw for wily politicians and more frequently will we find ourselves supporting bad men. Good men are more likely to pay for newspaper help if they want it. The whole thing may be summed up thus: A newspaper should have no price in its support of measures; it should make no man promise nor promote his interests unless he be worthy and then only for a proper consideration. The reasons are plain. If an editor's opinions can be bought they are of little value; if a paper's individual support is not worth anything it had best be withheld.

A PRESS dispatch dated the 15th says: At a meeting of the Arkwright Club, which was held at Young's hotel to-day, a report was presented upon the conditions of Southern competition in cotton manufacturing and the best practicable mode of meeting it. The report was unanimously adopted. The committee's concise opinion is given in these words: "Much as we honor finds that with the advantage he possesses he can make these goods at a cost which will allow him to undersell our mills and leave him a margin of profit which is sufficient to induce the investment of capital. Now, what are these advantages? First that cotton is conveniently near and that freight on it can be saved; second, that water-power is abundant if you care to utilize it; third, that coal is cheap if you prefer to run by steam; third, that labor is abundant and cheap; and not inclined to organize against the employers; fourth, that the enactment of restrictive labor laws is not likely to trouble manufacturers for many years. In our opinion the cheap labor, long hours and freedom from legislative interferences are the chief advantages and the others are unimportant and of doubtful value." The committee in summing up its report says that while manufacturers in the North—especially in Massachusetts—cannot undo labor legislation, they must meet the competition by cutting wages.

The above may be but a forecast of the final settlement of a good many vexing questions. The advantages of the South as the proper location for the factories once recognized by our Eastern people may mean an entire change of base, and prove the final upbuilding of our section. Our country can not long remain unrecognized.

WITH practically the same policy in hand and pursuing practically the same course in its maintenance, there is one wide difference between Mr. McKinley and Mr. Cleveland. The latter actually believed in his policy and had the courage of his convictions. He was bold and fearless, not regarding the sanction or opposition of anyone. Mr. McKinley evidently does not possess either faculty. He does not at least believe in the policy his administration is pledged to, and he is dominated by unsympathetic masters. With this distinctive feature the present administration is bound to be a greater failure than was that of the man who was following his own inclination. Whatever the defects to be charged against Mr. Cleveland's administration, it was not characterized by weakness; the latter will be mainly remembered when it is over for its lack of personal strength on the part of its executive head.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mrs. F. W. Gist.

If there is one thing in this world more annoying than another that thing is to go to church and when services begin and silence ought to reign supreme have a dozen or two children and youngsters shifting their feet and knocking their feet against the seats and floor, giving out a perpetual knock, knock, thump, thump. We suffered this excruciating experience at church a few days ago, and felt like we would be compelled to leave church, and our sympathies went out to the preacher, for we thought we could discern his annoyance and disgust. The people of Columbiana are as a rule as correct, well behaved and dignified as can be found anywhere, but often the very best of us are humiliated by such misbehavior in our children. Let us give them a special lesson on this line.

The best system of public schools in the United States, it is said by those of long experience and observation, exists in the city of Washington. There the teachers do no whipping. The District has a law forbidding it. Slight misconduct is punished by keeping the students in after school hours, or by locking them in the cloak room. If the pupil is guilty of graver misconduct he is reported to the parents or guardian and if their reproof does not have the desired effect he is suspended or expelled. When parents send their children out to school there they know they will be governed by the best of discipline and taught by the best methods, and they have no fear or apprehensions that they will be drawn up to the whipping post. A teacher there would be landed in jail in less than two hours if he whipped a child. We think if our schools in this country would emulate a better discipline and more enlightened progress we would find the change very satisfactory and profitable. We have never had a child whipped at school, but we know lots of people who have. Children at school no doubt commit offenses that requires punishment, but it is a far better plan to report the offense to the parents, and the reproof is sure to be more effective; and in that way parent and teacher are cooperative and both work in harmony for the best good to the pupil.

Next Saturday is Christmas, a day celebrated in as many different ways almost as there are people to celebrate. Bab, in her Christmas letter, gives the best plan of all for celebrating the Christmas holidays. She implores everyone who can to throw open their doors and invite friends and near relatives to come and be happy, enjoy the children's gifts, and let us become as little children and enter into a spirit of innocent amusement and merry-making. But there are also many who are making their annual preparations for a different kind of celebration—a genuine, long, big drunk. This is the most degrading manner in which man can possibly celebrate the birth of our Saviour. Of all times on earth that a man ought to keep sober that time is Christmas. If we were a drunkard and kept drunk every day in the year the 25th of December would find us sober and in a frame of mind to duly appreciate the anniversary of the birth of Christ. The idea of getting drunk for a Christmas spree is revolting and is blaspheming the great Creator. The Christmas drunk man is a menace on the face of the earth.

If you want oysters, turkey, and more good things than we can enumerate, come to the supper at Mrs. Browne's next Monday night.

When THE CHRONICLE greets you again we will have drifted again into another new year. We hope it may be a happy one to all of our readers and a prosperous one throughout the year. With the old year let us bid goodbye to any feeling of enmity we may have formerly cherished against any of our fellow-creatures—as we forgive so we are forgiven. Let us take on fresh courage, new energies to faithfully fulfill our duties, and keep our faces to the sunlight, and with frugal industry and perseverance bring about the better times we are all longing for. The little girl over in Georgia, in concluding a prayer, said, "Now, O Lord, take care of yourself, for you and McKinley are all we have to depend upon, and it don't look like McKinley is going to do much for us," was summing facts up pretty well, only she could have improved the prayer by saying, O Lord, you and ourselves are all we can depend upon. The man who sits idly around his fireside whittling sticks waiting for Congress to send him a barrel of free silver will wind up at the end of the year with an empty barn and corn crib. If we were all the farmers in the country and tilling all the agricultural lands in the universe we would plant not one cotton seed. We would plant any and everything else that would grow under the sun, but not one cotton seed.

Our Xmas turkey has arrived, and the mistletoe and evergreens are to be trimmed and put in.

The Xmas supper at Mrs. W. B. Browne's on Monday night, the 27th instant, bids fair for an enormous crowd. Well, come on friends and give the little Presbyterian church a lift.

We bid you all a kindly farewell until the blessed new year arrives.

SECRETARY Gage, of the Federal Treasury, announced boldly before the House committee that the policy of the administration is to more firmly fasten upon the country the single gold standard. This finally has the Republican party come out from behind its cloak of pretended bimetalism and shows its hand, and the issue is squarely formed. The Democratic party is for the double standard, for the equal use of gold and silver, with all that signifies; the Republican party is for the single standard of gold. There can be no dodging now. Let there be a lining up; the two parties have taken their stand and the people must decide for themselves with which they will cast their lot. Let the partisans crawl down on their respective sides; the mugwumps and cuckoos may sit still on the fence.

To Teachers.

I am authorized to state that money due teachers for the first quarter ending December 31 will not be ready until after January 15, 1898.

"Just as Good" as Scott's and we sell it much cheaper," is a statement sometimes made by the druggist when Scott's Emulsion is called for. This shows that the druggists themselves regard Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda as the standard, and the purchaser who desires to procure the "standard" because he knows it has been of untold benefit, should not for one instant think of taking the risk of using some untried preparation. The substitution of something said to be "just as good" for a standard preparation twenty-five years on the market, should not be permitted by the intelligent purchaser.

Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion. See that the man and fish are on the wrapper. 50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

Notice of Attachment.

BEFORE ME, J. A. ACTON, as Executor of the Will of John Caldwell, deceased, Circuit Court Shelby County, Ala.

Whereas Rufus M. Desha, as executor of the will of John Caldwell, deceased, as plaintiff in said cause, has obtained an attachment of this court, issued on the 9th day of November, 1897, against the estate of the said J. A. Acton, as defendant, which attachment has been levied on the following described real estate of the said defendant, to-wit: Part of the east half of the northwest quarter and the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter and the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 12, and the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 13, all in township 12, range 2 west, situated in Jefferson County, Ala.; also by writ of garnishment served upon J. A. Acton, to answer as to indebtedness to the said J. A. Acton, and whereas it appears that the said J. A. Acton, defendant in said cause, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama and resides in the State of Texas, but whose particular place of residence is unknown to plaintiff. Now, therefore, the said J. A. Acton, who is the party in interest in the said attachment and the levy thereof as aforesaid, Witness my hand this 4th day of December, 1897.

Application to Sell Land.

STATE OF ALABAMA. Probate Court, 24th Shelby County. (day of November, 1897. Estate of Mary A. Cooper, deceased.

To Mary A. West, Minnie F. Cooper, Rubie A. Cooper, Gene B. Cooper, and Thompson H. Cooper, all of New Boston, Tex.; and Carrie E. Cooper, of Holly Springs, Tex.:

This day came W. W. West, as executor of said estate, and filed his application in due form and under oath praying for an order of sale of certain lands, described therein and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of paying debts and for distribution, upon the ground that there is no personal property and that the said lands can not be equitably divided without a sale. It is ordered that the 10th day of January, 1898, be appointed a day for hearing such application, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same if they think proper.

D. R. McMillan, Judge of Probate.

Notice to Nonresidents.

BROWNE & LEEPER, J. Circuit Court Shelby County, Ala.

Whereas Browne & Leeper are plaintiffs in said cause, has obtained an attachment of this court, issued on the 24th day of October, 1897, against the estate of the said Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co., as defendants, which attachment has been levied on the following described personal property of the said defendants, to-wit: Seventy-five tons of pig iron, at Brainerd, Bibb County, Ala.; and whereas it appears that the said Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co., as defendants, are nonresidents of the State of Alabama, and reside in the City of New York. Now, therefore, the said Thos. J. Pope Sons & Co., who are the party in interest, are hereby notified of said attachment and the levy thereof as aforesaid.

Witness my hand this 7th day of December, 1897.

To Subscribers.

As there will be no paper published next week, we take occasion to again call attention to our determination to place all subscriptions on a cash basis after January 1. If any do not get their paper week after next they may know that their time has expired, and in future this will be our policy. We shall regret to lose any subscribers, but no newspaper can be run successfully otherwise, and with an established rule it will work no hardship on any. You will have two weeks within which to hand in your renewals, and we hope to have them. If you haven't the money we are in the market for eatables, and if you can't pay a year ahead you can pay six months or three.

The 3-year-old boy of J. A. Johnson, of Lynn Creek, Ill., is subject to attacks of convulsions. Mr. Johnson says he is satisfied that the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, during a severe attack, saved his little boy's life. He is in the drug business, a member of the firm of Johnson Bros., of that place; and they handle a great many patent medicines for throat and lung diseases. He had all these in his house, and skilled physicians ready to respond to his call, but selected this remedy for use in his own family at a time when his child's life was in danger, because he knew it to be superior to any other, and famous the country over for its cure of croup. Mr. Johnson says this is the best selling cough medicine they handle, and that it gives splendid satisfaction in all cases. Sold by J. E. Seale & Co.

Mr. Gordon DuBose, the genial banker of our city, attended the convention of Southern bankers at Atlanta last week. He reports a pleasant time and an interesting session. While the attendance was rather slim and principally from Georgia, Mr. DuBose thinks the action of the convention voices the sentiment of most of the bankers of the South. Mr. DuBose, we note from the press reports of the meeting, gave expression of his views to the assemblage and took a lively interest in the meeting.

"The worst cold I ever had in my life was cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes W. H. Norton, of Sutter Creek, Cal. "This cold left me with a cough and I was expectorating all the time. The Remedy cured me, and I want all of my friends when troubled with a cold or cough to use it, for it will do them good." Sold by J. E. Seale & Co.

J. L. Peters attended the Baptist State Convention at East Lake last week, and reports a very interesting meeting. The Whitsitt matter was laid on the table after a lengthy discussion.

Miss Allie Hughes, Norfolk, Va., was frightfully burned on the face and neck. Pain was instantly relieved by Dr. Wm. C. Riddle's Lizzal Salve, which healed the injury without leaving a scar. It is the famous pile remedy. J. E. Seale & Co.

At the October term of the commissioners' court an order was granted for a new polling place in Beat 10. It will be precinct No. 2 of that beat and will be located at Cresswell on the Central of Georgia Railway.

Mr. N. N. Osburn, well known at Woodstock, Mich., was troubled with a lame back. He was persuaded to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It gave him relief in one night. This remedy is also famous for its cure of rheumatism. For sale by J. E. Seale & Co.

The firm of Johnston & White, who recently dissolved partnership, made an assignment last week to W. R. A. Milner for the benefit of their creditors. The liabilities are put down at $3,900 and the assets at $15,500. These gentlemen made an assignment a year ago, but by agreement of their creditors continued business for the purpose of collecting. Some weeks ago Mr. White retired from the firm and this latter assignment is for the purpose of winding up the business.

Caring for the Teeth.
Do not eat, or do not feed your children on, white bread, which is deficient in phosphates, and causes the teeth to crumble. A little hard food requiring thorough mastication should be taken at every meal. The teeth should be brushed both night and morning. Avoid sweets. Drink at least two quarts of water a day—a glass the first thing in the morning, another the last thing before going to bed, the remaining quantity between meals. Consult a good dentist about every six months.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Strange Death of Three Brothers.
At Clomence, in France, three brothers named Mose, all over 80 years old, have just died on alternate days in a very strange manner. The first was found Monday in a cellar half eaten by rats. The second was found Wednesday in a stable under a heap of potatoes, and the eldest, living at Flavac, was discovered two days later dead under his bed.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution, and assisting nature in doing its work. THE FARM AND GARDEN.

ITEMS OF INTEREST ON AGRICULTURAL TOPICS.

Storing Roots in Pits—Variety of Feed for Calves—Quack Grass Among Oats—The Value of Oat Hay—Etc., Etc.

STORING ROOTS IN PITS.

The proper way to keep all roots is in out-of-door pits, and as much as possible excluding air from them. Some kinds of fruit, as turnips, rutabagas and carrots, do not easily freeze, but all are injured by exposure to the air. When we grow potatoes largely we always stored most of what were not sold in the fall in pits. This is especially important for the potatoes required for seed. While the ground was still frozen we covered the potato heaps with straw, so as to keep it frozen as long as possible. Potatoes that can be kept from sprouting until planting time produce much the best crops.

VARIETY OF FEED FOR CALVES.

When calves are weaned they should be given as great a variety of food as possible. Not only will the calf itself be thriftier, but those that are to be future cows will be more valuable after their lives. We never saw a really good cow that was not a hearty eater. It is for this reason that the poor man's single cow, which is petted and fed various kinds of nutritious foods from the table, is nearly always a good one. Put the same cow in a large herd, and feed it as the others are fed, with plenty of food but little variety, and she will not be nearly so good.

QUACK GRASS AMONG OATS.

The oat crop ripens latest of all the small grains, and where the land is filled with roots of quack grass some of those will get even start with the grain, and will ripen their seed at the same time. Quack seed is very small, so that in winnowing the oats most of it will fall through the sieve and be separated from the oats. But some of the quack seed is likely not to be threshed, and will then go into the stock. It is in this way that quack grass often spreads from a small place over the entire farm. When it gets into the manure pile, there is no stopping its progress. Late oats and late hay grown where quack grass is known to be should be kept by themselves, and the oat straw be sold to some factory where it will not go into anybody's manure pile.

HORTICULTURE WILL PROGRESS.

We shall never reach the goal of our desires, when we shall know exactly what to plant and how to cultivate, and how best to gather, pack, market and sell, so that our work may be without some disappointments, but of this we may well be assured: The day is not coming, either now or hereafter, when intelligent horticulture will not have its reward; when men will demand less fruit, but more; when size and color and exquisite quality, brought about by highest intelligence in culture and management, will not always bring a corresponding increase in price; when intelligent study of the courses of nature, of the effect of frost and sun and cloud upon the life and health of plant, and the beauty and sweetness of fruit, will not richly repay the student.

Nor is the time coming when an outdoor life, surrounded by the beauties of nature, and in a work which takes account of all the manifold blessings of Providence, from the beginning to the end of the year, will not have its effect in soothing the nerves and making more healthful and joyous the life of the worker. Few men ever became so utterly absorbed in striving for honors or honors that they do not cherish to the end of their days a tender hope that some day they may live surrounded by trees and plants and flowers. No life, no matter how luxurious in any city, no matter how great and prosperous, can so well sustain health and vigor, or so well enable one to rear a family of healthy and happy children, as a life on the land and near the heart of nature.—T. L. Watrous, of Iowa.

THE VALUE OF OAT HAY.

The point I wish to make to-day with regard to the oat-crop is that if properly handled it is one of the most valuable forage crops on the farm. It should be cut so as to save the fodder in a green state, similar to the saving of corn fodder. You will perhaps not get as much oats, but you will get a fodder that is quite valuable. This should take the place of timothy hay, a crop that I have yet been unable to see any good reason for growing on dry, rolling lands. Where you have low, moist land, that is too wet for corn, timothy may be perfectly grown, but it is not a valuable crop when you consider the room it occupies.

It is popular with city people who buy hay, but the economic farmer will find there is very little difference between a ton of timothy hay and a ton of well-cured corn fodder, and a very little difference between a ton of timothy hay and a ton of oat straw cut at the right time. We must abandon crops that are not absolutely profitable and utilize everything that can be saved in a more valuable condition. The oat crop should probably have more consideration than has yet been given to it. It does not lack much of being a perfect ration for man and beast. In the winter time sheaf oats cut in a green state in the field and fed with cornmeal make quite an acceptable ration for any of the farm animals—the horse or the ruminant. The farmer is not likely to grow too much oats where the horse, the dairy cow and the young animals are considered. We do often grow more corn than can be economically fed.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, at the Ohio State Fair.

THE BACON HOG.

Every season of late the question of securing bacon hogs forces itself to the front and the American farmer must consider it if he expects to raise hogs that will produce meat such as is required by those who pay the best prices. Discussing this matter the Iowa Homestead says: To make the bacon that is wanted on the breakfast table of to-day requires management and rearing quite different from that which the American hog usually gets.

The pigs on the farms in the corn belt are generally fed corn from weaning time until slaughter, with the result that they lose size in a very few years, become very fine in bone and from the earliest period resemble animated—bladders of lard. They are round and pretty, but they are mainly butterballs throughout and lack the alternate streak of lean and fat that are the first requisites in good bacon.

The highly improved breeds, as they are usually fed, are not the source from which bacon worthy of the name comes in this country, although this is not saying that by proper feeding and management they could not furnish it. Nitrogenous feeding during the growing period, together with muscle-making exercise, and a corn finish when growth is attained, are the lines along which bacon-making should be attempted. Back of this should be a better selection of breeding the stock with a view to producing the bacon form, which is as different from what most of us have been taught to admire as the beef form in cattle is different from the dairy form.

Canadian bacon enjoys a very high reputation and deserves it, but its foundation is peas, just as the basis of the lard hog is corn, and the pictures of prize-winning bacon pigs in the live stock publications show animals that the corn belt farmer would not have on the place. Still, he will never make satisfactory bacon until he does, and to make them, breeding stock with length, less tendency to fatten and not quite so pretty in outline must be selected. Then, with proper feeding—which, after all, is the difficulty in a section where fattening foods are plenty and muscle-making ones are scarce—a bacon hog as good as anybody's can be produced.

FODDER MUST BE DRY WHEN SHREDDED.

The difficulty in keeping shredded fodder is due to its being put into the mow or stack while damp. It takes some time for the stalks to dry out thoroughly, and it is useless to expect good results from stored shredded fodder unless it is free from sap, and in fact moisture of any kind, before being put into the mow. As a rule fodder in the shock is ready for shredding as soon as the ears are dry enough to crib.

Experience shows that it is best to haul the corn from the field as soon as it is thoroughly dried out, and run it at once through the husker and shredder. The longer it remains in the field the greater the loss from weathering. If to be stored in a mow, spread evenly over the floor and tramp down, as in putting away hay. As a rule no further attention is required until it is wanted for feed. Alternate these layers until the mow is filled. If stacked out of doors straw can also be used. The straw absorbs the surplus moisture in the fodder, and those who have experimented with this mixture claim that the feeding value of the straw is increased. The addition of a little salt when the fodder is being put in is often an advantage where the material is not entirely free from sap. Use about the same quantity as in staking hay.

After the fodder is stored it will sometimes heat, but this is merely the "sweating" process and desirable rather than objectionable. If the other conditions are favorable the quality of the feed will be improved rather than injured. When it is "sweating" and hot it must not be stored. In the dairy districts shredded fodder has proven an excellent feed to alternate with ensilage or to feed along with it. To be of the greatest value it must be shredded so finely that all the hard portions are broken up and any sharp edges removed. Some machines merely crush the stalks, but leave them in poor condition, with jagged edges and often large, hard pieces. Others, however, shred it perfectly, cutting and tearing the stalks and blades into fine bits which are as soft as hay and as readily eaten by farm animals. Horses, cattle and sheep eat it with apparently as much relish as hay.

Corn binders are now on the market, which cut the standing corn and bind it into bundles. These machines, with the combined huskers and shredders, render the matter of harvesting corn as fodder light work compared with the old methods of hand cutting and husking.—American Agriculturist.

FARM AND STOCK NOTES.

The carriage horse needs more teaching than a draft horse.

All horse stock should be well fed—fattened before sending to market.

Do not let your hogs lie in old filthy sheds, nor about straw, dirt or manure piles.

A colt that is not growing well might make profitable use of some skim milk.

Watch the colt's feet. Keep them in shape, even if you have to trim them occasionally.

A little feed grain to the growing colts with their roughage will be a profitable investment.

The best time of the year for fattening hogs is now at hand and should be made the most of.

Don't waste any roots or apples. No food does winter hogs more good than they, because they act as a laxative.

The trainer or breaker of a colt should not lose his temper, for much of the mean disposition goes into the horse.

Experience has shown that a fall dipping repays twice over for the cost of it, in the better condition of the fleece at next shearing time.

Let the pig have all the pure water he wants. He will fatten faster, be quieter and healthier. Give slop also, but do not neglect the water.

Keeping swine around the house and farm buildings, as you would house dogs, they become unmitigated nuisances, of no use to themselves nor to anyone else.

Good, pure bred bulls and cows are now in demand, and those who have such for sale will have no occasion to complain of dull trade if they will let it be known.

The brood sows should not be allowed to run down in flesh while suckling their litters. Feed middlings and bran mixed, equal parts by weight, made moist with skim milk and kitchen slops.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

The Senate—Wednesday.

Proceedings of the senate were enlivened today by an interesting debate upon the bill presented by the foreign relations committee providing for the prohibition of pelagic sealing by Americans. Mr. Davis, of the foreign affairs committee, called up the bill prohibiting fur sealing in the waters of the North Pacific and presented letters from Secretaries Sherman, of the state department, and Gage, of the treasury department on the subject, advocating the passage of the proposed measure. Mr. Davis said the bill was in the aid of furthering diplomatic negotiations and pointed out that there was now no law prohibiting pelagic sealing. Mr. Pettigrew entered a sharp protest to the passage of the bill because it deprives Americans of privileges extended to people of other countries, and offered an amendment to the effect that if Great Britain by the first of June next did not agree to a suspension of pelagic sealing this country would kill all seals, male and female, and thus settle the question once for all. Mr. Pettigrew then offered an amendment to the bill in line with his remarks, but it was defeated. The bill was then passed by a vote of 37 to 14. By agreement the bill providing for the twelfth census was taken up, but went over until after the holiday recess. . . . Mr. McBride, of Oregon, endeavored to secure the adoption of his resolution directing the secretary of war to supply relief to the suffering miners in the Klondike region and appropriating $250,000 for that purpose. The resolution was amended so that supplies might be transported by means of reindeer. Mr. McBride consented finally that the resolution should be recommitted to the military affairs committee with the understanding that it would be promptly reported.

The House.

The House spent the day in the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. Eighty-nine of the 112 pages of the bill were covered and only one amendment of importance was adopted. It reduced the clerical force at the pension office ninety-five, involving a reduction in salaries of $115,000. The civil service question, as on yesterday, was the chief topic of discussion today. At the opening this morning a resolution for the holiday recess from Saturday, December 18, to January 5, offered by Mr. Dingley, from the committee on ways and means, was adopted. Mr. Livingston submitted some general remarks in opposition to the civil service law, which he denounced as a humbug and a fraud. He was followed by Messrs. Dearmond, Bingham and Wheeler, and at 5:05 the House adjourned.

The Senate—Thursday.

Mr. Allen's resolution calling on the president for information about the instructions given to the international monetary commission and the report made to him by the commission came up, to which Mr. Wolcott, chairman of the commission, replied that he would soon make a detailed statement of the commission. The resolution went over until January 15. . . . Mr. Pritchard, chairman of the committee on civil service, delivered a speech concerning the general features of the law. Mr. Frye, of the commerce committee, favorably reported and the senate passed a bill directing the secretary of the treasury to purchase or construct a suitable vessel for revenue cutter service on the Yukon river, Alaska, to cost not to exceed $40,000. . . . Mr. Allison reported favorably the house joint resolution providing for a recess of congress from December 18, 1897, to January 5, 1898. The resolution was adopted. . . . Mr. Hawley reported the resolution of Mr. McBride, for the relief of American miners and other sufferers in the Yukon valley, Alaska. The committee struck out all but the enacting clause and amended the resolution by appropriating $250,000, which is to be used by the secretary of war for the purchase of subsistence and supplies, and for their transportation and distribution. The resolution was adopted. . . . A resolution was passed directing the secretary of the treasury to furnish the senate the names of the revenue cutters employed on the coast of Florida to prevent filibustering; how many such expeditions were thwarted; what vessels were captured; what armed expeditions were taken, and by what authority of law the secretary of the treasury acted in the matter. The bill went over to a future date. Adjourned.

The House.

The house today passed a bill appropriating $175,000 for the relief of the people of the Yukon river country, and also the bill passed by the senate yesterday to prohibit pelagic sealing by American citizens. In the course of the debate over the latter bill there was some exceedingly caustic criticisms of the course of our Behring sea negotiations, past and present. After further debate, the bill was passed, yeas 148, nays 78. 5 o'clock the house adjourned.

The Senate—Friday.

A spirited debate was precipitated in the senate today by the submission by Mr. Platt, of Connecticut, of the report of the special joint committee of the senate and house of representatives, appointed to investigate the use of alcohol in the arts. It developed that a wide divergence of opinion exists among senators as to the practicability from the point of view of government revenue of reducing the present tax upon alcohol used in the arts. Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, who favors such a reduction, expressed the opinion that if congress would lay aside political considerations and deal with the liquor question courageously and honestly by the imposition of an additional tax of a dollar a barrel on liquor and beer the government revenue would take care of itself. Mr. Vest, of Missouri, strenuously opposed any additional tax on beer. . . . Under a special order eighteen private pension bills were passed. . . . At the suggestion of Mr. Hawley, chairman of the military affairs committee, the bill passed by the house for the relief of the miners in the Klondike was taken up at once. The senate bill was substituted for that of the house and a conference ordered, with Senators Hawley, Carter and Cockrell as conferees. . . . After the debate on alcohol used in the arts had run some time, Mr. Allison deprecated any attempt to raise the question at present. . . . At 4:25 p. m. the senate adjourned until tomorrow.

The House.

The house today completed the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, excepting the paragraph relating the civil service. By agreement, the debate on this latter paragraph will go over until after the holidays. The bill as reported abolishes the assay office at New Orleans. The house then went into committee of the whole and resumed the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial bill. On Mr. Cannon's motion, the senate amendment to the bill for the relief of the miners on the Upper Yukon was disagreed to and its committee agreed to a conference. Messrs. Cannon, of Illinois; Northway, of Ohio, and Sayers, of Texas, were appointed conferees. . . . The debate drifted into a financial discussion. Mr. Cox, of Tennessee, submitted that Secretary Gage's testimony, given before the house banking committee, was a frank statement of the position of the government. He had voted his adherence to the gold standard as against bimetalism, and his whole bill was designed to uphold and perpetuate that standard. Adjourned.

The Senate—Saturday.

Today's open session of the senate was brief, the time being consumed in the introduction of bills and resolutions, several of the latter calling for information from various departments being passed. . . . A joint resolution was passed providing for the expenditure of $10,000 more than originally intended upon the government building at the Trans-Mississippi exposition at Omaha, Neb.; that $2,500 be appropriated for a building at the exposition for a display of the life-saving service and that the cost of the government buildings at the exposition to $62,500. . . . Mr. Platt, of Connecticut, secured the adoption of a resolution, calling upon the secretary of the interior to report to the senate the present status in the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations in the Indian Territory. . . . The senate, at 12:40 p. m., went into executive session. After the executive session the conference report upon the bill providing relief for the Klondike miners was received and adopted. The bill appropriates $100,000 to be expended under the direction of the secretary of war to relieve the suffering people in the Yukon valley and gold-bearing regions of Alaska, providing the consent of the Canadian government can be obtained to the transportation of such supplies through Canadian territory. At 2 p. m. the senate adjourned until Wednesday, January 5, 1898.

The House.

The conference report to the emergency relief measure for the Klondike country was presented and agreed to. It compromises the amount of the relief fund at $200,000; provides securing the consent of Canada to extending the relief to the Canadian side, and authorizes the use of the army to carry out the relief measures. It also provides that the supplies must be purchased instead of being donated. . . . A house bill was passed confirming certain cash entries of public lands. . . . At 12:30 Mr. Boutelle, of Illinois, offered resolutions of profound regret on the death of Mr. Cooke, of Illinois, and eulogies were begun. Those who paid tribute to the deceased member were Messrs. Boutelle, Foss, Henderson, Belknap, Boyce, Mann, Hopkins, Dinwiddie, Graf, Moody, Prince and Peters. At 2:10 the house adjourned to January 5.

UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA.

Furloughs for the Holidays—December 25 to January 2. On requests from parents or guardians, students will receive leaves of absence from Thursday afternoon, December 23, through January 2 following. This will enable all who so desire to spend both Christmas and New Year at their homes. January 3 will be a good time for new students to enter, as in many departments new subjects begin on that day. Such will receive a cordial welcome to the University. For announcement with further particulars apply to JAMES K. POWERS, President University Alabama.

As'ed to Co-Operate.

The Atlanta Clearing House Association held an important meeting Friday at which resolutions were adopted urging all chambers of commerce, clearing houses and bankers' associations of the southern states to take prompt action looking to carrying out the plans recently proposed at the bankers' convention held in Atlanta, to send a delegation to Washington to co-operate with those who are seeking a reformation of the currency and banking system.

To Please His Second Wife.

William Carr, the child murderer, was hanged at the Clay county court house at Liberty, Mo., Friday. Carr was an ignorant backwoodsman who sought to please his second wife by drowning his 3-year-old daughter by his first wife.

C. B. Collins, ex-state treasurer of Florida, was acquitted of the embezzlement of $52,000. The defendant did not deny that he was short that sum, but declared that there was no intent to defraud. Banks in which he had deposited state funds failed.

Carolina Convict Problem.

While the legislatures of several of the Southern states have been wrestling with the convict question, the South Carolina board of directors of the penitentiary has just ordered the sale of 1,100 bales of cotton on hand. The expectation is that the penitentiary will have 2,500 bales to offer before the season closes. All of this cotton was made on the several state farms with convict labor. The farms will this year turn in at least $10,000 to the state treasury.

Cause of Much Misery.
Of all microbes the animalcule of la grippe is the ugliest to look upon. Magnified to the size of the picture here shown, this microbe has the appearance of a new kind of bug—all legs and body. Suffering mortals who have been sneezing, sniffing and mopping watery eyes will be interested. LA GRIPPE MICROBE, to see the cause of their trouble. This microbe is industrious, if not pretty, and he will continue to be much in evidence unless all present indications fail.

A New Jersey paper prints a picture of a young woman who was bitten nearly to death by mosquitoes. We cannot escape the impression that these mosquitoes sometimes display very poor taste.

ALABAMA'S BEAUTY TALKS SENSE.

Miss Alice Rabbin Jennifer, Ala., says: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 15 years, and know it cures Sick Headache and Constipated Bowels. I think it has more strength and action than either "Black Draught" or "Zellin's Regulator."

Parturition. Childbirth, when natural, should be easy, and it is always easy when the right preparations are made. Nature never intended that woman should be tortured when doing the one thing that makes her child. To fear or shrink from childbirth is a crime—not by the laws of society, but by the laws of humanity. The mother's condition reacts upon her offspring. Every child has an inalienable right to be born on purpose, and the right to be the product of the best manhood and best womanhood of its parents and the consummation of their life's joys. To secure this condition, the best tonic that can be used is Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine; it is perfectly safe and harmless to use at all times and under all circumstances in the doses prescribed. It assists nature in softening, relaxing and expanding the muscles and ligaments involved, thereby decreasing labor pains and shortens labor. Rapid, safe and comparatively painless delivery follow its continuous use.

Dr. J. J. Ingram Hatchett Creek, Ala., writes: I have known Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine all my life, and have used it 15 years. Think it far superior to "Zellin's" medicine, and that it excels "Black Draught" to a large extent. It cures Sick Headache and Wind Colic.

Too Frequent Menstruation. When the monthly flow occurs at the proper period, it is otherwise, it is natural, the patient suffers little or no pain, but if it occurs too often, continues too long or too profusely, it indicates a feeble, cold, and delicate system, and a delicate system, cold, delicate, weak respiration and general debility. In treating this disease, modern experience has shown that the essential: the digestive organs should be regulated with Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, and a delicate system will follow the use of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine in strengthening the system so that too frequent menstruation, resulting from debility will be corrected.
